Poetry.

Do Something.

If the world seems cold to you,
Kindle fires to warm it!
Let their comfort hide from you
Winters that deform it.

Hearts as frozen as your own,
To that radiance gather,
You will soon forget to moan,
"Ah! the cheerless weather!"

If the world's a "vale of tears,"
Smile till rainbows span it;
Breath the love that life endears—
Clear from clouds to fan it.

Of your gladness lend a gleam
Unto souls that shiver;
Show them how dark sorrow's stream
Blends with hope's bright river!

Miscellany.

Spreading the Gospel.

"You see, pa likes a joke the best of any man you ever saw if it is on somebody else, but he kicks like a steer when it is on him. I asked him this morning if it wouldn't be a good joke to put some soft soap on the front step, so the letter carrier would slip up and spill hisself, and pa said it would be elegant. Pa is a Democrat, and he thinks that anything that will make it unpleasant for Republican office-holders is legitimate, and he encouraged me to paralyze the letter carrier. The letter carrier is as old a man as pa, and I didn't want to humiliate him, but I just wanted pa to give his consent, so he couldn't kick if he got caught in his own trap. You see?

"Well, this morning the minister and two of the deacons called on pa, to have a talk with him about his actions in church on two or three occasions, when he pulled out the pack of cards with his handkerchief, and played the music box, and they had a pretty hot time in the back parlor, and finally they settled it, and were going to sing a hymn, when pa handed them a little hymn book, and the minister opened it and turned pale, and said 'what's this,' and they looked at it, and it was a book of Hoyle's games instead of a hymn book. Gosh, wasn't the minister mad? He had started to read a hymn and he quit after he had read two lines where it said 'In a game of four-handed euchre never trump your partner's ace, but rely on the ace to take the trick on suit.' Pa was trying to explain how the book come to be there, when the minister and the deacons started out, and then I poured the two-quart tin pail full of soft soap on the front step. It was this white soap, just the color of the step, and when I got it spread I went down in the basement.

"The visitors came out, and pa was trying to explain to them about Hoyle, when one of the deacons stepped in the soap, and his feet flew up and he struck on his pants and slid down the steps. The minister said: 'Great heavens, deacon, are you hurt? Let me assist you,' and he took two quick steps; and you have seen these fellows at a nigger show that kick each other head-over-heels and fall on their ears, and stand on their heads and turn around like a top. The minister's feet slipped, and the next I saw he was standing on his head in his hat, and his legs was sort of wilted and fell limp by his side, and he fell over on his stomach. You talk about spreading the gospel in heathen lands; it is nothing to the way you can spread it with two quarts of soft soap.

"The minister didn't look pious a bit, when he was trying to catch the railing. He looked as though he wanted to murder every man on earth, but it may be he was tired. Well, pa was paralyzed, and he and the other deacon rushed out to pick up the minister and the first old man, and when they struck the steps they went kiting. Pa's feet somehow slipped backwards, and he turned a somersault and struck full length on his back, and one heel was across the minister's neck, and he slid down the steps, and the other deacon fell over the other three, and pa swore at them, and it was the worst looking lot of pious people I ever saw. I think if the minister had been in the woods somewhere, where nobody could have heard him, he would have used language. They all seemed mad at each other. The hired girl told ma there was three tramps out on the sidewalk fighting pa, and ma she took the broom and started to help pa, and I tried to stop ma, 'cause her constitution is not very strong, and I didn't want her to do any flying trapeze bizness, but I couldn't stop her, and she went out with the broom and a towel tied around her head. Well, I don't know where ma did strike, but when she came in she said she had palpitation of the heart, but that was not the place where she put the arnica. Oh, but she did go through the air like a bullet through cheese, but when she went down the steps a bumpity-bump I felt sorry for ma.

"The minister had got so he could set up on the sidewalk with his back against the lower step, when ma came sliding down, and one of the heels of her gaiters hit the minister in the hair, and the other foot went right through between his arm and his side, and the broom like to push his teeth down his throat. But he was not mad at ma. As soon as he see it was ma he said: Why, sister, the wicked stand in slippery places, don't they,' and ma she was mad and said for him to let go her stocking, and then pa was mad and he said, 'look-a-here, you sky-pilot, this thing has gone far enough,' and then a policeman came along and first he thought they were all drunk, but he found they were respectable, and he got a chip and scraped the soap off of them, and they went home, and pa and ma they got in the house some way, and just then the letter carrier came along, but he didn't have any letters for us, and he didn't come onto the steps, and then I went up stairs and I said 'Pa, don't you think it is real mean, after you and I fixed the soap on the steps for the letter carrier, he didn't come on the step at all,' and pa was scraping the soap off his pants with a piece of shingle, and the hired girl was putting liniment on ma, and heating it in for palpitation of the heart, and pa said: 'You d— idjut, no more of this, or I'll maul the liver out of you,' and I asked him if he didn't think soft soap would help a moustache to grow, and he picked up ma's work-basket and threw it at my head as I went down stairs and I came over here. Don't you think my pa is unreasonable to get mad at a little joke that he planned hisself?"

The grocery man said he didn't know, and the boy went out with a pair of skates over his shoulder, and the grocery man is wondering what joke the boy will play on him to get even for the Cayenne pepper.

The Southern Exposition.

The main building for the Southern Exposition, to open at Louisville, Ky., August 1st, is now in a sufficiently advanced stage of construction to give the spectator some idea of its extensive proportions. It will be one of the largest exposition buildings ever erected, as will be seen from the following comparisons of the area, in square feet, of the main buildings of the world's great industrial exhibitions:—

London, 1851,	989,884
New York, 1853,	249,691
Paris, 1855,	545,934
Paris, 1863,	456,923
Vienna, 1873,	430,500
London, 1862,	1,400,000
Philadelphia, 1876,	872,320
Atlanta, 1881,	107,520
Southern Exposition at Louisville, Ky.	677,400

That the thirteen acres in the main building, with the additional gallery space and annexes already arranged for, will be inadequate is a fact becoming more obvious every day. The experience of all great exhibitions has been that exhibitors were slow to comprehend the magnitude of the undertaking, and that the applications for space were made in a very rapidly increasing ratio as the time for the opening approached.

In the machinery department there will be four main lines of shafting speeded at 200 per minute. This uniform speed will obviate the inconvenience of separating the different part of one exhibitor's group of machinery, as he may regulate the speed for his different machines by adjustment of his pulleys and counter-shafts. The rules for the machinery department, where power is desired, require applications for space to be used before May 15, all heavy machinery to be placed before June 15, and all such heavy machinery to be ready for running before July 15. These rules and the general rules for exhibits are now in press and will soon be distributed.

The fare from all points in the United States has been fixed at one and one-third fare for the round trip during the exposition. That is, if the regular round fare from a distant point is $48, it will be reduced to $32. Within a radius of several hundred miles, however, excursion rates will prevail, which will make the fare very much less. It is stated at the Louisville & Nashville railroad office that that company has already arranged for increase of carrying capacity for the Exposition travel that will cost $150,000. The freight rates for exhibits will in a short time be arranged on the basis of freight one way. All indications point to more than a realization of the expectations of the most sanguine of the projectors of the Southern Exposition.

Tim and the Lawyer.

"Have you had a job to-day, Tim?" inquired a well-known legal gentleman of the equally well-known, jolly florid-faced old drayman, who, rain or shine, summer or winter, is rarely absent from his post in front of the Michigan Exchange.

"Bedad, I did, sor."

"How many?"

"Only two, sor."

"How much did you get for both?"

"Sivinty cints, sor."

"Seventy cents! How in the world do you expect to live and keep a horse on seventy cents a day!"

"Some days I have half a dozen jobs, sor; but bizzniss has been dull today, sor. On'y the hauling of a thrunk for a gintilman for forty cints, an' a load av furniture for thirty cints; and there was the pots an' the kittles, an' the divil on'y knows phat; a big load, sor."

"Do you carry big loads of household goods for thirty cents?"

"She was a poor widdy, sor, an' had no more to give me. I took all she had, sor; an' bedad, sor, a lyyer could have done no better nor that, sor."

And old Tim won the first fall.

Spring Remedies.

There are no remedies superior to fruits, which should be freely used. Oranges and bananas come at just the right time to meet this demand for a change of diet required by the human system. They are nourishing, healthy, and palatable, and partaken of in suitable quantities will render medicine almost unnecessary. Fresh maple syrup, perfectly pure, is another of nature's peerless preparations found in her great laboratory, of the same demulcent and mucilaginous quality as the sassafras and sarsaparilla, and a most agreeable adjunct to the bill of fare. To learn to regulate one's diet at all seasons of the year without having recourse to medicine is worth any one's attention who desires an immunity from the sufferings of indigestion and the horrors of dyspepsia, headache and other complaints arising from the use of improper food. Prunes and figs are good for those who are confined to sedentary habits. Some like the figs boiled for fifteen or twenty minutes, and then eat them with cream at the breakfast table.—Exchange.

Cheap Food.

A gentleman, who visited Paris a year or two ago, was surprised at the cheapness of meals at the cafés. For fifteen cents he could get an excellent and sufficient dinner, with wine and all that could be desired. One explanation of this to him was, that the French knew how to cook, and that what any American family wastes, would supply bountifully the table of a French family. Dr. Dio Lewis has lately published a book entitled, "Talks about People's Stomachs," which is not written for the purpose of showing methods of economy, but which incidentally shows how the best, the most nourishing, and even the most palatable food, is the cheapest. Dr. Lewis is not a Gramahite; he does not believe in living upon slops. Most people would read with incredulity his account of one week's experiment in living, which cost him fifty-four and a quarter cents, when they also read that the bill of fare consisted of such articles as beef, fish, milk, oatmeal, bread, hulled-corn, hominy and cracked wheat. How could we have beef at such a ridiculously low price as this. He explains the secret, by telling us that the parts of an ox which everybody wants, and which consequently command the most exorbitant prices, are not those which are the most nourishing. On the week when the doctor lived on fifty-four cents and a quarter, it was one of the hottest of the summer, and he took an uncommon amount of exercise, and yet he gained half a pound in weight, showing that there was no deficiency of nourishment in his dietary. He says that of the eight hundred pounds of beef in an average ox, the parts that cost from three to six cents a pound, are as good when properly cooked, as the sixty pounds which are so foolishly popular, that the butchers charge for them forty cents a pound. Dr. Lewis says that he will engage for two dollars a week, to provide food for a family of ten persons in Boston, the dearest market in the country, and such food as should be the best for their health and strength. He engages that his family shall be stronger, healthier, and happier, with clearer skins, brighter eyes, sweeter breaths and whiter teeth than those who dine at first class hotels, that they shall live longer, and even that they shall enjoy their food more than those who live at the hotel.

The use of flour bread is not in favor with Dr. Lewis. He says that one pound of cracked wheat is as nourishing as eight pounds of common baker's bread, and a pound of oat meal is as nutritious as six pounds of the best flour. The bolting of the flour removes some of the most essential parts of the wheat, rich in nutrition for the muscle and brain. But a side from the chemical argument, which will have less weight with most people, who know and care nothing about chemistry, the experiment by which the doctor showed, that upon his diet he could work hard in hot weather, and grow fat is most conclusive. His book is not written to show how to live cheaply, but how to live so as to enjoy good health. He says that gluttony counts a hundred victims where drunkenness counts one, and the American people are constantly poisoning themselves by putting improper food in improper quantities into disordered stomachs. It is certainly a fortunate circumstance, especially for the poor and for those of moderate means, if these things are so, and the most healthful, nourishing and palatable diet is also the cheapest and most easily obtained. Fifty-four and a quarter cents a week is within the means of almost any person, and even if by extravagance they should expend fifty-five cents, still at the present rates of wages in most kinds of business there would be few who need call upon the city or town for help in supplying the larder.—Roxbury Gazette.

Guarding the Queen.

Few people imagine the great protection that is at all times thrown about the Queen to prevent madmen and "cranks" from assassinating her, and few people are aware of the anxiety, activity, trouble and expense involved in the word, "protecting." The services of detectives have to be paid for, and, to do their work properly, these officials must not be stinted of money for dispatches, railway and cab fares and casual expenses. Sometimes they have to assume disguises and pay heavily for secret information as to alleged criminal designs. Every time the Queen leaves one of her residences, even for an afternoon drive, the event is notified some hours beforehand to the police by the equerry on duty, who announces what itinerary her Majesty will probably follow. At certain points along the route policemen have to be stationed and detectives are placed at all the spots where the royal carriages are likely to stop. Wherever crowds can congregate the difficulties of the police are multiplied. Their instructions are invariably to keep their eyes and ears open, and not to cheer when the procession passes. In this particular English detectives differ from those of foreign countries, who are frequently enjoined to start the cheering among the crowds. The English believe that it is precisely when the cheering is loudest that the danger is strongest, for the noise and the swaying of the multitude excite the nerves of the criminal, and therefore the police should remain cool.

Woman Suffrage.

BY FRED A. CLAFLIN.

In regard to the inheritance by widows of property, the right of married women to possess property in their own separate control, and to the care and guardianship of their children in all these matters, there is ample evidence that the virtual representation which women have hitherto enjoyed, through the possession by men alone of the elective franchise, has fallen far short of securing to them immunity from injustice, or, in many cases, from actual oppression. The paths of education have, until recently, been almost entirely closed to women, and even to-day there is but grudging recognition of their right to the advantages of the "higher education." Their admission to the professions has been resisted with a stubbornness and bigotry that do but little credit to those who have held influential positions therein, and though many obstacles have at last been overcome, and there seems now to be prevalent a much fairer disposition than formerly, the impediments to women's advancement are still many and serious.

The last quarter of a century has been signalized by many reforms obtained as regards the relation of women to the law; and it is one of the strangest facts in the history of this movement that, while every effort at reform is at first bitterly opposed, yet, after its successful accomplishment, all join in recognizing it as a mark of progress and an actual step onward in true civilization. Thus to-day those who sturdily resist the extension to women of the right to vote admit most freely the justice of the reforms in her behalf already attained. They can see the good in the reforms that have gone before, but are curiously blind to the good contained in the reform to come. The movement for women's rights has now been in progress for nearly thirty years, and in every direction it has been marked by great conquests, won over iron-clad and nearly invincible prejudices. The old obloquy, sneers and ridicule that formerly pursued those who ventured to lift up their voices in favor of justice to women have nearly died away. To-day a large body of the most intelligent citizens of the Commonwealth, a goodly proportion of the clergy and of the liberal professions generally, and all our recent Governors of the State, are firm adherents of the cause of woman's advancement and of her right to vote. Surely this marks a wonderful progress, and when we reflect that it is the nature of movements and theories that are falsely based that the more they are agitated and discussed the more their essential falsity appears, and the more, consequently, they lose the support which, in their earlier stages, they may have acquired; and that, in the case of the woman-rights movement, which has long been agitated, and which has been subjected to the most thorough discussion in every shape and way, that this cause has steadily, if slowly, gained in popular support, so that to-day in every rank of life its adherents are certainly more numerous than ever before, we cannot fail to see that its ultimate triumph can only be a question of time. If the heavily adverse vote of the present Legislature be considered to indicate that little progress in the direction of woman's voting has as yet been made, it should be borne in mind that the alliance of the suffragists with the Democrats undoubtedly alienated the support of many suffrage Republicans—a loss which was not made good by the Democratic votes obtained. Whatever objections may have been entertained to the admission of women to the entire elective franchise, it is indisputable that their claim to a participation in the management of town affairs, in the election of school committees, and other town officers is certainly a very strong one, even in the opinion of purblind opponents of this cause. Women, as well as men, and quite as frequently, pay taxes for the repair of roads, for the support of schools, and for the care and maintenance of the poor of the town. Women, as well as men, and quite as frequently, have sagacious minds, and are fitted by knowledge and experience to usefully advise and take part in town affairs. It was considered a great innovation when women were first elected to be members of school committees; but where that plan has been tried experience has pronounced in its favor. In Boston, both on the board of school committee and the board of supervisors, it is thought proper to have female members. And so in other matters woman's participation in what is, after all, the common concern of all, would be for the common good.

The injustice of taxing people and of then denying them all right to say how the money thus taken from them shall be expended has usually been considered tolerably manifest, and at the time of the Revolution a good deal was said about it. Yet this injustice is what the existing law permits in regard to women. Of one thing at least the thinking observer may be reasonably sure: that the cause of woman suffrage has come to stay. It has invaded the halls of legislation; it has become a theme of conversation at the domestic fireside; it has entered the town meetings, and it will not cease from troubling until its object has been attained.—Commonwealth.

She Asked No Questions.

A woman at the South End the other day, asked her chamber-maid if she turned the mattress every morning. "Yes, marm," was the prompt reply. This, however did not satisfy the suspicious mistress, for she watched her opportunity and put several pins in the side of the mattress that was uppermost. The intelligent girl discovered the trick, and she bent the pins upward. When the matron went to bed at night there was a good deal of music in the air, but no questions were asked in the morning.

Our Postal Service.

The postal department of the country is a self-sustaining institution, and its affairs are so efficiently managed that every employe honestly earns the salary that is allowed him by the law. The time is, perchance, not far distant, when the department will become a source of revenue to the government, and it may be that this time will be hastened by the reduction of the rate in letter postage. Massachusetts plays an important part in the postal service of the nation, and takes the fourth rank in the amount of the postal revenues returned to the government; and when the matter of receipts and expenditures is taken into consideration, it is found that she takes the second place in the net amount of receipts received by the United States, being second only to the great state of New York. During the past year the total receipts from Massachusetts reached the enormous sum of $2,798,069.59, and the excess of receipts over expenditures was $1,080,588.10.

In the matter of free delivery, Massachusetts, in the number of its cities entitled to it, is again second only to New York. The privilege is limited to those cities which have a population of at least 20,000 inhabitants. The twelve cities of the state thus favored are Boston, Cambridge, Chelsea, Somerville, Fall River, Worcester, Springfield, Salem, Lawrence, Lynn, Lowell and New Bedford.

Boston, individually, is exceeded in the amount of its postal revenues by the three cities of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, so that in this respect it ranks as the fourth city in the country. The total revenue of the Boston post-office for the year last past was $1,405,126.99—or something over one-half of the entire revenue of the state; and the expenditures were $442,061.19, leaving for the general government a net revenue of $963,065.80. Taking this percentage of net revenue, it will be found that Boston surpasses all the cities of the country, and stands the first as a contributor to the general fund of the department.

The expenses of the offices for the year were $256,793.68; and for free delivery by carriers, $185,267.51, making up the total sum of $442,061.19. The post-offices in the Boston district, which includes Chelsea, Cambridge and Somerville, has in its employ 217 letter carriers, and during the past year they delivered as coming by mail into the city, 15,719,649 letters, 4,537,958 postal cards, and 95,608 letters which were registered. Further, they delivered 6,988,975 local letters, and 4,078,109 local postal cards. Of newspapers delivered the number reached to 10,117,756. During this time there were collected from the numerous postal boxes 24,803,334 letters, 9,544,543 postal cards, and 6,503,828 newspapers. The total number of pieces of mail matter which these 217 carriers handled, was 82,389,760, or on average for each carrier of 379,676 pieces per year, or something over 1,200 per day, allowing for 310 working days in the year.—Boston Traveller.

Ask the Old Woman.

A gentleman tourist relates the following amusing incident as having occurred while travelling through the western country.

Riding on horseback just at night through the woods in Saganaw county, Michigan, I came into a clearing, in the middle of which stood a log house, its owner sitting in the open door smoking his pipe. Stopping my horse before him, the following conversation ensued:

"Good evening, sir," said I.

"Good evening."

"Can I get a glass of milk from you to drink?"

"Well, I don't know. Ask the old woman."

By this time the wife was standing at his side.

"Oh, yes!" said she, "of course you can."

While drinking it I asked: "Think we are going to have a storm?"

"Well, I really don't know. Ask the old woman—she can tell."

"I guess we shall get one right away," said the wife.

Again I asked: "How much land have you got cleared here?"

"Well, I really don't know. Ask the old woman—she knows.

"About nineteen acres," said she, again answering.

Just then a troop of children came running and shouting round the corner of the shanty.

"Are these your children?" said I.

"Don't know. Ask the old woman—she knows best."

I didn't wait to hear the reply, but drew rein, and left immediately.

India-rubber Ocean Carriers.

A substitute for the time-honored bottle for carrying records of disaster at sea is found in a light rubber ball two or three feet in diameter and brightly painted. It is so light that it is rapidly carried before the wind, and is so conspicuous that it can be seen at a long distance. One of these couriers, having been thrown from a Swedish steamer on her way from London to Gothenburg, was picked up four days afterward on the coast of Schleswig, and another traveled two hundred nautical miles in five days. A number of these couriers, even if thrown overboard in mid-ocean, might bring relief to a disabled steamer by carrying word to passing vessels of the probable position of the disabled ship.—Scientific American.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, APR. 7, 1883.

Fast Day.

Fast Day passed very quietly in Quincy. It was a regular April day. Showery, clouded and sunshine.

The new steam engine was drawn to the Canal in the morning, where she worked beautifully. The horses were in good trim, and everything very satisfactory.

The Glass Ball Club held a fine shoot on their grounds in the rear of the President's hill.

There was religious services at the Congregational Church by Rev. Edward Norton in the forenoon.

In the afternoon the stores and other places of business were closed, and everything was still as on Sunday.

In the evening Paul Revere Post gave a very fine entertainment in the Town Hall to an immense audience, and distributed the following prizes among the ticket holders.

Obituary.

It is with sorrow that we announce the sudden death of Mr. Jonathan Williams, for many years an excellent citizen of Quincy. For some years he has been engaged in the granite business—part of the time in this town, and other portions abroad. His death occurred at Utica, N. Y., on Wednesday, and his funeral will take place this afternoon from his late residence, on Saville place. The following notice of his death we copy from the Utica Herald of Thursday:—

"Jonathan Williams, a designer and manufacturer of granite monuments, and the builder of a number of fine monuments in this vicinity, died at the Dudley House, at 6.20 P. M., yesterday of typhoid pneumonia, after an illness of thirty-six hours, aged 61 years. Mr. Williams was born in the town of Remsen. Thirty-six years ago he was married to Elizabeth Owens of this city. At the breaking out of the war Mr. Williams was engaged in building the state house at Columbia, S. C. He left there at that time and went to Quincy, Mass., where he has since resided. Among the fine monuments he has erected since he opened an office here, about one year ago, are the D. C. West monument at Lowville, and that for Mr. Cassidy in Albany. Mr. Williams became possessed of a large number of friends during his short residence here, who will be pained to hear of his sudden death."

VALUABLE LECTURES. Dr. Miller's illustrated lectures at Faxon Hall, the past week have been well attended and have proved exceedingly interesting. They are of more practical value than any lectures that have been given in Quincy for a long time. All who have attended speak in the highest terms of their value. Dr. Miller has the happy faculty of divesting this usually dry subject of all technicalities and making it very attractive. Dr. Miller's apparatus for illustrating his subjects is very extensive, probably the best in this country, and we advise all of our readers to attend the remainder of the course as they cannot afford to loose this rare opportunity of gaining much valuable information. Many who missed the first lectures are now regretting it, and there seems to be a general desire to have the Doctor repeat the whole course.

FOR CALIFORNIA. The first of the three Raymond California excursion parties, which were to leave Boston the present month, started on Fast Day. The excursionists expect to arrive at Chicago Saturday noon, where they will halt over Sunday. The outward journey beyond Chicago will be by the Southern route, and the return journey will be by the Central and Union Pacific railroads. The entire trip will occupy fifty-nine days, and embracing with the numerous side excursions nearly 10,000 miles.

Among the party there are four from Quincy: Mr. Patrick McDonnell, Mrs. Relief Floyd, Miss Sarah Whicher and Miss Sarah Whitcomb.

PERSONAL. Our respected townsman, Mr. Patrick McDonnell, who started this week with the Raymond excursionists, made us a short visit the day before he left. He seemed to be full of life and happiness, and spoke of the nice journey to California he was anticipating. Before parting on so long a journey, he would like to say a few words of encouragement to his countrymen. He wished them prosperity and happiness, and to obtain this, they must seek industry, sobriety and economy; and thereby build up a reputation for themselves and for their country.

PUBLIC LIBRARY. By request of one of our citizens we publish the following paragraph copied from the Boston Herald of Tuesday, in reference to a vote passed at a recent town meeting in Quincy:—

"What nonsense for a town to instruct the trustees of the Public Library to open it on the Sabbath 'when requested by 100 respectable persons.' How are the trustees to determine whether a man is 'respectable' or not? There is no standard of which we are aware which would settle the matter definitely. If the influence and the books in our public libraries is elevating, the non-respectable people need it. If it is not, the 'respectable' would be harmed. The voters meant well enough in adopting such an order, but they were guilty of a piece of snobbishness of which they should be ashamed."

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY. The residence of Mrs. Perez Chubbuck, on Washington street, Quincy, was entered on Sunday evening last, while the family were at church. An entrance was effected by forcing open two of the back doors. Nothing is missing and it is supposed that the rogue got frightened by the faithful watch dog.

☞ The Boston Globe says the tablet for the Old Men's Home at Salem, is of Quincy granite, with raised letters of polished granite.

Brief Locals.

☞ A good family horse is wanted.

☞ We have had some nice, pleasant days this week.

☞ The wheeling has been uncommonly good this spring.

☞ A year ago now the lawns and fields were quite green.

☞ Our citizens have commenced to rake their grass lawns.

☞ A good American boy is wanted to learn the telephone business.

☞ We had April showers on Fast Day to soften Gov. Butler's proclamation.

☞ The public schools of Quincy will commence on a new year on Monday next.

☞ Mr. Cushing Baker has given to his son, Elmer, his time to trade and act for himself.

☞ The annual meeting of the Quincy Savings Bank will be held on Tuesday evening next.

☞ Jos. W. Lombard will sell today at auction a school-house and an engine house belonging to the town.

☞ The annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht Club will be held this evening at the Lyceum Room.

☞ Probate Court will be held in Quincy on Wednesday morning next, at 9 o'clock, at its usual place, in the Town House.

☞ D. B. Stetson has just received a large stock of boots and shoes for Spring and Summer wear and at very low prices.

☞ Miss Laura A. Hinckley, well known to many of our readers, has opened a French millinery store at 163 Tremont street, in company with Miss Tetipas.

☞ Our citizens who visit the city for choice seeds, should call on Everett & Gleason, at 34 South Market street. They are reliable gentlemen and their stock can be relied upon.

☞ Our readers will find at Wadsworth Bros. & Howland, 84 Washington street, Boston, a good stock of paints, oils and varnishes, which will be sold in any quantity to suit customers.

☞ Read the advertisemen of John H. Pray, Sons &c., Washington street, Boston, and then when you go to the city call and examine their splendid stock of Spring carpets.

☞ It was very dusty on Wednesday; the wind blew it about making it quite disagreeable for travellers, and our storekeepers began to inquire if it was not most time for the street sprinkler.

☞ Joseph W. Lombard will sell at his auction room in the square this Saturday evening a very nice soda fountain. Hot weather is coming, and those thinking of purchasing one this season will do well to be present.

☞ Friday evening, April 6th, Monday evening, April 9th, Dr. Miller will deliver special lectures to ladies. Saturday evening April 7th, and Tuesday evening, April 10th, lectures to gentlemen only. Admission 25 cents.

☞ Mr. C. H. Rogers is agent for the New England Organ Company. He has sold within three weeks eighteen of this Company's elegant organs and would invite all our citizens to call and examine the sweet-toned instruments.

☞ There was an alarm of fire on Monday afternoon, occasioned by a slight blaze in the woods on South street, near Mr. Terrance Keenan's. The horses of the steamer, in going to the fire, broke one of the pole chains, which brought them in contact with a tree and hydrant in front of Col. White's residence, but fortunately no serious damage was done.

VALUABLE PRIZES. Nothing is more remarkable than the unusual interest which has been taken in astronomical matters by the American public during the past two years. To such an extent has this been true that hundreds of people, who formerly felt little pleasure in the subject, now possess their telescopes and search the heavens nightly. Desiring to still further encourage this most laudable ambition, H. H. Warner offers two hundred dollars for each comet discovery made during the present year, subject to the following conditions:

1. It may be discovered either by telescope or the naked eye, but must be unexpected, except as to the comet of 1812, which will probably reappear during the year.

2. The announcement of the discovery must be made confidentially and exclusively (by telegraph) to Dr. Lewis Swift, Director of the Warner Observatory, Rochester, N. Y., and to him only.

3. The telegram must give the time of discovery, the position, and the direction of motion if possible.

REUNION. The Spring meeting of the Suburban Press Association will be held at the Crawford House in Boston, on Monday next. The meeting is called for one o'clock. An address will be delivered by an experienced and successful journalist, on a topic of direct interest to the craft, to be followed by discussions. At four o'clock, dinner will be served at $1 per plate. At seven o'clock the meeting will again be called to order, and a practical essay, on every-day journalistic work, will be delivered by an experienced journalist, followed by short papers on practical points of newspaper work.

TOWN MEETING. The Town Clerk requests us to state, in order to correct a misapprehension that may exist, and to give credit where it is justly due, that the full report of the Town Meeting in our last was not furnished by him, only so far as an exact copy of the votes is concerned. The speeches were taken down by our reporter.

MR. CHILDS' ASSAILANTS. The trial of William H. Leonard, Dennis F. Norton and Michael Dolan, for assault and robbery of Mr. Childs, before the Superior Criminal Court, at East Cambridge, has closed this week. Leonard and Norton were discharged, and Dolan was held on one count. The cost of the trial to the government was nearly $2000, while the defence cost as much more. District-Attorney Stevens intimated that another trial of the case would be had in the case of Dolan.

☞ The Boston Beacon, of Saturday last says:—

"The dead body of a colored infant was found in the Neponset River yesterday morning, and turned over to the Quincy authorities."

"The excavations for cellars in the vicinity of Field's Corner show about four feet in depth of frost."

Quincy Point Items.

The annual meeting of the First Baptist Church of Quincy was held at its Chapel last Monday evening. The following officers were elected:

Clerk,—M. A. Marks.
Treasurer,—D. H. Bills.
Trustees,—Robert Clark, M. A. Marks, Z. H. Sidelinger and W. T. Barry.

Robert Clark, W. B. Lougee, Mrs. N. Randlett and Mrs. E. R. Lawton were chosen to serve on the Standing Committee.

Mr. Robert Clark was also chosen Deacon.

A deficiency of between fifty and sixty dollars in the last year's accounts was provided for by subscription inside of five minutes. Last week the sum of three hundred dollars was paid to reduce the debt upon the Chapel.

This Church is one of three, which was made a corporation by special act of the Legislature, and holds and controls its property without the intervention of a parish, or society of pew owners. Its meetings are increasing in attendance and its out-look for future prosperity is assuring.

An ecclesiastical Council will convene on Thursday next at 2.30 P. M., in the Union Christian meeting house to recognize the newly formed Washington Street Congregational Church and Society, of which Rev. J. L. Harris is pastor. The Rev. S. E. Herrick, D. D., pastor of Mount Vernon Church, Boston, will preach at 7.30 P. M. The right hand of fellowship will be given by Rev. Mr. Norton; after which addresses to the Church, to the Pastor, and on Christian Fellowship will be given. Rev. Dr. Webb of the Shawmut Church, Boston, is expected to deliver one of the addresses.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Dr. Harlow, a very estimable lady, residing at the Point, has met with quite a serious accident. While riding on Howard street, near the residence of Mr. Wight, the horse stumbled, and in recovering himself caught the end of one shaft on his back, which overturned the carriage, throwing Mrs. H. violently to the ground, by which she received injuries confining her to her bed ever since.

A gentleman at the Point wishes us to ask the School Committee, who complain of the crowded condition of our schools, if the nine pupils from Weymouth, who come daily over the Point Bridge pay the town of Quincy for their schooling.

Adams Academy.

The exercises in reading and speaking for the Adams gold medal and other prizes at the academy building, last Saturday morning, drew a large and pleasant assembly, composed mostly of the gentler sex, who enjoyed the fine talent displayed by the students of this honored institution of Quincy. The exercises commenced at 10.30 A. M., lasted about two hours, and were as follows:—

MUSIC.

READING IN ENGLISH PROSE.

1. Defence of Charles Greenleaf, Hillard

7. Defence of Mr. Finnerty, Curran
   Charles Carroll, Ellicott City, Md.

MUSIC.

8. The Abbott's Curse, Scott
   John Howes Burton, Newburg, N. Y.
9. Conciliation with America, Burke
   William Bacon Scofield, Worcester.
10. Speech of a Pocomtuc Indian, E. Everett
    Charles Fanning Ayer, Lowell.

MUSIC.

The reading was by the following boys:—

Rupert Paul Blackmur, Quincy Point.
Joseph Thomas French Burrell, Quincy.
Charles Carroll, Ellicott City, Md.
Archibald Cary Coolidge, Brookline.
Henry Edwards, Quincy.
John Griffin Faxon, Wollaston.
James Winslow Hall, Port Blakely, W. T.
James Francis Harlow, Quincy.
Atherton Nash Hunt, Weymouth.
Charles Elliot Loud, Weymouth.
Gregory McPherson, Seabright, N. J.
Edward Christopher Palmer, Wareham.
Frederick Ball Rice, Quincy.
William Bacon Scofield, Worcester.
Winslow Whitman, Plymouth.

The "Adams Gold Medal" for reading and speaking, was awarded to William Bacon Scofield of Worcester; the Master's prize for speaking only, to Charles Carroll, of Ellicott City, Md.; for reading only to James Francis Harlow, of Quincy Point. The prizes were awarded by Messrs. Quincy and Norton of the board of managers, and Messrs. Tyler, Campbell and Whitman of the teaching staff. The readings were from Hoods' "Tale of a trumpet," and Hawthorne's "House of the Seven Gables."

The exercises were held in the School House, instead of the Town Hall, and the prizes adjudged by the authorities of the school, instead of an outside committee in accordance with the wish of the giver of the gold medal.

Revolting Testimony.

The investigation of the Tewksbury almshouse is bringing out some revolting developments.

Dr. John Dixwell testified that he was a graduate of the Harvard medical school in 1873. He had been a member of the school for three years, and used to dissect the bodies of infants. Large numbers were brought there from time to time in a country team in trunks. The bodies were transferred to the dissecting room. The bodies had slight clothing on, and were in charge of Bill Andrews, janitor, who afterward committed suicide. He procured the bodies, paid for them and sold them to the students. The students clubbed together for adult bodies. The witness dissected from 50 to 60 infant bodies each year. The price of the bodies varied with their scarcity from $3 to $5. Some children showed that they had had no food within 24 hours of death, even under the microscope. Andrews said he obtained these adult and infant bodies from the Tewksbury almshouse.

Gov. Butler called John H. Chase, employed at the almshouse in 1880, and his son, employed there now. Chase, the father, said: "I saw that dead bodies were delivered to the city. I knew that bodies were taken from the grave-yard in the day time and the same bodies were taken away from the dead-house by Miss Manning's team of the almshouse. It was driven by a negro named Charles Dennis. Other bodies were taken out by order of Thomas J. Marsh, Jr., assistant superintendent. These bodies came with Miss Manning's team to the city. The team had boxes and trunks filled with bodies, large and small. I drove the team with the bodies for Miss Manning to the Harvard medical school on Grove street. My son drove also, and has since. I heard Marsh say that he received $10 for bodies for Harvard and $12 for bodies for the female college. I kept a book of these dead bodies, and left it at the almshouse when discharged for drinking. When a man died, his death was recorded in a book by Chas. Marsh. There were between 300 and 400 deaths during each year.—Some bodies were pickled in pork barrels and sent to Boston by order of Thomas J. Marsh, Jr. The pickling was done so as not to be known to the inmates of the almshouse. Barrels full of brine were sent up to the almshouse from Boston in warm weather. Sometimes funeral services were held over coffins filled with wood."

Wollaston.

With the opening of Spring, comes the demand for houses at this place, but no houses are to be hired, if we except two or three very large ones. At least twenty houses of medium size could be let in a week were they to be had; rents from $12.50 to $20.00 per month being in great demand. Quite a number of houses are now being built, to be occupied by the owners, and the prospect now is, of a larger increase of building than has been seen for several years.

The streets are in much better condition than usual at this season of the year, and with the improvement of some of the sidewalks, the citizens may be well pleased with the labors of the Commissioners. Hancock street from Billings' house to Butler's, is now being used quite extensively on pleasant afternoons as a mile ground, for those who are the owners of supposed fast horses. The street is in fine order, nearly level and the racing far enough removed from the village, to be of any trouble to foot passengers.

Much complaint is being made of children setting grass on fire near houses. A needless alarm, calling the department out a few days ago, being one of the results. The law is quite severe for starting fires within certain distances from dwellings, and will probably be put in effect, should any one be caught breaking it in future.

AVON.

OLD COLONY RAILROAD. The attention of the stock-holders of the Old Colony Railroad Company are called to a special meeting to be held at the United States Hotel, in Boston, on Monday, April 16th. The objects of the meeting are to see if the Company will amend the by-laws; will authorize the issue of notes or bonds; will appoint some person to approve of the same; will increase the stock; and will extent a branch road from some point in Quincy to the gravel lands known as Veazie's plain in Braintree. For more full particulars see notice in our columns.

Braintree Chips.

The adjourned town meeting was held on Monday afternoon last. Among the most important votes passed were: To build a new Almshouse at a cost of $12,000, including site for the same on south side of Union street. That members of the fire department be paid $10 per annum, and that their term of service began on the first day of February each year. Some two or three new reservoirs are to be built. The meeting was quite lively and a large number of orators were present.

The B. P. E. Society are to hold their second annual private masquerade party at the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening next. Porter's Band of Brockton will furnish the music. A band concert from 8 to 9 o'clock is on the programme; also a supper in the Town Hall.

Fast day was very quiet. The only notable events being the playing of the Butcher Boys in the morning, and the parade of the Braintree Military Company in the afternoon.

Our Postmistress at the south office has given up the idea of raising Chickens and has secured the services of Mr. Austin Torrey to assist in handling the mails.

In a locality in the south part of the town about fifty rods square there are the homes of twenty-one widows. A sort of Beulah Land.

SPRING
OPENING

Wm. S. Butler & Co.

Take pleasure in announcing that the alterations in their store are now completed, and that they are occupying Nos. 90, 92, 94, 96 and 98 Tremont Street, and 1 and 2 Montgomery Place.

The second floor is now also open for business, and on the third floor is a Ladies' Reception Room, where every attention will be given to the comfort of our customers.

These alterations will give us much needed additional room for the display of our stock, and will afford to the ladies Better Accommodations and Light than are found in any other store in our line.

FIRST
—OF OUR—
TRIMMED MILLINERY
DEPARTMENT.

In order to place this department at once in rank with any first-class millinery establishment, we have secured the best talent to be had to give our Hats that beauty and elegance which is consistent with refined taste, at popular prices to suit all trade.

The success of such a department has never been tried in this city, a department where STYLISH TRIMMED HATS are sold at but small advance on the cost of hat and trimmings, and we trust that the ladies of Boston and vicinity will avail themselves of the opportunity to leave their orders early, so that they can receive proper attention.

OPENING
—OF OUR—
Cotton Underwear Dep't

In order to place this department properly before the public, we shall offer at less than cost our inaugurating sale, as follows:—

Lot 1. Chemises, Drawers, Corset Covers, for Ladies and Children, at 25c. each.

Lot 2. Chemises, Drawers, Skirts, Night Dresses, Hamburg trimmed, at 50c. each.

Lot 3. The same, at 75c.

Lot 4. The same at $1.00.

We refrain from giving a description of each and every article, and prefer giving good cloth and good trimmings to advertising the different clusters of tucks, etc., and showing a poor article.

We hope ladies will avail themselves of this sale, as we shall not feel able to continue it for any length of time.

OPENING
—OF OUR—
STRAW GOODS
DEPARTMENT.

This department has been placed at the rear part of our store, and has been made the most attractive place in Boston.

The department faces a sheet of mirror, 50 feet in length and 9 feet in height, so as to give every opportunity to the purchaser to see at a glance whether a hat is becoming or otherwise.

The following New Shapes will be offered at our opening: The Critic, Fedora, Iolanthe, Mignon, Poppy, Patti, Thursby, Nautilus, Casino, Sprite, Marquise, Servia, and many others.

HORSE CARS pass our door from all railroad stations, a great convenience to our out-of-town patrons.

Durgin's Compound Syrup
—OF—SARSAPARILLA,
—WITH—IODIDE OF POTASSIUM, PURIFIES THE BLOOD.

In times past at this season of the year customers almost daily call for some Sarsaparilla to take to purify the blood, and want to know whose is the best; all we could say was that such a kind was advertised very extensively, and that we sold them but knew nothing whatever of their contents. And now as the public generally are anxious to know what they are taking before spending their money, I have this year put up a preparation WITH THE FORMULA ON EACH AND EVERY BOTTLE so that they may see at once just what they are using. Great care has been taken by several tests to make this preparation superior to many that are before the public, and one that will command favor at once upon trial, and confidently think it will meet a more extensive sale than my Beef, Iron and Wine, or Cough Balsam, which have exceeded my expectations.

TO PURIFY THE BLOOD use my Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, with Iodide of Potassium, a certain remover of those matters whose presence disturbs its purety, directing them away by the natural channels. It renews the blood, increases the strength and lightens the vitality debilitated by disease. It is useful in Skin Disease and Eruptions, such as Pimples, Blotches, Sores, Pustules, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Tumors, Chronic Sores and Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Syphilitic and Venerial Diseases.

It is put up handsomely in large bottles at or six bottles for $5.00. The directions are printed in English, French, German and Spanish. Prepared expressly for family use, with the formula on each and every bottle.

FITS A Leading London Physician establishes an office in New York for the cure of EPILEPTIC FITS.
From Am. Journal of Medicine.
Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any other living physician. His success has simply been astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing successfully cured by him. He has published a work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their express and P. O. Address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address

At the State House.

The lower branch of the Legislature has ordered to a third reading a bill providing that persons travelling on the Lord's Day may recover damages for injuries caused by defects in highways the same as they can when such injuries are sustained while travelling on a week day.

The Committee on Agriculture reported in the House a bill providing that no poultry (except live poultry, green geese and green ducks) shall be sold or offered for sale unless the entire head, entrails, feathers and crop, if the latter contains any food, have been removed. The Health Officers are directed to prosecute offenders, and the penalty is a fine of $5 for each offence.

In the Senate on Tuesday, the resolve providing for biennial elections was ordered to a third reading, by a vote of 23 to 14.

The Boston Theatre.

"£50,000; a Story of Pluck," as presented at the Boston Theatre, is another of those victories of managerial enterprise for which that house has long enjoyed a unique fame. Manager Eugene Thompkins does nothing by halves. His policy, like his stage, is a broad, generous and ample one. In the presentation of this new drama, which long held the boards at the famous Drury Lane Theatre, London, and was one of the most marked, popular successes of the British stage, the Boston Theatre management has fairly outdone itself. There is no other theatre in this country so finely equipped for the production of a piece like this, involving the use of complicated mechanism and elaborate scenery, and the presentation of grand tableaux, and in this dramo of 'Pluck' all its resources are brought into requisition, and with splendid results.

Taking into account the even strength of the fine company, the smoothness and finish of their acting, the strong, popular qualities of the play itself, and the lavish magnificence with which its stirring scenes have been mounted, it may be safely predicted that 'Pluck' will round off a long series of stage triumphs at the Boston, and be the crowning success of a most successful season. And it deserves to be. Many persons who witnessed its production in London say unhesitatingly that its treatment at the Boston is far more thorough and thoroughly artistic. The modern realistic drama, with its strong spectacular effects, vivid tableaux and powerful emotional climaxes, receives in 'Pluck,' as put on the Boston boards, an ideal interpretation, which could scarcely be surpassed. It is unquestionably destined to a long and strong run of popularity.—Boston Evening Traveller.

FREE DELIVERY STOPPED. The leading dry goods houses in Boston have issued cards announcing that they will not deliver parcels free outside the old city limits of Boston. The flutter of indignation among thousands of ladies about Boston will be understood when it is known that the dry goods houses of Boston have delivered parcels anywhere within a radius of eight miles. This area is very populous, and the parcel delivery system has attained enormous proportions. Delivery by teams owned by the establishments and through expresses, was inaugurated in Boston, between 14 and 15 years ago. Previous to that time parcels had been delivered by carriers. The system of wagon delivery in its inception was but the proper meeting of a legitimate demand. Heavy parcels or goods in considerable bulk were delivered for purchasers and nothing else. It is easy to see how smaller and still smaller parcels come to be sent, until at last the most trivial purchases are sent home at the expense of the selling firms. One house in Boston in the busy season has delivered between 6000 and 8000 packages in a day.

SLEIGHING. We received a letter last week from our former townsman, Mr. C. Willard Perry, who is enjoying the comforts of a farm in Wendell, Mass., in the western part of the state. He says they have had one hundred consecutive days of nice sleighing, and there was a good prospect of many more.

☞ Dr. Miller's special lectures will be illustrated by the finest anatomical cabinet ever exhibited in this country.

BEVERLY. At a town meeting in Beverly, on Monday, a large town of about the same size as Quincy, $116,000 was appropriated for current expenses.

☞ The City Council of Boston has passed orders authorizing loans amounting to $630,000, for the Public Library building and its site on the Back Bay land.

LADIES VISITING BOSTON will find great additions and improvements in the well-known store of Wm. S. Butler & Co., on Tremont Street. The Boston Journal says: "To the old store has been added that at the corner of Montgomery Place, and this joined to the old makes for business purposes a salesroom on the first floor of double the former size; while on the second floor are fine business rooms; on the third floor ladies' reception-room, counting-room, etc.; and above this, two other floors for the wholesale trade of the establishment and manufacturing purposes, besides a large dining-room for the help in the establishment. The alterations made are all first-class, an elevator and electric lights being included, and besides these, the light and ventilation are as near perfection as they can well be. The additional room gained by the alteration made affords a fine opportunity for the display of stock, and in the opening of yesterday a beautiful exhibit was made of millinery goods, cotton underwear, upholstery, laces, toilet articles, perfumery, hosiery, kid gloves, handkerchiefs and small wares. The new appearance of the premises was quite a surprise to visitors at the grand opening, all of whom expressed themselves as well pleased with the same and the first-class accommodations gained."

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, April 2, 1883.

March took leave of Washington in a truly leonine manner. The traditional habit of departure that follows a mood so lamb-like as characterized its advent was strictly carried out, and the last breath of our windy month was mingled with a brisk, clinging snowfall that gave the city the appearance of mid-winter.

As is usual when important official vacancies are to be filled, President Arthur is receiving abundant advice and many suggestions in reference to the appointment of a successor to the late Postmaster General Howe. The employes of the Postoffice Department are especially anxious to know who their next chief will be, and express themselves favorably in behalf of Mr. Hatton's promotion, since they think it probable he would make fewer changes in the office than any one else. They also think that as he is familiar with the personnel of the Department as well as with the details of the service; he would administer the office of Postmaster General as efficiently as that of First Assistant. For several reasons the President will not fill the vacancy at once. His characteristic hesitation would delay the matter.

Besides, although the health of Mr. Folger, Secretary of the Treasury, is rather better now than for some weeks past, his constitution is so thoroughly shattered he is likely to be forced on account of it to resign his office, and in that event, the President would prefer to have the vacancies in his cabinet filled at the same time and with some relation one to the other. And as he expects to start Tuesday or Wednesday to Florida for a two weeks' trip, it is not probable the succession to Mr. Howe will be made known until his return. Mr. Hatton will act as Postmaster General for the present, or until final appointment is made.

The details of the President's journey have not been fully arranged, but he expects to go and return by special train as directly as possible, and make only such stops as will be necessary. He will be accompanied by his private secretary, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Miller of New York, (a personal friend,) and Secretary Chandler, who will extend his trip to Pensacola to make an inspection of the navy yard there.

Christine Nilsson, the famous Swedish songstress, sang at Lincoln Hall on last Thursday evening to a very full house. The audience was composed of diversified elements, and just such a one could be seen no where else than in Washington. It furnishes an interesting study as a Democratic mixture of diplomats, officials of every grade, and fashionable people mingled with the unpretentious classes. The President occupied a seat near the centre of the hall with his sister and daughter. George Bancroft's snow-crowned head was observed near the foot-lights, and Miss West, the daughter of the British Minister, sat far back. There were justices of the Supreme Court, senators, ex-senators, representatives and Mrs. representatives, foreign ministers with their families, and here and there a black face was seen in striking contrast to an Anglo-Saxon one on either side of it. Many department clerks were unwilling to forego the music of the nightingale's song, so they paid three dollars for a seat, and continue to wear the old bonnet or hat. On Friday, Madame Nilsson dined with the President, and was after dinner presented to a number of guests who had been invited to the White House to meet her. She sang on this occasion in the Red Parlor by the special permission of her manager, the terms of her contract forbidding her to sing in private.

Capt. T. N. Burrill has been appointed chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in place of Colonel Irish, deceased. The employes are of course nervous, as they always are when a new chief takes hold of them.

A point of general interest relative to the work of the Civil Service Commission is that removals are not considered in any way under the control of the Commission. Another point is that, as the lists are public, the fact of going upon them is an assurance that a person's record is right, for he exposes himself to the criticism of the public, and to those who have personal reasons for presenting an unsuitable appointment. The members of the Commission leave Washington to-day for New York to inspect the systems of tenure and promotion in the Post Office and Custom House of that city. The President wished the Commission to investigate this matter during his absence, and before submitting their rules to him for approval and final action.

New Music.

"A good little girl sat under a tree,
Sewing as long as her eyes could see,
Then folded her work, and placed it right,
And said, dear work, good night, good night."

These pretty words belong to a pleasing home-song, the words of which are by Lord Houghton. It arrives in company with eight other good pieces of music all just issued from the presses of Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston. Price (35 cts.) The other pieces are:

"I know not why," (30 cts.) song by C. E. Sands.

"Come ye blessed Children," (30 cts.) Quartet for female voices, by L. O. Emerson.

"My fairest Child" (30 cts.) song by Behrend.

"Love abides," (35 cts.) song by Roeckel.

"The Skipper," (35 cts.) sea-song by Jude.

"Mollie, the Rose of Glendea," (40 cts.) with Picture Title, by Robert Challoner.

"Grapes of Bordeaux," Polka, (35 cts.) Pas redouble by Wenzel.

"Sweet Kiss Polka," (35 cts.) for violin and piano, by Kinkel.

OBITUARY. Peter Cooper the veteran philanthropist, died on Wednesday morning, of pneumonia. He was born in New York City, Feb. 12, 1791, and was therefore in his 93d year. The Cooper Institute at the junction of Third and Fourth Avenues, is a worthy monument to him. He he has expended on it abont $750,000. It is to be forever devoted to the union of science and art, in its application to the useful purposes of life. His estate is estimated at $10,000,000.

PATENTS. Among the patents issued at Washington last week, we notice one to Edward M. Chase, assignor to E. L. Motte, Boston, and H. N. Glover, Milton, Mass., for pneumatic railway signal.

For the Patriot.

A Wail from an old Church-goer.

A "new departure" seems to pervade even churches. In the overthrow of much that was sacred and immovable, it is supposed a gain in animus is made. When I was young, parents and children decorously attired went to church, unless they were kept at home by sickness. One would as soon have thought of criticizing the sun or moon as of expressing an unfavorable impression of his minister. Now-a-days, the march of improvement has invaded the precints of the sanctuary. People go to church to criticise, and woe to the unlucky wight who makes a grammatical mistake, or who fails in the last pronunciation. We must have style, not only in the cut of a minister's coat, but in his methods of expression. Even children in their teens can and do criticise a sermon, unless they decide to stay at home altogether. One says: "going to church breaks up the day;" another that "going helps break up the day;" a third—but this is digression. It seems as if people were still helped vicariously, for by putting blame upon pastors, they escape responsibility, and thus their consciences are lightened.

I see vestries opened for theatricals, for masquerade and for dancing until late hours. Every form of recreation seems resorted to to keep the body and soul of churches together. The children and grand-children of old descendants do not always go to church. Is the institution gaining with time? With these changes is the standard of individual character higher? If it is, is it more frequently reached? In eliminating superstition from the old church, have we supplied its place with anything better?

Philanthropy and charity extend their arms in every direction. The clergymen can tell us whether our churches prosper as they ought. Is it that the mists of age have dimmed my eyes, or were the old times better than these later? As our church is an exponent of a principle, and the pastor represents the teacher, can we be too loyal to our cause? OCTOGENARIAN.

For the Patriot.

A Time Long to be Remembered.

One of the pleasantest times of the season, occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wilson, on Granite street, March 31st. The party numbered about fifty persons, — young and old, who took great interest in making it one of the jolliest of times. Especially, Mr. Thomas, the humorist of Chelsea. Everybody laughed at his funny looks, comic songs, and speeches. The music by Mr. Hanson the violin player, and Mrs. Hanson the pianist of Quincy, was both attractive and very pleasing. The playing and singing by Mr. Wyman of Boston was fine. The evening was spent in games, dancing, charades, etc. Supper was soon served and such a spread was never before seen. The table fairly groaned under its weight.

One of the best jokes of the evening was the April fool; when it was announced the clock had stopped a few minutes past twelve. Then they donned their outer garments and bid host and hostest good morning; wishing soon to have a repetition of the same. O. O.

DISTRICT COURT. The business before this Court remains quiet. Charles A. Litchfield of Cohasset, for an assault was fined $2 and costs; for being drunk $1 and costs.

Thomas Cullen, of Boston, for being drunk was fined $1 and costs.

Michael Quilan, of Holbrook, for a single sale; also, for keeping a nuisance was discharged on both.

APRIL FOOL JOKE. Some one played a very successful April fool joke in Pittsburg recently. An iron-roofer was besieged by fifty-five young ladies who came in answer to a bogus advertisement in a paper for three lady clerks for office work, wages $8 a week. He was arrested, but finally released, and a detective is hunting for the joker, whom the indignant girls want to get hold of for three minutes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 2, 1883. The director of the mint to-day ordered the San Francisco mint to reduce its silver coinage to $400,000 a month. Philadelphia and New Orleans will have to coin $100,000 more a month on this account. There are 30,000,000 silver dollars in the San Francisco subtreasury vaults. The Pacific coast people will not take them.

ATTACHMENTS. In the clerk's office of the Superior Court at Dedham on Monday, writs of attachment were filed against the estates of Williard I. Lewis & Co. of Walpole in the sum of $5000 in an action of tort by Waldo Swift of Attleboro, a minor. An attachment of $1500 was filed against the estate of Otis Johnson of Sharon.

PUBLIC DEBT. The public debt was reduced $9,374,826 27 during the month of March. The total debt on April 1 was $1,576,931,288 16, or about $112,000,000 less than on January 30, 1882.

HUMBUGGED AGAIN.

I saw so much said about the merits of Hop Bitters, and my wife who was always doctoring and never well, teased me so urgently to get her some, I concluded to be humbugged again; and I am glad I did, for in less than two months' use of the Bitters my wife was cured, and she has remained so for eighteen months since. I like such humbugging. — H. T. St. Paul. — Pioneer Press.

OIL TROUGH TREE PROTECTORS.

(Patented August 9, 1881.)

This Improved Protector effectually protects the trees against the Canker Worms.

PLEASE Examine our new Protector. Below are some of the reasons why every one owning trees should use this Protector.

1. It is a first-class tree Protector, with a perpendicular front to the oil-pan, which prevents the oil from blowing out.
2. It has a pan large enough to contain oil for the season.
3. It is manufactured from heavy zinc, and will last for years.
4. Being corrugated prevents sagging when on the trees.
5. The protectors are smaller in the centre, which prevents the packing from falling through.
6. We use tow for packing, so there is no danger of girdling or injuring the tree.
7. By using our protectors, you will get more and finer fruit.
8. It is so constructed as to be a perfect barrier against canker worms; it will prevent codling moths, tussock moths, bark lice, curculio, caterpillars, etc., from ascending the trees.
9. This Protector is so cheap that every one owning trees can apply it. It is simply insuring your trees against insects for a few cents a tree.

My experience of several years in selling protectors has taught me what is required by the public is a cheap Oil Trough Protector, easily taken care of and something that cannot injure the trees, and will stop the grub from ascending. I am convinced that nothing can be fastened solid to a tree without doing more or less injury. We have applied our Protectors to hundreds of trees where other protections have failed. Parties ordering, will please give their orders early to insure their being filled on time. Now is the time to put them on and prevent the codling moths, curculio, bark lice and tussock moth from ascending the trees.

The Price of our Protectors is

10 cts. per Inch in diameter, which includes applying to the tree and filling with oil.

Neatest, cheapest and most durable Protector in the market.

We are prepared to execute with promptness all orders. Address all orders to

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors :—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

THE Great LIQUID FOOD FOR BLOOD, BRAIN AND NERVES.

☞ A SUPERIOR NUTRITIVE MEDICINE, RICH IN PHOSPHATES AND NOT A CHEAP, ALCOHOLIC DRINK. ☜ Highly recommended by Chemists and Physicians as A POSITIVE TONIC, ALWAYS ACCEPTABLE AND RELIABLE, as it does not stimulate the brain or irritate the system and leave deleterious effects. On the contrary, it furnishes just that which is necessary to the brain, strengthens and quiets the nerves, purifies the heart's blood, and thereby makes only the best flesh, bone and muscle. ☞ It works wonders, curing NERVOUS and GENERAL DEBILITY, MALARIA, DYSPEPSIA, INSOMNIA. Produces a healthy action of the Liver and Kidneys, fortifying the system against the miasmatic influences, and will be found invaluable in all pulmonary and bronchial difficulties. DELICATE FEMALES, NURSING MOTHERS and WEAKLY CHILDREN can find no remedy equal to this healthful blood and nerve food tonic. ☞ For sale by all Druggists. $1.00 per bottle. The Difference.

There was an old lady all dressed in silk,
Who lived upon lemons and buttermilk;
And thinking this world was a sour old place,
She carried its acid all over her face.

Another old lady, all dressed in patches,
Lived upon nothing but Lucifer matches;
So the world, it made her strangle and cough,
And sure as you rubbed her, you set her off.

Another old lady all sunny and neat,
Who lived upon sugar and everything sweet,
Declared, when she heard of their troubles, she "never!"
For the world was so nice she could live on forever.

Farm and Garden.

Early Spring Lamb.

There is a class of agricultural orators who occasionally attempt to advise the average farmer how to make farming pay through the adoption of some impracticable branch of farm economy, or by quoting $1 per pound for butter, $3 per dozen for cucumbers, $1 per pound for early Spring lamb, or $1.50 each for hot-house peaches. True, such fancy prices are sometimes obtained through a peculiar combination of circumstances, but it is the height of folly to hold up such products as marketable on any considerable scale, or to advise ordinary farmers to attempt their production. The raising of very early lambs for sale in March is one of the staple subjects suggested by amateur agricultural orators. Every year we have at least a score of inquiries as to the advisability of embarking in the early lamb business. We will give a few facts, and let our readers judge for themselves.

We learn from Hiscock & Prior, dealers in mutton and lamb in Quincy Market, who for years have handled about all the early lambs offered for sale in Boston; that March 3, this year, they received one lamb, the first of the season, between six and seven weeks of age, weighing twenty-seven pounds, which they sold to a prominent city hotel proprietor for $25. Last Saturday, March 10, they received a second lamb, seven weeks old, weighing thirty pounds, for which they found a retail customer at $18. A third lamb of similar age and weight remained on hand unsold Saturday night. Such sales are occasionally made to some famous hotel as an advertisement, or to be served at some swell club, or at a grand dinner given at $8 or $10 per plate; but the consumers of young Spring lamb costing seventy-five cents to $1 per pound are not numerous, even in large and wealthy cities. To be sure it is enterprising to market Spring lamb the 1st of March, when May 1 is considered the height of enterprise by most farmers, and June and July suffice for the ordinary breeder.

This Quincy Market firm have bought, to be delivered this Spring, fifty-four such early lambs, three or four of which have already been received, and the balance to be slaughtered and delivered along during the next thirty or forty days, as wanted. Were half a dozen such lambs, in addition to the lots provided for, to be offered for sale in one day next week in any Boston market, they would hardly sell at $10 each. Mr. Hiscock says these fifty-four lambs were raised by John R. Brewer, a wealthy Boston gentleman, on his farm at Hingham, Mass. Mr. Brewer has supplied the Boston market with a greater or less number of such early lambs every year for about twelve years. The lambs are dropped in January and February. The ewes and the lambs are kept in warm, tight buildings, as well built as the average house. The heaviest seven-weeks-old lamb received during early Spring of last year weighed thirty-six pounds dressed.

In addition to mother's milk, Mr. Brewer's feeding of his lambs consists of all the Indian meal they eat from a trough behind a rack, which admits the noses of the lambs but not of the old sheep. He feeds no other grain, and never gives even the smallest ration of oil meal. One of the secrets of this industry is that of coaxing the young lambs to eat meal at the very earliest possible age, requiring patience, skill and the knack of a shepherd on the part of the hired man. These dressed lambs show meat so firm and fat, so white and hard, as to astonish the observers. The price of Spring lamb declines as the season advances, and soon $8 and $10 will be the price of each. A tail end frequently closes out at a low price. Last year thirty-four early lambs netted Mr. Brewer $340, or $10 each. Of course there is always quite a difference between the price a dealer pays the producer and that which the consumer pays the dealer, but we have intended to show that it is not worth while for farmers to rush into the business of raising early lambs through the Winter, unless they sell the stock to be delivered in the future. Again, there are but few men who are sufficiently skilful to dress a lamb in such fine shape as Josephus Sampson of Braintree dresses those of Mr. Brewer's raising.—Sunday Budget, March 18.

Anecdotes.

A Christian: "What are you doing there?" asked an elder and pious-looking skater of a young man who had fallen on the ice and was rubbing his thigh with considerable energy.

"Doing?" he exclaimed, pressing his jaws together to keep back a volume of profanity, "Why, I'm trying to be a Christian."

"When?" asked the superintendent, fixing his eye on the teacher of the young ladies Bible class, "when does man most keenly and fully and conscientiously recognize and realize his own utter nothingness?" And the young man, who had led himself to the alter only two short weeks ago, blushed painfully and said, with faltering voice, "When he's being married."

"No," exclaimed Mr. Penhecker; "no, madam, I object most decidedly. Once and for all I say the girls shall not be taught foreign languages."

"And why not, pray?" said Mrs. P., with withering sarcasm.

"Because," said Mr. P., with more withering sarcasm, "because one tongue is enough for any woman."

A newly-married couple from "Wayback" were in the city yesterday, and of course found an oyster saloon the first thing.

"How do you want them—on the half-shell?"

"Nah-sir-ee! that's no half-shell business with this weddin' trip; give 'em to us on the whole shell."

Temperance in the Future.

BY REV. GEO. K. MORRIS, D. D.

CONCLUDED.

"Believe and cause others to believe" that those who urge this fight are not fanatics, that they are not well-meaning but impractical men of impulse, whose hearts are larger than their heads, and who therefore are unsafe guides. We do not claim, on the other hand, that they are persons necessarily of more than average heroism. The truth is, simply, that they are persons to whom God, for some reason, has vouchsafed, on this subject, clearer vision than to others, in harmony with his general course. They have ascended the heights, and with clear gaze, looking out over the future pathway of the race, have descried the coming victory. Therefore, it is impossible to dishearten them. They are, in a sense, chosen prophets of the Almighty, who are permitted to speak confidently of the future in this respect. They know success is coming. They are not made weak, or rendered inactive by doubts. They know, also, the abounding and rapidly multiplying signs of victory.

Without pretending that the millennium has come in Maine, they see in that pioneer state signs full of meaning. Every thoughtful observer knows that the legions of the liquor system would not rave as they do about prohibitory laws if they meant no harm to them. The birth and marvellous growth of the National Temperance Society and Publication House is a sign daily becoming more significant. Is not Kansas also a sign, whose importance is to be measured by the efforts making in quarters to prove it of no account whatever? Nay, are there not in almost every state evidences which urge themselves upon the observing mind, that the good cause is rapidly acquiring momentum for the final rush to victory?

The increasing demand for temperance literature, and for journals of a higher class, preparing the way for the National Prohibitionist, is a sign. And there are many other reassuring indications which there is not space to enumerate.

Let all good persons assure themselves now, once for all, that the perpetual ascendancy of the liquor system is impossible in the very nature of things, and that its downfall must inevitably result from the operation of agencies now at work, whose activity no power can check, because their origin is in God.

Household Receipts.

BREAD GRIDDLE CAKES. An excellent medium for utilizing stale pieces of bread is the bread griddle cake. Soak over night, in an earthen dish or pan, a pound of stale bread in sufficient milk to completely saturate it; in the morning mash fine, add three well-beaten eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and flour sufficient to make a batter, and cook like ordinary griddle cakes.

PUFF PUDDING. One quart sweet milk, seven eggs; stir as stiff as cup cake; serve hot with sauce.

TO PREVENT BREAD FROM DRYING. Keep a wet cloth around the loaf that is being cut from, and wet every time after a meal.

A CHEAP SUGAR CAKE. Ingredients: Three eggs, quarter of a pound of butter, one pound of sugar, one teacupful of sour cream, and teaspoonful of soda; use just enough flour to make the dough of a consistency to roll it out. Flavor with nutmeg.

Conundrums.

Which is the most ancient of trees? The elder.

Why is an old man more easily robbed than a young one? Give it up. Well, then, because his locks are few, and his gait is generally broken.

Why are washerwomen great travellers? They are constantly crossing the line, and travel from pole to pole.

Why is meat not done like a good conundrum? Because it is rare.

Why are handcuffs like guide books? Because they are made for two wrists.

Why is a nice young lady like a hinge? Because she is something to adore.

"Prisoner, how old are you?"

"Twenty-two, your honor."

"Twenty-two? Your papers make out you were born twenty-three years ago."

"So I was, but I spent one year in prison, and I don't count that—it was lost time.

The new evening bonnets have shirred brims and soft crowns, and are made of velvet or satin. The flowers used are delicately-tinted Spring blossoms.

☞ No family dyes were ever so popular as the Diamond Dyes. They never fail. The Black is far superior to logwood. The other colors are brilliant.

Bradley's Phosphate is especially rich in Phosphoric Acid, the most essential element of plant-food, and the one most apt to be deficient in barnyard manure. Where Phosphoric Acids is liberally supplied, with the proper proportions of other plant-food elements, all crops are much more nutritious in quality, the fruit more thoroughly matured, and the yield is always very much increased.

Othniel Eames, of Brookside Farm, North Wilmington, Mass., makes the following statement:—

"The 100 pounds of Bradley's Phosphate which I purchased last spring I used in the hill for potatoes, after having spread a light coating of barnyard manure on the land, which was in grass, and ploughed it under. My potatoes were the best I have ever raised, and yielded at the rate of 250 bushels to the acre, and they were large, smooth, and of uniform size. I should not think of planting potatoes again without Bradley's Phosphate."

☞ To any one in want of a salaried situation with an established firm, we call attention to the advertisement of R. G. Chase & Co., headed "we want," in another column. Send to them for their terms—it may pay you. 17w

PATENTS

Obtained, and all business in the U. S. Patent Office, or in the Courts attended to for MODERATE FEES.

We are opposite the U. S. Patent Office, engaged in PATENT BUSINESS EXCLUSIVELY, and can obtain patents in less time than those remote from WASHINGTON.

When model or drawing is sent we advise as to patentability free of charge; and we make NO CHARGE UNLESS WE OBTAIN PATENT.

We refer, here, to the Post Master, the Supt. of the Money Order Div., and to officials of the U. S. Patent Office. For circular, advice, terms, and reference to actual clients in your own state, or county, address,

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY

WILL CERTAINLY CURE

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Croup, and every Affection of the Throat, Lungs and Chest, including Consumption. Sold by all Druggists.

HOP PLASTER

This plaster is famous for its quick and hearty action in curing Rheumatism Sciatica, Kidney Disease, Lame Back, Side or Hips, Sharp Pains, Pleurisy, Heart and Liver Troubles, Stiff Muscles, Sore Chest, Cramps, and all pains or aches in every part. It soothes, strengthens and stimulates the parts. Sold by druggists, everywhere at 25 cents.

A GREAT SUCCESS

This and That.

The Hop Plasters have a wonderful sale, and why? Because they cure Back Ache, Stiff Joints, Pain in the Side and all Soreness in any part. People appreciate them. Any druggist, 25 cents.

☞ Dr.—is a Ph D., and there are folks who call him a D. Ph.

"Penny wise and pound foolish" are housekeepers that neglect to use James Pyle's Pearline Washing Compound, which is in every way superior to soap.

☞ Kind words are like bald heads; they can never die.

For all diseases of the heart Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator is peculiarly adapted, and a test of its remedial properties will show immediate results. The druggists everywhere sell it for $1 per bottle. Frank E. Ingalls, of Concord, N. Hampshire, is sole agent for it and will answer correspondents and send circulars when desired.

☞ A Chinese sewing-circle bears the suggestive name of Chin-Chin.

"ROUGH ON RATS."

Clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies, ants, bed-bugs, skunks, chipmunks, gophers. 15c. Druggist. 1y

"The alphabet is the key which unlocks the store-house of knowledge," says an exchange. Wheat Bitters is both key and store-house. It is an incomparable medical preparation, combining all the curative agents used in the treatment of Bright's Disease, Liver troubles and general debility.

*The man who knows nothing of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham and her sovereign remedy for women is wanted for a juryman. The fact clearly proves that he does not read the papers.—N. H. Register.

The most horrible punishment discovered by the leaders of the Inquisition, was to keep their victims awake. Insomnia, or sleeplessness, is a common disease, and one pregnant with danger. Wheat Bitters will cure it, as well as its attendant and resultant ills.

"BUCHUPAIBA."

Quick, complete cure, all annoying Kidney, Bladder and Urinal Diseases. $1. Druggists.

☞ A contented spirit is the sweetness of existence.

."Better bear present evils than fly to those unknown." Better still, use Kidney-Wort and make your present evils fly to parts unknown. If you find yourself getting billious, head heavy, mouth foul, eyes yellow, kidneys disordered, symptoms of piles tormenting you, take at once a few doses of Kidney-Wort. Use it as an advance guard—either in dry or liquid form—it is efficient.

SKINNY MEN.

"Wells Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia, Impotence, Sexual Debility. $1.

KALAMAZOO, MICH., Feb. 2, 1880.

I know Hop Bitters will bear recommendation honestly. All who use them confer upon them the highest encomiums, and give them credit for making cures—all the proprietors claim for them. I have kept them since they were first offered to the public. They took high rank from the first, and maintained it, and are more called for than all others combined. So long as they keep up their high reputation for purity and usefulness, I shall continue to recommend them—something I have never before done with any other patent medicine.

J. J. BABCOCK, M.D.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, Influenza, Consumption and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest. 50 cents and $1 a bottle. poly

PURUVIAN SYRUP cures Dyspepsia, General Debility, Liver Complaint, Boils, Humors, Chronic Diarrhœa, Nervous Affections, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood. poly

Lotteries originated in Florence in 1530. Most proprietary medicines are a lottery. This is not true of Wheat Bitters. It is a rare recognized pharmaceutical preparation and is a certain cure for dyspepsia, all types of kidney and liver troubles—in fact a household necessity.

Office of the Board of Health.

QUINCY, JULY 29, 1882.

THE Board of Health issues the following notice:—That on and after MONDAY, July 31st, 1882, the following provisions of Chapter 80 of the Public Statutes will be strictly enforced:—

SEC. 78. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town in which he dwells. If he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $100.

SEC. 79. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with Small Pox or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit for each offence not less than $50, nor more than $100.

The Board considers the above sections to apply to scarlet fever, small pox, diphtheria, measles and whooping cough.

GLENNON'S PATENT CRANES AND DERRICKS.

The above beautiful cut representing the new cranes and derricks recently patented by our townsman, Mr. WM. H. GLENNON, of West Quincy. For a cheap and practicable derrick, it surpasses anything ever before offered to the public. Mr. Glennon has made at his residence a good derrick for forty-five cents, not including ropes, blocks, etc., which answers for common purposes as well as one that cost $200. Any information will be cheerfully given by the patentee.

Poetry.

The Four-leaved Clover.

Do you remember, dearest heart,
How you and I together
Went forth, one day, long years ago,
In joyous spring-time weather,—

'Mid hum of bees and song of birds,
And searched the green fields over,
Happy as children in our glee,
To find the four-leaved clover.

You found the prize for which we sought
And, filled with child-like pleasure,
You laughing said that I was doomed
Never to win the treasure.

And then you told me, dost you know,
When I, your bashful lover,
Told you how dear you were to me,
You said you'd be my clover?

Ah! that was years and years ago,
We've both grown old together;
Seen many spring-times come and go,
Sunshine and stormy weather.

We've seen all kinds of trials, dear,
And many a care and bother;
But never saw a day in which
We did not love each other.

And I have found, as time goes by,
My precious spray of clover
Grows sweeter as the seasons fly,
And dearer ten times over.

But soon, my dear, we both must lie
Where clover blooms above us,
Remembered only on the earth
By these true hearts that love us.

Well, God is good; though dark the stream,
His hand will guide us over,
And then in other, fairer fields
We both will find the clover.

Miscellany.

The Church Debt.

The Methodist Church, of New Albion, had long been staggering under a load of debt. Its edifice, built in the flush times following the war, was an ambitious piece of architecture — the church of the future, beyond a doubt, since it was much larger than the needs of its congregation—and the pews were still vacant which the sanguine builders had expected to see filled by the men who were to pay off the mortgages.

The Rev. Mr. Thorpe, the pastor, had carried this debt now for two years; it had been the burden of his days and the night-mare of his dreams; at length he had brought his congregation to the point of attacking it. He had made several anxious pilgrimages to rich Methodists in neighboring cities, but found small encouragement; it was evident that the Methodists in New Albion must shoulder their own load.

Accordingly, the first Sunday in October was devoted to a carefully planned effort for the payment of the debt. Mr. Thorpe had concluded to dispense with the services of a "financelist" and to direct his own forces. There was to be no regular service in the church, but the public were invited to meet at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and, by the grace of God, the meeting would not adjourn, Mr. Thorpe said, until the debt was paid. A collation was provided in the basement, so the people might spend the day in the work.

The debt amounted to thirty-two thousand dollars, and when the meeting opened seventeen thousand dollars was at once subscribed—this amount having been secured beforehand by private conference with the abler contributors.

This excellent start awakened great enthusiasm, and, for a time, subscriptions came in rapidly; but long before noon the limit of the people's ability seemed to have been reached, and the list only footed up about twenty-four thousand dollars.

Mr. Thorpe kept his forces well in hand, however, and showed no signs of wavering. Exhortations and appeals were interspersed with singing; a judicious and energetic committee did a good deal of personal work with individuals; messengers were dispatched to labor with absentees. But it seemed evident that the large gifts had all been gathered in, and there was still a deficiency of more than seven thousand dollars that the small subscriptions yet to be obtained would by no means supply.

As Mr. Franklin, of the Congregational Church, walked home after the morning service, with his pastor, they passed the door of the Methodist Church.

"Let us look in for a moment," said the parson, "and see how they are getting on."

They sat down in one of the back seats and watched the proceedings. From Mr. Thorpe's occasional remarks they learned the situation of affairs and saw that the case was probably hopeless, though the resolute leader did not for a moment assent to such a conclusion.

As they walked along, Mr. Franklin said:

"Making a strong fight, aren't they?"

"Yes."

"But they will not take the fort?"

"I don't know."

"I do; they've got to the sticking point, and they will not get past it."

"Pity," said Mr. Strong, sententiously.

After a moment's thought, he added, with a new interest:

"Is it lawful to pull your fellow creatures out of a pit on the Sabbath day?"

"I should say so, especially if he is trying to get out himself."

"Lawful to hitch up your horse and pull him out?"

"Yes," laughed the minister.

"Well, you go home and get your lunch and I'll get mine and have Major put into the buggy. I'll be around before one o'clock, and we'll see what we can do."

"All right!"

It was not long before the good white horse came at a week-day pace to the door of the parsonage, and the friends were soon whirling away.

"Now, we've got to be swift," said the banker. "My first thought was to call on some of our own people, but I am now inclined to give some of the rest a chance. The Episcopalians and the Free Baptists have a heavy debt of their own; the Adventists are not able to help much; we must enlist the others. Brinsmade must call on the First Church folks, Ellsworth on the Baptists, Thompson on the Universalists, you and I will look after our own."

They were stopping at Mr. Brinsmade's door, and the master of the house answered the bell.

"We have set out," said Mr. Franklin, "to give the Methodists a little lift in paying their church debt. Will you go and stand in the vestibule of your church and waylay as many as you can of your strongest men as they go into the afternoon service, and get subscriptions from them? Start the paper yourself. Then ask Dr. Phelps to take a collection before the sermon for the same object. Get cash subscriptions, payable to-morrow at my bank. Report the amount to me at Mr. Strong's house by four o'clock sharp. Will you do it?"

"What a steamboat you are!" said Brinsmade, laughing.

"Will you do it?" said Franklin strenuously. "No time for nonsense, old fellow!"

"Yes, I'll do it."

"All right. Good bye!"

And the white horse was soon flying down the street.

None of the other churches had afternoon services, and all that could be done in them must be done by personal application to a few of the more prosperous members.

But Mr. Franklin had selected the right man as canvasser in each society, and after they had been set at work, he and his pastor returned to their own parish, which they divided between them, contriving before four o'clock to see a good portion of its most generous members. At that hour they all met at the parsonage, as by agreement, bringing with them a much larger sum than the most sanguine of them had hoped to get.

"They came down handsomely," said Brinsmade. "Three or four refused to give anything; but most of them had their names down before they knew it. It dropped on them so sudden like, that they hadn't time to hunt up excuses. The old doctor warmed up to the business beautifully, and he begged like a professional. Didn't suppose it was in him. They brought in nearly four hundred dollars in the boxes, besides all I got from individuals."

The others had much the same story to tell. Sympathy with the Methodists in their courageous effort was universal, and it had found a generous expression.

"Now each of you sit down and write a short letter," said Mr. Franklin, "explaining that the amount you have collected is from friends in your church, naming the amount and stating where it may be called for to-morrow, and we'll go over at once and send the letters up to Brother Thorpe. I trust he is holding out yet, but it must be pretty tough for a man who doesn't believe in the perseverance of the saints to hang to such a poor promise."

It was about half-past four when Mr. Franklin and his friends entered the Methodist Church. The back seats were all occupied, so they stood in the space behind the pews and looked on. The church was pretty well filled, and Mr. Thorpe was still keeping up a lively fire of appeal and argument, but there were no responses, and it was plain that hope had departed from most of the solicitors.

"Will you walk forward and take seats, gentlemen?" said one of them.

"No, I thank you," answered Mr. Franklin. "We are only lobby members. How do you get on?"

"Slowly."

And the solicitor shook his head dolefully.

"How much have you got?"

"Only a little over twenty-five thousand."

"Why don't you stop where you are?"

"Then we lose everything. The greater share of the heavy subscriptions are conditional upon raising of the whole debt."

"Won't your subscribers make them unconditional?"

"No. We've begged them to, but they are obstinate."

"Pity, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir. It will be a hard blow if we fail now."

The discouraged gentleman walked away.

Mr. Franklin's air had been so indifferent that he had not ventured to ask him for anything.

"Send up your letter, Brinsmade," whispered Franklin. "Get that small boy to take it up."

The small boy toddled up the aisle and handed the envelope to Mr. Thorpe who tore it open eagerly.

"Hallelujah!" shouted the impetuous Methodist. "Brethren, listen to this: 'The First Congregational Church of New Albion sends greeting to the First Methodist Church, with a pledge of sixteen hundred and seventy-five dollars, to be paid to-morrow at 12 o'clock, noon, by a check upon the First National Bank.' This is signed on behalf of the church by James W. Brinsmade."

The reading of the letter was followed by a storm of cheers and all the usual Methodist responses, in the midst of which the organ struck up the Doxology, and the whole congregation rose to its feet and sang with a tremendous energy.

"Will Brother Brinsmade come forward?" shouted Mr. Thorpe.

But before he had time to insist on this a little girl was mounting the pulpit with another envelop, which the pastor received with trembling hand.

This letter stated that five hundred and fifteen dollars, the gift of a few friends in the Universalist Church, would be on deposit the next day, at the same hour and same place. Over this the furore was redoubled, one enthusiastic brother mounting a seat and calling for "the second verse of the Doxology."

"Better not protract the agony," said Franklin to Ellsworth.

The good minister, who had now for six hours been under a continuous nervous strain, in whose heart confidence had given way to anxiety, and anxiety was beginning to change to discouragement, was so completely overcome by the contents of the other two envelopes that he sat down in his chair and could not speak for a moment and at length rose and half sobbed out:

"Two more, brethren. One from friends in the Baptist Church, with a pledge of nine hundred and twenty-five dollars, and one from friends in the Second Congregational Church, with a promise of eighteen hundred and ten dollars. God bless them, every one!"

This time they were all too excited to sing, but there was a volley of amens in response to the last ejaculation, and men and women all over the house were laughing and crying like children.

"Give us the footing now, Brother Harrison," said the minister, at length, to the treasurer, who was keeping account of the subscriptions.

"Thirty thousand one hundred and fifty-five dollars," was the answer.

"Less than two thousand dollars more are wanted!" cried Mr. Thorpe. "What do you say to that?"

"Two hundred dollars more for me!" was the first response from one of the heaviest subscribers; and then the supplementary subscriptions, large and small, came pouring in for ten minutes, faster than the Treasurer could record them. As soon as there was a short pause, he summed up the amount again, and rising to his feet, said quietly:

"Thirty-two thousand four hundred and sixty dollars—four hundred and sixty dollars for shrinkage!"

The scene that followed can only be imagined by those who know what an incubus a church debt is to a devoted congregation, and who are also familiar with the ways in which the Methodists are wont to express their feelings.

"I perceive," said Mr. Thorpe, rising to his feet after the tempest had subsided, that all these pledges are to be paid to-morrow, at noon, at the First National Bank. It is easy to guess who is at the bottom of all this business, and I see him now standing near the door."

"No scenes for me," whispered the banker to his minister. "I'm going. Make my excuses."

And he slipped out of the door and walked quietly away.

"Walter Franklin is the man," continued the parson, "and he is leaving the house at this moment; will not some one bring him back?"

But that was a vain suggestion. Mr. Franklin, as everybody knew, would not be brought back.

"Mr. Franklin's pastor must answer for him, then," said the minister; and Mr. Strong walked up the aisle amid great cheering. In a few graceful words he told the congregation that Mr. Thorpe was right in his conjecture; that the plan of aiding them in their difficult undertaking was conceived and set in motion by Mr. Franklin, who had, nevertheless, been supported in the heartiest manner by the gentlemen on whom he had called; that the whole scheme was the inspiration of a moment and the fruit of a few hours' work; and that he trusted that the result of it would be, not only the emancipation of the Methodist Church from the bondage of debt, but the strengthening of the bond of fellowship among the churches of New Albion. To that wish there were many fervent responses, and after a prayer of thanksgiving by the pastor, and the singing of "Blessed be the tie that binds," the congregation broke up. That day will never be forgotten by any one who had part in its doings, and fruit of the seed then sowed will be reaped in the increasing charity of many generations.—Selected.

Buying Close.

Some people run away with the idea that there is money to be saved by going abroad for their purchases. They think they can buy closer in Boston or New York than at home, and put themselves to no end of trouble under the delusion that they are saving a cent. They want to buy so "close" that they shave themselves.

Now, the truth is that the matter of household supplies, dry goods and groceries, you can as a general rule buy at home as well, if not better. There is nothing gained by sending abroad for these supplies. Within a few years in nearly every town and city the live traders—those who keep a good stock and let people know it—have largely extended their lines of trade, and are prepared to supply their demand at the lowest figure. The wide-awake retail traders are alive to the necessity of both buying and selling close, and they offer as great inducements as can be had elsewhere. We say nothing of the duty of patronizing our own. Everybody is supposed to look out only for number one, and to regard the public good only as it subserves their own interests. But one may take too narrow a view of this matter, and find in the end that in too closely following his own interests he has neglected those larger concerns which tend to the benefit of all, himself included. All whose interests are centered in their own town or city are benefitted by the building up of its trade and the general prosperity of its people. These are not promoted by running abroad for every article of necessity under the delusion that thereby a saving is made. If we would help ourselves we must help each other; if we would see our village prosper, we must spend our money there.

Clam Digging.

The clam diggers have met with a serious obstacle to their labors this winter in the masses of ice which have covered the beaches for months; but the thaw and disappearance of the ice has called out a large number of the unemployed, and clams abound on every side. The favorite and justly esteemed Commercial Bulletin, of Boston, says:—

"The common soft clam is of great importance in our New England economy, being used both for food and for bait for the cod and haddock fisheries. Some five thousand barrels are put up annually in New England for the latter purpose, the clams selling at seven dollars a barrel. The soft clam is found on all our beaches and exposed flats, and is a source of profit to a class of men whose hardihood and perseverance are rarely excelled. During the coldest winter days the clam diggers may be seen at the South Boston or Chelsea flats, or down the harbor, in couples, shovelling and closely sifting the rich mud, or perhaps pulling their dories across the ice, in order to get at a more exposed place, from which the ice has been carried out. At times they remove a foot or more of ice in order to get at the clams underneath, and in the severest weather stand in freezing water with their hands wet and covered with ice. They receive for their labor one dollar a bushel, and the middleman who shells them gets twenty-five cents a quart. There are eight quarts of shelled, or 'shucked,' clams in a bushel, so that the latter's gross gain is one dollar a bushel; but the expense of 'shucking' and carting them about the city takes away very much of the profit.

"The clams are dug with two different tools—one very much like a common short-handled dung-fork, and the other a rake with a handle four and a half feet long, and having four very long teeth. As the clams lie very close together, great care is necessary to avoid breaking them in digging. A green hand will break the shells of one in three, and will probably testify, when he finishes his labor, that it is the hardest, most back-breaking work he ever took hold of.

"The clams can only be dug at low tide, or when the flats are uncovered. The time on each tide for digging does not exceed four hours. In that time two men will load a dory which holds several bushels."

New Experiences.

It is not easy to realize that potatoes and tobacco were unknown to the civilized world before the discovery of America. How strange to think of Ireland without her "praties" or of a German without his meerschaum. Yet even some of our common articles of food are strange to those who live on the other side of the ocean.

An English lady, while visiting the United States, dined with some friends on whose table was a dish of some green corn. Having been asked if she would take corn, she replied, "A small piece if you please," and was surprised when a small ear was placed on her plate. Not daring to attack it, she quietly watched the other persons at the table while they ate. On writing home about the new vegetable she said:

"Their manner of eating it is something like playing on a flute."

Less poetical but much bolder was the Irishman on his first introduction to green corn at a Boston restaurant. Observing how those about him managed, he quickly followed their example. He found the vegetable very palatable, and when he had finished one ear he called the waiter, handing him his cob, saying:

"Sure, an' I'll take some more banes on the stick, if you plaze."

A story is told of how an American lady, who had the honor of dining with the Czar of Russia, was mortified. During the dinner a basket of grapes was passed first to her. Beside the fruit lay a golden knife. She, perceiving no use for the knife, transferred a bunch of grapes to her own plate. What was her mortification on seeing that every other guest severed with the golden knife but a single grape from the luscious bunches!—Youths' Companion.

Success in Life.

Mr. Robert Lowe, M. P., ex-Chancellor of the English Exchequer, said recently in an address to the children of a London orphan asylum:

I am myself a person who has had to struggle hard in the battle of life, and I will tell you what I believe to be one of the greatest elements of success in life, and that is that I think there is nothing that helps a young man or woman in life so much as strict and rigid self-control, economy and self-denial. It is the custom to say that youth is the time for enjoyment, and so it is; but nature and youth have provided that enjoyment for themselves. When people are young mere existence is a pleasure. The earth and the air and the skies seem to open to them a paradise; but when they get older these delights gradually fade away from them and they need the more adventitious and expensive pleasures. What I therefore, would strongly advise every one of you is to consider that when you go into the world perhaps the first thing you have got to do is, next to dealing honestly with that which is intrusted to you, to take care that you should keep clear of debt, and if possible by self-denial to lay by something for the future in case of sickness or other misfortune. It seems to me that that is a duty which is not generally sufficiently inculcated on young people.

You will find in life that if you behave well and do your duty all the difficulty is concentrated in the first step. It is the first advance which men and women make in life which more or less decides their future. The beginnings of life are all crowded. For everything that is to be had there is a great competition; but when people have once made a step, and have proved that they are worthy, all the rest is comparatively easy. It has been my duty often to pick out persons for situations, and my experience is that when the great mass is penetrated, and you have got to persons who have advanced one or two steps, the difficulty is not that we are overwhelmed with persons fit for the place, but to get any one who is fit for it. Therefore your object in life would be to begin with the greatest care, attention and self-denial, so to make this first step as to distinguish yourself as being trustworthy and reliable in all particulars, and if you once attract the notice of your employer, and he sees you are well and honestly discharging your duty, you may rely upon it you are in a fair way to make yourself independent and to lead a happy life.

The Geneva Award Fund.

The Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims, organized at Washington, July 13, 1882, for two years, may now be said to have fairly entered upon the work of deciding cases. The court occupies the Richard Smith house, No. 1,412 H-street, once used by the United States and Mexican Claims Commission. The court-room and consultation room are on the ground floor; the second story is devoted to the clerk's offices, and the third story to the Government counsel and his assistants. The court consists of the Hon. Hezekiah G. Wells of Michigan, who presided over the former court; the Hon. James Harlan, of Iowa, formerly Secretary of the Interior, and the Hon. Asa French, of Braintree, Massachusetts. D. W. Fessenden, of Maine, brother of the late William Pitt Fessenden, is clerk; Andrew H. Allen, formerly of the Department of State, is deputy clerk and disbursing agent, and H. C. Clarke official stenographer and reporter. The Hon. J. A. J. Creswell of Maryland, represents the interests of the Government, as he did in the former court. His assistant is the Hon. Walker Blaine, late Third Assistant Secretary of State. A United States Deputy Marshal (T. Culbertson) opens and closes the sessions of the court and preserves order, the latter branch of his duty thus far not having proved very onerous.

Six months were allowed to file petitions, until January 14, 1883. The whole number of petitions filed is 5,770. To enter these cases upon the docket has taxed the energy of the whole working force of the clerk's office. The largest claim is No. 4,919, filed by George W. Lane and others, of the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company of New York for $1,642,802. The largest war premium claim is No. 1,353, that of the surviving partners of William F. Weld & Co., of Boston, for the sum of $250,938. In one war premium case the printing of the petition, with its exhibits has cost the Government more than $500.

The court has been alive to the necessity of working early and late to dispose of the immense amount of business that is to be submitted. It has adopted rules designed to bring cases to a speedy hearing, and yet it shows every disposition to accommodate counsel coming from a distance. The Judges take their seats on the bench at 10 o'clock, and proceed without unnecessary ceremony to the dispatch of business. As may be imagined, many novel and interesting questions have arisen upon the threshold of their proceedings.

American Newspapers.

From the new edition of Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory, which is now in press, it appears that the newspapers and periodicals of all kinds issued in the United States and Territories now reach the imposing total of 11,196. This is an increase of 585 in twelve months. Taking the states one by one, the newspaper growth in some is very considerable. The present total in New York State, for instance, is 1,399—a gain of 80 in the past year. The increase in Pennsylvania is 48, the existing number being 943. Nebraska's total grew from 175 to 201, and Illinois' from 890 to 904. A year ago Massachusetts had 420 papers; now the number is 438. In Texas the new papers outnumber the suspensions by 8, and Ohio now has 738 papers instead of 692. The most remarkable change has occurred in the Territories, in which the daily papers have grown from 43 to 63, and the weeklies from 169 to 243—Dakota being the chief area of activity. The number of monthlies throughout the country grew from 976 to 1,034, while the dailies leaped from 996 to 1,062. The figures given above are exclusive of Canada, which possesses a total of 606. It is interesting to note that the newly-settled regions of the Canadian North-West are productive of newspapers as well as wheat, for the number of journals issued in Manitoba was nearly doubled during the year.

☞ A New York politician in writing a letter of condolence to the widow of a deceased member of the Legislature says:—

"I cannot tell you how pained I was to hear that your husband had gone to heaven. We were bosom friends, but now we shall never meet again.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, APR. 14, 1883.

Dr. Miller's Lectures.

The course of physiological lectures by Dr. Miller was concluded last Tuesday evening. The attendance has been steadily on the increase and at the last was limited only by the size of the hall. Owing to what seemed an insufficient advertisement the public responded in largest numbers only when the course was nearly through.

Serious regret has been expressed by many that heard Dr. Miller in part that they did not attend the full course. It has been a popular expression of desire that the lecturer would give his second course as he frequently does in other places.

At the closing lecture on Tuesday evening this desire took form. Immediately on the conclusion of the lecture several addresses were made by citizens who felt it would be greatly to the benefit of our people could such a movement be started as would secure an additional course. A hand vote was taken and more than three-fourths voted to invite Dr. Miller to give his second series. This was followed by the election of a committee of ten who were requested to make all necessary arrangements.

The committee has received a sufficient number of applications for season tickets to warrant the engagement of Dr. Miller for the desired lectures. The first lecture will accordingly be given next Monday evening.

The course will consist of eight lectures, and the price for season tickets will be only one dollar; children seventy-five cents. Single admission fifteen cents.

The instruction to be given will be of the utmost value to every person. Especially is it desired that the young ladies and gentlemen of our town avail themselves of the present opportunity to learn the facts of a very important science. Dr. Miller needs no introduction to a Quincy public, and his deserved indorsement in this popular and spontaneous desire for a second course of lectures is but a tribute of just appreciation.

QUINCY MUTUAL. The annual meeting of the members of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held on the 4th instant. Joseph W. Robertson was elected chairman and the following gentlemen were elected Directors for the ensuing year:

Israel W. Monroe, of Quincy, Thomas Curtis, Quincy, Charles A. Howland, Quincy, John Hardwick, Quincy, Charles H. Porter, Quincy, Alfred Loring, Hingham, H. W. Blanchard, Boston, Sumner A. Hayward, Brockton, Royal W. Turner, Randolph, Charles Breck, Milton, J. Alba Davis, West Roxbury, J. F. C. Hyde, Newton, and George Marston, New Bedford.

At the meeting of the Directors, held on Thursday last, Israel W. Munroe was elected president, and Charles A. Howland, secretary.

The thirty-second annual report of this company will be found in our columns to-day. The cash fund shows the handsome increase of over $34,000 the past year. The excellent condition of this company is very creditable to the officers, and the report is worthy of a careful perusal.

FIRES. The alarms of fire have been numerous this week, but we are pleased to say but little property has been destroyed. They were all occasioned by the burning of grass, brush, etc., and there really appears to have been no need of general alarms being given. The horses belonging to the steamer have worked well, the new driver seems to know how to handle them better than the former one.

The J. Q. Adams Chemical Engine has answered promptly to the alarms, and made the following quick runs: To Box 46, West Quincy, in 13 minutes; Box 34, Whicher's shop, 17 minutes; Box 53, Wollaston hotel, 7 minutes.

YACHT CLUB. The annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht Club was held last Saturday evening at the Lyceum Room, and the following officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year:—

Commodore,—George W. Morton; Vice Commodore,—C. F. Adams, 3d; Secretary and Treasurer,—N. B. Furnald; Fleet Captain,—Peter B. Turner; Measurer,—Henry H. Sheen; Regatta Committee,—B. F. Bass, George C. Adams, George Saville, George H. Hitchcock.

The secretary reported that the club was in a good financial condition, and stated that there was now in the treasury $148. The first regatta of the season will be sailed off Mears', Quincy Great Hill, Saturday, May 26, at 1 o'clock, P. M., at which time a collation will be served at the beach-house of N. B. Furnald.

DORCHESTER MUTUAL. At the 28th annual meeting of the Dorchester Mutual Fire Insurance Company held at there office in Neponset, the 10th inst., the following gentlemen were chosen Directors for the year ensuing:

E. J. Baker, H. W. Blanchard, C. H. Codman, Henry O. Hildreth, Oliver Hall, Richard C. Humphreys, Nathan Holbrook, Laban Pratt, William Pope, J. W. Porter, E. A. Perkins, E. H. R. Ruggles, William H. Swan, M. P. Sumner, Wm. F. Temple, Thomas F. Temple, James Torrey, James H. Upham, William H. West, Seth Mann, 2d.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Edmund J. Baker was chosen President and Treasurer; William F. Temple, Secretary; and W. D. C. Curtis, Assistant Secretary.

District Court, Quincy.

The following cases have been before Judge Humphrey this week:—

Thomas F. Ryan, of Weymouth, for being drunk was fined $1 and costs.

Quincy Sprague, of Holbrook, for second drunk. Fined $3 and costs. Committed.

William Daily, of Holbrook, for keeping a liquor nuisance. Continued to April 21st.

George Dobbs, of Cambridge, for embezzlement, on complaint of John J. Kemp. He waived an examination and the case was sent to the Grand Jury. The defendant recognized in the sum of $300 for his appearance.

Elizabeth Dumphy, of Randolph, for selling liquor, was fined $50 and costs. Appealed.

MATCHES. The stamp tax on matches goes off May 15. It is matter of regret that the entire internal revenue system does not go with it.

Brief Locals.

☞ Now is the time to be thinking about getting that dog licensed.

☞ Wanted, a lady to write at the PATRIOT Office. Labor light, wages moderate.

☞ The Congregational society will observe the anniversary of its Sabbath school to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock.

☞ Arrived at Wollaston, April 11, schooner "Jonathan Cone," from Hoboken, with a cargo of coal for Geo. W. B. Taylor.

☞ The Gazette says that a new house is being built at Hough's Neck, Quincy, for the proprietor of the Weymouth Clothing Store.

☞ Before the Superior Court at Dedham this week, William Costello, of Quincy, was fined $200 and costs for keeping a liquor nuisance.

☞ On Thursday evening we were visited by numerous showers, that were much needed. The rain was accompanied by some thunder and lightning.

☞ The Hingham Journal reminds its readers that Billings' Plain, in Quincy, was a famous place for military musters in the early part of the present century.

☞ On Tuesday next, Joseph W. Lombard sells a lot of harnesses, wagons, one horse, etc., near Frederick Hardwick's store, on Franklin street, Quincy.

☞ The last sociable of the season at the vestry of the Universalist Church, will take place next Wednesday. A very nice entertainment is expected. All friends of the society are invited.

☞ We had the pleasure of a visit this week from Munroe Crane, Esq., of New York City. He is looking nicely, and appears to be enjoying the pleasures of a prosperous and industrious life.

☞ Mrs. Harlow at Quincy Neck, whom we mentioned last week as being thrown from her carriage, is still confined to her bed. The shock was quite severe, but it is hoped no bones were broken.

☞ From the large number attending the services of Rev. Samuel Kelley at Revere Hall, the society have found it necessary to obtain larger accommodations; and their services will be held hereafter in Faxon Hall.

☞ The last bill against the People's Course, we learn, is paid and there is a balance of $16.55 in the hands of the Treasurer. We are crowded this week, but in our next issue we will have something further to say.

☞ A skating rink is to be opened in this town in the old library building on Hancock street, commencing this Saturday evening. Three sessions daily, accompanied by good music, as will be noticed in our advertising columns.

☞ Joseph W. Lombard sold, on Saturday last, the Tiger engine house, on School street at auction for $300. Mr. George J. Jones was the purchaser, who intends to move the same to near his residence on Hancock street.

☞ Charles H. Spear has purchased the ice business for many years carried on by William G. Prescott. He has a large supply of excellent quality of ice, and will be prepared to furnish it promptly to all our citizens who may desire.

☞ A special meeting of the comrades of Post 88, G. A. R., will be held on Monday evening, April 16th. Those desirous of obtaining tickets to the concert of war songs to be held at Tremont Temple, Boston, on the evening of April 19th, are requested to be present.

☞ The first plowing this season in Quincy was probably done by the Superintendent of the Poor Farm,—the last week in March. It was unusually late, owing to the large quantity of frost in the ground. He has already sown half an acre to onions, and is pushing spring work forward with the hopes of having a nice farm this summer.

☞ The Granite Cutters' Union of the United States have removed their headquarters from Westerly, R. I., to this town, and located in Mr. H. H. Faxon's building on Hancock street. The Union issues a handsome eight-page monthly, in the interest of stonecutters. Mr. J. D. Dyer has the editorial and business management of the same. By a provision in the constitution the headquarters are in one place for only two consecutive years.

☞ Our young and enterprising grocer, George H. Wilson, has engaged lately in a new business; that is, new to him, but one quite popular with young people. After having the copartnership papers all nicely arranged and sealed, he accompanied his partner, a beautiful young lady of Boston, on a wedding tour to New York and New Jersey. By his fine appearance and pleasing countenance we should judge he enjoyed the trip greatly, and now returns to his store to enter into the active duties of a merchant's life.

A GOOD INCOME. Mr. Edmunds, President pro tem of the Senate, gets $10,000 a year instead of $5,000. A correspondent says that he is paid $5,000 a year each by the Vermont Central Railroad Company and the Vermont Wheel Works Company. His fees in cases before the United States Supreme Court are said to be large, so that his income is from $30,000 to $40,000.

Summary of News.

Last Friday was Decoration Day throughout the South.

According to the figures of the pension office there are more than 1,000,000 Union soldiers still alive.

The real estate business appears to be improving.

Twice as many men as women die of pneumonia.

Delaware expects another large peach crop this season.

A bill fixing the price of saloon licenses at five hundred dollars has passed one branch of the Illinois Legislature.

The Improvement Society of Stoughton cleared about $900 by a recent fair.

Canned boiled cabbage is a new Medway industry.

The Old Colony railroad company is preparing for summer travel, and is having eleven new passenger cars built.

The Unitarian Church of Dedham has been renovated at an expense of more than $2,000.

For the Patriot.

Quincy Point Items.

A score of small convenient houses are needed in this district. For three years past there has been a constant demand for tenements, and none to be had. If one is vacated it is immediately taken; and if it is rumored that any one is to move, a half dozen inquirers are immediately besieging the owner for the refusal of the premises. We need to recover from the idea that with the closing of the ship-yard the Point was dead and buried beyond the possibility of a resurrection. A new order of things has come, if we would only see it. Formerly nearly all residents found employment here. Now, by actual count, about fifty persons residing here go to Boston daily. Good houses for small families, at rents which clerks and salesmen could pay, would let readily to good-paying, permanent tenants. Old residents say there will never be any business to draw people here. Very likely. But plenty of people would be glad to have a residence here and their business in Boston.

At the annual meeting of the First Baptist Sunday School held last Sunday, the following officers were chosen:

Superintendent,—M. A. Marks; Secretary and Treasurer,—Wm. Maybury; Librarian,—Wm. J. Stronach.

Mrs. Margaret Newcomb is building an addition to her house on Howard street. J.

On Thursday the Ecclesiastical Council came together, at what has until lately been known as the Union Christian Church, for the purpose of recognizing, and receiving to fellowship the new organization, Washington Street Congregational church and Society.

The beautiful floral display of potted plants, gratuitously sent by the citizens of the Point, added much to the interest of the occasion. These were arranged in two pyramids, one on each side of the altar, and a cluster about the desk, reflecting great credit on those who had the matter in charge.

The pastor, Rev. J. L. Harris, has been an untiring worker during the past two months, in which the change has been contemplated, and the unanimity with which the church has aided and seconded his labors, has been gratifying, and due to the manner in which the matter has been placed before the people, who fully appreciate the work he has done.

Entertainment was provided for seventy-five or a hundred visitors.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Rev. Mr. Norton, of Quincy, called the meeting to order at 2.45 P. M., and read the letter missive to the council, after which Rev. Mr. Larabee, of Randolph, was chosen moderator, and Rev. Mr. Tyler, of No. Weymouth, scribe.

Prayer by moderator.

Roll called by the scribe, and finding a quorum present, of pastors and delegates of some twenty neighboring churches, proceeded at once to business.

All papers presented to the council by the Union Christian Church, and Methodist Episcopal Society, were read by the clerk of the church. After which the consideration of all actions taken, and papers presented by the new church and society acting unanimously with the church, were laid before the Council.

The Council then voted to be by itself.

EVENING SESSION.

Organ Voluntary, Miss L. W. Penny. Anthem, "O Hear Us," Choir.

The moderator stated the object for which the Council was called, and the scribe read the proceedings of the afternoon session, stating that the Council unanimously agreed to extend the right hand of fellowship to the church, and had prepared the following programme for this adjourned meeting:

Reading of Scriptures, Rev. Mr. Coit, Lawrence; Invocation, Rev. Mr. Haskins, Abington; Singing, "Beautiful are Thy Towers," Choir; Sermon, Rev. Dr. Herrick, Mt. Vernon Church, Boston, from Heb. 13 chap., 8 verse; Prayer, Rev. Mr. Coit; Right Hand of Fellowship was extended in a most appropriate manner by Rev. Mr. Norton, of Quincy, who closed his remarks by requesting the congregation to join in singing "Blest be the ties that bind, etc;" Charge to J. L. Harris by Rev. Mr. Larabee; Address to Church by Rev. Mr. Emerson, Braintree; Doxology, church; Benediction, J. L. Harris.

Rev. J. L. Harris preached the second and concluding discourse to the young people, on Sunday evening.

Mr. A. Everett Nash and family have returned to their summer home at the Neck.

Rev. Geo. W. Coon, a former pastor of the Union Christian Church, received an appointment, on Tuesday, by the New England Methodist Conference, which met in Boston, to Swampscott, Mass. He has been preaching at Williamsburg during the past year.

Frank W. Smith arrived home from California on Wednesday, and is being warmly welcomed by his many friends.

Messrs. J. L. Whiton and Walton Hall returned home Thursday from their western trip. F.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a special meeting of St. Mary's C. T. A. Society, of West Quincy, held Sunday, April 8, the following resolutions were passed, on the death of a fellow member:

WHEREAS, God in His infinite wisdom has removed from our midst our worthy and esteemed deputy, John J. White,

WHEREAS, The intimate relation held during a short but busy life by him with the members of this society which he organized makes it fitting that we record our appreciation of so faithful a servant; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Society has received with deep sorrow and regret the intelligence of this death in the midst of his usefulness and in the discharge of his duties.

RESOLVED, That his earnest and faithful services, his high moral character, strict integrity, and the conscientious discharge of every duty won for him the love and esteem of his brother members in the C. T. A. Societies, and will ever be held in grateful remembrance by them.

RESOLVED, That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to his surviving relatives and friends in their sad bereavement.

RESOLVED, That these resolutions be inserted in the QUINCY PATRIOT, entered in the records of the society, and a copy be sent to his sorrowing relatives.

JOHN E. BURNS,
THOMAS H. SHORTLE, } Committee.
JAMES A. WHITE,

A GOOD FERTILIZER. We would call the attention of farmers and others to the Bay State Fertilizer, which is pronounced excellent for all growing crops. Mr. Geo. A. Ordway of Quincy is agent, and any orders sent to him will receive prompt attention. Gentlemen having nice lawns will find this an article which will give them good satisfaction.

Prayer meeting Friday evening at 7.45

For the Patriot.

Nuisances.

Mr. Constable, or to whom it may concern, possibly the Selectmen or Road Commissioners, but whoever, how much better, and what a great deal of credit it would be to "Some One," if something could and would be done, to keep the crowd of loafers and hangers-on away from the sidewalk in front of the post-office, and extending to the railway depot. It is not only disagreeable for ladies to attempt to go along in the evening, but disgraceful to the female sex to be obliged to crowd through such a pack of ungentlemanly beings, and hear such talking and swearing that they are obliged to.

The ladies have as much interest (and more than some of the men) to walk along the sidewalk to the office. But, as it is now, it is almost impossible for a lady to reach the office decently dressed, without having her clothing besmeared with tobacco juice, or some other filth. It would speak a little better, and be more credit to the "Town Authorities" if such loafing and blockading the sidewalks were stopped.

It also seems strange that the Selectmen like to see the front of a public building (like our town-house) decorated with tobacco juice, cuds, and cigar stumps.

Cannot the Selectmen find some one whom they can appoint, who will attend to and do their duty, with justice to the female sex, and have it more safe for the ladies who are obliged to go out in the evening?

RUINED.

Quincy, April 11, 1883.

At the State House.

In the Senate on Tuesday, the Committee on Water Supply and Drainage reported a bill to incorporate the Quincy Water Company with a capital of not more than $250,000.

The House has very sensibly passed the bill giving probate courts jurisdiction over divorce cases.

In the House last Friday, the bill to permit women attorneys-at-law to be appointed notaries public and justices of the peace, was passed by a large majority.

The Hoosac tunnel this year asks for the appropriation of $264,000 to finish the double-tracking of the state railroad. Another message from his Excellency is imminent.

HEAVY DAMAGES. Charles C. Motel, a boy in New York City, obtained a verdict last week of $10,000 damages against the Sixth Avenue Railroad Company, for being run over by a horse car, causing the loss of a leg.

WM. S. BUTLER & CO.,

90 TO 98 TREMONT ST.,
BOSTON.

SPRING OPENING

Wm. S. Butler & Co.

Take pleasure in announcing that the alterations in their store are now completed, and that they are occupying Nos. 90, 92, 94, 96 and 98 Tremont Street, and 1 and 2 Montgomery Place.

The second floor is now also open for business, and on the third floor is a Ladies' Reception Room, where every attention will be given to the comfort of our customers.

These alterations will give us much needed additional room for the display of our stock, and will afford to the ladies Better Accommodations and Light than are found in any other store in our line.

FIRST

OPENING

—OF OUR—

DEPARTMENT.

In order to place this department at once in rank with any first-class millinery establishment, we have secured the best talent to be had to give our Hats that beauty and elegance which is consistent with refined taste, at popular prices to suit all trade.

The success of such a department has never been tried in this city, a department where STYLISH TRIMMED HATS are sold at but small advance on the cost of hat and trimmings, and we trust that the ladies of Boston and vicinity will avail themselves of the opportunity to leave their orders early, so that they can receive proper attention.

OPENING

—OF OUR—

Cotton Underwear Dep't

In order to place this department properly before the public, we shall offer at less than cost our inaugurating sale, as follows:—

Lot 1. Chemises, Drawers, Corset Covers, for Ladies and Children, at 25c. each.

Lot 2. Chemises, Drawers, Skirts, Night Dresses, Hamburg trimmed, at 50c. each.

Lot 3. The same, at 75c.

Lot 4. The same at $1.00.

We refrain from giving a description of each and every article, and prefer giving good cloth and good trimmings to advertising the different clusters of tucks, etc., and showing a poor article.

We hope ladies will avail themselves of this sale, as we shall not feel able to continue it for any length of time.

OPENING

—OF OUR—

STRAW GOODS

DEPARTMENT.

This department has been placed at the rear part of our store, and has been made the most attractive place in Boston.

The department faces a sheet of mirror, 50 feet in length and 9 feet in height, so as to give every opportunity to the purchaser to see at a glance whether a hat is becoming or otherwise.

The following New Shapes will be offered at our opening: The Critic, Fedora, Iolanthe, Mignon, Poppy, Patti, Thursby, Nautilus, Casino, Sprite, Marquise, Servia, and many others.

HORSE CARS pass our door from all railroad stations, a great convenience to our out-of-town patrons.

A Valuable Gift.

During the past week the following letter has been received by the Trustees of the Thomas Crane Library from Dr. Everett, of the Adams Academy. The valuable work of reference referred to in it has since been placed on the shelves of the Library. The spirit which led to Dr. Everett's making the town this gift was in thorough keeping with that which originated and carried out the course of public entertainments of which his instructive lecture was a part, and it will be appreciated accordingly:—

Quincy, April 4, 1883.

MY DEAR SIR:—I have directed to be sent to the Thomas Crane Library a copy of the New Imperial Dictionary of the English Language, in four volumes, to be fully accessible as a work of reference. I desire its acceptance from me, as a direct repayment to my fellow citizens of the fee received by me for a very familiar discourse on "Work and Wages," for which I was more than repaid by their kind attention and applause.

I will ask you to communicate this to the trustees.

Remaining, as ever, yours,
WILLIAM EVERETT.

MR. C. F. ADAMS, JR.,
Chairman of Trustees.

Impressions of Boston.

Gen. Diaz and other distinguished Mexicans have been visiting Boston this week. The Boston Journal says:

Gen. Diaz is a remarkably close observer of men and things. He came to the United States with his eyes and ears open and he uses them diligently and to the best advantage. His great aim is to compare critically the institutions and industries of Mexico with those of the United States and thus to be able on his return to make use of the many superior features which he frankly acknowledges that he sees here. Gen. Diaz says he cannot find words in which to express the gratification that his visit to Boston is affording him. He had been told of the hospitality of our city, but on reaching here he says that he and his party are overwhelmed with kindness wherever they go. He calls Boston a beautiful city, and praises the architecture of her public and private buildings. Among the many things that particularly interest him in Boston and vicinity are the schools and manufacturing establishments. He has talked much with the members of his suite about the Boston High School and his praise of it is unstinted. The new ideas he has obtained upon the subject of education he hopes to be able to put in practice to some extent at least on his return home. The capacity and excellence of the manufacturing enterprises greatly impress Gen. Diaz and are superior to what he had expected to find. He cannot realize how New England can be otherwise than rich with so many and varied industries and so largely a working population.

For the Patriot.

Mr. Editor:—In your last is the following:

"What nonsense for a town to instruct the trustees of the Public Library to open it on the Sabbath 'when requested by 100 respectable persons.' How are the trustees to determine whether a man is 'respectable' or not? There is no standard of which we are aware which would settle the matter definitely. If the influence and the books in our public libraries is elevating, the non-respectable people need it. If it is not, the 'respectable' would be harmed. The voters meant well enough in adopting such an order, but they were guilty of a piece of snobbishness of which they should be ashamed."

Thanks to the Boston Herald for all the wisdom of the above, and how kind to tell the world that "the voters meant well enough," only you see they didn't know. The truth is no such vote was passed. This is the way it was, as see report in the PARTIOT of March 31st. Theophilus King Jr., offered an amendment to the motion made by Mr. Pattee to have the Reading Room of the library opened Sunday afternoons, by adding the words, "when 100 of the citizens of the town petition the trustees for that purpose," which was accepted by the mover and the vote was so passed.

WARM WEATHER. We have had some delightful days this week, but our readers must be cautious. No days in the year are so deceitful as the first warm days of spring. The ground is never so dangerous as when the frost is coming out. Scientifically and practically, it is ruinous to the health to presume upon the good nature of the first sunny days in April. The spring would not be more fatal than other months were it not abused as no other time is. Until the frost is entirely out of the ground, until the snows have melted from the hills of Maine and New Hampshire, and the north winds cease to blow, let no one presume to lessen his wearing apparel, drop his rubbers or sit out of doors. Every year brings sudden deaths in abundance that are inexcusable. Let the warning be general and the caution great this season, which promises to be more than usually mischievous because of the universal weariness with cold weather.

☞ The Boston Pilot gives the cost of some of the leading Catholic charities of Boston, as follows: Carney Hospital, cost $150,000, annual expense $25,000; Institution of Little Sisters of the Poor, $125,000, annual expense, $41,600; St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, $120,000, annual expense, $12,000; Home for Destitute Catholic Children, $140,000; annual expense, $13,000; House of the Good Shepherd, $130,000, annual expense, $20,000; St. Mary's Infant Asylum, $60,000, annual expense, $10,000; Home of the Angel Guardian, $100,000, annual expense, $9000; St. Joseph's Home, $30,000, annual expense, $6000; St. Elizabeth's Hospital, $30,000, annual expense, $7000.

LADY BEAUTIFIERS.—Ladies, you cannot make fair skin, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes with all the cosmetics of France or beautifiers of the world, while in poor health, and nothing will give you such rich blood, good health, strength and beauty as Hop Bitters. A trial is certain proof.

Probate Court.

The regular monthly session of Probate Court in Quincy was held on Wednesday last, and the following business was attended to by Judge White.

Wills presented, Of Marion A. Folsom of Medway; of Betsey Bragdon of Weymouth; of James West of Weymouth; of Andrew Allen of Milton; of Richard Wilkinson of Randolph.

Appointments. Joshua Vinal, administrator of estate of Isaac Collier of Weymouth; bonds $2000. Patrick Flood and John W. Bryan executors of the will of Richard Wilkinson of Randolph; bond $500. Joseph Dyer guardian of Waldo French, an insane person, of Braintree; bond $8000. John Jackson, guardian of Alice Jackson of Weymouth. Samuel Curtis, executor of the will of Betsey Bragdon of Weymouth. John Roddan, guardian of Catharine Riley of Randolph; bond $1000. William Dyer, administrator of estate of Nancy Dyer of Weymouth; bond $8000. Martha R. Blanchard, guardian of Sally Blanchard, of Quincy, an insane person. James W. Rand, administrator of estate of Theodore J. Rand of Weymouth. Edwin P. Worster, executor of the will of James West of Weymouth; bond $10,000. Elizabeth Williams, administratrix of the estate of Jonathan Williams of Quincy. George W. Nickerson, executor of the will of Andrew Allen of Milton; bond $2500. Martha P. Nash, guardian of Lewis B. Richardson of Quincy. John S. Folsom, executor of the will of Marion A. Folsom, of Medway.

Accounts presented, Of Elias Richards, administrator of estate of Richard A. Pidgeon of Braintree. Of Jeremiah Nightingale, guardian of Robert Nightingale of Quincy. Of William R. Penniman, administrator of estate of Dorcus Penniman of Braintree. Of Wm. Frizzell, administrator of estate of Margaret Cain of Randolph.

Inventories presented, Estate of Alonzo G. Davis of Quincy; Elias A. Perkins, Christopher A. Spear and Francis A. Spear, appraisers.

Petitions, William S. Williams of Quincy, to be administrator of estate of Griffith H. Owens. Luther W. Anderson and Timothy Reed, trustees, to sell real estate belonging to the estate of the late Francis Williams. Ebenezer Adams, executor of the will of Sarah Vinal of Quincy, that the Court determine who are the devisees and legatees, under said will, and to order a distribution of the residue of said estate to them.

West Quincy Items.

The following officers of St. Francis Court, No. 25, of West Quincy, were installed by D. D. H. C. R. Chamberlain, on Tuesday evening last:—C. R., Michael Dunphy; V. C. R., Peter Reinhalter; R. S., John F. Cole; F. S. D. C. Little, T., Bernard Hart; S. C., T. J. Foley; J. C., Jeremiah Lyons; I. S., John Hussey; O. S., Edward McDevitt; C. P., J. M. Sheahan, M. D.

Pneumonia is quite prevalent in West Quincy at the present time.

Mr. P. F. Lacy is busily engaged preparing a large derrick for Mr. Michael Owens, which is to be erected at what is known as the Newcomb quarry.

While attempting to hoist a large stone at the quarry of Messrs. McDonnell & Sons, on Tuesday last, several of the guys broke, thereby causing the derrick to fall, splintering it badly.

For some reason the alarm did not strike on the gong at Doble's, on Wednesday morning last.

Messrs. Fuller, Foley & Co., have completed, the present week, a handsome monument of Oak Hill Granite, which is to be erected at Mount Auburn cemetery. It is a handsome piece of work and reflects much credit on the firm.

Our Lecture Course.

As one interested in the cause of education, I cannot let this opportunity pass without a few words of commendation on the fine course of lectures just completed by Dr. A. E. Miller. In a course of twelve lectures, eight popular and four private, a knowledge of Physiology and Hygiene was given by the aid of four French manikins, five human skeletons, etc., which is invaluable to all who listened to him. The lectures as well as being extremely interesting were highly instructive, and within the understanding of all above the ages of ten or twelve years.

It is to be regretted that more did not avail themselves of this rare opportunity of education in a direction so often neglected by our people.

TEACHER.

NOMINATIONS. The Governor nominated on Tuesday Mr. Joseph H. Chadwick for Railroad Commissioner, to fill Mr. Kinsley's place. He is a merchant and will represent the mercantile element on the board.

Gov. Butler has also nominated Hon. John K. Tarbox of Lawrence, for Insurance Commissioner. He is a leading lawyer, an ex-Congressman and a prominent Democratic politician.

NEW STEAMER. A great attraction at Newport, R. I., is the great steamer Pilgrim of the Fall River line. She is receiving her furniture, carpets, &c. She is a wonderful specimen of marine architecture, and will doubtless surpass in size, beauty, strength and speed any steamer yet constructed for Long Island Sound navigation.

A LONG GAME. A game of whist was concluded in Lawrence lately which was begun in October last. The contest was for 1000 points a side, and was closely fought, the winners scoring 1000 points and their opponents 952.

RAPID GROWTH. Brockton is listed among the towns and cities showing the most striking instances of growth according to the 10th census, the increase in population being from 8007 in 1870 to 13,608 in 1880, or a little over 69 per cent. The largest percentage of increase, 119, was in the town of Montague, which grew from 2224 to 4875. Holyoke increased 104 per cent and Fall River 82 per cent.

Marriages.

In Providence, R. I., April 5th, by Rev. Mr. Richards, Mr. George H. Wilson of Quincy, to Miss Lucy M. Smith of Boston.

Deaths.

In Quincy, April 6th, Mrs. Mary E., wife of Mr. Cornelius Sullivan, aged 20 years and 6 months.

April 7th, Mr. John J. White, aged 32 years, 4 months and 9 days.

April 8th, Mrs. Georgie S., wife of Mr. Wilber F. Lakin, aged 34 years, 5 months and 26 days.

April 9th, Mrs. Mary Lizzie, wife of Mr. Wellington Smith, aged 46 years and 9 months.

April 12th, Mr. James A. D. Worcester, aged 69 years, 1 month and 9 days.

In Boston, April 8th, Mrs. Sally Barrett, aged 81 years.

In Braintree, April 10th, Louisa, daughter of Mr. Thomas C., and Mrs. Alice J. Garrity, formerly of Quincy, aged 1 year and 4 month.

WHEAT BITTERS
THE BEST AND The Richest BLOOD, BRAIN and NERVE -F-O-O-D-

CAREFULLY PREPARED, THOROUGHLY TESTED, ACCEPTABLE AND RELIABLE.

The Phosphates of the Wheat are its most valuable food property, and are, when properly prepared, the most acceptable nutriment with which to build up the system.

The Blood, Brain and Nerves are the forces which bear the strain of every day work and life, and in order to save sickness it is wise to BUILD FOR HEALTH.

Wheat Bitters are prepared, not by fermentation but by solution and are richest in the Phosphates, while the starch and impure matter are eliminated. These make in themselves a basis, to which is added the best and choicest medicinal qualities, necessary to make it a tonic and bitter. It is at once healthful, pleasant to the taste and must not be confounded with the thousand and one cheap alcoholic bitters which are sold as cure-alls. Medicine is doubly effective when used with food, so as to nourish while it corrects.

Sold by druggists, $1.00 per bottle.
WHEAT BITTERS CO., M'f'rs. N. Y.

Remember This.

If you are sick Hop Bitters will surely aid Nature in making you well when all else fails.

If you are costive or dyspeptic, or are suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill, for Hop Bitters are a sovereign remedy in all such complaints

If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting Death this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in the use of Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter, or resident of a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries—malarial, epidemic, bilious, and intermittent fevers—by the use of Hop Bitters.

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, pains and aches, and feel miserable generally, Hop Bitters will give you fair skin, rich blood, and sweetest breath, health and comfort.

In short they cure all Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Liver, Nerves, Kidneys, Bright's Disease. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

That poor, bedridden, invalid wife, sister, mother or daughter, can be made the picture of health, by a few bottles of Hop Bitters, costing but a trifle. Will you let them suffer?

HEART DISEASE

Now IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart. The renowned Dr. Clendinning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease." The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a-half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention. Dr. Graves a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator and can be obtained at your druggists, $1. per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. (1)

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, APR. 14, 1883.

Somebody.

Somebody thinks the world all wrong,
And never has a word in its praise;
Somebody sings the whole day long,
Likes the world and all its ways.

Somebody calls it cruel and cold,
Full of sin, and sorrow, and pain,
Where life is but a search for gold,
And souls are lost in selfish gain.

Somebody merrily laughs, and cries,
"Hurrah for such a dear old earth!
Success shall crown the man who tries
To make his mark by honest worth."

Somebody groans and shakes his head,
Calls his lot a wretched one;
Somebody wishes that he were dead,
'Cause somebody else has all the fun.

But still, I fancy, you're sure to find,
Thro' good or evil, or pain or care,
One certain fact—so make up your mind—
That—somebody always gets his share.

Farm and Garden.

Grafting Trees.

This is a subject which at least once a year forces itself upon the attention of nearly every person who is the owner of a dozen bearing fruit trees. Unfortunately few succeed in getting such varieties of fruit as they desire; in their eagerness to get rare varieties, they often set those that are so new that they have not been proved to be good; or it may be that some favorite variety that is known to be good is set, but proves to have changed, losing its former good qualities. Poor varieties are sometimes set by not getting what they are purchased for. In fact for some cause quite a large per cent. of old trees are different varieties from what is desired; so the question repeatedly comes up as to the desirability of changing them.

To re-graft a full-grown apple or pear tree is not only a work of some magnitude, but it is a very critical work and unless performed by a skilful workman, often proves anything but satisfactory. If an apple tree, it is some years before it assumes a symmetrical form; if it ever does, the constant tendency is to throw out shoots from the old wood, making it a constant source of annoyance to those who admire good looking trees. Trees that are sound, healthy and thrifty may sometimes be re-grafted to advantage, if the work is not done too rapidly; not less than three years should be consumed in changing a full-grown tree; to do it in less time is to endanger its life. The work should always be done during the first warm days in April. The scions should always be set near a fork in the branches; when so set they are much more likely to live than if near the end of a branch; never set scions in limbs more than two inches in diameter; one inch is better.—Ploughman.

A Large Farmer.

Hiram Sibley, of Rochester, N. Y., is said to be the largest farmer in the world. He owns more than a hundred improved farms. One in Illinois, formerly known as the "Sullivant Farm," contains 40,000 acres; another in Cayuga Co., N. Y., 3,500 acres. "Farmer Sibley," is not, however, a typical son of the soil, having long been identified with great commercial enterprises, and working harder with his head than with his hands. He organized and was for over fifteen years president of the Western Union Telegraph Co., and has also had extensive railroad interests. He is now the head of one of the largest seed houses in the world. The name of Hiram Sibley & Co., is already a household word in thousands of homes to which their farm, garden and flower seeds are sent each year. They not only furnish seeds, but also valuable information as to best methods of growing them. They publish the Farmer's Almanac, the northern edition of which contains valuable articles on the culture of special crops by the best American writers; the Farm Seeds Manual, which gives a rare fund of information upon the growing of all farm crops; also Flax Culture for Seed and Fiber, which thoroughly discusses the Flax production of the United States and how to increase it. For these books the nominal price of ten cents each is charged, but they send their Spring, Fall and Implement Catalogues, free to all applicants. They are undoubtedly a good house to deal with.

Anecdotes.

"Pat," said a builder to an Irishman engaged in carrying slate to the top of a four story building, "have you any houses in Ireland as tall as this one?"

"Ya'as, me mother's cabin."

"How many rooms had it?"

"There was the ateing-room, slaping room, the kitchen-room, and the pig pen—four rooms."

"That's a story," said the builder.

"Ya'as, four stories," said Pat.

"Jake, whar you git such fine 'broidered shirts as dat you had on at de meetin' las' night?" asked Pete, as Jake stood at the village post-office door, trying to stick a bent brass pin in the back of his paper collar, and fasten that article in position.

"You doesn't 'pear to 'preshiate my circumstances, Pete."

"I knows dat you ain't yearned nuff money to buy de buttons on dat shirt sence I know'd ye—I 'preshiates dat," rejoined Pete.

"You's off de track, Pete, and dar you'll stay till your mudder gits ter be a washer-woman. You hear dat?"

"Which is the largest gland?" asked a Chicago medical professor of the newest arrival in his class, the other day.

The student buried himself in deep and attentive thought for a moment, and then, brightening up suddenly, exclaimed.

"The largest gland, sir, is En-gland."

Then the professor kindly led the youth aside, and pathetically advised him to think no more of medicine, but to join a minstrel show or enter the army.

☞ Millions of packages of the Diamond Dyes have been sold without a single complaint. Everywhere they are the favorite Dyes.

Farmers should be careful about investing their money in experimenting with new fertilizers. A certainty is better than an uncertainty, and the best is always the cheapest in the end.

John Caswell, of Douglas, Mass., says:—

"I have used Bradley's Phosphate for twenty years past and always have had good success with it. Have tried it on nearly all my crops and it always has paid me well. I have also tested it by the side of the other fertilizers sold here, and Bradley's has come out ahead every time."

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

Alcohol.

Alcohol is a limpid, colorless liquid, more fluid than water, of a feeble but agreeable odor, of a harsh and burning flavor, which is rapidly lessened by diluting it with water. This flavor arises from the fact that it abstracts water from the soft and living parts with which it comes in contact, and which it causes to coagulate when they are albuminous. Its action on the tender coats of the stomach, &c., may render them torpid, and death may even be caused. Death will also follow its injection into the veins by causing the blood to coagulate. These poisonous actions cease when it is diluted, and when taken in small quantities it excites the animal forces; in larger quantities it enfeebles and produces drunkenness.

Even when much diluted, it is a powerful stimulant, and to persons unaccustomed to its use, may be an efficient and useful medicine. When it exists in natural combination with gluten, mucilage, and other vegetable principles in fermented liquors, it may, taken in moderation, be wholesome, but it is impossible to cloak its injurious qualities by artificial mixture.—Renwick's Chemistry.

Household Receipts.

ORANGE PUDDING. Peel and slice three or four oranges and lay in a pudding dish with one-third cup of sugar; make a custard of one pint of milk, the yolks of three eggs and one spoonful of corn starch and one-third cup of sugar; when cold pour over the oranges; beat the whites of three eggs and one-third cup of pulverized sugar to a stiff froth and pour over; put in the oven a few minutes to brown. To be eaten cold.

Another style. Stew six large apples and pass through a sieve; rub together a quarter of a pound of butter and half a pound of sugar; stir in the apple while hot. After taking the skin and white pith from two large oranges, chop very fine and add to the other ingredients; beat the yolks of six eggs very light and add; reserve the whites for the meringue. Bake in a rich paste. Flour the meringue frosting with orange juice and a little finely grated rind.

PUDDING. For a delicate and very nice dessert make a pudding thus: Dissolve half an ounce of gelatine in half a pint of cold milk; let it come to a boil gradually. When hot, but not boiling, add the yolks of three well-beaten eggs. Stir constantly; sweeten to your taste, or, if you wish a definite direction, put in a quarter of a pound of sugar. This is the right amount for most people. When this is cold, stir in it a pint of whipped cream; flavor with lemon or vanilla; and, the last thing, stir in the whites of the three eggs; have them beaten quite stiff. Serve this cool, with cake or with fruit.

LEMON JELLY. Lemon jelly, to spread on top of sago or custard pudding is made by grating the rind of two lemons and squeezing out the juice; add a heaping cup of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter. Stir these together, and then add three eggs beaten very light; set the basin or little pail in which you have this in another of boiling water; stir constantly until it thickens. When it is cold it is ready for use.

Fashion Notes.

The chamois underskirt remains the favorite of English women for full dress.

Orange, flame, daffodil, wallflower and all yellow shades are in high favor.

The shapes of new bonnets are not materially different from those of last season.

Gloves of silk and lisle thread come in all lengths and colors to match the new goods.

Among the pretty new spring bonnets are some which are almost like mob caps in shape, having the brim covered by flat ruffles of cream lace and the crown of dark velvet or lustreless silk. They are of reasonable size, not suggesting that the wearer has picked up her baby sister's headgear by mistake, as did some of the theatre bonnets of last season.

The new French frocks have small horsehair pillows, actual pillows stuffed and tufted, stitched in below the waist, and a spring in the lower part of the back breadths, but they are not made to wear over hoop skirts, and those who buy them will not present the extraordinary appearance offered by those women who have been deluded into purchasing those articles, and wearing them under strait skirts. A French dressmaker does not feel obliged to teach her customers how to sit down while wearing her work. Another new thing about these dresses is the moulding of the whalebones at the back of the waist; having been heated and shaped over a form, they adjust themselves to the figure at once and the dress literally fits like a glove.

Woman's Column.

Miss Helen B. Loud, of Rockland, Mass., attended the recent town meeting and made two speeches in behalf of raising the salaries of the teachers in the public schools. She asked for five hundred dollars additional, and the meeting by an unanimous vote gave one thousand dollars.

Mrs. Bowers is three feet high. She lives in California, with her husband and four daughters, all of whom are of ordinary size. At the table she sets in a high chair. But she is a rigid disciplinarian, and the children submit to being whipped by her.

A young woman of Boston has written a four-act play, to be performed by seven girls. In the first act the girls talk separately. In the second and succeeding acts they all talk at once. It is difficult to understand how the play can possess sufficient merit to compensate for the glaring improbability which runs through the first quarter.

Women are to be employed as clerks in the French post-offices, beginning their operations in the Money-order Department. They know how to give orders about money.

John Bright's sister, Mrs. Margaret B. Lucas, said at a temperance meeting that women are the greatest sufferers by drink, and the hardest to convince as to the necessity of total abstinence.

ONE EXPERIENCE FROM MANY.

I have been sick and miserable so long and had caused my husband so much trouble and expense, no one seemed to know what ailed me, that I was completely disheartened and discouraged. In this frame of mind I got a bottle of Hop Bitters and used them unknown to my family. I soon began to improve and gained so fast that my husband and family thought it strange and unnatural, but when I told them what had helped me, they said, "Hurrah for Hop Bitters! long may they prosper, for they have made my mother well and us happy." —The Mother.

Bradley's Phosphate is cheaper for farmers to buy than stable manure, as it costs much less in proportion to the amount of plant-food it contains, being a highly concentrated fertilizer; is much easier to handle, produces crops of far better quality and is a complete fertilizer for all crops.

Nath'l Sherman, of East Wareham, Mass., writes as follows:—

Having used Bradley's Phosphate for the past twenty years, I recommend it as a good and reliable fertilizer for all farms crops. It has paid me whenever I have used it and is cheaper than stable manure."

FITS A Leading London Physician establishes an office in New York for the cure of EPILEPTIC FITS.

From Am. Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any other living physician. His success has simply been astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing successfully cured by him. He has published a work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their express and P. O. Address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address

Dr. AB. MESEROLE, No. 96 John St., New York.

Office of the Board of Health.

QUINCY, JULY 29, 1882.

THE Board of Health issues the following notice:—That on and after MONDAY, July 31st, 1882, the following provisions of Chapter 80 of the Public Statutes will be strictly enforced:—

SEC. 78. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town in which he dwells. If he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $100.

SEC. 79. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with Small Pox or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit for each offence not less than $50, nor more than $100.

The Board considers the above sections to apply to scarlet fever, small pox, diphtheria, measles and whooping cough.

THOMAS'
OIL TROUGH TREE PROTECTORS.
(Patented August 9, 1881.)
This Improved Protector effectually protects the trees against the Canker Worms.

PLEASE Examine our new Protector. Below are some of the reasons why every one owning trees should use this Protector.

1. It is a first-class tree Protector, with a perpendicular front to the oil-pan, which prevents the oil from blowing out.
2. It has a pan large enough to contain oil for the season.
3. It is manufactured from heavy zinc, and will last for years.
4. Being corrugated prevents sagging when on the trees.
5. The protectors are smaller in the centre, which prevents the packing from falling through.
6. We use tow for packing, so there is no danger of girdling or injuring the tree.
7. By using our protectors, you will get more and finer fruit.
8. It is so constructed as to be a perfect barrier against canker worms; it will prevent codling moths, tussock moths, bark lice, curculio, caterpillars, etc., from ascending the trees.
9. This Protector is so cheap that every one owning trees can apply it. It is simply insuring your trees against insects for a few cents a year.

My experience of several years in selling protectors has taught me what is required by the public is a cheap Oil Trough Protector, easily taken care of and something that cannot injure the trees, and will stop the grub from ascending. I am convinced that nothing can be fastened solid to a tree without doing more or less injury. We have applied our Protectors to hundreds of trees, where other protections have failed. Parties ordering, will please give their orders early to insure their being filled on time. Now is the time to put them on and prevent the codling moths, curculio bark lice and tussock moth from ascending the trees.

The Price of our Protectors is
10 cts per Inch in diameter, which includes applying to the tree and filling with oil.
Neatest, cheapest and most durable Protector in the market.

SOMETHING.

There's something I've heard in the running brook,
Something I've seen in flowers,
Something in the far away stars of night,
Something in bursting showers.

Something in the falling snow-flakes,
Something in the thunder's roar,
Something in the silent forest shade
And the murmuring wave along the shore.

Something in the rocks and mountains,
Something in field and plain,
Something in the sparkling sunshine,
And the patter of the rain.

Something in the silent moonlight
And the thrilling notes of the birds,
Something in the strains of sweet music
For which I cannot find words.

What is this mystical something?
Is it God? is it hope? is it love?
I know it is something God has given;
It is part of heaven and love. H. D.

His Pa Plays Jokes.

"Say do you think a little practical joke does any hurt," said the bad boy of his grocery man, as he came in with his Sunday suit on and a bouquet in his button hole and pried off a couple of figs from a new box that had been just opened.

"No, sir," said the grocery man as he licked off the syrup that dropped from a quart measure, from which he had been filling a jug. "I hold that a man that gets mad at a practical joke, that is, one that does not injure him, is a fool, and he ought to be shunned by all decent people. That's a nice bouquet you have in your coat. What is it, pansies? Let me smell of it." And the grocery man bent over in front of the boy to take a whiff off the bouquet. As he did so a stream of water shot out of the innocent looking bouquet and struck him full in the face and run down over his shirt, and the grocery man yelled murder and fell over a barrel of axe helves and scythe snaths, and then groped around for a towel to wipe his face.

"You condum skunk," said the groceryman to the boy, as he took up an axe helve and started for him, "what kind of a gol-blasted squirt gun you got there? I will maul you, by thunder!" And he rolled up his shirt sleeves.

"There, keep your temper. I took a test vote of you on the subject of practical jokes before the machine began to play upon the conflagration that was raging on your whiskey nose, and you said that a man that would get mad at a joke was a fool, and I show it. Here, let me show it to you. There is a rubber hose runs from the bouquet inside my coat to my pants pocket, and there is a bulb of rubber that holds about half a pint, and when a feller smells of the posy I squeeze the bulb and you see the result. It's fun where you don't squirt it on a person that gets mad."

The grocery man said he would give the boy half a pound of figs if he would lend the bouquet to him for half an hour to play it on a customer, and the boy fixed it on the grocery man and turned the nozzle so it would squirt right back into the grocery man's face. He tried it on the first customer that came in and got it right in his own face, and then the bulb in his pants pocket got to leaking and the rest of the water run down the groceryman's trousers leg, and he gave it up in disgust and handed it back to the boy. "How was it that your papa had to be carried home from the sociable in a hack, the other night?" asked the groceryman, as he stood close to the stove so his pants leg would dry. "He has not got to drinking again, has he?"

"Oh, no," said the boy, as he filled the bulb with vinegar to practice on his chum; "it was this bouquet that got pa into the trouble. You see I got pa to smell of it, and I just filled him chock full of water. He got mad and called me all kinds of names, and said I was no good on earth and I would fetch up in state's prison; and then he wanted to borrow it to wear to the sociable. He said he would have more fun than you could shake a stick at, and I asked him if he didn't think he would fetch up in state's prison, and he said it was different with a man. He said when a man played a joke there was a certain dignity about it that was lacking in a boy. So I lent it to him and we all went to the sociable in the basement of the church. I never saw pa more kittenny than he was that night. He filled the bulb with ice-water, and the first one he got to smell of his button-hole bouquet was an old maid who thinks pa is a heathen, but she likes to be made something of by anybody that wears pants, and when pa sidled up to her and began talking about what a great work the Christian women of the land were doing in educating the heathen, she felt real good, and then she noticed pa's posy in his button-hole, and she touched it, and then reached over her beak to smell of it. Pa he squeezed the bulk, and about a half a tea cup full of water struck her right in the nose, and some of it went into her strangle place, and, oh, my, didn't she yell. The sisters gathered around her, and they said her face was all perspiration, and the paint was coming off, and they took her in the kitchen, and she told them pa had slapped her with a dish of ice cream, and the women told the minister and the deacons, and they went to pa for an explanation, and pa told them it was not so, and the minister got interested and got near pa, and pa let the water go at him, and hit him on the eye, and then a deacon got a dose and pa laughed, and then the minister, who used to go to college and be a hazer, and box, got mad and squared off and hit pa three times by the eye, and one of the deacons he kicked pa, and pa got mad and said he would clean out the whole she-bang, and began to pull off his coat, when they bundled him out doors, and ma got mad to see pa abused, and she left the sociable, and I had to stay and eat ice cream and things for the family. Pa says that settles it with him. He says they haven't got any more Christian charity in that church than they have got in a tannery. His eyes was just getting over being black from the sparring lessons, and now he has got to go through the oysters and beef-steak cure again. He says it is all owing to me."

"Well, what has all this got to do with your putting up signs in front of my store, 'Rotten Eggs,' and 'Frowy Butter a Specialty'?" said the grocery man as he took the boy by the ear and pulled him around. "You have got an idea you are smart, and I want you to keep away from here. The next time I catch you in here I shall call the police and have you pulled. Now git!"

The boy pushed his ear back on the side of his head where it belonged, took out a cigarette and lighted it, and after puffing smoke in the face of the grocery cat that was sleeping on the cover to the sugar barrel, he said, "If I was a provision pirate, that never sold anything but what was spoiled so it couldn't be sold in a first-class store, who bought old, wormy figs and decayed codfish, who got his butter from a fat rendering establishment, his cider from a vinegar factory, and his sugar from a glucose factory, I would not insult the son of one of the first families. Why, sir, I could go out on the corner, and when I saw customers coming here I could tell a story that would turn their stomachs, and send them to the grocery on the next corner. Suppose I should tell them that the cat sleeps in the dried apple barrel, that the mice made nests in the prune box, and rats runs riot through the raisins, and that you never wash your hands except on Decoration Day and Christmas, that you wipe your nose on your shirt-sleeves, and that you have the itch, do you think your business would be improved? Suppose I should tell the customers that you buy sour kraut of a wooden-shoe Polacker, who makes it of pieces of cabbage that he gets by gathering swill, and you sell that stuff to respectable people, could you pay your rent? If I should tell them that you put lozenges in the collection plate at church, and charge the minister forty cents a pound for oleomargarine, you would have to close up. Old man, I am onto you, and now you apologize for pulling my ear."

The grocery man turned pale during the recital, and finally said the bad boy was one of the best little fellows in this town, and the boy went out and hung up a sign in front, 'Girl wanted to cook.'"

Mr. W. W. Greenough.

We copy the following complimentary notice of our townsman, who resides on Adams street, from the Boston Journal of Monday last:—

"After a service of nearly thirty years, Mr. W. W. Greenough, on the termination of his term of office as a Trustee of Boston Public Library, feels compelled to retire from that position and to decline reappointment. What the institution loses by his retirement no one can fully appreciate who has not some intimate knowledge of the work involved in the management and of the large share of this work which has been done by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees who now retires. Mr. Greenough's connection with the Library dates back of the opening of the present building to the time when the books were contained in the Mason Street School House, and the enterprise was of so modest a character that its most sanguine friend could not have anticipated that it would ever reach its present dimensions. Mr. Everett was the first Chairman of the Board of Trustees and Mr. Ticknor the second; to the latter, in 1866, Mr. Greenough succeeded, and has filled that position ever since."

"It is entirely within bounds to say that no one has ever been connected with the Library—not excepting either of Mr. Greenough's honored predecessors—who has done so much as he to establish it upon secure foundations, and to regulate its large and rapidly expanding operations by strict business principles. The combination of literary knowledge and taste with fine executive ability, which exists in his character, is rare; and rarer still is the unselfish and continuous devotion of such qualities to such a service as that in which Mr. Greenough has employed them—a service which results in permanent public good, but which is rendered so quietly and unobtrusively that very few people are capable of estimating its value, even if they know whence it proceeds. If the Public Library had been a private business enterprise of his own Mr. Greenough could scarcely have devoted himself more entirely to its interests. His accomplishments as a linguist, his wide acquaintance with books, and his accurate and cultivated taste have been of the utmost value in the work of selection, while the influence of his executive ability has been felt steadily from the beginning in shaping the affairs of the institution."

It would almost imply ingratitude to seek to detain Mr. Greenough against his will in a position in which he has rendered such long and faithful service, but we cannot witness his retirement without expressing our sense of what the Library and the public whom the Library serves lose by it. Some recognition should be made of labor so unselfish and valuable as his has been. His connection with the Library covers, as we have said, the whole period during which the Library has occupied the present building, and it terminates just as the construction of a new and more commodious and convenient edifice is assured. It would be a graceful and appropriate thing to christen one of the halls in the new building Greenough Hall, in commemoration of what Mr. Greenough has done for the institution."

Henry Crane.

MILTON, March 29, 1883.

To the Editors of the Patriot:

Mr. Adams, in his address at the dedication of the Crane Memorial Library, in tracing the early history of the Crane family, says that Henry Crane came from England and settled in Dorchester, and that his son Ebenezer, after he returned from the war of 1690, settled in the North precinct of Braintree, now Quincy, but that his death is recorded in Milton.

In tracing the history of many of the early settlers, it is not only necessary, but best, as in all other matters, to follow the scriptural injunction: "Gather up the fragments that nothing be lost."

Henry Crane settled in Dorchester, but it was in that part which is now Milton, and very near the now Quincy line, as by the fourth report of the Record Commissioners of Boston, page 70, it is stated that a committee was appointed, consisting of Nathaniel Clape, and William Clarke, of Dorchester, and Moses Paine and Gregory Beilcher, of Braintree, to lay out a road from Braintree line through Dorchester to Roxbury line, who reported that they commenced at the Braintree line, near the house of Henry Crane, and laid out what is now called Adams street, four reds wide, through Dorchester woods. This was done in 1654, by which it appears that at that time Henry Crane lived in that part of Dorchester which was set off as Milton in 1662, and in looking over the Old Suffolk's Record for another purpose, I came across a deed from Elisha Hutchinson, lib. 5, fol. 219, to Henry Crane, in 1667, of 200 acres in Braintree, bounded southerly by Furnace brook; the other bound I could not well make out, but, if the southerly bounds was Furnace brook, to make out that number of acres it must have extended north-westerly into what is now Milton.

In my early day I lived in that part of Quincy, and a large tract of land then owned by Capt. Hall, now by Joseph W. Robertson, Esq., and others, was called Crane's plain, and there is now an old cellar some way in the woods, but over the line in Milton, which tradition says was Crane's cellar, and might have been occupied by Ebenezer Crane, who probably improved that 200 acres bought by his father in 1667, which would account for his death being recorded in Milton. His father was always a Milton man, as in 1664 he was one of the trustees to take a deed of eight acres of land given by Robert Vose to the church in Milton. In the address of the Hon. James W. Robbins, delivered on the 200th anniversary of the incorporation of the town, Mr. Crane's death is mentioned at the age of eighty-five, but the date of his death is not mentioned.

If you think these fragments are worth preserving to assist some future historian in looking up the Crane family, you can preserve them in your paper; if not, put them in the waste basket. B.

Faithful Service.

The following honorable record of three veteran expressmen, we copy from the Evening Reporter of Woonsocket, R. I. Mr. Edward Taber, one of the three mentioned, is a well-known citizen of Quincy:—

"The Adams express office, Woonsocket, boasts of three veteran expressmen, one the agent, William S. Balcom, and the other messengers, Edward Taber and John J. Taylor. Friend Balcom began business with William Ross in March, 1853, on the Providence and Worcester railroad, over thirty years ago. Ross was an eccentric character, and was best known as "Cockey," which name he received from his natty make-up. His boots were always made to turn up at the toes, were composed of the best materials and cost a big price. His dress was stylish and always neat to the minutest particular. Balcom's next experience was with the Earle express company, and afterwards with the Adams, which he has faithfully served for the past twenty-seven years. Taber has seen thirty-three years of express service, beginning with the driving of an express wagon in 1850, which he continued to do for eleven years. He was then appointed express messenger on the Boston and Albany road, sometimes running from Boston to New York, via Springfield, on the "owl" train, and sometimes by the Shore Line to New York from Boston, via Providence. This position he filled from 1861 to 1878, a period of seventeen years. For the past five years he has run on the Woonsocket division of the New York and New England railroad between Boston and Woonsocket. John J. Taylor, another veteran now employed by the Adams company, has seen over thirty years service. His first experience was driving stage between Pascoag and Blackstone. His next service was as express messenger from Blackstone to Boston, on the old Norfolk County railroad. For the past ten years he has acted in the capacity of messenger on the Woonsocket division of the New York and New England railroad. They are all faithful, true and tried men, who have handled millions of dollars in money and other treasure in their time, and have never been found one cent short in their accounts.

Anthracite Coal Industry.

A local correspondent of the Pittsburgh (Penn.) Commercial writes: Anthracite coal was discovered in Pennsylvania soon after the settlement of the Wyoming valley, but its first practical use was by Obadiah Grose in his blacksmith shop in the year 1768. In 1791 Philip Ginther discovered anthracite on the Lehigh. In 1802, Robert Morris of Philadelphia formed a company and purchased 6,000 acres of the property on which Ginther discovered coal. The coal company was called "The Lehigh Coal Mine." The company made every effort to secure a demand for the coal, but without success and having become thoroughly disgusted with their speculation, leased the 6,000 acres of this mammoth coal field to Messrs. White & Hazard of Philadelphia for twenty years, and an annual rental of one ear of corn. Messrs. White & Hazard tried to use the coal in the blast furnace in 1826, but failed; the furnace chilled. In 1832, Neilson conceived the idea of the hot blast and anthracite together. White & Hazard had, previous to this, formed a company and bought the property. In 1839, David Thomas made the use of anthracite for making pig metal a success, by which the twenty ears of corn were transferred into $20,000,000. And this is the early history of the great Lehigh coal mines of the present day. I remember well the banquet given by Burd Patterson and Nicholas Biddle, at Mount Carbon, in 1840, at which time they paid William Lyman, proprietor of the Pioneer Furnace, $5,000, the premium they had offered for the first successful use of anthracite coal as fuel in the blast furnace. But David Thomas was the lion of the day. It was he who showed them how to do it.

An Incompetent Boy.

Last Fall a Baltimore hardware dealer, who had a bill against a blacksmith in an adjacent village, sent it out by his collector for payment. Upon arriving in the village the collector found the shop, but not the smith, and after a long hunt discovered him on his own doorstep, elbows on his knees and chin on his hands.

"I pays no bills," replied the smith, as the account was handed him.

"Why, what's the matter, Mr. Coon?"

"Vhell, der matter ish dot I haf failed in peesness and I doan pay nobody."

"Failed! Have you actually failed?"

"I haf."

"Well, you'll have to pay me in full just the same. Under the laws of this State no man can fail unless he locks his doors, and as I passed the shop yours were wide open."

"Dunder und blitzen! dot vhas the carelessness of my boy Show. How much is dot pill? I pays him queek und runs down und nails oop der doors myself! Dunder! but dot poy nefer makes a Yankee if he lifs here a tousand years!"—Wall Street News.

Bogus Butter and Cheese.

It is not probable that counterfeit meats will ever be produced, but most other articles of food can be imitated. Imitation butter is too well known to need mention. Imitation lard, made of cocoanut oil, is a recent invention, and a few months ago an Englishman wrote to his country paper a letter furiously arraigning the unprincipled proprietors of an American creamery for flooding his home market with cheese made from lard and oleomargarine. He had captured one of their confidential circulars and quoted the following paragraph to show the enormity of their offence:

"You will be able to judge of what can be done with the bluest kind of skimmed milk when treated with lard or with oleomargarine at the rate of one and a half pounds to the one hundred of milk. You will be able also to compare the quality and flavor of the lard cheese with that made with oleomargarine. Four pounds and upward of butter were taken from one hundred pounds of milk before treating it with lard, and the same as to the specimen treated with oleomargarine."

Milk is rarely imitated out and out, though it is sometimes thickened with calves' brains and occasionally thinned with water; but ice-cream is a favorite subject of the imitator's genius. The basis of a great deal of the cheaper kind is either gelatine or olive butter, which is thickened with cornstarch, sweetened with glucose and flavored with the appropriate ethers.—Philadelphia Times.

A Famous War Horse.

In 1862, John H. Whalen, a Kentucky boy of fourteen years, who had been in the Confederate service for a year, got possession of a nine year old mare, which he christened "Maggie Lucas." He joined Morgan's raiders, and rode Maggie through all his campaign in the South, and his raids through Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, and was beside him when he fell at Greensville, Tenn. At the close of the war, Mr. Whalen surrendered at Mt. Sterling, but in order to save Maggie he left her in the country and walked into town and gave up his arms. This was afterward found out, and he was arrested and Maggie confiscated. Finally he lost sight of her, and mourned her as a dear departed friend.

Two years ago, he found her in Portland, a suburb of Louisville, and gave the negro who owned her twenty dollars and a side-saddle for her. She recognized him as soon as he spoke and followed him like a dog. Having no place to keep her, he sent her to a farm five miles out from Louisville, where he pays eighty dollars a year for her boarding, although it is sometimes a hard rub to raise the money. She is now thirty-four years of age, and, if she lives until next June, she will be taken to the Morgan reunion at Lexington, and when she dies her skeleton will be preserved and her hide stuffed. Her funeral will be a memorable event, as nearly all the survivors of the Morgan band have pledged themselves to attend.

Tight Lacing.

Mr. Richard A. Proctor, the well known lecturer on astronomy, once tried the experiment of wearing a corset, and thus describes the result: "When the subject of corset wearing was under discussion in the pages of The English Mechanic, I was struck," he says, "with the apparent weight of evidence in favor of tight lacing. I was in particular struck by the evidence of some as to its use reducing corpulence. I was corpulent. I was always disposed, as I am still, to take an interest in scientific experiment. I thought I would give this matter a fair trial. I read all the instructions, carefully followed them, and varied the time of applying pressure with 'that perfectly stiff busk' about which correspondents were so enthusiastic. I was foolish enough to try the thing for a matter of four weeks. Then I laughed at myself as a hopeless idiot, and determined to give up the attempt to reduce by artificial means that superabundance of fat on which only starvation and much exercise, or the air of America, has ever had any real reducing influence. But I was reckoning without my host. As the Chinese lady suffers, I am told, when her feet bindings are taken off, and as the flat head baby howls when his head-boards are removed, so for awhile was it with me. I found myself manifestly better in stays. I laughed at myself no longer. I was too angry to laugh. I would as soon condemned myself to using crutches all the time, as to always wearing a busk. But for my one month of folly I had to endure three months of discomfort. At the end of about that time I was my own man again."

Oranges Cheaper than Apples.

Sydney Smith bewailed the wretchedness of existence "four miles from a lemon." There are thousands of families in this country who are many more miles from a lemon than that, and who, nevertheless, manage to pass a comfortable existence. But they may not know that in the seaboard cities lemons and oranges are so abundant as to be cheaper than apples. All the winter long the huckster wagons have borne the legend: "lemons, 25 for a quarter." In some cases 30 and even 40 have been sold for 25 cents. At one time Messina lemons brought only $1 for a box containing 360. Oranges are more variable, but the Mediterranean fruit has been sold all along at 15, 16, 20, 26 or 30 for a quarter. Floridas have sold for 30, 40 and 50 cents and more per dozen, and Havanas at similar rates, and also at "16 for a quarter." While apples were quoted at from $5 to $6 per barrel, Mediterranean oranges were quoted at $1.75 to $2.50 per box, and Floridas from $2.50 to $4.50 per half barrel. Of course, as a rule, the highest priced fruit is the largest and finest, but it is surprising how excellent the oranges are that the street venders sell. Another surprising fact is that whether the lemons are one cent each or five cents, lemonade remains the same price "all the year around," summer and winter.—American Agriculturist for May.

An Old Church in Arizona.

The most interesting of all sights is the grand old mission church of San Xavier, nine miles from Tucson, on the Papago reservation. The mission was founded in 1654, when the Papago (or Pima) Indians were supposed to have accepted the Christian religion. The Church of San Xavier was begun about the year 1700, and finished in 1798, excepting one of the towers, which is yet unfinished. The style of architecture is Moorish. The lines are wonderfully perfect. It is in the form of a cross, 70x115 feet, and has a well-formed dome. A balustrade surmounts all the walls. The front is covered with scroll work, intricate, interesting, and partly decayed. Over the front is a life-size bust of St. Xavier. The interior is literally covered with frescoes. The altar is adorned with gilded scroll work.

The statues are as numerous as the paintings. The tiling on the floor is much defaced, and but little is left. That of the roof is nearly all as perfect as when laid. Its manufacture is one of the lost arts. There is a chime of four good-sized bells in the tower that have a soft, sweet sound. Ascending to the roof, you walk up long, narrow stairs in solid walls. But one can go at a time. The same is true in going to the gallery of the church.

It is marvellous that so long ago, and in such a place, such architecture, ornaments, painting, and sculpture were so well executed. You are admitted by two of the Papago signiors, who have it in charge. The admittance fee is 50 cents for each person.—Denver Tribune.

THE ORIGIN OF EMBOSSED PLUSH. Forty years ago a Frenchman, with the usual practical views of the nationality, conceived a happy idea for easily creating intricate designs upon plush. This happy idea was simply the application of a hot iron to the surface of the goods. The discovery was made in an accidental way, and cost the good looks of a velvet dressing gown which his over-zealous wife had attempted to iron. His experience, however, suggested what was afterwards, and is still, called embossed plush.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, APR. 21, 1883.

Congregational Sunday School.

The fifty-first anniversary of the Congregational Sunday School of Quincy, was observed very appropriately last Sunday evening. There was a large audience present, and the programme was very interesting. After some exercises by the scholars the treasurer, Mr. James S. Baxter, read the following report, which was very creditable to the school:

Whole number enrolled as members of the school at the present time, 285, as follows: Officers and teachers, 32; pupils in main school, 177; pupils in primary department, 50; pupils in Bible class, 26. Whole number enrolled during the past year were upwards of 400. The largest number present on any one Sabbath was April 9th, 1882, 246; smallest, Feb. 25, 1883, 167; average for the year, 187 1-3; number present last Sabbath, 222. Only one has been present at every session during the year, James Dunn, a little boy 9 or 10 years of age.

The treasurer's report showed the current expenses to have been about $165, and the benevolent contributions $190. Two of the scholars had died during the year; one a little boy of about four years; the other a girl of twelve.

After the report there was singing by the scholars, under the direction of Mrs. J. Edward Spear. Then the superintendent, Mr. Charles W. Carter, addressed the school, illustrating his remarks by drawings on the blackboard. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Norton, then spoke a few timely words, which closed the exercises of the evening.

Liquor Cases.

Disposition of Officer Faxon's Quincy cases in the Superior Court, at Dedham, April term:

John Swithin. Two complaints. Maintaining screens and liquor nuisance. Defaulted in both cases.

William Costello. For selling intoxicating liquors. Two complaints. Fined $100 and costs on each case.

Edward J. Costello and others. Seizure of liquors October 6, 1882. Court ordered liquors forfeited.

Edward J. Costello. Sale of intoxicating liquors. Fined $100 without costs.

John Minnihan. Defaulted December term, 1882. Failed to put in an appearance.

John Mahoney. Sale of intoxicating liquors. Jury said he was not guilty.

Joseph King. Charged with dispensing intoxicants. Plead guilty. Sentence deferred.

Frederick H. Tilden. Case came up for sentence. Fined $50 without costs.

Thomas Smith. Sale of intoxicants. Plead guilty. Sentence deferred.

Catherine Riordan. Maintaining a liquor nuisance. Plead guilty. Sentence deferred. The court reminded Catherine what she might expect if again found guilty.

Kate O'Conner. Two complaints for selling intoxicants. Fined $50 and costs (which amounted to more than the fine), on one case; verdict not guilty on the other complaint.

John F. Garvin. Illegal sale of liquors. Defaulted.

Ellen M. Walsh. Sale of liquid disorder. Fined $50 without costs, and sentenced to two months in the House of Correction. Officer Faxon offered to pay her fine if any guarantee could be offered that she would discontinue selling in the future. The court admonished her of the fate which befel those who persisted in defying the law.

Judge Staples presided over the court and in several instances, before passing sentence, gave prisoners excellent advice.

LECTURES. Dr. Miller's lecture this evening will cover a variety of subjects, suggested by questions handed in by the audience, and will be interesting to all. Two lectures will be delivered next week. One Monday evening, April 23d and one Tuesday evening April 24th, which completes the course. The subject, Tuesday evening, "Signs of Character" will undoubtedly draw a very large audience. Go early if you would get a seat.

RESIGNED. We are sorry to announce that Mr. Sylvester Brown, who has been the faithful Superintendent of our public schools for the past two years, has resigned this honored situation, and has accepted of a position as teacher of the Pine school in Boston, at an increased salary. He has labored hard with our schools and his lose will be severely felt by the School Committee and teachers.

SKATING RINK. The Quincy skating rink at the old library building has had a fine opening this week. Many have spent an hour pleasantly, trying their skill on rollers, or in witnessing the manœuvres of others. Let those who enjoy healthy sport make a visit to this new and pleasant resort. The proprietors intend to keep a first class place.

DEPARTED. One of our most aged citizens, Mr. Lewis Newcomb, was called home on Saturday last. He was born in Quincy and has passed the most of his long and useful life in this place. He was a very industrious citizen, and, at times, very successful; but, like the most of us in this mundane sphere, has had his ups and downs.

BURGLARY. The residence of S. G. Wyman, Esq., on Quincy avenue was entered by burglars a few nights ago and a valuable silver service, consisting of seven pieces, was stolen. The house is closed up during the Winter, as the family use it only for a summer residence. There is no clue as to who the thieves were. The robbery was not discovered until Wednesday last.

JURORS. Messrs. David K. Gage and Nathan G. Glover have been drawn to serve as jurors for the civil session of the April term of the Superior Court for Norfolk County.

FESTIVAL. The Unitarian Society will hold a May Festival at the Town Hall on Saturday next. Ten to two for children; Supper at six; entertainment from eight to ten, P. M.

☞ The South Shore Herald states that 1000 lobster pots will be set off Scituate this season, and 1000 more from Cohasset.

Brief Locals.

☞ Lilac buds are "on a bust."

☞ A Columbia bicycle is advertised for sale.

☞ Take your children to Dr. Miller's lectures.

☞ We are enjoying many pleasant days this month.

☞ Decoration Day comes on Wednesday this year.

☞ There is considerable foliage to be seen on the elm trees.

☞ We were blessed with an April shower yesterday, which was much needed.

☞ There will be a special meeting of the Unitarian Fragment Society on Wednesday next, at Miss Flora Vining's.

☞ Don't fail to attend Dr. Miller's lecture at Faxon Hall this evening. It will well pay you. Lecture begins at 7.45.

☞ Miss Hussey desires us to say that she has returned from New York, and is prepared to attend to her patrons in the millinery line.

☞ The engineers advertise for sealed proposals for building a reservoir at the junction of Contest avenue and Billings street, Atlantic.

☞ One year ago next Monday since Miss Sarah J. Rodgers at West Quincy was instantly killed by a pistol ball which entered her temple.

☞ The young people of the First Church are invited to meet with Mrs. Rufus Foster, Chestnut street, this Saturday afternoon, from 2 till 5.

☞ E. E. Hall & Co. call the attention of our readers this week to their new furniture store on Washington street, and invite the public to call.

☞ Read Loud & Co.'s new advertisement in to-day's issue. If you are in want of fertilizers you will find a good supply at their grain store.

☞ The new five-cent nickel, with the word "cents," under the big V., has made its appearance. The first we saw, was shown us by Dr. Gilson.

☞ Mr. George Saville invites the attention of our citizens this week to his immense stock of boots and shoes. Read his announcement on the next page.

☞ Joseph W. Lombard advertises to sell at auction on Wednesday next, a lot of household furniture, at the residence of the late Mr. Chatter, on Washington street.

☞ Dr. Miller's second course of lectures are drawing full houses and are giving the best of satisfaction. This course seems, if possible, more interesting than the first.

☞ Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., will be inspected next Thursday evening, by comrade Meehan, A. D. C. Comrades from various posts in the vicinity are expected to be present.

☞ The Tiger engine house recently sold at auction has been moved this week by Mr. John Cavanagh to land of Mr. George J. Jones, on Hancock street, near Mr. James R. Wild's shop.

☞ Rev. F. Furber, who has presided over the Appleton Methodist Church during the past year with so much acceptance, has been appointed to the church in West Quincy, and is succeeded by Rev. G. H. Perkins.—Dorchester News.

☞ We would call the attention of our citizens to the advertisement of Clapp Brothers in our columns to-day. Herbert and George have taken the store for many years carried on by their father, Mr. Elbridge Clapp, and intend to give their customers good bargains.

☞ The sociable at the vestry of the Universalist Church, on Wednesday evening was quite largely attended. The entertainment was unusually good. A number of fine singers and musicians from Boston were present, who were heartily greeted; besides some of Quincy's favorites.

LOTTERIES. A few weeks since a young clergyman in Newburyport,—a son of the well-known Rev. Matthew Hale Smith,—preached a sermon in which he sharply criticised churches and other associations that set up lotteries in violation of the laws of the Commonwealth. This attracted some attention, and brought out declarations that only a comparatively small number of the churches of the State encourage such violations of the law. Since then, public attention has again been called to the lottery question by the reported determination of a military company in Worcester to have such a lottery in the face of protests from some of the pulpits, and many of the leading men of that city. The papers of the State that have called attention to this matter have, almost without exception, urged that the law should be regarded, and that violations of it, in the name of patriotism, charity or religion, or in any other name should cease.—Boston Traveller.

MORE DESIRABLE. The Boston Traveller says that under the new law for the adjustment of the salaries of postmasters the smaller offices will be more desirable than hitherto; thus in a post office where the annual revenue from stamps amounts to $50, the postmaster now receives $30 and the government $20. Under the new law for a like amount of business the postmaster will receive $40 and the government nothing. In offices which have a gross revenue from stamps of $250 per annum, postmasters now receive $150 per annum and the government $100. Under the new law the former will receive $200 and the latter nothing.

☞ In the appointment of Miss Clara Barton as superintendent of the woman's prison at Sherborn, the Governor deserves and has received the hearty approval of everybody. Probably no person in the State is so well qualified as Miss Barton for the position. And it can't be said she was appointed because she was "a Butler man."

For the Patriot.

Quincy Point Items.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The services of next Sabbath evening will consist first, of an address by the pastor, on the duties and responsibilities of the members of the new church, and secondly, the induction of the deacons elect into office. The latter is an entirely new feature of Congregationalism instituted by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Harris.

At the Council held the 11th inst., the formula was read and received the approbation of all the members, and wherever the same has come under the notice of Congregational leaders, it has met with their hearty approval. Its introduction among us, is anticipated as an event of great interest, and will no doubt be witnessed by a large congregation.

In our notice of the Council last week, we failed to give to Mr. Clarence Sampson the credit due to him for the very tasteful arrangement of the flowers on that occasion. The beautiful floral displays, with which he has favored us at our Easter concerts, show that he has great skill in this direction.

On Sunday the Sabbath School chose two delegates, Messrs. Alfred and Clarence Sampson who, together with the pastor, Rev. J. L. Harris, will attend the Norfolk County Congregational Sunday School Convention to be held at Sharon, on Saturday May 5th.

SINGING SCHOOL.

The singing school under the leadership of Mr. Edward Hayward is progressing finely. The next lesson will be on Wednesday evening, instead of Tuesday, at 7.30 o'clock, and is the sixth of the quarter. It is understood that a number of persons intend joining on the last half, which will commence the following week.

SOCIABLE.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society held its last sociable of the season, on Wednesday evening, at the residence of J. L. Whiton, Esq. The usual good time was enjoyed, and it is to be hoped that they may be resumed again early in the coming fall.

AUCTION.

On Saturday, the Neck school house was sold by Auctioneer Lombard, to P. Gavin, for sixty dollars.

WATERING CART.

For the past day or two, the dust has blown in clouds down Washington street, causing the ladies, at present deeply interested in house cleaning, to wonder if this is to be the rule when summer shall come and of necessity their windows be open to receive this grit; or if some energetic person will start forth, and strengthened by the motto "what man has done man can do," be determined to see the necessary funds raised to support a watering cart during the summer months.

LECTURES.

The second course of lectures on physiology and hygiene given by Dr. Miller at Faxon Hall, during the week, has been highly spoken of by those who attended from the Point. It seems to be the feeling that if the Dr. could be persuaded to give one or two lectures in this part of the town, that he would have fair audiences.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Lemuel Baxter has spent the past week in Portland, Maine.

Mrs. Dr. Harlow is improving and we hope to soon see her among us once more.

Capt. Prince W. Kenney and wife have gone to Harwich for the summer.

Mr. John Federhen, 3d, has been confined to the house this week with one of the severe colds, so prevalent.

Next Sunday, Rev. Geo. B. Lawton will commence a series of three sermons on "The word of God." These will no doubt be both interesting and instructive, and should insure large congregations.

This week's surprise party was convened at Mrs. Samuel P. Hayden's. A large number were present.

Ella M. Freeman was commissioned Postmistress at this place on the 13th inst. F.

WINE AND CIGARS. The Mayor of Boston is considerably stirred up about a bill for wines and cigars amounting to over $1300, contracted on the night of the reception of the Mexican visitors by city officials whom he had given carte blanche as to arrangements. The bill will have to be paid from the Mayor's contingent fund. It should be understood that this expenditure was entirely apart from the general entertainment of the guests, and that only members of the City Council and their personal friends were present.—Journal.

PRIVATE SALE. Among the sale in Norfolk County, we notice the following in Braintree:—

Phebe A. Childs et al. to Ella F. French, land and buildings adjoining estates of Charles W. Hobart, E. C. Thayer and others, 7200 feet for $2000.

PATENT. Among the patents issued last week was one to James C. Farmer, Providence, R. I., assignor to himself, C. E. Ferreira, Quincy, D. A. Brooks, Braintree, C. H. Brown and A. A. Reeve, Boston, Mass., locomotive smoke box.

FIRE. One thousand acres of woodland were burned over Wednesday night in Milford and Hopkinton. Several hundred cords of cut wood were destroyed.

☞ The Missouri Legislature tried to make the killing of a person by one in the act of committing burglary, arson or rape punishable as murder in the first degree, thus changing the legal definition of murder. The governor vetoed the bill, and now, it is said, an attempt will be made to get around the point by making the crimes named subject to the death penalty.

☞ There is a patented wood in Germany consisting chiefly of cellulose and starch. The artificial wood resembles wood, and may be treated the same in every respect.

☞ Brockton liquor licenses this year are as follows:—First-class, $700; second-class, $250; third-class, $550; fourth-class, $350; fifth-class, $150.

☞ The bill to repeal the law passed last year exempting mortgages from taxation, was killed in the House last Friday, by an unexpectedly large vote.

During 1882, 271 divorces were granted in Rhode Island.

Green peas are four dollars a quart in Montgomery, Ala.

Thirty-five counties in Kentucky are without newspapers.

It is said that the sleigh stage which runs between Fairhaven and Benson, Vt., has been in use 124 years.

The People's Course.

The last bill against the People's Course has been paid, as we announced last week, and there is a balance in the hands of the treasurer, of $16.55. This is a most gratifying result, alike to those who stood prepared to pay any deficiency and to the public in general. It demonstrates that the project can be carried out upon a business basis, and, the labor of certain public spirited gentlemen thrown in, that the patrons paid for what they got. The sum remaining will be in the hands of the treasurer ready to be used when, in the Fall, the enterprise shall be taken up again.

The financial account of the course is thus closed. The moral account will remain open for a long time to come. Many a young man with his week's wages in his pocket and feeling nervous and inclined to have a good time went to the Town Hall, instead of to the saloons of the city, and got it innocently and satisfactorily; many a married man was able to bring his wife and children frequently to the entertainments and give them an unwonted treat; boys usually found on the street corners in the evenings, smoking and trying to rival some of their baser elders in profanity, were earliest at the doors with their hoarded pennies and loudest in their applause of meritorious parts of the programme. And aside from this, our citizens enjoyed lectures and entertainments at a very low price, while citizens of other towns, for the very same thing, were paying the customary thirty-five or fifty cents.

From the liberal manner in which the course this season was patronized, it may be prophesied that the course next season will be well attended. The committee have in mind several new features which will make the second attempt even more acceptable than the first.

Temperance Union.

The annual meeting of the Norfolk County Temperance Union was held at the Unitarian Church, Hyde Park, this week. President Alfred Clark of Franklin in the chair. Each town of the county was well represented, and the reports showed a great interest in the important questions of temperance or intemperance. The regular addresses were delivered by Rev. George Hill of Norwood in the afternoon, and Rev. A. A. Miner, in the evening. Among the vice-presidents elected for the ensuing year was Mr. William S. Leavitt of East Milton.

TRICYCLE FOR LADIES. The use of the tricycle by ladies as a means of locomotion on the highways obtains quite generally in England, but is very rare in this country. The tricycle in its present improved and elegant form is an easy vehicle to handle and is admirably adapted to ladies' use. Its management is very easy to learn and there is no danger of its capsizing. Dr. Richardson, high authority in matters of health and exercise, says that it furnishes the means of the best and most useful exercise for woman that has ever been discovered. There seems to be no good reason why a lady should not ride a tricycle as properly as to ride a horse or drive a phaeton. It is an extremely graceful and pleasant pastime as well as a healthful exercise, and those who are working to promote women's interests could not do better than organize tricycle clubs among the young women, and middle aged ones too, whose health is impaired for want of the proper kind of out door exercise.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE. The May number of this popular magazine opens with a finely illustrated description of San Francisco by William Henry Bishop. George Ticknor Curtis furnishes the second sketch, The Treaty of Peace and Independence. Other articles are: The Singer, a poem. The National Academy of the Art of Design, and its Surviving Founders, with three portraits. A Castle in Spain, a novel with six illustrations by Abbey. Galatea, a poem. Roman Carnival Sketches, with new illustrations. Anthony Trollope, with portrait, and the Brooklyn Bridge, with twenty-one illustrations. The shorter contributions, Drawer, the Easy-Chair, etc., are all worthy of this excellent magazine. For sale in Quincy, at Mr. Souther's.

TWO-CENT POSTAGE. The estimate at the post office department is that the change to the two cent letter rate will probably entail a loss to the revenue of four millions or less for the first year. The reduced rate goes into operation on the first of October next. It is the expression of common sense. We very much question, however, if a reduction in the rate will cause a decline in the revenue. We are quite prepared to believe the contrary. This is a great country, and mutual correspondence among its people is increasing fast. A two cent postal rate will practically double the business done under a three cent rate. And it is unquestionably true one cent rates will be very largely exchanged for the new two cent ones, on account of the greater privilege of privacy with the additional cost of only one cent; this will help greatly to recompense any apprehended losses from the reduction of rates, if it does not even increase the revenue also. The country is increasing in population with great rapidity, while the two cent rate promises to take the places of both the one cent and the three cent rates which now carry the bulk of the country's correspondence.—Evening Star.

☞ A Mexican with a long name has invented a machine which he claims will indicate with certainty and precision the approach, time and force of an earthquake. It is understood that Massachusetts politicians are forming a syndicate to buy the patent.

PERSONAL. Mr. Clift Rodgers of Marshfield, who has been confined to his room for the past three months, is now able to walk a very little by the aid of a cane. He was for many years an active business man of Quincy.

A LARGE ESTATE. The late Peter Cooper left $2,000,000, the bulk of which goes to his two children, although he left a munificent sum to Cooper Institute.

THE CHEMICAL ENGINE. Trial of the chemical fire engine at Middleboro demonstrated that it was not advisable to keep the tanks charged for any length of time. The force after standing two months was found to be perceptibly weakened. A new charge worked satisfactorily.

The Weather.

THURSDAY P. M.

We may expect a dense fog the first easterly turn in the weather, and there will be no let up; and only by a turn of the wind from the western board can save us from it. The steamship Virginian arrived Thursday, reports a run for the last three days through a thick fog. This means nearly 1000 miles in width. Also same day, ship Lapland says lost six days in dense fog. So we see the great brewery and condensor is at work close to our front doors.

District Court, Quincy.

The following cases have been before Judge Humphrey, at the District Court Room this week:

Edward W. Moore, of Holbrook, for setting fire in woods at Braintree. After hearing the testimony of several witnesses he was held in the sum of $500 for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

Frederick Leavitt of Braintree for a similar offence was discharged.

Horace G. Beal, of Weymouth, for neglecting to provide for a minor child. Case continued to Monday next.

Patrick Maguire, of Weymouth, for being a common drunkard. Sent to the House of Correction for three months.

Braintree Chips.

An alarm of fire was given by the Butcher Boy bell on Sunday afternoon. It proved to be in the woods on West street, near five corners, caused by an incendiary.

On Wednesday evening the Braintree Lodge, K. of H., received their friends in royal style at their new quarters in G. A. R. Hall. At about eight o'clock Dictator A. R. French, president of the evening, invited the large company to seats at the bountifully spread tables. Nothing loathe the friends did complete justice to the good things provided for the occasion. Afterwards a very enjoyable time was spent in the main hall, with music and singing, and in listening to remarks from F. A. Hobart, Dr. Dearing, W. McEwan, of the Braintree Observer, W. C. Daniels, J. T. Stevens, D. A. Brooks, S. A. Willis, W. M. Richards, E. Thayer, W. A. Kane, Charles Perry and L. Gomez. The invited guests both ladies and gentlemen, were much pleased with their visit, and would not object to making a second call. D.

Quincy Savings Bank.

At the Annual Meeting of the Quincy Savings Bank Corporation, the following officers were elected:

President,—Charles Marsh.
Vice-President,—Horace B. Spear.
Trustees,—Israel W. Munroe, George A. Brackett, Charles A. Howland, John Quincy Adams, Daniel H. Bills, William G. Sheen, Rupert F. Claflin, John Q. A. Field, Charles A. Porter and Elias A. Perkins.

At a subsequent meeting of the Trustees, Messrs Marsh, Spear, Claflin and Field were elected as the Board of Investment.

GEORGE L. GILL, Secretary.

CRIME IN NORFOLK COUNTY. In the Superior Criminal Court, before Judge Staples Tuesday, the session was devoted mainly to violations of the liquor law. Mary Maddigan of Randolph was fined $100 and costs; Thomas Early of Stoughton, $50 and costs; James McSweeney of Braintree, $100 and costs; William Dailey of Holbrook, $50 and costs; and Ellen M. Walsh of Quincy was convicted, all for illegal sales of liquors. William Campbell of Randolph was ordered to pay $1.25 per week for the support of his child. Henry Sandsman of Canton was acquitted of the charge of assault upon James Finn. Emery W. Shaw of Weymouth was sentenced to seven years in State prison for an indecent assault.

TO BE SOLD. Foreclosure of the mortgage on the Nantasket Beach Railroad has been made, and the trustee, on the part of the bondholders, has taken possession of all the franchises and corporate property of the company. This action is consequent upon the failure of the corporation to pay the interest upon its bonds. Sale of the road is to be made June 27.

☞ An almanac for 1686, the first work of W. Bradford, the first printer of Philadelphia, of which their are only two copies in existence, brought $520 the other day, at a sale of the library of Dr. David King of Newport, R. I.

PATRIOT SUPPLEMENT.

QUINCY, MASS., APRIL 21, 1883.

"Have a Hax?"

The Detroit Free Press judge has been after a hackman. Here is the scene in court:

"Your name is—is—what?" asked the court.

"Davey, sir—George Davey."

"And you work at—what?"

"Drive hack."

"Ah—ah!" smiled his honor, acquiring sudden interest; "this is worth twenty dollars to me. You are one of those men who stand on the edge of the walks at the depots and shout 'Hax!' at people."

"I have to git passengers, sir."

"Don't sass me back, Mr. Davey—I know all about you! Only the other day, as I returned from a May-day party in the county, there was one million, five hundred and sixty-five thousand, three hundred and ninety-two of you on the curbstone, and every one of you yelled 'Hax' at me. One seized my satchel, another grabbed at my coat, and another pulled me backward by the coat-tails. I believe you are that man!"

"Deed, sir, I haint."

"Well, it's barely possible that I am mistaken; but here's a charge that you were lying on the walk drunk."

"I wasn't, sir; I was sitting up alongside a house."

"That's too fine a point to argue. Were you drunk?"

"Only sprung, sir; only a little sprung."

"That's just as bad in the sight of the law, and I ought to fine you $700."

"Grashus! but I could never pay that!"

"No; my object would be to keep you in prison all your days."

"Oh, let up on a feller," pleaded the prisoner. "This is the first time and it will be the last. I've a large family, sir, and they need my wages to get their bread."

His honor took a long time to think, and then replied:

"It's wrong to let you off. The citizens will condemn me, and the newspapers will blow at me, but I believe I'll give you a show. You may go, but I shall keep watch of you. You must mend your ways right off. Instead yelling 'Hax' at a man, do you smile, and softly whisper: 'Sir can I have the pleasure of conveying you to some designated point?' Promise me this?"

The prisoner promised, and was allowed to disappear, limping sadly with a sore heel.

Cure for Stammering.

Dr. Dio Lewis gives the following as a positive cure for stammering. Those afflicted will do well to read:

"The cure is simply this: The stammerer is made to mark the time in his speech, just as is ordinarily done in singing. He is at first to beat on every syllable. It is best at first to read some simple composition, like one of David's psalms, striking the fore-finger on the knee at each word; then read in a newspaper, beating each syllable.

"You can beat time by striking the finger on the knee, by hitting the thumb against the fore-finger, or by moving the large toe in the boot.

"We doubt if the worst case of stuttering would continue long, provided the sufferer would read an hour or two each day with thorough practice of this simple art, observing the same in his conversation.

"As thousands have paid fifty and a hundred dollars for this secret, we take great pleasure in imparting it to the patrons of this journal."

A Considerate Man.

The latest joke of the French Society for the protection of animals is to the following effect:

A countrymen, armed with an immence club, presents himself before the president of the society and claims the first prize. He is asked to describe the act of charity on which he founds his claim for the prize.

"I have saved the life of a wolf," replies the rustic. "I might easily have killed him with my bludgeon," and he swings his weapon in the air, to the intense discomfort of the president.

"But where was the wolf, and what had he done to you?"

"He had just devoured my wife," was the man's reply.

The president looks very thoughtful for a minute, and then says:

"My friend, I am of the opinion that you have had your reward."

☞ Remember, my son, that you are not always making a point when you get off a sharp thing.

The Age of Man.

But few men die of age. Almost all die of disappointment, passional, mental, or bodily toil or accident. The passions kill men sometimes even suddenly. The common expression choked with passion has little exaggeration in it; for even though not suddenly fatal, strong passions shorten life. Strong bodied men often die young—weak men live longer than the strong, for the strong use their strength and the weak have none to use. The latter take care of themselves; the former do not. As it is with the body, so it is with the mind and temper. The strong are apt to break, or, like the candle, run; the weak burn out. The inferior animals which live general, temperate lives have generally their prescribed terms of years.

The horse lives twenty-five years; the ox fifteen or twenty; the lion about twenty; the hog ten or twelve; the rabbit eight; the guinea-pig six to seven. These numbers all bear proportion to the time the animal takes to grow to its full size. But man of all the animals is the one that seldom comes up to his average. He ought to live a hundred years, according to his physiological law, for five times twenty are one hundred; but instead of that he scarcely reaches on an average, four times his growing period; the cat six times; and the rabbit even eight times the standard of the measurement. The reason is obvious—man is not only the most irregular and the most intemperate, but the most laborious and hard worked of all animals. He is also the most irritable of all animals; and there is reason to believe, though we cannot tell what an animal secretly feels, that more than any other animal, man cherishes wrath to keep it warm and consumes himself with the fire of his own reflections.

☞ Common sense is a most useful acquisition. It is to be acquired, for a man is not born with any great stock of it. Any one can acquire it except a "born fool," and such a person is born with an incapacity for ever having any common sense. Common sense is the most useful acquisition for a farmer, and the farmer who is not hourly and daily increasing his stock of it is always in trouble.

☞ The largest order for printing blank forms ever given to the public printer is that of the commissioner of internal revenue for blanks and labels required to carry into effect the provisions of law relative to the rebate on tobacco and cigars. This order was for 50,000,000 labels and 750,000 blanks for the use of manufacturers and dealers.

☞ "Yes," said Jack to his chum, "it was so quiet in my room last night that I heard the bed tick."—Exchange.

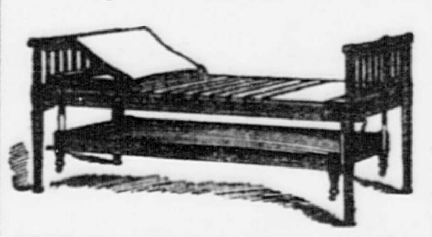
Crosby Invalid Bedstead



FOR the comfort of patients, obliged by exhaustion, resulting from disease or broken limbs, to be lifted from one bed to another; also to prevent or cure bed-sores.
It affords easy access to the body, permitting the bed to be changed or made up without moving or annoying the patient. It is simple in construction and can be managed by a child. By its use one attendant can perform all the necessary duties to a sick person, however prostrated.
This bedstead was used by the late President Garfield, and it is adopted in the hospitals of the United States government. Call and see it in operation at

SUPPLEMENT.

ROCKY POINT. The owners of the lately burned Rocky Point property intend to rebuild at once, putting up a $15,000 pavilion in season for the earliest excursion parties. They have come to the conclusion that a hotel is not needed.

PERSONAL. A. E. Kent, the San Francisco grain merchant, who has given $60,000 to Yale College, went to California about six years ago for his health, and found it. He found wealth too.

☞ The milk producers who furnish the Boston supply, at a recent meeting, asked 38 cents per 8 1-2-quart cans in Boston at the milk depots, a little over four cents a quart, and the contractors offer 35 cents, equal to 3 15-17 per quart, and it was refused.

☞ Hon. John I. Baker, chairman of the Beverly board of selectmen, has served on the board of assessors for some 20 years, and has never yet taken a cent of salary.

☞ A room in the post office department building at Washington is being fitted up as a museum for curious things which go to the dead-letter office.

CHICKENS. Correspondents of the Dedham Transcript are boasting of the price they have received for last year's chickens. A man in Foxboro sold some, not six months old, for $1.25 apiece, and a man on Moose Hill sold chickens four and one-third months old for $1.17.

A correspondent for Sharon says:—"We can beat that. Chickens, four months old, from a yard in Sharon Centre, were sold by weight to a poultry butcher for $1.65 each."

☞ The heaviest requisition ever drawn for postage stamps was forwarded from the New York Postoffice the other day, the number of stamps called for being 21,220,000, representing $453,000.

☞ We are informed that Rev. L. H. Frary, pastor of the Union Church, of Braintree and Weymouth, has decided not to accept the call extended to him by the Congregational church at Helen, Montana. This will be regarded as good news by Mr. Frary's present congregation.

☞On Monday, last week, Schooner "Joseph Baynure," laden with a cargo of coal for Joel F. Sheppard, was coming around Cape Cod, her fore top-mast snapped, so that she could not obey her helm. Thus disabled, negotiations were opened with the owners of the steamer "Hercules," of Boston. They asked at first $500, but finally came down to $55, and for that amount the schooner was towed safely into port.

☞ On noticing one morning this week a horse at the water-trough in the square, South Braintree, with his tail tied in a knot, Pat asked Mike what that was done for, Mike answered: "An' sure it's to keep his tail clane." "Och, sure, an' I thought it was to keep him from running through his collar."—Observer.

☞ Rev. Mr. Murphy, of Waltham, has been appointed pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Weymouth, the pastoral duties of which was so thoroughly and successfully discharged for a series of years by Father Smith, who has now been put in charge of the Church of St. Joseph, Boston.

It is said that 40,000 girls and women support themselves in New York, and 80,000 women provide for their husbands.

It is estimated that Spring bonnets will cost the country this year over $200,000,000.

Pere Hyacinthe, accompanied by his wife, will spend the coming summer in this country and will lecture in various cities.

A Beautiful Sentiment.

Every man builds his own house—builds it many-chambered, fresh-ventilated, picture-hung, vine-wreathed, guest-full; or low-pent, bare-wall, flowerless, inhospitable—just in accordance with his inner nature. Precisely as the internal force of affinity in the mollusk lays hold of and aggregates round itself the fine lime particles in the sea-water, so does the internal force in the human soul lay hold of and aggregate round itself what it wants. The surrounding ocean holds in solution knowledge, pleasure, meat, drink, wit, wisdom, friends, flowers, God; and out of this wealth we secrete our shells—clam shells or nautilus shells as we are clams or nautili. We find what we crave—fun, if we have a zest for the funny; friends, if we long for friends; beauty if we love beauty; thought, if we tend to thought. We build up our house, small or large. If we are refined, it is refined; if we are roomy, it is roomy.

For the Patriot.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, April 9, 1883.

Ex-Senator Conkling was in the city on the day of the President's departure for Florida, but did not go to the station to wish him a pleasant journey. While his feeling for the Administration does not grow in kindness, the published statement that he picked up a rubber band from a desk in the Interior Department Friday with the remark that "he guessed it was all he should get of this Administration" is denied by those present when the remark is alleged to have been made. He did, however, indulge in a little characteristic sarcasm, when rallied by a friend on his lack of intimacy at the White House. His friend said "It must be hard for you to be snubbed by the man who owes everything to you." "Oh no," said Conkling, "think what it would be to be indebted to him." It is really a little hard for Mr. Conkling to adjust himself to the fact that the machinery of government still moves in spite of his absence from the helm. He shows in his stiff gait and inclined figure unmistakable signs of time's rude touch, but he is always an object of eager curiosity when he appears on the streets of Washington.

Before reaching their destination, the Presidential party was subjected to as many inconveniences as ordinary travelers who go pleasuring. Their lunch was left in Washington, to their intense discomfort; a conductor insisted upon collecting their fares, not having been notified that they were invited guests of the railroad company, the car-coupling broke and left the President's car miles behind, before the accident was discovered, thereby delaying the train. When they reached Jacksonville they were escorted in carriages from the station to the steamboat landing, amid a salute of artillery and the cheers of 10,000 citizens along the route. The President is now the guest of Henry Sanford whose residence is on an island in Kissimee river. While there, the party will fish and hunt, and live in tents.

Advantage will be taken of President Arthur's absence to complete improvements at the White House. The stained glass work in the vestibule, the front doors and the President's bed-chamber will receive attention. On his return he will probably go to Soldiers' Home again, as he likes the place very much, and has grown tired of living in the house where he transacts his business.

Secretary Folger has so much improved in health that he went out for a horseback ride Saturday afternoon. He has abandoned his trip to Bermuda, and will now make another effort to discharge his public duties. There will be much gratification in the Treasury Department if he succeeds, for the kindest feeling toward the Secretary prevails among the clerks.

The civil service commissioners have been wandering homelessly about the city looking for suitable examination rooms. They abandoned the idea of occupying the rooms in the City Hall that were assigned them, because there was not enough money available for making the necessary repairs, and besides they were averse to being located in the City Hall while the star route trial is in progress. From present indications the trial will last many years after the civil service reform question has ceased to be an issue. The commissioners are now negotiating for what is known as the seed building, an annex of the Agricultural Department. The location is far more desirable for the commissioners in conducting their examinations than the City Hall, being beyond the noise and confusion of the business parts of the city. The President took with him to Florida the rules prepared by the commissioners, and will study them during his fishing intervals, or, perhaps, while waiting for a bite. This was the only thing relative to business with which he was willing to burden himself, having given the members of his cabinet strict orders not to trouble him with official business during his absence.

Apropos of the star route trial, John W. Dorsey, a brother of the chief defendant, in his cross examination, deviated from the path of the ex-Senator and Mr. Vaile, who swore to consistent integrity in everything pertaining to star route matters. John W. Dorsey admitted that he had done wrong once or twice in his life, had sworn to conflicting affidavits in relation to certain routes. But then he thought false swearing was among the little peccadilloes that ought not to count. The cross examination of all the defendants has shown that the business of the ring from the first, led to and circled round S. W. Dorsey.

The Old Colony.

A special meeting of the Old Colony stockholders was held in Boston on Monday last. A new code of by-laws for the corporation was adopted, the only essential change being the insertion of a provision for a Vice President. It was voted to authorize the issue of notes or bonds of the corporation having more than one year to run, to meet maturing indebtedness and for other purposes, the amount being left to the discretion of the Directors. Messrs. Adams and Barker, of the Treasurer's office, were authorized to approve bonds and notes issued by the corporation. Under authority of an act of the Legislature, passed March 22, 1882, it was voted to authorize an increase in the capital stock to $12,000,000. It was also voted to authorize the construction of a branch rail road from some point on the line of the road in the town of Quincy, through the gravel lands owned in that part of the town of Braintree known as Veazie's Plain. The details of this extention were referred to the Directors with full powers.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. Fred L. Ames was chosen Vice President of the corporation in accordance with the authority conferred by the stockholders.

For the Patriot.

Wollaston Heights.

The people of Wollaston have been seriously annoyed this spring by several incendiary fires, which in several cases hardly escaped becoming calamitous in their results. On several occasions the fire department has been called out at considerable expense, the responsibility for which must be laid at the door of persons who acted either ill-advisedly or maliciously.

Last Sunday afternoon at about 3 o'clock, the attention of Mr. E. E. Williamson was drawn to what seemed to be a disastrous fire on "third hill," in the rear of his residence; and only for the prompt action of a number of gentlemen, who happened at that time to be near at hand, nothing would have prevented the burning of one or two houses and outbuildings. As it was the fire was only subdued after a most stubborn fight, and when it was coming in quite near contact with the thickest under brush near the buildings.

Later in the afternoon while Mr. Windship was engaged in suppressing the flames in another locality a boy, who is well known, was seen to set fire behind him in order to burn still more of the hill. This seemed to be done out of pure devilishness. It is understood that the authorities are closely watching these bad boys whose aim seems to be to achieve the largest amount of trouble and annoyance in the shortest possible time, and the worst of it seems to be that their parents can't see their conduct.

The evening prayer meetings at the Methodist Chapel seem to grow in interest. One of the largest and best being held last Sabbath evening. There seems to be quite a general revival in this church, and we bespeak for the new pastor renewed interest as a reward for faithful labors. B.

LITERARY NOTE. Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake has prepared for publication, her recent lectures in reply to the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix. They will be immediately issued under the title of "Woman's Place To-day," in 1 vol. 12 mo cloth; and also as a 20 cent number of "Lovell's Library," by JOHN W. LOVELL CO., New York.

Letter from New York.

NEW YORK, April 18, 1883.

The visit to this city of Oliver Wendell Holmes had been the topic of conversation for a week before his arrival, and on Thursday last he was welcomed most cordially by about two hundred physicians, at Delmonico's, this being but the beginning of a series of ovations. The dinner, which consumed about two hours and a half, was immediately preceded by a prayer from Bishop Clark, of Rhode Island, at the end of which Dr. A. H. Smith was called upon to welcome Dr. Holmes in a formal address. This was responded to by a poem from the "Autocrat," which was a complete surprise to those present and was listened to with the closest attention. On Saturday night, after dining with Cyrus W. Field, he made his appearance at the Lotos Club. The members present rose to their feet, greeting him with cheers, as he entered, and continued cheering until he had taken his seat at the side of the President. His speech on that occasion was only equalled by his poem and the evening was made enjoyable by his presence as well as that of the Hon. Joseph Medill of Chicago, and others. Tuesday evening he lectured before the Nineteenth Century Club on Emerson.

At a meeting of the American Geographical Society held on Monday evening eulogies were pronounced upon the late Peter Cooper by Chief Justice Daly, Judge Richard O'Gorman and General Viele, the latter expressing it as his opinion that the best way to honor Peter Cooper was to emulate his example in the prosecution of philanthropic schemes.

It is unpleasant to think that the season of epidemics in New York has begun, but fifteen cases of typhus fever were lately discovered on Washington Heights. They are supposed to be the result of bad milk, but the more probable cause is Croton water, which has no circulation in the ends of the service pipes, and so stagnates and breeds disease. About two months ago a similar epidemic occurred from the same cause, which resulted in the prostration of fifteen families in one neighborhood.

A general strike by the carpenters of the city has resulted in an advance, with but few exceptions, in their wages, of from $3.25 to $3.50 per week. There has also been considerable agitation on the subject of a bill advocating pensions for teachers, which is not generally favored by the majority. A protest has been started, and will shortly be presented to the Legislature, since the idea of assessing the salaries of teachers in active service to pay a pension to those retired after twenty-five years consecutive teaching, is not acceptable at the present low remuneration received for teaching.

Not all the home missionaries go from the East to evangelize the West. On Monday fifty-seven Mormons arrived at the Grand Central Hotel on a proselyting tour on their way not only to Europe, but some of them en route for the surrounding states.

The musical season is drawing to an end. Booth's theater closes in a fortnight, Mrs. Langtry is now making a final visit, and Patti soon sails for her castle in Wales. In a small way, however, a very enjoyable entertainment was afforded in the production, in Brooklyn this week, of a cantata entitled "David, the Son of Jesse." It is an admirable thing, written by E. C. Phelps, and was well rendered. The maidens composing the costumed chorus were drawn from the Cecilian Society, and creditably acquitted themselves. W. L. M.

A NOTED LANDLORD. Nehemiah Ripley, one of the oldest and most widely-known citizens of Hingham, died on Tuesday, of pneumonia, after a short illness. Mr. Ripley was born in Hingham, January 21, 1817, and was consequently 66 years of age. In 1846 he began the erection of the now famous Rockland House, Nantasket beach, and was the pioneer hotel proprietor at this resort. He continued as proprietor of the Rockland House until 1880, when all the property along the beach in that immediate vicinity was merged into a stock corporation, and Mr. Ripley resigned his connection as landlord of that house. Later he built the Rockland Cafe and Hotel Nantasket. It was also through his efforts that the Boston and Hingham Steamboat Company were induced to run their steamers up Weir river to Nantasket beach.

ABINGTON. At the conclusion of the afternoon sermon on Sunday last, at the Congregational Church, Abington, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Haskins, appealed to the congregation soliciting pledges for extinguishing the church debt of $3000, which amount was immediately nearly subscribed, the balance being made up at the evening meeting.

BEHIND HIS BACK. It is said that General Grant will be on the new two-cent postage stamp. Then, says the Bradford Sunday News we can all lick him, but will have to do it behind his back.

COSTLY. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, at her masked ball, represented a Venetian princess, in a dress that cost $10,000, and was decorated with scenes of Venice, gondolas, etc. That is, says the Pittsburg Telegraph, it represented 10,000 gone-dollars; a rather neat idea, too.

IMMENSE. The big grapevine at Santa Barbara will have to take a back seat, as San Joaquin comes to the front and claims to have the largest vine in the world. It covers an area of some 4000 square feet, and is said to have yielded four tons of grapes in one season.

SINGULAR. The destruction of the arch which supported the statue of the Duke of Wellington, opposite Apsley House, in London, revealed the fact that the gate-keeper, his wife and family, half a dozen policemen and a medical student resided within the pedestal under the hoofs of the famous charger Copenhagen.

HIGH AND DRY. In a certain part of Texas, many miles from the coast, lie the remains of a ship, high and dry in the prairie grass. She is of Spanish build, and supposed to have been driven inland by a tidal wave.

MONROE, MICH., Sept. 25, 1874.
SIRS—I have been taking Hop Bitters for inflammation of kidneys and bladder. It has done for me what four doctors failed to do. The effect of Hop Bitters seemed like magic to me. W. L. CARTER.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, April 16, 1883.

Under the influence of sunshine and a little soft balmy air, the streets of the city suddenly fill with hurrying people, the shops with busy purchasers, and the parks with delighted children whose ringing voices, mingling with those of the noisy English sparrows in the trees and shrubs, fill the air with a din that poets alone call musical. And the nurses, those universal nuisances, are stalking abroad in the parks. They are gregariously inclined, and impudently proceed three and four abreast, trundling their charges, to the great annoyance of passers-by. They have a disagreeable way of finding the prettiest nooks first, and of taking possession of the most desirable seats. But nothing can be done to suppress them. Many persons may be seen loitering in public squares, watching the fountains play, and looking at the dwarf-magnolias or bay-trees covered with fragrant white blossoms, but no leaves yet. The city with its 132 miles of healthy shade trees is slowly and secretly making her summer toilet, and in three weeks at most, or perhaps two, will appear in a dress of green, when she may safely challenge any city in America to rival her in beauty.

The mild weather of the past week has opened the rowing season at the boat-houses of the Potomac. The Champion Hanlan is here training for his race which is to take place at Boston on May 30th, (Decoration Day.) He may be seen daily on the river in his shell, practising with the perfect movement and the speed that has given him his world wide fame. Kennedy, who is to row with him, is a resident here, and the two distinguished oarsmen who are often on the river together, attract a large attendance of spectators. Their presence has also awakened new interest in boating matters, and when the weather permits the river is dotted with boats.

Out-door sports of every kind have received the impulse of spring, and an athletic park, something the city has never had before, has just been completed. These grounds occupy an entire square, are surrounded by a dressed board fence ten feet high, and the expenditure for their improvement approximates $6,000. They will be devoted to all out door sports, but particularly to base-ball and bicycle races. The best order is guaranteed by the management, so that ladies can visit them with propriety.

The popular place of resort this week for the people of Washington, as well as for the stranger within her gates, will be the skating rink on New York avenue, that has been transformed beyond recognition into an immense bazaar, where everything that can be thought of, from a canvas covered ham to a painted plaque, from a barrel of flour to a diamond pin, or from a bedstead to a baby rattle will be sold at fanciful prices, by a hundred or more charming ladies, whose persistent appeals in behalf of the good cause together with their alluring smiles and coaxing ways will prove irresistible to the least impressible man who dares come within their influence with money in his purse. The impecunious only can venture there. The occasion is the Light Infantry Grand Fair, beginning to-night, which has been the topic for weeks in interested circles. This will be the greatest fair ever held by private enterprise in this city, while its proceeds are likely to surpass any yet held. The Washington Light Infantry is called the crack battalion of the country south of Mason and Dixon's line, and many persons at a distance, as well as citizens have been munificent in gifts to the fair, the proceeds of which are for building an armory for the organization. The rink furnishes by far the largest floor-space available in the city, being 150 by 80 feet. The decorations are beautiful and appropriate, banners and military trophies being profusely used. Six electric lights within and one outside will illuminate the scene, in addition to many gas-jets, and a detachment of the Marine Band, will render choice selections of music during each night of the two weeks that the fair will continue. The scene at the rink is one of varied and picturesque confusion now, the floor being covered by articles of every description, but so many willing hands are busy with the chaos that everything will be ready for a brilliant opening to-night.

Another attraction of the week will be the Jersey Lily at Ford's Opera House. Verdicts upon the personal attractions of the famous English beauty, as well as upon her dramatic abilities have been so conflicting that Washingtonians will be glad to settle the vexed question by deciding for themselves if Mrs. Langtry is really a beautiful woman and an actress.

Quincy Directory

For 1882 and 1883

IS FOR SALE

AT THE PATRIOT OFFICE.

It contains 150 octavo pages and is devoted exclusively to Quincy.

Sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid.

Price 60 Cents.

In it will be found the names of all the streets in town, both public and private, and where they are located. Also, the hills, hummocks, islands, streams, bridges, wharves, halls, public buildings, and places of interest, railroad stations, post offices and cemeteries. A general directory, giving the names of every male person over twenty years of age in Quincy on the first day of May. Also, all widows, and ladies having any particular occupation. Containing a list of over 3700 names.

Also, a general business directory of the town, each branch classified and arranged for the convenience of the public; town officers, public schools and teachers, fire department, county and town offices, corporations, religious and charitable societies and associations; temperance, political and social societies; advertising cards from nearly all the principal business firms in the town.

Many citizens who have left Quincy and gone abroad, will find much in its pages that will be of great interest to them; bringing to memory many old associations and friends. Any orders received at the PATRIOT OFFICE will meet with prompt attention. Green & Prescott, publishers.

WM. S.
BUTLER
& CO.,
90 TO 98 TREMONT ST.,
BOSTON.

SPRING
OPENING

Wm. S. Butler & Co.

Take pleasure in announcing that the alterations in their store are now completed, and that they are occupying Nos. 90, 92, 94, 96 and 98 Tremont Street, and 1 and 2 Montgomery Place.

The second floor is now also open for business, and on the third floor is a Ladies' Reception Room, where every attention will be given to the comfort of our customers.

These alterations will give us much needed additional room for the display of our stock, and will afford to the ladies Better Accommodations and Light than are found in any other store in our line.

FIRST
OPENING
—OF OUR—
DEPARTMENT.

In order to place this department at once in rank with any first-class millinery establishment, we have secured the best talent to be had to give our Hats that beauty and elegance which is consistent with refined taste, at popular prices to suit all trade.

The success of such a department has never been tried in this city, a department where STYLISH TRIMMED HATS are sold at but small advance on the cost of hat and trimmings, and we trust that the ladies of Boston and vicinity will avail themselves of the opportunity to leave their orders early, so that they can receive proper attention.

OPENING
—OF OUR—
Cotton Underwear Dep't

In order to place this department properly before the public, we shall offer at less than cost our inaugurating sale, as follows:—

Lot 1. Chemises, Drawers, Corset Covers, for Ladies and Children, at 25c. each.

Lot 2. Chemises, Drawers, Skirts, Night Dresses, Hamburg trimmed, at 50c. each.

Lot 3. The same, at 75c.

Lot 4. The same at $1.00.

We refrain from giving a description of each and every article, and prefer giving good cloth and good trimmings to advertising the different clusters of tucks, etc., and showing a poor article.

We hope ladies will avail themselves of this sale, as we shall not feel able to continue it for any length of time.

OPENING
—OF OUR—
DEPARTMENT.

This department has been placed at the rear part of our store, and has been made the most attractive place in Boston.

The department faces a sheet of mirror, 50 feet in length and 9 feet in height, so as to give every opportunity to the purchaser to see at a glance whether a hat is becoming or otherwise.

The following New Shapes will be offered at our opening: The Critic, Fedora, Iolanthe, Mignon, Poppy, Patti, Thursby, Nautilus, Casino, Sprite, Marquise, Servia, and many others.

HORSE CARS pass our door from all railroad stations, a great convenience to our out-of-town patrons.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, APR. 21, 1883.

To the Memory

of Samuel B. Pope, who died in Quincy, March 7, 1882, aged 83 years.

A faithful friend has left us,
  Our loss we deeply feel;
And often in the future will
  Sad memories o'er us steal.

For days that have departed,
  Our hearts will heave a sigh
For one who shared our pleasures,
  Gone to his home on high.

How suddenly Death's angel
  Came with uplifted sword,
To slay a bright and faithful man
  Without a warning word.

A wife's heart is broken,
  A family's hopes are crushed;
The voice they loved so dearly
  For evermore is hushed.

The tender ties of friendship,
  Which grew within the past,
Are severed now, while o'er our hearts
  A shade of gloom is cast.

His presence was so cheerful
  To all where 'er he came;
Humility was his motto,
  And virtue was his aim.

Fond wife, cease thy weeping;
  Brave children, dry thy tears;
The same will be thy journey
  Within a few short years.

Farewell, dear friend, forever;
  On earth we meet no more.
But may we meet with angels bright
  On that celestial shore.

—A FRIEND SINCERE.

Farm and Garden.

On a Large Scale.

A writer to the Boston Post says:—"I recently visited the poultry farm of A. C. Hawkins of Lancaster, Mass., who has one of the largest and most successful establishments of the kind in the country. Mr. Hawkins has a farm of 25 acres, and his buildings occupy about one and a half acres. He calculates to have about 8,000 fowls every fall, and carries 2,500 laying hens through the winter. The buildings are situated on the south slope of a hill, and comprise six or seven sheds about 200 feet in length. Each shed is divided into apartments of 12 by 20, and about 25 hens are allowed for each division. A yard is built in front of each apartment so that the members of each family are by themselves. Mr. Hawkins believes that if confined poultry have all their wants attended to they will do as well in egg production as if allowed free range, and bases this statement upon several tests. At present he has 200 hens sitting, all of which are to hatch the same day, and in connection with this natural mode of incubation he has an artificial incubator of 1,000 egg capacity, in which are 500 eggs which are due to hatch on the same day as the eggs under the hens, the chickens from which will be distributed among the two hundred hens. It takes 10 bushels of feed daily for his stock in the winter, and a careful estimate shows that the cost of keeping for the whole year is from $1.10 to $1.20 per head, and the net profit on each hen is $1.25 to $1.30. The item of poultry manure is one little thought of as a source of revenue, but it is a fact that the collections of this article from beneath the roost amount to one-third of the cost of the food for a year. Last year Mr. Hawkins sold 500 barrels at $1.50 per barrel.

This large establishment is conducted most of the year with one assistant, but when the incubating season arrives, the services of another is required. Mr. Hawkins keeps pure bred stock of the Plymouth Rock variety, and, having so large a stock from which to select, he is enabled to choose birds for breeding pens which are very near the standard as regards the fancy points, and he has met with great success as an exhibitor of this variety at poultry shows for the past two years. This reputation which he achieved is now an additional source of revenue, as his sales of fowls and eggs for hatching at fancy prices are very large, 90 per cent of which is net profit, and he also has a standing order for 60 to 90 dozen of eggs daily, for which he gets the highest market price. Mr. Hawkins began at the age of 21, his father assisting him in order to keep him at home. The first year he erected one shed and stocked it, and by careful management and economy he was able to add two more buildings the following year from his profits, and his business has been enlarged each succeeding year, until it has assumed its present mammoth proportions, and he now has the business well under control and is enjoying at the age of 28 a very handsome income.

It must not be understood that every one would meet with like success. It requires a party who will give it personal attention, possess a thorough knowledge of the diseases of poultry and treatment of the same, and last but not least neatness about the premises. If one possesses these requirements, has a little capital and has a moderate attack of what is known as 'hen fever,' we think that poultry can be made to pay."

☞ A correspondent of the New England Farmer says that where the land is new and rich in mineral elements there need be no fear of black knot in plum and cherry trees.

Anecdotes.

A gentleman inquired of the young lady clerk in the bookstore, the other day, if they had "Gates Ajar."

She said yes, they had one. It was the front gate, and since the warm weather began it had got to sagging so that they couldn't shut it, and it was ajar most of the time. She suggestively added, however, that the side gate still worked nicely.

A few days since a boy was passing through the cars on the Erie road, handing out advertisements of "Nothing to Wear," illustrated.

A lady remarked to a gentleman, "This takes off the ladies, I suppose."

"No," replied her friend, "it only takes off their dresses."

"Then," replied the lady, "it is proper that a stripling should sell it."

"Sam, how do you like that knife I sold you last week?"

"So, so. It's not very sharp, yet you managed to shave me with it."

"What can you do on a farm?" inquired a farmer of a man who wanted work. "Do you know how to build a stone wall?"

"O yes. Any fool knows that. You just have to set one stone on another."

"No, you don't!" thundered the farmer. "You have to set one stone or two. You can go."

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

The Temperance Movement.

The origin of the temperance movement dates from the beginning of the present century, and the merit of having taken the first steps in the matter belongs to America, where the vice of drunkenness appears to have reached an alarming height about that time. In the month of April, 1808, a society was established at Moreau, County of Saratoga, in the State of New York, consisting of forty-three members, one of whose rules was as follows:

Art. 4. No member shall drink rum, gin, whisky, wine, or any distilled spirits, or compositions of the same, or any of them, except by the advice of a physician, or in case of actual disease, (also, excepting at public dinners,) under the penalty of 25 cents, provided that this article shall not infringe on any religious rite.

This society had other rules prohibiting members, (under penalties,) from offering any of the above liquors, or from being intoxicated; but though it continued to exist for 14 years, it does not seem to have accomplished much good. Gradually, however, the attention of the clergy and of philanthropic laymen was called to the subject; and after a series of sermons had been preached and published against a vice whose rapid progress was threatening (according to Dr. B. J. Clarke) to make the Americans "a community of drunkards," a society was started at Boston, February, 1826, called "The American Temperance Society," to restrain and prevent the intemperate use of intoxicating liquors.

In 1829 the New York State Temperance Society was formed, and before the close of the year 1000 local societies, with 100,000 members, were in existence, and a periodical, entitled, "The Journal of Humanity," established to promote the new movement. Rumors of the progress of temperance societies soon reached the Old World, and in August, 1829, a society was started at New Ross, in the County of Wexford, Ireland, under the auspices of the Rev. George Whitmore Carr, the members of which pledged themselves to abstain from the use of distilled spirits, except as a medicine in case of bodily ailments; and further, "neither to allow the use of them in their families, nor provide them for the entertainment of friends.

Simultaneously, a movement in favor of temperance was begun in Belfast and the North of Ireland by the Rev. Dr. Edgar, Rev. Dr. Cook and Rev. Mr. Morgan, and before 12 months were over, 60 societies had been constituted, numbering about 3500 members, both Catholic and Protestants.

Meanwhile Scotland had not been uninfluenced.—Chambers' Encyclopedia.

Household Receipts.

DELICIOUS PUDDING. A delicious pudding is made thus: Sift two tablespoonfuls of flour, and mix with the beaten yolks of six eggs; add gradually one pint of sweet cream, a quarter of a pound of citron cut in very thin slices, and two table-spoonfuls of sugar; mix thoroughly, pour into a buttered tin, and bake twenty-five minutes. Serve with vanilla sauce.

SENSIBLE CAKE. One cupful of sugar, two-thirds cupful of milk, one and one-half cupsful of flour, one egg, one tablespoonful of soft butter, two teaspoonsful of Cleveland's superior baking powder, one-fourth of a nutmeg. Bake in biscuit-pan; cut in squares.

ROLL JELLY CAKE. One cupful of sugar, one cupful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream-tartar, four eggs beaten separately, whites added to yolks and sugar; all stirred into flour. Bake in two large sheets. Spread while hot, with jelly; roll closely; wrap in towel till cut.

JUMBLES. Three cupsful of granulated sugar, one and one-half cupsful of butter, one cupful of milk, six cupsful of flour, four eggs, one nutmeg, or one teaspoonful extract of lemon, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream-tartar. Drop in a circle from a teaspoon in a dripping-pan; sift sugar over the top; bake quickly.

Fashion Notes.

Now that a French dressmaker has set the fashion of putting buttons of many different sorts on one garment, it will be possible to discover a use for those strings of buttons which it was fashionable to collect a few years ago.

Two sorts of cord are used in the newest embroidery upon street costumes, one containing several colors and one exactly matching the dress material, and the two are so blended as to imitate silk embroidery with considerable accuracy.

Eight large ribbon bows is not considered too many to put on one bonnet in Paris, even although the colors are curiously diversified. Milliners who have a stock of old ribbon are by no means unhappy.

An odd new pattern in sateen has a disk in some dull color on a black ground, with a pansy in gray or mauve tints in each spot. This goods is made up with black or gray sateen.

A new pelisse, combining the tight-fitting body which is so becoming to a good figure, with a loose, comfortable sleeve, is pictured in the Bazar. The fronts are turned back and faced with black velvet which widens from the throat to the hem of the garment, and the back breadths are faced from the waist to the hem in the same way. The sleeves are shorter on the inside of the arm than on the out, and are deeply faced, and elaborate braiding borders both sleeves and the rest of the garment.

After years of absolute plainness the side-breadths of skirts are now made with two plaits at the top. Stout women, and women with sense enough to care for their health, will cling to the old fashion, which insured lightness, and which, if skilfully managed, makes a skirt fall more gracefully than any other way of cutting.

☞ "I never was better in my life," as the man said when asked to take a wager.

☞ "New rope for halters may," says the Ohio Farmer, "be rendered permanently "limber and soft," by boiling two hours in water and then drying in a warm room.

☞ In the Diamond Dyes more coloring is given for 10 cts. than in any 15 or 25-cent dyes, and they give faster and more brilliant colors.

The duel between Scylla and Graves was, perhaps, the most hideous trophy of that almost extinct relic of barbarism—the "Code of Honor," as it was called. Both participants in that bloody conflict were killed. So far as we know, Dr. Graves, who discovered the renowned Heart Regulator which bears his name, never claimed relationship with the duellist. The doctor has been a public benefactor and his regulator assuredly has cured aggravated cases of heart diseases in this section of the country.—Cleveland Plaindealer.

*Ten years ago the name of Lydia E. Pinkham was scarcely known outside of her native State. To-day it is a household word all over the Continent, and many who read the secular and religious journals have become familiar with the face that shines on them with a modest confidence, in which we read the truth, "Nothing ill can dwell in such a temple."

☞ Paraffine was first obtained from coal in 1830, and from mineral oil in 1848.

Ben Johnson, the celebrated English play-writer, said, "to speak, and to speak well, are two things." The patrons of Wheat Bitters all combine this difficult attribute. They speak uniformly well of the cures which attend the use of the Bitters. Have you tried them, reader?

FLIES AND BUGS.
Flies, roaches, ants, bed bugs, rats, mice gophers, chipmunks cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

Notwithstanding the severe drought experienced in most parts of Massachusetts last year, some farmers obtained good crops, as is illustrated by the following letter, which we have received:—

ESSEX, MASS., Dec. 7, 1882.

I have continued to use Bradley's Phosphate another year with satisfactory results.

Beginning three years ago with a single trial bag, we have this year applied it to all our hoed crops. Being satisfied of its value from past experience, we made no trials of its merits except on a part of a field of potatoes in connection with other manures. We found it paid us 200 per cent, besides increasing the salableness of the whole crop by improving size and quality.

We sometimes hear the complaint made that artificial fertilizers fail to do any good in a dry season like the past, but we have no complaint to make, as this Phosphate helped to force most of our early crops along before the drough began, while its timely application, after the September rains, did much towards saving our late crops. I think a judicious application of this Phosphate cannot fail to be profitable to every farmer.

Scarlet Fever, Small Pox, Diphtheria, Measles, &c.

Office of the Board of Health.

QUINCY, JULY 29, 1882.

THE Board of Health issues the following notice:—That on and after MONDAY, July 31st, 1882, the following provisions of Chapter 80 of the Public Statutes will be strictly enforced:—

SEC. 78. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town in which he dwells. If he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $100.

SEC. 79. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with Small Pox or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit for each offence not less than $50, nor more than $100.

The Board considers the above sections to apply to scarlet fever, small pox, diphtheria, measles and whooping cough.

Poetry.

Learn to Walk Alone.

This world's riddle hard to solve,
A puzzle hard to read;
And they who find Life's path all bright
Are precious few, indeed.
Yet don't despair, though fortune frown,
Nor murmur at your fate;
Your aim in life by earnest toil
You'll sure win soon or late.
But walk upon your feet, friend,
Nor trust to other's strength
To carry or to pull you up
Life's hill of weary length.
If e'er you hope to "make you mark,"
Or let your worth be known,
Take all the props from under you,
And learn to walk alone.

Men! who depend on borrowed gold
To brighten up your name,
And plead you must make such display
Your future wealth to gain,
Beware! "Pay as you go" is best,
Debt is an ugly foe;
You cannot tell what hour the fiend
Will strike a fatal blow.
Sons! stand without your father's aid;
Upon yourselves rely;
Rich fruitage in the future lies;
You'll win it if you try.
Know that the "solid man" is he
(In high or humble home,)
Who has no props to lean upon,
But walks along alone!

Miscellany.

Changed Her Mind.

Miss Becky was going to the "Old Ladies' Home" at last. It was a sorry fact, but there was nothing else for her to do, it seemed. Who would think of offering any other home to a poor, almost helpless old woman who had outlived her usefulness? Having passed her days in other people's houses, so to speak, she might not mind it as much, perhaps, as a more fortunate being.

"Yes," she said, "there's a vacancy in the 'Old Ladies' Home,' and the hundred dollars that Parson Amory left me will pay my way in, but it wouldn't last me long if I began to spend it, you know, and I shall have a warm bed and my regular meals without worrying about where the next one's coming from. I'm 'most tired worrying about ways and means. Seems as though I had been about it all my life; ever since father was taken with the heart disease hearing the class in algebra. Now that the rheumatism has got the better of me, so that I can't work in cold weather, and the doctor says it 'ill draw my fingers up so that I can't use them soon, it doesn't seem as if there was anything left for me in this world but the Home and I ought to be thankful for that!"

Miss Becky had other expectations in her heyday, when young Larry Rogers met her and carried her basket; when his strong arm paddled her down the broad river to church on Sunday mornings; when they sang together in the choir from the same hymn-book; when they loitered homeward in the fragrant summer dusk, and heard the whip-poor-will complain, and startled the fire-flies in the hedges as they brushed by. It sometimes seemed to Miss Becky as if all this had happened in another planet. She was young then, with a bloom on her cheek; but although the rheumatism had bent her figure and rendered her more or less helpless at times, yet her dark, velvety eyes looked out like soft stars, and the ghost of a dimple still flickered on cheek and chin in spite of her sixty odd years. Miss Becky's father had been the district school-teacher in those far-off days of her girlhood. He had taught her the simple lore at his command, but it was Larry Rogers who had taught her music, hour after hour, in the empty old school-house; they had practiced together, while he wrote the score on the blackboard. But all this had not sufficed to enable her to earn a livelihood. Her education, musical and otherwise, had stopped short of any commercial value. In those days she had never expectad to earn her living by the sweat of her brow. Larry was going to give her everything. How trivial the little quarrel seemed to-day which circumvented this fine resolve of his! But what magnitude it had assumed at the time! On his return from a trip to a neighboring city, some busybody had whispered to Larry that Miss Becky had been seen driving with Squire Eustis' son Sam behind his trotters. Sam was just home from college, a harum-scarum fellow they said, who made love right and left and gambled a bit; and when Larry reproached her with it she had not denied; she had simply said: "What then? If you choose to listen to gossip rather than wait till I tell you—"

"But you didn't tell me, and I've been home a week."

"I had forgotten all about it till you reminded me," said Becky.

"It's such an every-day affair for you to drive with Sam Eustis!" which incredulity so stung Becky that she would not condescend to explain that she had carried some needle-work up to Squire Eustis' which she had been doing for his wife, and that as she left to walk home Sam was just starting off with his smart chaise and new dapple-grays, and the squire had said, "Take Miss Becky home, Sam, and show her their paces;" and how she had been ashamed to refuse the kindness, although preferring to walk a thousand times; and how once in the chaise Sam had been the pink of courtesy, and had begged her to drive with him to Parson Amory's, three miles out of her way, "That Lucy Amory may see that you don't disdain my company. For you see," said Sam, who was not as black as he was painted or as many liked to suppose, "Lucy can make me what she will; without her I shall be nothing and nobody; but they've told her all kinds of wild things about me; they've told her she might as well jump into the river as marry such a scapegrace. And perhaps if I made her a little jealous—you know there's no harm in that, is there? All's fair in love; and, perhaps, if the old folks see me driving about with Miss Becky Thorne, my stock may go up, and I may be 'saved from the burning,' as Parson Amory says." And Becky had consented; how could she refuse to do a service for such a true lover? So slight a thing, too! She had often since traversed the same road on foot, on her daily rounds of toil and mercy. Sam Eustis had married Lucy Amory years ago, and was the foremost man in the county to-day. Strange how that friendly drive had interfered with Miss Becky's prospects; how the simple fact of carrying home Mrs. Eustis' needle-work should have determined her fate, and devoted her to a life of hardship and the "Old Ladies' Home" at the end! Talk of trifles! Poor Miss Becky! she remembered that once or twice the opportunity had offered when she might have made it up with Larry; but pride, or a sort of reserve had locked her lips—Larry ought to know that she was above silly flirtations. Once, when they met at Lucy Amory's wedding, when they all went out into the orchard while the bride planted a young tree, and the guests looked for four-leaved clovers, she had found herself—whether by accident or design she could not tell—on the grass beside Larry; their fingers met over the same lucky clover, their eyes met above it, and for an instant she had it on her tongue's end to confess all about the drive and its result, to put pride in her pocket, but just then Nell Amory called to Larry:

"Oh, a horrid spider!—on my arm, Larry—kill him quick—do! Oh—oh—oh! I shall die—I shall faint." And that was the end of it.

The old orchard, with its fragrant quince bushes, its gnarled apple-trees, its four-leaved clovers, was a thing of the past; a cotton mill thundered there all day long—where the birds built and the trees bourgeoned thirty odd years ago. It no longer blossomed, except in Miss Becky's memory. She had turned her thoughts to raising plants, when she was left to her own resources, but one cruel winter's night killed all her slips and the capital was lacking by which she might renew her stock. Since then she had gone out for daily sewing, had watched with the sick, had been in demand for temporary house-keeper whenever a tired matron wished an outing; but latterly, her eyes no longer served her for fine work, and sewing-machines had been introduced; she was not so alert in the sick-room as of yore; she moved more slowly, and her housekeeping talent was no longer in request; added to this the bank where her little earnings had been growing, one day failed and left her high and dry. Some of her friends had traveled to pastures new, some married away, some had ignored or forgotten her. As for Larry Rogers, he had been away from Plymouth this many a year. Somebody had sent him abroad the year after Lucy Amory's marriage to develop his musical genius. He had grown into a famous violinist, playing all over the country to crowded houses, before the finest people in the land. It was a beautiful romance to Miss Becky to read in the Record about "our gifted townsman;" she seemed to hear the echo of his violin when the wind swept through the pine boughs. She had no bitter thoughts; she did not blame him because she sat in shadow, because her life had been colorless. She sang again the old tunes he had taught her, and made a little sunshine in her heart. All of happiness she had ever known he had brought her. Why should she complain? And now she was going to the "Old Ladies' Home."

"It isn't exactly what I expected in my youth," she said to the old doctor's widow.

"No; but you will have a nice room and a bright fire, and the neighbors will drop in to see you, and make it seem home-like. Now, there's old Mrs. Gunn. Nothing can pursuade her to go to the Home. She says it's only a genteel almshouse after all; and so she rubs along with what little she can earn and what the neighbors have a mind to send in; and they have to do it mighty gingerly, too, just as if they were asking a favor of her. Lor', she doesn't earn her salt."

"I dare say," returned Miss Becky. "Now, if it hadn't been for the rheumatism, I could earn my living for years yet, and maybe get something ahead again. But it seems as if the rheumatism laid in wait for the poor and friendless."

"You ought to have married when you were young, Becky," said the doctor's widow, who had forgotten all about Becky's love affair, and labored under the impression that she had never had a chance, an impression that matrons are apt to entertain concerning their single friends. Miss Becky had been spending some weeks with Mrs. Dr. Dwight, who had moved away from Plymouth after her husband's death. She was there chiefly in order to put some stiches into the widow's wardrobe, which nobody else would do "reasonably," that lady's grief having incapacitated her for holding a needle or giving her mind to the material details of "seam and gusset and band." But during the visit Miss Becky had been seized with her sharpest attack of rheumatism, which had kept her in bed for weeks, till her wages were exhausted by drugs and doctor's fees. It was at this time that she made up her mind to go into the home on her return to Plymouth.

Mrs. Dwight saw her off at the station. "I hope you'll find the house easy," she said outside the car window." "It's lucky Parson Amory left you that hundred dollars after all. He might have doubled it."

"Yes, I suppose so," Miss Becky answered meekly. Perhaps she was thinking that if she was Mrs. Dwight no old friend of hers should go begging for a refuge at an almshouse door, were it ever so genteel an almshouse. Perhaps she was thinking of the pretty, comfortable home waiting for her friend, and wondering why their fortunes were so unlike.

"Write when you reach Plymouth, and let me know how you're suited," said Mrs. Dwight; and just then the cars gave a lurch and left her behind, and Miss Becky turned her glance inwards. Somebody had taken the seat beside her.

"Your friend was speaking of Parson Amory and Plymouth," said he. "I could n't help hearing. I was born in Plymouth myself, but I have n't met a soul from there these twenty years. I'm on my way down to look my old friends."

"Twenty years is a long time," answered Becky. "I'm afaid you won't find many of your friends left. You'll hardly know Plymouth."

"I suppose not — I suppose not. Have you lived there long?

"I? I have lived there all my days."

"Good! I'm hungry for news of the people. Tell me every thing you can think of. Did Parson Amory leave a fortune? He was called close. Where's Miss Nell — married or dead? I can see the old place in my mind's eye; and the parsonage under the elms, and the orchard behind it, where Lucy Amory planted a young tree on her wedding day, and the gown little Becky Thorne wore — by the way, is she alive? Do you know her?"

Miss Becky hesitated an instant.

"Yes," she replied, "I know her more or less. She's alive."

"And married?"

"Well, no; she never married."

"She must be sixty odd; she was a pretty creature, such dimples — I suppose they are wrinkles now! Where have the years gone? Is her home in the old place still?"

"Her home!" said Miss Becky, flushing a little. "She has none. She is on her way to the Old Ladies' Home."

"To the Old Ladies' Home! Becky Thorne!" he gasped "and I—"

"You seem to have known her pretty well," said Miss Becky, who was beginning to enjoy the incognito.

"I should think so! I've loved Becky Thorne from my cradle; we had a silly quarrel which parted us — such a trifle. When I look back. Do you ever look back, madame?"

The twilight was falling about them; Becky's face had grown a shade or two paler all at once; she turned her dark velvety eyes full upon him with a startled air.

"You," she said, "you must be Larry Rogers!" Then color swept to her cheeks in a crimsom wave. "Do you know, I never thought you had grown old like myself! Don't you know me? I am Becky Thorne."

Just then the train thundered through the tunnel, and they forgot that were sixty odd.

"On the way to the Old Ladies' Home," she wrote Mr. Dwight. "I was persuaded to go to an old gentleman's instead."

A Summer Visit to Canada.

WAYSIDE NOTES, NO. 7.

In this piece for the PATRIOT I am going to tell you something about Grand Manan, which is a romantic island in the spacious bay which is called for short "'Quoddy bay." By cutting off the first three syllables we save a few motions of the tongue in pronouncing it. The Indians are rather lazy fellows, you know, wherever you find them; so they take a part of their leisure time in getting up long, jaw-breaking names for their places and their children too.

"Let me say a few words before I begin," as the Irishman said. Nine years ago Burt Dell and myself went on a summer ramble to the Eastern shore of Maine, and when we reached the jumping-off place, six miles beyond Addison point, we took a boat, and though the wind was dead ahead our good skipper, who was quite an old salt in his line beat us away out three miles to the very gates of the open sea to Nash Island. There is a lighthouse here, kept at the time by a friend of mine. See if you can guess by this riddle how close the tie of friendship was which united us:

Brothers and sisters I have none,
And this friend's father was my father's son.

Nash Island light shed a rich, ruby ray far out on the wild ocean, so that ships sailed safely along in the darkest night. In the dusky evenings, as Ed. and I walked about this granite-bound island which he had all to himself, and was monarch of all he surveyed, I used to look at and admire, far over the sounding sea, a bright, flashing light, which had a lofty seat in the sky. "That," said Edward, "is Grand Manan light." That splendid flame has been burning ever since, and will glow on in its quiet and benevolent mission, making the sailor's heart sing for joy. The lighthouse has nothing to say, but its loving look is a blessing to millions. Quiet people, who have no religion to speak of, do the most and the best work after all. Isn't it so, dear reader?

Presto! Change! We are now on the handsome island of Grand Manan. From its shape it might be called Long Island, for it is twenty miles long and about four miles wide. It has a lofty brow on the Western shore. Its front rises cliff-like, almost perpendicularly from the sea, to a height ranging from 200 to 400 feet. It is very picturesque in its aspect, and reminds one, at a distance of a dozen miles, of the palisades on the Hudson river on the way from New York to Albany, which presents some of the most attractive scenery in the world. Then we find this island sloping down evenly to the Eastern shore. The lamp in the Grand Manan lighthouse is 150 feet above the water, and pours its golden beams for leagues around. It is one of the most important lights which illuminate the perilous paths of the sea. The population of this island is nearly 2,500. The farms are small and not very productive. The great majority of the people follow the sea, as they say. About every other man you meet is a fisherman, and every other woman you meet is a fisherman's wife or daughter. The folks here, or shall I call them the Grand Mananers, are very steady, industrious and friendly. They are much attached to their island home. The law allows no fishing between six o'clock Saturday evening and six o'clock Monday morning, and it is a very rare thing to find one who has violated this law, made in the interest of morality and the proper observance of Sunday, which is due to the natural needs of men, as well as to the claims of the Divine command.

Grand Manan forms a parish by itself in the county of Charlotte, whose shire town is St. Andrew's. This county is to be commended for its high state of morality and freedom from crime and the ravings of rum drinking, which is the monster-mother of nine crimes out of ten. I found in the jail of this county of 27,000 inhabitants but six persons,—one old man of nine-two was accused of the grave crime of arson. It was sad to see a man of more than four score years and ten charged with such a heinous offence. "The hoary head is a crown of glory," sings Solomon; but he does not forget to add these impressive words: "If it be found in the way of righteousness;" otherwise it is the badge of the darkest dishonor.

Grand Manan sends two councillors to the Provincial Legislature at Fredericton, and holds also a semi-annual council for the management of its internal affairs. There are two dozen fresh water lakes on this sea-girt isle, and a few brooks of clear, cold water sends their crystal streams down the emerald hillsides to the ocean caves, where the herrings swarm and swim at their own sweet will until they are caught, as they are, by millions of barrels.

There is an old cemetery here, and on one of its crumbling headstones you will read this epitaph, breathing a fine sentiment:

"I leave the world without a tear,
Save for the friends I hold so dear;
To heal their sorrows, Lord, descend,
And to the friendless prove a friend."

New York Fashions.

FASHION GROWN QUEER.

In place of originality, we have oddity. Queer monstrosities of a few or many sided figures; of great circular spots or rings, causing one to look astif dressed up in leaves torn from a school geometry or astronomy. Flying fowl wander over desert surfaces of fine wool or satin, where heads of beasts peer likewise at you, while the exuberance of tropical forests is imitated by palm leaves about a foot in length, feathery grasses turning every way, mammoth flowers and the like. Again if one chooses a plain piece of goods can be queerly covered with circles or or other mathematical figures cut from velvet or satin, and put on in applique; or yet richer results may be brought about by purchasing velvet leaves or sprays and deftly sewing them down on some handsome groundwork. In this last idea there are beautiful possibilities, but in most of what has gone before the discerning eye sees nothing but a craving for queerness, which gives good evidence that real brain power is lacking. To tell the whole truth, moreover, these thoughts are not entirely novel. They have been seen before, but this season are taken up and wafted on wings of popularity to high position. Frequent absurdity ensues, of course, for what more absurd than a short doiman covered with spots three inches in diameter? From such examples one can draw conclusions.

YELLOW TOP KNOTS

on bonnets that are so numerous and piquant that the staidest Methodist parson might feel impressed thereby. Sometimes a single bright yellow ball is set exactly on top of a flat capote, with what singular results one may imagine. Again, there may be a cluster of three or four balls, or one or two small ostrich tips to do duty. Sometimes these ornamentations are set on the side, but they are nothing if not a bright orange color; frequently a reddish orange. When the flowery kingdom incident on Spring opens fairly on us, we may expect notable peculiarities from this sudden rushing after a very bright yellow, and as a fore-cast I can mention a broad-brimmed straw where a veritable bank of bright yellow blossoms swept in an almost entire circuit. What shall be said, too, regarding long silk gloves of bright orange color? Shall they not cause the good Methodist dignitary to stare, and not only he, but divines of all degrees who gather to our May anniversaries? To bright red silk gloves we became accustomed last summer, and when shown this season they fail to make much impression. By midsummer we shall get used to orange color, but by the time we get used to a thing it is about time for it to be a possible thing no longer. It is time for it to be laid away to give place to the next impossible looking thing.

SPIDERS FASHIONABLE.

Beyond a doubt spiders are fashionable. Great, crawling spiders, ever so big, with ever so many sprawling legs. They nestle among scarfs, pin together kerchiefs, stand as solitary sentinels in finish to standing linen collars, or sprawl on the left side of the corsage or on a bonnet. Bugs do the same, and indescribable creatures of unknown species. All are welcome provided they are large enough, have legs enough, and are of metal. Not many together, but one alone, showing off conspicuously. Then, too, we have pins and pins. Stuck here, there, any ery where, and coming in conveniently where a bug or spider would be inconvenient. Pins of gold, silver, colored metal, or tiny bugs or blossoms pretending to be pins. Like the sticking of pins, however comes now the reflection that I have told you nothing practical about your Spring clothes, and you will think your correspondent as queer as Fashion herself. In apology, let me say I have presumed each one of you to be provided with Lord & Taylor's Spring catalogue, where the ground is so completely covered, that, driven from the field, I take refuge in telling you only of queer things.

LUCY CARTER.

Pictures.

A room with pictures in it, and a room without pictures, differ by nearly as much as a room with windows, and a room without windows. Nothing, we think is more melancholly, particularly to a person who has to pass much time in his room, than blank walls; for pictures are loopholes of escape to the soul, leading it to other scenes and spheres. It is such an inexpressible relief to a person engaged in writing or even reading, on looking up, to find his soul escaping, as it were, through the frame of an exquisite picture, to other beautiful, and perhaps idyllic scenes, where the fancy for a moment may revel, refreshed and delighted. Is it winter in your world? Perhaps it is summer in the picture; what a charming momentary change and contrast. And thus pictures are consolers of loneliness; they are a sweet flattery to the soul; they are a relief to the jaded mind; they are windows to imprisoned thought; they are books; they are histories and sermons, which can be read without the trouble of turning over the leaves.

An Unalterable Face.

There is said to be a man in Bellevue hospital, New York, with a face that never alters its expression in the slighest degree. Something is the matter with the nerves and muscles so that they do not work at all. Not the faintest smile nor the suggestion of a frown ever varies the stolid monotony of his countenance. The features are regular and rather handsome, their being no distortion, or any outward evidence of the affection other than the strange immobility. His name is Henry Stube, but he is called "Masky," because his face is so much like a mask, behind which he laughs and weeps unseen. He has worn this mask of his for two years. He acquired it after a neuralgic cold. He is being treated with electricity chiefly, and the physicians think he will recover. In the mean time he parts his lips with his fingers for the introduction of food and water, and when he sleeps his eyelids are held shut by a slight bandage. His imperfect talking is done without moving his lips, and when he speaks or listens the impassiveness of his face looks singular indeed. There is something uncanny about it, and, after the idea has once got into your mind, you can hardly regard this face as anything else than a mask.

The Cost of Stopping a Train.

This is a problem which may possibly be cleared up one of these days, but just now the outlook in that direction is not promising. The best plan would seem to be, to get a large number of experienced railroad men to guess at it and then average the guesses. This would be an approximation near enough, perhaps, for all practical purposes.

Any one who will figure the cost of stopping a passenger train down to the fraction of a cent, and then prove his figuring to be correct, will beat the weather prophets all to pieces. A very little reflection, however, ought to satisfy any rational mind that it is quite impossible to disentangle and separate all the elements of cost that enter into the stopping of any particular train from the various elements of cost involved in the general operations of a road.

There is manifestly no dividing line by means of which the former can be eliminated with any degree of precision. The basis upon which to work in order to arrive at an approximate result is more unreliable than that upon which the mileage cost of transporting freight is estimated, and apparently of much less importance. It is a problem, as it seems to us, that is more speculative than practical. The making of stops by railroad trains is a necessity, no matter what the cost may be. The cost of the regular stops of passenger trains is probably about as little as it can be with due regard for the interests of the traffic, and if such cost could be ascertained with absolute certainty for each and every train, it would amount to little more than a curious piece of information.—National Car Builder.

CHLORINE AS PLANT FOOD. A German exchange says that chlorine is a very important nutriment for plants. To all appearances the chloride of potasium exceeds the nitrate in nutritive value as long as the quantity does not exceed a definite limit. When there is too much of the chloride, the quantity of chlorophyl decreases, the plants ripen sooner, but the oxalic acid increases in quantity. In fact, it acts just like hydrochloric acid would.

Universalist Festival.

By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that the ladies of the Universalist Society have projected a May fair and festival for Wednesday and Thursday evenings of next week. We note with pleasure that unusual attractions have been provided and no pains have been spared to secure the best that can edify and please by way of entertainment; while the tables will be rich in articles to gratify the individual taste. The people of our town and vicinity are here afforded the opportunity of seeing at every advantage the interior of a most unique specimen of church architecture, while at the same time regaling themselves with such a supper as the efficient corps of ladies are celebrated for serving, or listening to the interpretation of dramatic art and song, or again purchasing such articles from the large exhibit as they may select to adorn their homes. We bespeak such an attendance as will test the capacity of the structure to the utmost. Our suggestion is to go early.

Fires.

The alarm of fire from Box 64, at 5.40 P. M., last week Friday, was rung in by Engineer Duggan for a fire at the fertilizer works in Atlantic. It was discovered, and entirely confined to a large framed building containing several hundred feet of steam piping, and used as a dry house for old bones.

At one time it seemed as though the building in which there is a steam boiler, engine, kettles, and other valuable machinery would certainly be destroyed.

The whole fire department, with the exception of the hand engines, responded with promptness, and to their successful efforts is due the small loss, which will not exceed two hundred and fifty dollars. As usual, a large number of spectators were present, and it was a matter of general surprise among many to learn that the Atlantic Chemical engine was able to cope with such a blaze.

The loss is fully covered by insurance, and work in repairing the damage has already commenced.

On Wednesday, Engineer Duggan again pulled in an alarm from box 64, for a fire seen a mile away. It proved to be the barn and house of Mr. Oliver L. Jones, off Squantum street, near the residence of the late Dr. W. B. Duggan. Owing to a scarcity of water and the lateness of the alarm, both buildings were burned flat. A two-story house near by, owned by Mr. H. W. Glover, was saved by the chemical engines. Loss, about $50.

The fire is supposed to have caught from a bon-fire in the rear of the barn, and only a few rods away. The flames were first noticed in the cupola on the barn, and spread very rapidly, as the wind was blowing quite hard. The steamer arrived in about thirty minutes after the alarm, and played for four hours, up hill, through 1550 feet of hose, occasionally bursting the same.

Mr. Jones' loss is estimated at $6000; insured for $5500.

PERSONAL. Capt. Charles Spear, a brother to Mrs. Benj. Curtis and Mrs. Joseph T. French, is a steamboat man of life-long experience. Beginning nearly forty years ago as clerk on Eastern steamers from Boston, he served a thorough apprenticeship in the business. When in 1849 and subsequently he was associated with the late Mr. Cunningham in running steamers between San Francisco and Sacramento, he made a great success. He is exceedingly alert in his movements, quick to decide matters of moment, and his great familiarity with all sorts of steamboat requirements will peculiarly fit him for his arduous duties this summer, as superintendent of the Boston and Hingham Steamboat Company.

INFORMATION WANTED. An old gentleman, of about sixty years, came to Quincy Home this week in a feeble condition, and died soon afterwards of hemorrhage of the brain. He gave the name of Ebenezer Chase, but that is about all the Superintendent knows of him. If any of his relatives or friends who may notice this article, can give any information about him to the Overseers of the Poor, or to Mr. Geo. A. Ordway at the Home, it would be most thankfully received.

SUPERINTENDENT. Mr. G. I. Aldrich has been elected by the school committee to succeed Mr. Brown as superintendent, and will take charge of our schools on the first Monday in May. Mr. Aldrich, who for three years was a popular and successful teacher in our Adams school, has for five years past been superintendent of the schools in Canton, and for three years has successfully conducted the schools of both Canton and Milton. He will not sever his connection with the Milton schools, an arrangement having been entered into between the committees of Milton and Quincy, under which he will have charge of the schools in both towns.

MAY FESTIVAL. We call attention to the advertisement of the May Festival which is to be given under the management of the Fragment Society of the Unitarian Church. It promises to be one of the best of the kind ever given in Quincy. All has been provided that is calculated to give young and old a good time. There will be a sale of fancy articles and refreshments, dancing around the May pole, costume dancing, marching and dancing for all. In the evening there will be an excellent entertainment. It is designed that children shall come at 10 A. M. and stay till 2 P. M.; and that adults shall come at 6 and stay till 10 P. M.

BRANCH ROAD. The Directors of the Old Colony Railroad Company have petitioned the Selectmen of Quincy for a hearing in behalf of a branch road which they wish to lay out from a certain point in Quincy to the gravel land known as Veazie's plain in Braintree.

The Selectmen have ordered that a meeting be held at the Quincy station in this town, on Monday, May 14, and any one who may oppose the new branch can then appear and be heard.

WISE ACT. By request of the selectmen, the Old Colony Railroad Company have stationed for the summer a flagman at the railroad crossing on West street, West Quincy. This is a dangerous place, as the engine cannot be noticed until it is close upon any one, owing to the high embankments. A few days since Mrs. Trask's team was run into at this point, but only a shaft was broken—a narrow escape.

Brief Locals.

☞ A nice horse, buggy and harness is advertised for sale.

☞ Rev. G. B. Williams will move to Wollaston next week.

☞ A choice lot of land at Hough's Neck is advertised for sale.

☞ A granite tool sharpener is wanted to go to Philadelphia.

☞ Any family, desirous of purchasing a nice cow, will do well to read the advertisements.

☞ The painters and carpenters are in their glory. They are having all the work they can do.

☞ A dwelling-house and stable, belonging to Patrick Pierce, will be sold at auction by Joseph W. Lombard, on Saturday next.

☞ On Tuesday next, at the residence of Rev. Mark Trafton, will be sold a lot of household furniture, etc., by Joseph W. Lombard.

☞ Harper's Weekly, of April 21, has very fine engravings of the Thomas Crane Public Library, of Quincy; both exterior and interior views.

☞ There will be a change on Tuesday next, in the hours of opening and closing the Public Library, as will be seen by a notice in our columns.

☞ There is to be a May party at the Chapel of the Congregational Church on Tuesday evening next. A very pleasant time is anticipated.

☞ The blows heard upon the bell and gongs of the fire alarms on Sunday evening were caused by the Engineers, who were testing the line in search of a ground.

☞ All owners and keepers of dogs should read the notice of the Town Clerk in another column, and then go and have their pet properly licensed, according to the law of this good old Commonwealth.

☞ It is expected that the government will pay for the fiscal year ending in June a trifle over $86,000,000 in pensions to United States soldiers. Since the close of the war $625,790,501.32 has been paid out in Pensions.

☞ The weather has been quite cool this week. Tuesday morning the ground was white with snow, the branches of the trees were well covered and it looked quite winterish as the sun rose. On Wednesday morning there was ice to be noticed, and on Thursday morning still more,—about a quarter of an inch thick.

INSPECTION. Last Thursday evening the comrades of the Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., turned out in good numbers to receive their inspecting officer Dennis Meehan, A. D. C., and some thirty comrades of Post 7, of Boston; also representatives of several other Posts in this vicinity. After having been duly welcomed by Commander Holt the officers of 88 exemplified the work for the benefit of the visiting comrades.

Remarks were then in order and the following comrades responded nobly: A. DeCamp Meehan, Commander A. E. Perkins of Post 7, Comrade Gage Post 87, Downey of Post 15, Rogers of Post 11, Tute of Post 7, Hobby of Post 118, Maj. Colgan of Post 7, and Merrill of the Department of Ohio. A good chowder with beans, coffee, etc., was then partaken of by the comrades with much relish, not forgetting the usual smoke.

Post 88 was pronounced by the inspecting officer as in a number one condition, and anticipated a brilliant future for the Post.

Engineers.

MESSRS. EDITORS:

In making the appointment of engineers for the next year, would it not be a matter of consideration of our selectmen that some persons should be appointed for the centre and south districts that are within the limits of said districts throughout the day. For the past year we have had three appointed, two of which are in Boston and the other at the Point, the whole of every (working) day in the year.

Town Meeting.

A meeting was held at the Town Hall, Braintree, on Monday, April 23, agreeably to adjournment, and the following votes were passed:

Voted, That a committee of five, to be appointed by the Moderator, shall procure plans, specifications, and cost of re-building Quincy Avenue Bridge over Monatiquot River, with iron or other material; and present the same to a future meeting of the town to be called, upon their petition to the Selectmen, whenever said committee may think proper; previous to which, said plans and specifications shall be submitted to the Harbor and Land Commissioners, and by them approved, as the law provides. Said committee to have authority to draw such sums from the treasury, as may be deemed necessary to carry this vote into execution. Moderator appointed Eben Denton, James T. Stevens, Joel F. Sheppard, S. Worcester Hollis and George H. Arnold, said committee.

Voted, That the use of the Town Hall and Committee rooms be granted to all the different political parties and to the Citizen's Law and Order League, free of expense.

NEW RULING. Postal cards and newspapers cannot now be forwarded after they have once reached their destination without extra postage. A recent ruling of the Post Office Department says that "No matter can be forwarded in the mails after it reaches its original address without a new prepayment of postage, except letters which have one full rate (three cents) paid on them." Therefore when a paper or printed postal card is forwarded a one cent stamp must be affixed, and a written postal card must have affixed a three cent stamp.

WARDEN. Our excellent dry goods merchant, George T. Defrees, who resides in Hingham, was chosen warden at the Easter meeting of the Mission of St. John the Evangelist, in Hingham.

FREE. The Assembly at Albany, on Thursday, passed the Kiernan bill, making the Brooklyn bridge free for foot-passengers.

The motto that every customer shall be satisfied has won the high reputation of LEWANDO'S FRENCH DYE HOUSE, 17 TEMPLE PLACE, BOSTON, U. S. A.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

On Sunday evening the services at the Congregational Church were most interesting and impressive, and consisted first, of the pastor's address to the church, and second, the induction of the deacons elect into office.

The former, covered a great deal of ground, the principle topics being a short recital of the brief history of the present organization; the new relationship to sister churches; the pastor's gratification regarding the element of which the church is composed, all its members being ready to enter upon any methods, new or old, which promise to accomplish the best work; the expression of good will and fellowship exhibited by the Council held the 12th inst; a word of commendation to all the members who have so readily and energetically labored thus far; the different avenues of Christian labor in which we shall now be privileged to show our spirit of benevolence; a short explanation of Congregationalism and references to works which will instruct us in the doctrine; the honor which should be shown the church, and the respect due its officers; the efficient way in which the church may be built up, and the progress it can make by the members leading a holy life.

The hearty feeling of co-operation shown by the church is very gratifying to the pastor who has labored so willingly for the work which has been accomplished.

The above short analysis gives but a faint idea of the excellent discourse which was delivered.

Then followed the induction of three deacons, viz.: Alfred Sampson, T. Harris Newcomb and Chas. H. Sherburne which was a solemn and impressive service and concluded the exercises of the evening.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The first of the three sermons by Rev. Geo. B. Lawton on "The word of God was preached last Sunday. It was devoted to the showing that Nature is in itself insufficient to account for the intellect of man, and that nothing in Nature answer the inquiries of his moral being. A further revelation becomes therefore a necessity. The sermon next Sunday, will be on some of the evidences that the Bible is that revelation.

Thursday evening about thirty of the members, and attendants at the Baptist Church made an unexpected call on their late pastor Rev. Geo. B. Williams now living on Elm st., at the Centre. Mr. Williams was thoroughly "surprised." A very pleasant time was had. Just before coming away the Ladies' Circle presented to Mrs. Williams an elaborate bed spread, which was on exhibition at the late Chapel Fair. Mr. Williams made some very interesting and cordial remarks, expressive of his pleasure at the call, and of his continued interest in the Church.

ACCIDENT.

On Wednesday at Mr. Geo. Sargent's quarry quite a serious accident occurred. It seems a blast had been blown, and Mr. Sargent, with three men went back and poured some powder in the seam, it is thought a piece of fuse must have remained in the cavity from the first blast, which ignited the powder and then that in the can; which he held in his hand. Mr. Sargent and one of his men received the whole of this explosion in their faces, burning them seriously, and as they jumped back, two men were knocked off the head of the rock, and fell a distance of some eight feet, sustaining considerable injury. One of the men in particular, Mr. T. Donovan is a great deal bruised. It is almost impossible as yet to tell how badly Mr. Sargent is burned but it is thought that though it may be a long time before he gets about again that he will suffer no lasting injury.

VULTURE 4.

A special meeting of the Vulture Engine Co. was held on Monday evening for the purpose of settling up the affairs of the year and adjourned to meet again on May 7th.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Chas. F. Wrisley and family have become Point residents.

On Thursday evening a birthday surprise party was tendered Miss Lizzie W. Penny.

F.

WOLLASTON. Among other pleasures to which we suburbans look forward on May Day, is a May festival which Mrs. Buffum, who has been so successful in three terms of dancing lessons, gives to her pupils. A peep behind the scenes revealed a pile of wings for butterflies, some Lincoln green suits for Robin Hood's men, some streamers for a May pole, etc. After a short programme carried out by the children, ladies and gentlemen, for a nominal sum can have the privilege of dancing.

HINGHAM. The Hingham Agricultural Society offers a premium of eight dollars, to the person who will plant and cultivate the best lot of trees, not less than fifty in number, on the highways and public squares of the town. For not less than twenty-five trees, under similar conditions, a premium of four dollars will be paid, and under that number and for not less than two, the premium will be sixteen cents each. This ought to encourage the setting of a goodly number of shade trees in the streets of the old town.

☞ A new cure has been found for balking horses. It is simple, being only the application of electricity. The electric battery is placed in the carriage and wires attached to the horse's bit and crupper. When the horse balks the electric current is turned on and the horse is cured.

Summary of News.

Time to license your dog. See Town Clerk's notice.

Wolfeboro, N. H., has a watering trough that has been in constant use for 100 years.

The poorest maple sugar season for many years in Vermont.

Law and Order leagues are rapidly increasing through the country.

Philadelphia has an æsthetic baseball nine, every member being a Chinaman.

The indebtedness of the First Universalist Church of Lynn has been cleared.

The average salary of Methodist ministers in New Hampshire is said to be $500 per annum.

Forty-four kinds of pie were served at a Grafton, Vt., church festival.

One firm in Florida has shipped North the present season, 34,052 quarts of strawberries.

Seining Smelts.

On Saturday night last, Officer McGrath, of Hingham, arrested Samuel T. Allen and J. T. Prior, both of Quincy, while they were in the act of seining smelts from a boat anchored off Ringbolt rock at Hingham. In the boat were found 4423 smelts, 200 herring, and about 100 alewives. Allen and Prior were held in $500 each by Justice Burdett for examination yesterday at Hingham.

It looks as if it might go hard with these men, as the fine is one dollar for each smelt found in their possession. In former years Mr. Allen was an officer and helped to arrest persons for violating this same law, and he should have known better, than to let the temptation for a little money run away with him.

West Quincy Items.

ACCIDENT.

On Saturday of last week, while Mr. John D. Nutting was unloading a stone at the stone yard of Mr. F. J. Fuller in West Quincy, the chain broke, and the stone fell on Mr. Nutting's leg, breaking it near the ankle. Dr. Gilbert was immediately called, and the injured man was made as comfortable as possible.

FIRE.

On Sunday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, an alarm of fire was rung in from box 46, which proved to be a barn and blacksmith shop situated in the French Village, owned and occupied by Mr. J. S. Lombard, of Boston. There were three valuable horses in the barn at the time, but before assistance reached them it was too late. The loss is estimated at about $1500. Cause of fire unknown.

The M. E. Church was well filled on Thursday evening, to listen to one of Dr. Miller's interesting lectures.

Mr. P. F. Lacy, who has been confined to his house the past two weeks, is able to be around again.

District Court, Quincy.

The following criminal cases have been before the District Court since our last issue:

James Sproul, of Quincy, for being drunk. Found guilty and fined $1 and costs.

John A. Smith, of Quincy, for larceny of a jug of liquor from Mr. Hosie's express. The evidence not sustaining the complaint, he was discharged.

John A. Smith, of Quincy, for breaking twenty panes of glass in a house on Water street, belonging to Patrick D. O'Keefe. For want of evidence, he was discharged.

Mary Powers who resides on Mount Pleasant, Quincy, for selling intoxicating liquors. After hearing numerous witnesses the case was continued until this Saturday morning.

Ellen Hore, of Quincy, for being a common drunkard. Found guilty and sent to the House of Correction for thirty days.

Horace G. Beal, of Weymouth, for neglecting to provide for a minor child. This case, which came before the court last week, was continued to next Thursday.

Timothy O'Neil, of Randolph, for being drunk. Fined $1 and costs.

Atlantic.

Several public-spirited gentlemen of Atlantic have contributed a sum of money to be expended in the purchase and "setting out" of shade trees along the streets of this village.

The Atlantic station will be first improved in this manner, and it is expected that all the streets, where required, will be thus ornamented.

Work will commence very soon upon the construction of a reservoir at the junction of Contest avenue and Billings street. It is much needed, and we hope the engineers will build a large one.

Box 64 has been heard from twice within ten days.

Last Friday it was "pulled" for a fire at the fertilizer works, and on Wednesday for a fire seen in a building of Mr. O. L. Jones, on Squantum street, a mile away.

MEETING. The fourth annual meeting of the Norfolk County Sunday School Association will be held at the Baptist Church, Sharon, on Saturday next, May 5th. The morning exercises open at 10 o'clock, afternoon at 1.30. Trains leave Boston for Sharon at 9.25, 10.30 and 2 o'clock.

A TEMPERANCE FAMILY. "No one will ever be offered liquor in my house," nobly said Lieut.-Governor Oliver Ames in the Tremont Temple meeting last Sunday afternoon; and he continued: "and, so far as I am concerned, those who come after me shall never be able to say, 'He taught me the use of liquor.'" He also said: "More than eighty years ago my grandfather began the practice of not setting liquors before his guests. I believe that my father never tasted liquors in his life. Neither have I, and I do not know the different liquors by the taste."

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING. The Unitarian Church in West Dedham was struck by lightning on the 20th inst. The bolt, which entered the steeple, passed to the foundation walls and through a ledge of granite upon which rest the church walls. The entire west side of the edifice was stripped of lumber, and the pews in the interior demolished, as were all the windows. A stone weighing 200 pounds was thrown from the cellar walls through the flooring of the main auditorium. Loss from $1000 to $2000. The horse sheds in the rear of the church were also badly shattered. The two barns of Franklin Copeland adjoining the church were struck, causing a loss of $500. Frank Copeland, Jr., who was at work near by, was rendered unconscious. The church was erected in 1808.

A Difficult Situation.

If an editor omits anything he is lazy. If he speaks of things as they are, people are mad. If he glosses over, smooths down the rough points, he is bribed. If he calls things by their proper names, he is unfit for an editor. If he does not furnish his readers with jokes, he is a mullet. If he does, he is a rattlehead, lacking stability. If he condems the wrong, he is a good fellow; but he lacks discretion. If he lets wrong and injuries go unmentioned, he does it to gratify spite; is a tool of a clique; or belongs to the "outs." If he indulges in personalities, he is a blackguard; if he does not, his paper is dull and insipid.

Public Nuisances.

A correspondent of the Hingham Journal says: The pleasant and healthful localities of Harrison Square, Neponset and Squantum are each threatened with nuisances of formidable proportions. The city gas works, soon to be in operation at Commercial Point, threaten disagreeable results to the owners of fine estates in that neighborhood; the owners of property and homes at Neponset will soon be subjected to the fearful odors emanating from a fertilizing establishment, just across the river in North Quincy; and the holders of valuable estates at Squantum will ere long experience the delightful odors proceeding from city sewer, which will discharge its loads of filth into Quincy bay when the big tunnel is completed. This charming bay which for years has afforded splendid opportunities for yachting, fishing, etc., will then become a polluted area of unwholesome water, and the breezes which were freighted with refreshing and health-giving qualities will become a stench in the nostrils of those unfortunate enough to inhale them.

Dog Licenses.

The Town Clerk hereby calls attention to the law in relation to the licensing of dogs, and notifies all parties concerned to take heed to its requirements. Licenses are now ready for delivery.

Sec. 80. Every owner or keeper of a dog of three months old or over, shall annually, on or before the thirtieth day of April, cause it to be registered, numbered, described and licensed, for one year from the ensuing May, in the office of the Clerk of the city or town wherein said dog is kept.

Sec. 81. A person becoming the owner or keeper of a dog after the first of May, not duly licensed, shall cause it to be registered, numbered, described and licensed as provided in the preceding section.

Sec. 82. The fee for every license shall be two dollars for a male dog, and five dollars for a female dog,—Chap. 102, Pub. Statutes.

DWELLING HOUSE
AT AUCTION.
WILL BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION ON Saturday, April 28, 1883,
At 4 o'clock, P. M.

A Two-and-a-half story Double Dwelling House with Ell, situated off Granite Street, in the rear of the residence of the late Thomas Swithin, and formerly owned by PATRICK KENNEDY. There is an excellent cellar and a never failing well of water on the premises. This property is now rented for $22 per month. The house accommodates two families and is very convenient, with water in each half.

There is about ¼ acre of land and a number of excellent fruit trees and fancy shrubbery on the premises. It is within 15 minutes' walk of the centre of the town. There is a large Blacksmith Shop in the rear.

This place will positively be sold to the highest bidder, and without reserve. Parties about looking for a home are invited to this sale.

WOODLAND
— AND —
GRANITE QUARRIES.
WILL BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION, ON Monday, May 7th, 1883,
At 2 o'clock P. M.

THE well-known Quincy Wood Lot, formerly owned by the late Josiah Quincy, and lying near the Milton Boundary, and within twenty minutes' walk of the West Quincy Station, comprising 200 acres of Woodland, with a number of valuable Granite Quarries, among which are the well-known Pike's Peak and Bed-bug Quarries, formerly worked by the Quincy Granite Company, and from the latter were taken the columns of Sears' Building, Boston. Assessed valuation of the property is $9,800.

Together with the right of way in a road 23 feet wide, leading from Grove St. to said Wood Lot.

For plans and description apply to the Auctioneer, or WHITMAN & BRECK, 85 Devonshire St., Boston.

This is just the property for capitalists, or men of enterprise, as there are a few excellent Quarries in the vicinity. The public are well aware that a good Quarry is equal to a gold mine, and those that hold them have a key to the stone business.

P. S.—All parties that are looking for good Quarries and Woodland, of which there is a good growth on some parts of this property, are invited to be at the Ledge, formerly occupied by the Quincy Granite Co., at 2 o'clock, sharp, on day of sale.

Terms made known on day of sale.
Sale positive weather fair or foul.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

To the Heirs-at-Law, Next of Kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of SAMUEL G. WYMAN, late of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, deceased.

GREETING:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by William Keyser and H. Irvine Keyser, both of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, with certain papers purporting to be copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the Probate thereof in said State of Maryland, duly authenticated, representing that at the time of his death said deceased had estate in said County of Norfolk, on which said will may operate, and praying that the copy of said will may be filed and recorded in the Probate Office of said County of Norfolk, and letters testamentary thereon granted to them.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the first Wednesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said Petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this Citation three weeks successively, in the newspaper called the Quincy PATRIOT, printed at Quincy, the first publication to be thirty days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, GEORGE WHITE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-fifth day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.

Last Quarter, April 30, 2.19 A. M.

At the State House.

The House passed to be engrossed on Tuesday, the Senate bill to incorporate the Quincy Water Company.

The Senate has passed without debate and without opposition, the resolve in honor of the memory of the late Hon. Oakes Ames.

The Senate has refused this week to pass the Elevated Railway bill to a third reading, the friends of the measure letting it go by default, not even doubting the viva voce vote or calling for the yeas and nays. This course was a surprise to the opponents of the bill, as they had been led to understand that the advocates of the scheme would make a spirited struggle in behalf of the bill. This is the fifth year that this and like schemes have been presented to the Legislature. Last year, for the first time, the House passed a bill; this action was repeated this year; on both occasions the senate has rejected them.

The Legislature proposes to pass this act: Whoever hunts, chases or kills deer within the counties of Plymouth or Barnstable, except his own tame deer kept on his own grounds, shall forfeit for every such offence $100.

The value of a single vote was shown on Wednesday, when the House acted upon the resolve providing for such an amendment to the Constitution that women who are attorneys-at-law may be appointed Justices of the Peace and Notaries Public. By the change of his vote from the negative to the affirmative Mr. Gimlich of Pittsfield secured to the friends of the measure the two-thirds vote that was necessary for its adoption.

The bill to forbid the employment of children under 10 years in manufacturing establishments, or under 12 years while school is in session, was passed to be engrossed after only brief opposition.

The committee on prisons want all the officials at the Concord prison uniformed.

GOOD ENOUGH. Under the late Postmaster-General Howe, the wily first Assistant, Hatton, was really the department. He had things pretty much his own way, and run the department with a high hand on the political "rewards and punishments plan." But Hatton now finds his previous occupation gone. When Mr. Gresham, the new Postmaster General, took his place, Hatton made haste to inform him that there were a number of appointments to be made without delay, and that in order to make places for the new-comers several old employés must be given orders to quit. But instead of accommodating the oily Hatton with his signature to the necessary documents, which the former very complacently informed him was only a mere matter of form, Mr. Gresham very cruelly wanted to know if the officials whom it was proposed to remove were fitted for their places. The slippery first assistant said they were, but that their places had been promised to others who wanted them. "Then," said Mr. Gresham, "they will stay. No removals for political reasons or to make places for favorites, shall be made in the department while I am at the head of it." Poor Hatton walked away with a dejected countenance and a sad heart — things were so different from what they were under the lamented Howe. — Milford Journal.

NIAGARA PARK. The New York Legislature has finally, after a hard-fought struggle, passed the Niagara Park bill, and it is now in the hands of Governor Cleveland. It appropriates $10,000 for the purchase of a narrow strip of land for a short distance on the American side of the falls. The only opponents of the bill have been a few manufacturers who would be prevented from utilizing the water power of the falls. It is matter for national congratulation that the State has decided to reserve Niagara from the vulgarizing tendencies that were making the place a disgrace to the whole country.

BURGLARS. Six houses near the Taunton and North Dighton line were entered early Monday morning by burglars. Their booty consisted of money, jewelry and clothing to a considerable amount. Examination shows that the houses were entered by turning the keys. Chloroform was extensively used in houses visited to keep the inmates from awakening.

REVENUE STAMPS. The largest shipment of internal revenue stamps ever made from the Treasury Department at Washington, was sent off last Monday. The shipment amounted to 15 tons of revenue stamps of various denominations, representing a tax value of $30,000,000. They were of the new style of revenue stamp, such as are to be used under the recent law reducing the internal revenue taxation, and were shipped to the revenue collectors throughout the country for sale and use after May 1, next.

AN ENORMOUS PETITION. A petition was recently presented to the British House of Commons from Lambeth and Southwark districts in London, asking for the closing of public houses on Sunday. It was carried on a sort of couch by four men, measured 15 feet, 6 inches in circumference, and contained 500,000 signatures.

VALUABLE IMPROVEMENT. One of the latest and most valuable improvements of the telephone is a device that kills induction on a telegraph wire, so that it may be used simultaneously for telegraphic and telephonic purposes. In a recent experiment, seven messages were sent over one wire that was also being satisfactorily used by the telephone.

For the Patriot.

Letter from New York.

NEW YORK, April 25, 1883.

A report to the effect that the English dynamite conspiracies were controlled by a secret society, having its head-quarters on the Bowery, in this city, created no little surprise and considerable talk among New Yorkers; the Irish citizens, however, while not seeming at all disturbed, disclaim all knowledge of the plots.

Dr. Morgan Dix's late lectures on the position of woman in the nineteenth century have called forth a good deal of comment, particularly in regard to the attitude of Columbia College, which again but recently refused to admit women to the full privileges of the institution, partly on the pleas of poverty and want of room, which, however, have been found to be mere excuses. It is to be hoped that the decision of the Trustees will ultimately be reversed, and the doors of the college thrown open to both sexes alike.

The usual amount of preparation is going on at the watering places on Long Island. Armies of carpenters and workmen of all sorts are busily hammering away. There is plenty of time, too, for the Spring here has been very backward. Nevertheless, at Southampton and Bridgehampton all the boarding-house keepers have their rooms engaged for the season, and cottages everywhere are in great demand.

There is a whisper of a grand water fête in the near future, similar to the old time Venetian custom of the wedding of the Adriatic by the Doge, to take place in New York harbor, under the auspices of the Bartholdi Statue Fund Association.

A cable street railway is in prospect in Brooklyn. A company for the purpose has been formed which will begin work very soon, intending to have it in operation by fall. The method employed will be the same as that now so successfully used in Chicago, San Francisco and Philadelphia. The great bridge is rapidly approaching completion, and it is proposed to open it with appropriate, but not public, ceremonies on the 24th of May. The promenades are nearly finished, the dynamo machines for the production of the electricity used in illuminating the structure are being put into position, the last rivets are being driven at either end, and the elevated railway stations are pushing forward. The great question is whether the passage across shall be free, or whether and what tolls shall be charged. A final decision has not yet been reached. The bridge has been fourteen years in building at the rate of a million dollars a year, and the Rev. Dr. Cuyler says, "London Bridge will seem but a tame affair, and the boasted 'Tubular,' at the Menai Straits, will be but a paltry feat of engineering in the comparison."

Quite a ripple of excitement has been caused, in a suburban town, by the refusal of the pupils of one of the public schools to be taught by a colored female graduate of the high school, who was appointed as substitute for the regular (white) teacher, who was ill. This refusal combined with the complaints of parents, resulted in the withdrawal of the young lady. An amusing parallel to this has been afforded in the action of the children of a colored school on Staten Island. They unanimously objected to a white teacher who was sent to them by the Trustees to temporarily take the place of the colored teacher who was sick. When it was found that no gentleman of color could be procured, the parents withdrew their children until the recovery of the regular teacher.

On Monday last a light fall of snow occurred, which, however, rapidly disappeared next day under the warm rays of an April sun. The Pension Bill for teachers, mentioned last week, was defeated to the infinite satisfaction of the majority.

W. L. M.

☞ A suggestion as to the growth of this country by immigration is found in the fact that over $6,000,000 were paid out for railroad tickets at Castle Garden last year. And still the blackboard of the free labor bureau there constantly announces that the demand for farm laborers is greater than the supply. Farm hands get employment at remunerative wages as soon as they land. Mechanics do not fare so well. Petty shopkeepers without capital fare the worst. The demand for girls for house servants is greater than the supply.

☞ The Worcester Light Infantry went on with the proposed lottery in connection with their fair, in spite of the sharp protests from several leading clergymen of the city.

The Supreme Court of Iowa has decided that the prohibitory amendment is null and void, thus sustaining the lower court.

Ex-Lieut. Governor Knight finds the liabilities of his enterprises at $350,000 and the assets $400,000. He will probably go into insolvency.

☞ The Ohio Legislature has passed an act requiring a license of $300 from Spiritualist mediums, and Spiritualists denounce it as a measure of intolerance.

☞ It is said that a short elevated railroad will be built between the two exhibition buildings on the Back Bay, Boston, and an Edison electric motor will be employed thereon.

☞ Telephonic conversation is now carried on regularly between the New York and Chicago offices of the Postal Telegraph Company, a distance of 1000 miles.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, April 23, 1883.

The wandering President reached the city Sunday evening by special train. In the light of a for-health trip, his excursion South can hardly be considered a success. His illness at Savannah was exaggerated, but he was for a time seriously sick, definite traces of which still linger in his face. He enjoyed many features of his trip, but is glad to get back and thinks "there is no place like home" while Washington is home, though he is a little careful with his expressions of elation for fear his Floridian entertainers might get wind of this lack of appreciation. The President does not gladly resume his exacting role at the White House, for the cares of office with the maintainance of a socially brilliant administration are severe tasks to a person of his quiet taste. He has never enjoyed the pomps of his high office, but he is simply glad to get back to Washington, as every one is who has once breathed the atmosphere of the place. It seems to contain an element that few are afterwards willing to forego, but will come again and again as is so often the case with ex-congressmen and other ex-officials who return to make Washington their permanent home.

Much has been written about President Arthur's fine personal appearance, elegant manners, and the life he leads, but little has been told of his intrinsic intellectuality, literary acquirements, and the impression he makes as a conversationalist. Probably the less said on these points the better. President Arthur does not affect literature. Still he has read such books as men of leisure with no decided literary aspirations usually read—poets, essayists, story-tellers, and historians who have written attractively. He likes to talk in his idler moments about the books he has read, and talks fairly well about subjects of his reading. He also remembers what he wants to quote, but his manners and talk on ordinary topics make up the most agreeable side of his character.

Among improvements about to begin in the city are the Garfield Memorial Hospital and the new public school buildings. The work of reconstructing the Patent Office building has begun. The Washington relics and other historical treasures, consisting of personal apparel, china, and household goods, that are familiar to the Patent Office will now be removed to the National Museum.

Some relics of President Lincoln which have never yet been publicly exhibited have recently been brought to light. These are the counterpane which covered the bed on which he lay the night he was shot, the pillow case on which his head rested while his life tide ebbed away with the blood stains still upon it, and the second pillow case, which, at the order of Surgeon-General Barnes, replaced the first have been kept just as they were as relics of the last moments of the martyred President. They are ghastly but interesting.

Governor Kellogg, of Louisiana, he has been lingering in the city since the adjournment of Congress awaiting the formal return of the indictment against him for complicity in the Star Route frauds while he was United States Senator, has just left for his Southern home. He was not required to give bail for his appearance before the Court. He has felt much annoyed by these charges, but says investigation will prove there is no case against him.

A copy of the civil service rules, made with the type writing machine, was furnished each member of the Cabinet in the city Friday. The object of the distribution was to enable them carefully to digest the rules in advance of their formal consideration at a Cabinet meeting to be held soon after the President's return.

The appropriation for the redemption of mutilated currency is nearly exhausted, and will be entirely so before the close of the fiscal year. As Congress failed to make an appropriation for next year, it is expected there will be a large accumulation before money is again available.

Wednesday evening of this week, a colored lady, Miss Davis, the first of the race who has essayed to portray Shakespearian characters, will make her dramatic debut at Marini's Hall. She has had a complete course of elocutionary instruction under a well-known elocutionist, and is said to be clever, engaging, and good looking?

Notwithstanding the lateness of the season, there was quite a social flutter in diplomatic and official circles Saturday evening. Prominent among the entertainments were a dinner given by the Minister of the Argentine Republic to personal friends, and a dinner in honor of Post Master General Gresham by General Sherman.

ADAMS.

☞ During the year 1882 one hundred and twenty-five foundlings were admitted to the Home for the Friendless in Chicago, an institution supported by private charity, and of this number ninety-seven died.

SILVER CREEK, N. Y., Feb 6, 1880.

GENTS.—I have been very low, and have tried everything, to no advantage. I heard your Hop Bitters recommended by so many, I concluded to give them a trial. I did, and now am around, and constantly improving, and am nearly as strong as ever. W. L. CARTER.

SPRING
OPENING

Wm. S. Butler & Co.

Take pleasure in announcing that the alterations in their store are now completed, and that they are occupying Nos. 90, 92, 94, 96 and 98 Tremont Street, and 1 and 2 Montgomery Place.

The second floor is now also open for business, and on the third floor is a Ladies' Reception Room, where every attention will be given to the comfort of our customers.

These alterations will give us much needed additional room for the display of our stock, and will afford to the ladies Better Accommodations and Light than are found in any other store in our line.

FIRST
OPENING
—OF OUR—
DEPARTMENT.

In order to place this department at once in rank with any first-class millinery establishment, we have secured the best talent to be had to give our Hats that beauty and elegance which is consistent with refined taste, at popular prices to suit all trade.

The success of such a department has never been tried in this city, a department where STYLISH TRIMMED HATS are sold at but small advance on the cost of hat and trimmings, and we trust that the ladies of Boston and vicinity will avail themselves of the opportunity to leave their orders early, so that they can receive proper attention.

OPENING
—OF OUR—
Cotton Underwear Dep't

In order to place this department properly before the public, we shall offer at less than cost our inaugurating sale, as follows:—

Lot 1. Chemises, Drawers, Corset Covers, for Ladies and Children, at 25c. each.

Lot 2. Chemises, Drawers, Skirts, Night Dresses, Hamburg trimmed, at 50c. each.

Lot 3. The same, at 75c.

Lot 4. The same at $1.00.

We refrain from giving a description of each and every article, and prefer giving good cloth and good trimmings to advertising the different clusters of tucks, etc., and showing a poor article.

We hope ladies will avail themselves of this sale, as we shall not feel able to continue it for any length of time.

OPENING
—OF OUR—
DEPARTMENT.

This department has been placed at the rear part of our store, and has been made the most attractive place in Boston.

The department faces a sheet of mirror, 50 feet in length and 9 feet in height, so as to give every opportunity to the purchaser to see at a glance whether a hat is becoming or otherwise.

The following New Shapes will be offered at our opening: The Critic, Fedora, Iolanthe, Mignon, Poppy, Patti, Thursby, Nautilus, Casino, Sprite, Marquise, Servia, and many others.

Horse Cars pass our door from all railroad stations, a great convenience to our out-of-town patrons.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.
[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

WHEAT BITTERS

THE BEST AND The Richest
BLOOD, BRAIN and NERVE
-F-O-O-D-
CAREFULLY PREPARED, THOROUGHLY TESTED, ACCEPTABLE AND RELIABLE.

The Phosphates of the Wheat are its most valuable food property, and are, when properly prepared, the most acceptable nutriment with which to build up the system.

The Blood, Brain and Nerves are the forces which bear the strain of every day work and life, and in order to save sickness it is wise to BUILD FOR HEALTH.

Wheat Bitters are prepared, not by fermentation but by solution and are richest in the Phosphates, while the starch and impure matter are eliminated. These make in themselves a basis, to which is added the best and choicest medicinal qualities, necessary to make it a tonic and bitter. It is at once healthful, pleasant to the taste and must not be confounded with the thousand and one cheap alcoholic bitters which are sold as cure-alls, it becomes a doubly effective when used with meal, so as to nourish while it corrects.

HEART DISEASE.
Now IS YOUR HEART SOUND?
Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart.
The renowned Dr. Clendinning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease."
The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a-half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention.
Dr. Graves a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator and can be obtained at your druggists, $1. per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. (1)

For the Patriot.

The Blarney Stone.

Oh, for a piece of that potent stone
  About two inches square,
For now I speak in a faltering tone,
Whenever I meet a maid alone,
  And blush to the roots of my hair.

Could I only find that silent wall,
  I'd travel thro' mud and mire,
To obtain—what in slang—the folks term "gall,"
For now if addressed at party or ball,
  I color as red as fire.

I have heard say the stone doth gleam,
  With a strange and flickering light,
And oft in the maze of some wild dream,
I fancy I see the dancing beam,
  Fall on the fields at night.

And tho' I eagerly follow and trace
  The path through briars and brambles,
I stumble and fall in some dark place,
And rip my clothes and scratch my face,
  And nothing gain by my scrambles.

I now believe the tale is a lie
  Of some one's ingenious inventing,
If, so, I must bashfully live till I die,
And yet tho' I do, I'll be hanged if I cry,
  Or waste any time in lamenting.

ALDEN H. DAY.

Farm and Garden.

The Strawberry.

Every head of a family who has ten rods of land at his disposal should raise strawberries enough to supply his own table, for this is a fruit that must be ripened on the vines to secure it in full perfection, and when fully ripe will keep but a few hours. He who is obliged to purchase this fruit after it has been transported several miles, gets a quality of fruit that would not be eaten by one who has become accustomed to thoroughly ripened fruit from his own garden.

This fruit is so easily grown and requires such a small space to grow it in, it is very strange so few grow it. On ordinary soil a single day's labor is sufficient, with the exception of picking the fruit, to grow strawberries enough to supply a large family. As it is the first fruit of the season it always meets a glad reception from both old and young of all classes, even though it be but half ripe; but when fully ripened on the vines, and eaten shortly after being picked, it is surpassed by but few fruits of the earth.

Three or four rods of land will furnish fruit enough to supply a large family with all they desire during the ripening season, provided the vines are properly set and well cared for.

Prepare the land as early in the spring as it will work well, and set the plants before the first of May. Late set plants do not do as well. In setting the plants do not cramp the roots, but with a trowel dig a good sized hole, at least five inches deep, dropping the roots in so they will assume a natural position; never crowd the soil hard around the plants but use only a gentle pressure; be careful also to leave the central bud above the soil; many plants are ruined by covering too deep. If the plants are full of large fresh leaves most of them should be cut off, that the evaporation shall not be so great.

Whitewash the Out-Buildings.

There is no more healthful method of keeping the stables, sheds, and pens clean, than to give them a good coat of lime-wash. The wash is easily and quickly made as follows: Slake a bushel of fresh lime in a pork, or other barrel, with water enough to make a thick paste, after which fill up the barrel with hot water, and let it stand for a few hours. This wash may be applied in various ways. It may be spread upon the walls with a large whitewash brush, and no pains need be taken to do a neat job. Whatever wash falls upon the floor in the operation is not lost, but helps to sweeten the stable or stall. The quickest and most satisfactory method, is to use a force pump, by which the limewash can be thrown into every corner.—American Agriculturist.

Anecdotes.

Scene in a Chicago shoe store: "What size?"

"Twos, please."

An interval of hard work. "Do you want a pair of shoes, Miss, or only one?"

"A pair, of course."

"Ah! yes, I see; twice two are four. John, stretch a pair of No. 4 gaiters."

"Jane," said a father, "I thought you hated stingy people, and yet your young man—"

"Why pa, who said he was stingy?"

"Oh, nobody," replied pa, "only I thought that he was a little close as I passed through the room."

A doctor is called to attend the son of a business man. He writes a prescription that the family hasten to have filled. On the following day he returns to see his patient, and finds the family in tears.

"Alas!" sighed the mother, "I did not believe the measles could kill my poor boy."

"The measles!" exclaimed the doctor: "he had the measles and you didn't tell me."

A theological student, supposed to be deficient in judgment, was asked by a professor in the course of a class examination, "Pray, how would you discover a fool?"

"By the question he would ask," was the rather stunning reply.

Clara asks: "What disease is most frequently transmitted by kissing?" A wise editor replies:

"Palpitation of the heart, we believe."

There is nothing like strong common sense. An Irish soldier went to his station with the order to report anything remarkable that had happened during the night. A drunken fellow fell off the wall and broke his neck, and no report was made. When questioned about it, Pat replied: "Faith, and I obeyed orders. If the man had fallen off the wall and not broken his neck I should certainly have reported it."

A witty fellow slipped down on an icy pavement. While in the sprawling attitude, he exclaimed, "I have no desire to see this town burned down, but I sincerely wish the streets were laid in ashes."

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

The Temperance Movement.

As early as October, 1829, Mr. John Dunlop, of Greenock, a justice of peace for Renfrewshire, after lecturing on the subject of temperance in Glasgow, Stirling and elsewhere, the first in Scotland, and the precursor of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Temperance Society, formed in the ensuing November.

Mr. Dunlop is thus entitled to be considered the "Father of temperance societies in Great Britain." In his early labors he was greatly assisted by Mr. William Collins, of Glasgow, who became the editor and publisher of the Temperance Record, 1830-1835. The rules of the society above named were substantially the same as those of the American and Irish societies—the members voluntarily agreeing, "to relinquish entirely the use of ardent spirits, except for medicinal purposes," although "the moderate use of other liquors is not excluded." The zeal and activity of this society were remarkable. According to the report read at the first annual meeting, December 30, 1830, it had circulated in the course of the year, 425,300 tracts, and 20,200 pamphlets, and numbered in Glasgow alone 5,072 adherents, while it was stated that throughout Scotland at large there were 130 societies, and 25,478 members.

It is not necessary to follow further in detail the course of the temperance movement, strictly so called, in Scotland, except to remark that numbers of the clergy now began to interest themselves in it, and at the close of 1831 there were 187 ministers of various denominations in Scotland connected with the cause; but we must now notice the introduction of a new and more stringent application of the temperance principle.

On the 21st of September, 1830, Mr. John Davis and several other members of the Temperance Society of Dunfermline, pledged themselves to "total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, small beer excepted, and wine on sacramental occasions"; and in the course of the next two years, "Total Abstinence Societies" were started in Glasgow, Paisley and other places.

In 1830 the temperance movement extended to England. Mr. Henry Forbes, a merchant of Bradford, in Yorkshire, happening to be in Glasgow on business, had attended one of the meetings of the Glasgow Society, became deeply interested, and on his return home took steps to organize a Bradford Society, February 2, 1830. Another society was formed at Warrington, April 4, 1830; a third at Manchester, May 12, 1830; and by the close of the year, about thirty temperance societies were in existence, numbering in all 10,000 members.

Household Receipts.

DOUGH CAKE. Three cupsful dough, one cupful butter, two cupsful sugar, three eggs, one half teaspoonful soda. This makes two loaves.

REMEDY FOR EARACHE. Put some live coals in an iron pan, sprinkle with brown sugar, invert a funnel over it, and put the tube in the ear. The smoke gives almost instant relief.

POTATO PUFF. Two cups of cold mashed potatoes, two cups of cold cooked meat chopped very fine, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two eggs well beaten, one cup of milk; pour into a deep dish and bake in a quick oven.

WHITE CAKE. One-half cup of butter, one and one-half cups of sugar, one-half cup of milk, two cups of flour, one-half cup of corn-starch, two teaspoons of baking powder, and the whites of six eggs. Mix as written. Makes two small sheets.

CLEANING MIRRORS. Dust cloths, floor cloths and dish cloths are good things, and so is a glass cloth when its use is confined to table ware, but she who tries to clean a mirror with cloth is foolish and wasteful of time. Soft paper and ammonia are the proper things, and when they are used the mirror is left speckless and bright in a very short time.

TO USE DRY BREAD. Cut in slices and spread with butter, put in a deep dish and pour in apple sauce enough to cover the bread all up, being sure it gets in between the slices, and bake about two hours in a hot oven. Eat hot with milk and sugar.

SPICE CAKE. A spice cake which costs but little, and which if eaten while fresh is excellent, is made after this rule: Rub half a cup of butter and one cup of sugar together until they are light as cream. Beat the white and yolk of one egg separately; add this, and also half a cup of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of nutmeg, cinnamon and cloves; mix one teaspoonful of baking powder with one cup and a half of flour. Bake in a loaf, and frost, using the white of one egg; frost the top only. After spreading the frosting over it, set it in the oven and brown it slightly. If you choose you can vary this receipt by adding half a cup of raisins or currants.

Conundrums.

Why is a gunsmith's shop like a chicken pie? Because it contains fowl-in-pieces (fowling-pieces).

How is it that a husbandman and a seamstress follow a similar occupation? Because the one gathers what he sows, and the other sews what she gathers.

Why is a hungry boy looking at the pudding in a cook-shop window like a wild horse? Because he would be all the better if he had a bit in his mouth.

Why is a good suggestion like a crying baby at a concert? Because it ought to be carried out.

Why is flood tide like an Indian chief? Because its higher water (Hiawatha).

Why is a shoemaker like an honest lover? Because he is faithful to the last.

The computation was made by Mr. E. B. Elliott, government actuary. One million standard gold dollars weigh about 3686 pounds avoirdupois.

The Potato Crop.

Almost every farmer now uses Phosphate in the hill or scattered along the drill for his crop, even when he has plenty of other manure. A small quantity (from two hundred to four hundred pounds per acre, according to condition of soil and thickness of planting) of a good Phosphate will pay a large profit in increased yield, and the potatoes will be much smoother and more mealy and much less liable to rot than when only barnyard manure is used. Mr. J. L. Craigin, of Athol, Mass., writes as follows on this subject:—

"Having used Bradley's Phosphate for the past five years in growing potatoes, with such unvaried good results, I should not now think of attempting to raise potatoes without it. My land is a heavy deep loam, rather wet, and inclined to give me soggy potatoes; but with the use of Bradley's Phosphate I have never failed of a large crop of splendid potatoes. I have tried almost every year, one, and sometimes three, other kinds of fertilizers, but invariably with unsatisfactory results, such as small potatoes, often not worth digging, and always of poor quality."

QUINCY, JULY 29, 1882.

THE Board of Health issues the following notice:—That on and after MONDAY, July 31st, 1882, the following provisions of Chapter 80 of the Public Statutes will be strictly enforced:—

SEC. 78. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town in which he dwells. If he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $100.

SEC. 79. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with Small Pox or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit for each offence not less than $50, nor more than $100.

The Board considers the above sections to apply to scarlet fever, small pox, diphtheria, measles and whooping cough.

Mulkittle's Boy.

Mrs. Mulkittle started on a visit to friends living in the suburbs of the city the other day, and might have spent a pleasant afternoon but for an idle remark of the youngster which threw the expedition into an immediate change of programme. They boarded a street car and were traveling along peaceably, not to say slowly, when the boy, who, in strict keeping of a promise not to ask foolish questions, had conquered every desire to harvest information, said:

"Ma, is a street car as hard to pull as a wagon?"

"No, I think not."

"Why ain't it?"

"Because the street car runs on iron."

"And a wagon runs on dirt, don't it?"

"Yes."

"Is a mule street car harder to pull than a horse street car?"

"I don't know."

"Do mules have pistols?"

"No."

"Horses have, haven't they?"

"I don't know."

"Well, what's a horse pistol, then?"

"If you don't hush I'll put you off the car."

"Then I'd get lost. Would you care?"

"Of course I'd care."

A fat man, with a red nose and puffy face, who sat opposite the boy, looked up from a newspaper and bestowed an annoyed glance on the merciless questioner.

"You don't know me, does he, ma?"

"Hush, Willie."

"Mister, can you read when the car jolts?"

The man grunted and resumed his reading.

"If you wanted to read and the car jolted so you couldn't read, you'd get off, wouldn't you?"

The man grunted again, and Mrs. Mulkittle brushed her son's foot from the seat and declared that she would tell his father.

"Anybody can read when the car jolts if they ain't on the car, can't they?"

"Never mind, sir. I'll tell your father."

"Ma, that man's face is red, like little brother's was, ain't it?"

"Hush sh-sh."

"Mister, does your nose hurt?"

The man glared at the boy and roughly asked:

"What's the matter with you?"

"Hush, Willie, or I'll slap you," exclaimed Mrs. Mulkittle in an agony of humiliation.

"Ain't nothing the matter with me. What's the matter with you? Did the cat scratch your face?"

"The cat ought to have your tongue," remarked the man.

"Then I couldn't talk, could I?"

"It is to be hoped you could not."

"Have you been looking at the sun?"

The man grunted, and Mrs. Mulkittle jerked the boy and made a feint of boxing his ears.

"Well, what makes his eyes so red, then? Do your eyes hurt, mister?"

"Madam," said the man, arising and violently pulling the strap, "I dislike to be rude, for I appreciate your position, but if that boy was mine, hanged if I wouldn't crucify him."

"Ma, what's crucify?" asked the boy when the man had gone.

"If you ask me another question, you naughty boy, I'll whip you till you can't sit still."

"I can walk, can't I?"

Mrs. Mulkittle turned away, pretending not to hear him.

"If I couldn't sit still I could twist around."

House Cleaning.

A subject of engrossing interest once or twice a year is that of cleaning the house. A few practical hints by one who herself engages in it from time to time may be of help to some one whose experience is limited.

I overheard two elderly gentlemen talking last Spring. "Don't you always dread house-cleaning time?" said one. "I scarcely ever know when house-cleaning is going on," was the astounding reply. It was a fact, too, so quietly and with so little bustle is this stupendous thing got along with in that happy man's household. In the first place, it is the part of wisdom to clean one room at a time, and put it in perfect order before disturbing another room. Have the curtains washed and ironed, if they need it, before cleaning the room. It will rest you to know that there is one room settled and the work there ended. Not to make home hideous and herself unattractive should be the cleaner's aim, and it will be a praiseworthy achievement if, in addition to putting the house in good order, she has also been able to live and let the family live cheerfully and even comfortably during this period of hard work.

Some weary woman with aching head, with hands burned, scratched and bruised, may think it is asking a great deal of her to expect that she shall pursue the even tenor of her way while she is working twice as hard as usual, and is subjected to the many annoyances unavoidable at this time. But it is really asking her simply to hoard her strength. It uses up a great deal of vital force to fret and scold while engaged in any hard undertaking; and if she feels uncomfortable or a little ill-natured, let her express herself through the broom and scrubbing-brush.

"If I wish to sweep my house and not feel it much, I let myself think of the 'Solid South' and the 'Chisholm Outrage,'" said a friend of mine; "then the corners are dusted, I assure you."

Do not try to do anything else on the day set apart to clean closets; it is very fatiguing to take out, deliberate over and put back the usual belongings of a closet. Everything should be thoroughly aired. Have just as few things as possible in the closets opening out of sleeping-rooms; old shoes and soiled clothes poison the air. When the bedrooms are aired each morning, the closet door should be left open that it may have its supply of fresh air.

If new paper is to be put on the wall, and you have any doubts as to the healthfulness of its coloring, take a piece to a chemist; he can at once by a simple test determine if it is wholesome or loaded with arsenic.

After washing woodwork, always wipe it with a soft cloth; this prevents drops of water being left to dry on and to discolor the paint. A danger which all ambitious but delicate women should avoid is trying to accomplish too much in one day. The temptation to do just one thing more and then another thing, is so great that much firmness is needed to resist it, but we must not yield.

House-work rarely kills, but imprudence frequently does. Running out doors with sleeves rolled up and head unprotected when you are heated are needless exposures, certain to be followed by more or less suffering. Every one ought to feel that she is of too much consequence in her family to be laid aside for a day, and she owes it to those who love her, even if they do not say much about it, to take the best possible care of herself.

Rapid Painting.

There is a place down near Chatham square, says a New York letter, where oil paintings are turned out pretty rapidly. And the oddest thing about it is that the proprietor is not at all embarrassed when a visitor drops in, but effusively welcomes him and shows up the lightning process. A large loft is devoted to it, only diminished by two little rooms cut off in front for offices. Along each side of the long room runs a continuous easel, forty feet long, I should say, and on this is stretched cheap white cotton, half width. Along the middle of the room, running the whole length between the easels, paints of all sorts are arranged on a convenient bench. There are six or eight "artists" usually engaged at once on this canvass. One does the ground work with a brush somewhat like a whitewash brush, which he plies with both hands. With one splash in the brown he walks quickly along and lays on five or six yards of the foreground or middle distance; with a splash of blue and yellow he sets five or six yards of vague sky above it, and makes a sweep with another brush along the horizon where the blue and brown are required to blend. Then he marks the long canvass off in suitable lengths for pictures and retires to another stretch of virgin white awaiting him across the room. Then the rest of the painters rush upon him, flourish their brushes and fall to filling in the beauties of landscape. A blotch of red for a cloud, and a blotch of dead brown for a tree and a smaller blotch of same for a man, dots of white for sheep, and there you have it! There are no patterns, and it is to be said for these works of art, that no two are alike. About twenty an hour are turned out. Then they are cut up, framed and put on the market in the hands of itinerent dealers. If they can't get $5 for one they will take fifty cents. The manufacture of them is a most curious sight.

Our Oldest School.

One would not expect to find in the city of New York a school older than Harvard university. On the front of a plain brick building in Twenty-ninth street near the Seventh avenue may be read the following inscription:

"School of the Collegiate Ref. Prot. Dutch Church of the City of New York. Founded A. D. 1633. Erected A. D. 1860."

Harvard college was founded in 1636; Yale in 1702. So far as we know this Reformed Dutch school is the oldest institution of learning now existing within the borders of the United States or even in America. Founded early in 1633, it is approaching the end of its two hundred and fiftieth year, an anniversary which it intends to celebrate with unusual eclat. When it began its career the city was called New Amsterdam, and Wouter Von Twiller was governor of the colony.

The only period of any considerable length during which the school has been closed was from 1776 to 1783, when New York was held by the British troops. Before Evacuation day, however, it was re-opened, and has never since been discontinued. Until 1773 the English language was never taught in the school. In that year the deacons of the Dutch Reformed Church, under whose charge it was, and is, permitted both languages to be taught. The Dutch language continued to be a leading object of study until after the beginning of the present century.

The school now contains about one hundred and fifty pupils, all of whom are children of members of the Reformed Dutch Church. The school is not only free, but needy children are provided with clothing, and all are required to attend Sunday school.

How changed is New York since Master Bogardus and his little flock of Dutch boys, all in cocked hats and leather breeches, came together every morning near Coenties slip! The place was then a Dutch village of about three hundred inhabitants. — Youth's Companion.

THOMAS'

OIL TROUGH TREE PROTECTORS.

(Patented August 9, 1881.)

This Improved Protector effectually protects the trees against the Canker Worms.

PLEASE Examine our new Protector. Below are some of the reasons why every one owning trees should use this Protector.

1. It is a first-class tree Protector, with a perpendicular front to the oil-pan, which prevents the oil from blowing out.
2. It has a pan large enough to contain oil for the season.
3. It is manufactured from heavy zinc, and will last for years.
4. Being corrugated prevents sagging when on the trees.
5. The protectors are smaller in the centre, which prevents the packing from falling through.
6. We use tow for packing, so there is no danger of girdling or injuring the tree.
7. By using our protectors, you will get more and finer fruit.
8. It is so constructed as to be a perfect barrier against canker worms; it will prevent codling moths, tussock moths, bark lice, curculio, caterpillars, etc., from ascending the trees.
9. This Protector is so cheap that every one owning trees can apply it. It is simply insuring your trees against insects for a few cents ar

My experience of several years in selling protectors has taught me what is required by the public is a cheap Oil Trough Protector, easily taken care of and something that cannot injure the trees, and will stop the grub from ascending. I am convinced that nothing can be fastened solid to a tree without doing more or less injury. We have applied our Protectors to hundreds of trees, where other protections have failed. Parties ordering, will please give their orders early to insure their being filled on time. Now is the time to put them on and prevent the codling moths, curculio bark lice and tussock moth from ascending the trees.

The Price of our Protectors is

10 cts. per Inch in diameter, which includes applying to the tree and filling with oil.

Neatest, cheapest and most durable Protector in the market.

SUPPLEMENT.

A Woman's Devotion.

There is nothing in the world like the beautiful devotion of a woman to the sick. She feels no toil, nor pain, nor timid terrors. If she has grief she hides it, lest it add one feather's weight to the affliction of her charge. Her courage rises as her hopes recede. The grim spectre that hovers and threatens may appal her, but she gives no sign. Her eye is clear and gentle, and her voice soft and sweet as the breath of summer; her touch so tender that the simplest kindly office is almost a caress. The dawn of her smile chases away suffering as light dispels the mists of the universe. There is a balm in her very presence. Her delicate instinct teaches a thousand arts of comfort and consolation which experience might study without success.

There is wisdom above science in her loving heart. She knows no sacrifice; wonders if you speak of any. She is calmest at times when men yield to a turbulent sorrow. She chains her emotions with her sense of vigilant duty. In her weakness she is far stronger than the strong. This mastery of self, this purity of devotion, this eager and unsleeping watchfulness, this radiant reflection of hope and trust, this outpouring of all that nature, lofty and true, can lavish, do they not mark the noblest heroism of humanity? From woman life comes. She feels that it is hers to guard. How well will she not guard it?

Flowers in Potatoes.

A gentleman from Utica in Louisville, Ky., who wished to send some beautiful flower buds to his wife, was at a loss how to do so. A florist friend said he would fix them. He cut a potato into two pieces and bored holes in them, into which he inserted the stems of the buds, and placed them in a box with cotton to support them. A letter from the recipient acknowledged the remembrance, and said that the buds had developed into full-blown flowers. There is sufficient moisture in a good-sized potato to support them [illegible] two weeks in a moderately cool temperature. Flowers from bouquets or baskets may be preserved in the same way. The potatoes can be hidden by leaves or mosses.—Utica (N. Y.) Observer.

A Chinese Dinner.

I found on Mulberry street the well-known cheap Chinese restaurant kept by the solemn, jovial Oriental, whose name is Fun Moine. "Chinese dinner seven cents," was the sign outside. I'll eat it if it kills me," thought I, and I went in. "One dinner," I said. "Yip—alle light," F. M. answered. I serreptitiously smelt of the butter. It seemed good. I tasted it. It was good. He brought a generous slice of roast beef, hot and reeking. "Good enough," I thought, and tackled it. He brought on a dish of beans — good beans. He brought coffee — prime Java. He brought boiled potatoes. "Beautiful," I thought. I slyly whistled in my napkin. I despatched them. He brought me a small piece of pie and cheese; I had n't expected that really. I immediately entertained them. "S-e-v-e-n cents,' I kept saying to myself. "Why need people go hungry?"

"How muchee?" I asked gracefully falling into the Chinese language.

"Forty-eight cents."

"Forty-eight cents! Great Scott! you said seven cents."

"That'le for Chinaman. No goodee. Mellican hungry. No muchee for seven cents." — Tribune.

The Great Manufacturing States.

The great manufacturing States of the country, according to the census, are New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio, Illinois, New Jersey and Michigan. Other States, like Connecticut, Indiana and Wisconsin, do a large amount of manufacturing, but none of them take the lead in the production of any one or more great manufactures as the first-named do. New York is the largest manufacturer of butter and cheese, of flouring and grist mill products, of wool hats and shipbuilding, though Pennsylvania produces the most new vessels. Pennsylvania is foremost in the manufacture of carpets, in hosiery and knit goods, in tanned leather and also in iron and steel. Massachusetts leads in the production of boots and shoes, in cotton goods, curried leather, woolen goods, paper and in worsted goods, although there is scarcely an appreciable difference between Pennsylvania and Massachusetts as to the size of the last named. Illinois heads the list in slaughtering and meat packing. Ohio in manufacture of agricultural implements, Michigan in sawed lumber and in salt, and New Jersey in silk and silk goods.

☞ "Though I never drink, I think I am taking a drop now," as the temperance man said, when he fell out of a third story window.

[illegible] a New York journal discourses in the following manner concerning her treatment of rats and mice: "We cleaned our premises of these detestable vermin by making a whitewash yellow with copperas, and covering the stones and rafters to the cellar with a thick coating of it. In every crevice where a rat might tread we put crystals of the copperas, and scattered the same in the corners of the floor. The result was a perfect stampede of rats and mice. Since that time not a footfall of either rat or mouse has been heard about the house. Every spring a coat of the yellow wash is given to the cellar, as a purifier as well as a rat exterminator, and no typhoid, dysentery or fever attacks the family. Many persons deliberately attract all the rats in the neighborhood by leaving fruits and vegetables uncovered in the cellar; and sometimes even the soap scraps are left open for their regalement. Cover up everything eatable in the cellar and pantry, and you will soon starve them out. These precautions, joined to the service of a good cat, will prove as good a rat exterminator as the chemist can prove. We never would allow rats to be poisoned in our dwelling, they are so liable to die in the walls and produce much annoyance."

She Telescoped.

"Tickets!" said a conductor on the Illinois Central Railroad, standing beside a large Irish woman with three alleged children. The woman put up four—one full and three half-fare tickets.

"How old is that girl?" inquired the conductor, looking suspiciously at a young lady holding possession of half the seat.

"Shur, and she's on the nigh side uv ten years."

"Ten years?" said the conductor, "looks like a widow woman; say, let her stand up a while and rest herself."

"Well, but, conductor, she's tall; her sthanding is very much longer than her age; but sthand up, Margaret, sthand up, and av he would luk at yer tathe, show em, Margaret."

The girl, who was sitting tailor style on the seat, commenced to unlimber herself, and, as she towered up in the daylight, she looked something like a lighthouse rising out of a breaking fog. The conductor took a bird's-eye view of her proportions, and then said:—

"I'll take another half-fare for this little girl, I guess. I thought she'd show off to better advantage after she [illegible]."

Talking at Table. Is it proper to talk at table? By all means. We are aware that some few consider it proper to observe silence while at table. We do not know how such a horrible custom originated, yet have a few times been a guest at such tables, but hope never to be again. The table is the very place to talk, and the meal hours should be among the pleasantest of the day. Don't talk business and discuss what work shall be done after dinner, but give the time to social chat. This should not prolong the meal inconveniently, but there should be enough of it to prevent the common custom of rapid eating.

☞ A German, who only left the old country about a year ago, but has become very much Americanized, speaking nothing but bad English, recently remarked, as he bought some school books, that all his boys' names began with S; hence, that all their books and clothes were marked with that one letter. "I suppose your boys' names are Sam, Simon, Solomon, or some such names." "No: Shon, Shim, Shake and Sherry."

☞ The diffenence between a long and a short yarn is well illustrated by the difference in one's feelings in holding a skein for one's grandmother, or one's sweetheart.

☞ The New Bedford Mercury, referring to the elevated railroad project says Boston needs two story streets no more than a West Indian needs a warming pan.

☞ An exchange says "striped parasols have taken the place of striped stockings." We don't believe it. The idea of a woman holding a striped stocking over her head to keep off the sun, and wearing parasols on her—— O, no, no! We don't believe the story.

☞ A lady of Chicago had her face enameled in a smile. Invited next day to a dear friend's funeral, she was obliged to smile the whole performance. Moral: Beauty unadorned is best.

☞ A strong constitutional prohibitory amendment has passed the Ohio Legislature and the temperance workers there are triumphant. It has still to pass the ordeal of a popular vote.

☞ It is said that the use of postals cards, which are now being turned out from the factory at Holyoke at the rate of a million a day, have diminished the consumption of writing paper $15,000,000 a year

☞ We do not insist that people shall go to church. But we insist that every man should have a fair opportunity of rest, on Sunday, and that those who go to church shall not be disturbed or shocked. Especially we insist that every avenue to hell, such as rum shops, shall be shut on that day.—Albany Law Journal.

Poetry.

A Mighty Sorrow.

The day goeth down red darkling,
  The moaning waves dash out the light
And there is not a star of hope sparkling,
  On the threshold of my night.

The wild winds of autumn go wailing
  Up the valley and over the hill,
Like yearning ghosts round the world sailing
  In search of the old love still.

A fathomless sea is rolling
  O'er the wreck of the bravest barque;
And my pain-muffled heart is tolling
  Its dumb-peal down in the dark.

The waves of a mighty sorrow
  Have whelmed the pearl of my life;
And there cometh to me no morrow
  Shall solace this desolate strife.

Gone are the last faint flashes,
  Set is the sun of my years;
And over a few poor ashes
  I sit in my darkness and tears.

Miscellany.

The Bridal Party.

There were three of them. One was a bride, the other a happy groom with red ears and maiden whiskers, and the third was the bride's mother. They were at the Grand Trunk depot yesterday morning to take the train West. The young man clasped the young wife's fat hand, rolled up his eyes, and they seemed happy, while the mother-in-law paraded up and down the sitting-room with lordly air, and seemed well satisfied. Pretty soon the groom went out, and when he returned he threw five pop-corn balls and a big bar of peanut candy into the bride's lap, and handed the old lady another. She turned up her nose, raised her spectacles, and thus addressed the young man with the red ears:

"See here, Peter White, you are married to Sabintha, ain't you?"

"Why, of course."

"And I have a right to feel an interest in you?"

"Of course."

"And we are now on your bridal tower, ain't we?"

"Yes."

"Well, now, you've been squandering money all along, Peter. You took a hack; you bought oysters; you bought a jackknife and you've just thrown money away. I feel that it is my duty to tell you to hold up before you make a fool of yourself."

"Whose money is this?" he asked, growing very red in the face.

"It is yours, and what is yours is Sabintha's, and it is my duty as her mother to speak out when I see you fooling your money away."

"I guess I can take care of my money," he retorted.

"Perhaps you can, Peter White; but there are those in your family who can't."

He struggled with his feelings as the bride shook her head at him, and then asked:

"Did I marry you?"

"No, sir, you didn't, you little bow-legged apology for a man; but I have a right to speak for my daughter."

"You can speak all you want to, but I want you to understand that I can manage my own affairs, and that I don't care for your advice."

"Peter White," she slowly responded, waving the peanut candy close to his nose. "I see we've got to have a fuss, and we might as well have it now."

"Ma! ma!" whispered the bride, pulling at the old lady's shawl.

"You needn't ma me, Sabintha! This Peter White has deceived us both about his temper, and I'm going to tell him just what I think of him! He commenced this fuss, and we'll see who'll end it."

"You mind your business and I'll attend to mine," growled Peter.

"Oh, you humpbacked hypocrite," she hissed, jabbing at his eye with the peanut bar. "Only a month ago you called me 'Mother Hull,' and was going to give me the best room in the new house!"

You'll never have a room in a house of mine!" he exclaimed.

"And I don't want one, you red eared hypocrite!"

"Don't, Peter—don't, ma!" sobbed the bride.

"It's my duty, Sabintha; it's your mother's ——!"

"Don't cry, Sabby," he interrupted; don't mind what she says!"

"Try to set my daughter up against me, will you?" hissed the old lady as she brought the peanut bar down on his nose.

"Oh! ma! yelled the bride.

"You old wretch!" hissed Peter as he clawed at her.

"None of the Whites will ever run over me!" exclaimed the mother-in-law, as she got hold of his shirt-collar and hauled him around.

"I'll knock your old——!"

"You can't knock nothing!" she interrupted, backing him against the table.

"Ma! Oh-h! ma!" howled Sabintha.

The dozen other passengers in the room who had been interested and amused listeners, here interrupted, and Peter was released from the old lady's grasp, his collar having been torn off and his cheek scratched.

"I expected this and prepared for it!" panted the mother-in-law as she leaned against the wall. "This doesn't end it, by any means! This bridal tower will come to a stop to-morrow, and then we'll see whether I've got any business to speak up for Sabintha or not!"

As the train moved away the old lady wore a grim smile. Sabintha was weeping, and Peter was struggling with another paper collar.

Read and Ponder.

There are many methods of slow suicide practiced by men of the day. Some men eat themselves to death, some wear out their lives by indolence, and some by over-exertion; others are killed by the doctors, while not a few sink into the grave under the effects of vicious and beastly habits. If the pulse exceeds seventy, there is a disease—the machine is working too fast; there is a fever or inflammation somewhere, and the body is feeding on itself.

A healthy pulse imparts to the finger a feeling as of a woollen string; in fever it feels harder like a silk thread; if there is an inflammation, which is always dangerous, it beats fast, spiteful and hard as if a fine wire was throbbing against the finger. Undoubtedly many business men seriously impair their health by stealing hours for toil from the time which should be devoted to sleep. A very unwise plan is this, for, without doubt, the best medicine in the world, more efficient in the cure of diseases than all potencies of the chemist's shop, are warmth, rest, cleanliness, and pure air.

Some persons make it a virtue to brave disease, "to keep up" as long as they can move or bend a finger, and it sometimes succeeds; but in others the powers of life are thereby so completely exhausted that the system has lost all ability to recuperate, and slow or typhoid fevers set in, and carry the patient to a premature grave.

Whenever walking or work is an effort, a warm bed and a cool room are the very first indispensable steps to a sure and speedy recovery. Instinct leads all beasts and birds to quietude and rest the very moment disease or wounds assail the system.

"A Terror to Plan."

Little Johnny got himself into a scrape last week. De Smith, Johnny's father, does not like his mother-in-law. There is a coolness between them. One morning who should come in but Mrs. De Smith's mother, with the avowed purpose of staying a few months, stating that Johnny had been to her the day before and invited her to do so. Johnny's ma took Johnny aside and asked him what he meant, as he had never been requested to convey any such invitation.

"I know you didn't tell me to invite grandma to come over," responded Johnny.

"Then, why did you do it?"

"You didn't let me go to the suckus, did you?"

"What has that got to do with it?" asked the irate mother.

"It's got heaps to do with it. I made up my mind then to bring things to a crisis, and I'se done it. We will have a suckus in the house now three or four times a day. I'm a kind boy to my parents, but it won't do to trample on me. I'm not much of a Sunday school boy either, but I am a terror to plan."

A Wonderful Woman.

Lillie Darst, who has just died in Ohio, was a remarkable character. As a child she was one of the most promising of the high school pupils in Circleville. After leaving school it was her lot to work for her living. She did not wish to teach. The position of editor and publisher of the Circleville Herald became vacant by the death of the proprietor. She took full charge of the journal, and made it one of the liveliest weekly papers in the state. Pickaway county, of which Circleville is the county seat, is largely democratic, yet this energetic girl not only made her republican paper profitable, but edited it so ably as to attract general attention through the state. Her party services were well appreciated, and after the election of the last legislature she was tendered the position of engrossing clerk of the senate.

A $40,000 Donkey.

Henry Clay once owned the lot opposite the White House, in Washington, and Commodore John Rogers wanted it, but the old whig persistently refused to dispose of it. On his return from the Mediterranean the commodore brought in one of his vessels a fine Andalusian donkey, which Clay wanted for his Kentucky stock farm. All his offers were rejected, until one day the commodore said: "You can have him for your lot opposite the White House," "Done," was Clay's reply, and the animal was shipped off to Kentucky. The commodore built the now historic house which Secretary Seward occupied during the war. Here Payne endeavored to assassinate him on the night when President Lincoln was shot. The lot is now valued at $40,000.

No Dread of Washing Day.

Somebody, writing of the habits of the people of olden times, says that washing-day, now a bugbear in every household, does not seem to have been much of an institution in the days of our great-great-grandmothers. Indeed, we are forced to the conclusion, mortifying as it is, that they were not very cleanly in personal habits. Linen and cotton materials that can be washed were not popular in England two centuries and a half ago. Velvets, taffeta and rich silks were in the middle ages often worn by the wealthy without any underclothing. The possession of a linen shirt, even with the highest nobles, was a matter of note, and it was but few wardrobes that contained them. Under the Tudors, nightgowns were worn, though they had not been before, but they were formed mostly of silk or velvet, so that no washing was required.

Thoughts for Saturday Night.

Experience is a torch lighted in the ashes of our illusions.

It is beautifully said that the veil of futurity is woven by the hand of mercy.

Thefts never enrich, alms never impoverish, and prayers hinder no work.

The gem cannot be polished without friction, nor man perfected without adversity.

Waste of wealth is sometimes retrieved; waste of health seldom; waste of time never.

David's pen never wrote more sweetly than when dipped in the ink of affliction.

Self-denial is the most exalted pleasure, and the conquest of evil habits the most glorious triumph.

There is no readier way of bringing your own worth into question than by detracting from the worth of others.

God will not refuse the poor offerings of poor people; but he will not accept the poor offerings of the rich.

The teacher who governs well gains more by waiting than talking. Many words are an evidence of weakness, not of strength.

Losses may be about the most profitable outlays you ever made, if you take into account what they sometimes save you afterward.

Some men make a great flourish about always doing what they believe to be right, but always manage to believe that is right which is for their own interest.

Fear small temptations rather than great ones. These come only now and then; those every day. Beware of being witty at the expense of reverence; sarcastic at the expense of charity; entertaining at the expense of truth; coarse at the expense of purity.

Bringing up Daughters.

There are few greater mistakes than the prevailing disposition among people in middle-class life to bring up their daughters as fine ladies, neglecting useful knowledge for showy accomplishments. The notions, it has been justly observed, which girls thus eduated acquire of their own importance is in an inverse ratio to their true value. With just enough of fashionable refinement to disqualify them for the duties of their proper station, and render them ridiculous in a higher sphere, what are such fine ladies fit for? Nothing, but to be kept like wax figures in a glass case. Woe to the man who is linked to one of them. If half the time and money wasted on music, dancing and embroidery were employed in teaching daughters the useful arts of making shirts and mending stockings and managing household affairs, their real qualifications as coming wives and mothers would be increased fourfold.

Telephone Factories.

There are six telephone factories in the United States, all doing a prosperous business, in one alone orders for six thousand instruments have been received in six weeks' time. Seven years ago Mr. Bell was a poor Englishman, living in New Haven, Conn., experimenting in telegraphy, when he discovered that he could talk over the wires in duplex messages. He is now said to be worth at least $6,000,000. Thomas Watson, of New Haven, an elderly mechanic, who used to assist Mr. Bell in his experiments; H. P. Frost, president of the Connecticut Telephone Company; and George W. Coy, also of New Haven, have all become millionaires in this business. Mr. Coy, supposed to be the greatest electrician in the country, has sold all his patents to the United States Telephone Company, and the Bell men are said to be in terror lest they awake some morning to learn that he has perfected a new invention that will throw theirs into the shade. Marshall Jewell was another interested in telephones who made a great deal of money by them. There are now a hundred telephones in this country to one in England.

Came Home Again.

A grocer was hungrily waiting for his clerk to return from dinner that he too might partake of his noonday meal, when a boy came into the store with a basket in his hand, and said "I seed a boy grab up this 'ere basket from the door and run, and I ran after him and made him give it up."

"My lad, you are an honest boy."

"Yes, sir."

"And you look like a good boy."

"Yes, sir."

"And good boys should always be encouraged. In a box in the back room there are eight dozen eggs; you can take them home to your mother, and keep the basket."

The grocer had been saving up those eggs for days and weeks to reward some one. In rewarding a good boy he also got eight dozen bad eggs carried out of the neighborhood free of cost, and he chuckled as he walked homeward. The afternoon waned, night came and went, and once more the grocer went to his dinner. When he returned, his face wore a contented and complacent smile. His eye caught a basket of eight dozen eggs as he entered the store, and he queried:

"Been buying some eggs?"

"Yes; got hold of them from a farmer's boy," replied the clerk.

"A lame boy with a blue cap?"

"Yes?"

"Two front teeth out?"

"Yes."

The grocer sat down and examined the eggs. The shells had been washed clean, but they were the same eggs which the good boy had taken home the day before.

Origin of Philosophy, No. 2.

BY FRANK M. FRISSELLE.

Nothing fills man with so much pride, independence and mind-courage as an intellectual victory over an obscurity of nature. The term philosophy is applied to conduct, as distinguished from the pulsations of a blood-surging passion and barbarous instinct.

The correct perceptions of an object in view and the reasonable adaption of means applicable to their attainment — notwithstanding any infatuation, temporary fascination or personal thought—demand that effort embracing the surmounting of the higher ideas over the narrow and bigoted views of an inferior appetite or low sensuality. The power given man to wade through all the difficulties and harrassments attendant in life, with a tranquil, undisturbed, serene and happy frame of mind, can be dignified with the appellation of philosophy. It is never to be supposed that philosophy means, in this case, merely the being of an indomitable energy or an extreme exercise of the will power, for in all cases where a wonderful resolution and self-restraint are shown there is some intelligence implied.

At the bottom of all this serenity and placidity there is a firm basis of reflection, some demonstration and hypotheses that have persuaded the individual to resist the powers which seek to overthrow the inner spirit. These demonstrations, reflections or hypotheses constitute the philosophy of the action. Examine the illustrative treatment of the various branches of human knowledge, and a more or less philosophical method will be observed. Inspect the formula of the study of grammar, of mathematics, of law, of language, of history, and so forth, and it will be seen that the philosophy is implied, in that the subjects have been reduced to law and doctrines, and that the divisions have been arranged in the natural order of succession and reliance. Philosophy may be located in the method adopted in the guidance of inquiries and investigations into the world. Socrates can be classed pre-eminently in this familia. Observe the philosophy of Bacon referring to the place moulded by him for absorbing the knowledge of the properties and general laws of the universe. Once it was common to contrast the methods of Newton and Decartes; and the contrast did not lie in the opposite explanation of the planetary movements and other facts, but in their whole form of procedure in investigation.

The name philosopher applies to that class of persons whose highest taste was for the searching out of a natural fact; just as we speak of the love of poetry, music or bodily exercise, so may we judge the meaning of philosophy, in so much as it indicates a species of pursuit or an eccentric appetite in the quest of knowledge. No man is at all qualified to practice any inspiration whatsoever, unless he can give strictly scientific reasons for so doing. It is not possible for human nature to compound any work without mixing itself with the same, or leaving the impress of itself or its machinery or peculiarities upon the finis.

The Shadow Game.

A sheet is stretched upon a frame made for the purpose, and set across the room. When there are double parlors it is a good plan to open the folding-doors and hang the sheet in their place. The audience are seated on one side of the screen, while the children occupy the other side as a stage. The children now disguise themselves as best they can with shawls, hats, bonnets, and such like, belonging to the grown people. The lights are all put out, except one good lamp set on the floor, or on a box at the back of the screen. When all is ready the children pass one by one between the light and the screen. The audience in turn must guess from the shadow on the screen who it is that is passing behind it, and every time they make a mistake they must pay a forfeit. What with odd garments, umbrellas, canes, limping and the like, the children succeed in making lots of fun.

Demand the Cash.

We observe that a number of our country exchanges are notifying their readers that after specified dates they will require cash in advance for subscriptions. This is the true policy, and should be rigidly adhered to. The newspaper publisher is required to pay cash for all that enters into the preparation of his paper, and it is sheer injustice to ask him to give credit. Every man who subscribes to a paper does so because he knows it to be valuable to him, and not as a favor to the publishers, and he should pay for it as he is required to do for every other cash commodity. Let country publishers enforce this policy, without fear or favor, for one year, and they will have no trouble thereafter. Better five hundred prompt paying subscribers than one thousand of the credit class who are never out of arrears. Demand the cash in advance.

Education.

If you can afford nothing else, give your children an education. A trained mind goes through life, cannot be stolen, and is not convertible. Good schools, good books, and general reading matter — get them these if they have to do without other things; and, to secure a right direction to educated mind, give them by word and example good principles. Let them grow up with the idea that it is not needful to be rich, famous or influential; but that it is essential to do what is right.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1883.

Complimentary Banquet.

On Wednesday evening, at Faxon hall, the Republicans of Quincy gave a banquet to Warren W. Adams, chairman of the Republican Town Committee. The invited guests assembled in the hall about eight o'clock, and soon after were invited by Dr. J. M. Cutting to the dining room, where was found an excellent collation.

After being seated at the tables Dr. Cutting called the assembly to order, and invited Rev. Samuel Kelley to ask a blessing. After which all were requested to indulge in the good things so bountifully spread before them. After partaking of the oranges, bananas, ice cream, and cake the doctor, who ably presided on this occasion, called for remarks from the following gentlemen: Charles A. Foster, Warren W. Adams, District Attorney Bumpus, Henry H. Faxon, Wm. C. Seelye, John Q. A. Field, Rev. Samuel Kelley, Geo. H. Field, Geo. L. Gill, John W. Hall, Charles N. Ditson, George W. Russell, James E. Tirrell, William H. H. Rideout, Harry S. Luce, Arthur E. Sproul, Charles A. Howland and others, whose short and pithy speeches were enjoyed.

Mr. Foster, the first speaker, after highly eulogizing Mr. Adams for his able services as chairman during the past six years, presented him with an elegant gold watch and chain, valued at $175, purchased by Mr. Chas. F. Pettengill from donations made by members of the Republican party.

Mr. Adams received the present with surprise, and in a few brief words thanked the members for their beautiful gift.

E. C. Bumpus, Esq., made a short humorous speech which was well received. He was followed by Henry H. Faxon, Esq., who complimented Mr. Adams on his faithful labors for the party; and then spoke of the affray at Atlantic the day before, resulting in Officer Seelye getting two black eyes. He complimented the officer for doing his duty, and not only in idle words, for in closing said that a plaster was good for sore eyes and presented him with one — a check for $20.

The evening was pleasantly spent and much enjoyed, and several present thought that they would like to be watched in as agreeable a manner as Mr. Adams had been. The watch bore the following inscription:

PRESENTED TO
WARREN W. ADAMS
BY THE
REPUBLICANS OF QUINCY
May 2, 1883.

COMPLIMENTARY. The Mayor and other officials from Haverhill visited Quincy on Thursday to examine our new almshouse. They had visited other places, but had not found anything that gave them so complete satisfaction as our Quincy Home. They gave vent to their feelings by saying that "Quincy has got the best almshouse in the state." They were gratified with the general appearance within, and complimented our Superintendent and Matron on their good management. Probably they had not been to Tewksbury.

UNION BAND. The Union Brass Band [illegible] is in a flourishing condition, and will number this season twenty-eight men. The members are having made, by Messrs. Maguire & Sullivan of Boston, splendid new uniforms, which are to cost collectively $1100. They are to be ready for use on Decoration Day, on which occasion the band is expected to make a very fine appearance. They are to play in the forenoon at Milton, and in the afternoon in the G. A. R. parade in Boston. We are pleased to learn that they have several engagements ahead.

A LONG TIME. It is thirty years this week since Mr. Prescott the junior editor of the PATRIOT commenced learning the art of setting type, and from that time to this he has labored in this establishment. He has been longer in one office probably than any editor or printer in Norfolk County. He has seen the PATRIOT grow from a small sheet, to a large nine column paper; from a small circulation to one unsurpassed by any country weekly in this part of the state.

ENGINEERS. The Selectmen of Quincy have appointed the following gentlemen as engineers of the Fire Department for the ensuing year:—

John W. Hall, Joseph M. Glover, Joseph W. Hayden, Charles N. Ditson, John A. Duggan, Franklin Curtis and William B. Barry.

At a meeting held on Tuesday evening, the board was organized by the election of John W. Hall as Chief, and Joseph M. Glover, Clerk.

ACCIDENT. Last Thursday evening two boys while playing in the lumber yard of Mr. Benj. F. Curtis were completely buried under a lot of plank which fell upon them. Fortunately for them several men were in the vicinity at the time to render immediate aid, or there is no telling what the consequences might have been. Boys have been frequently cautioned about the danger of playing in the yard and it is to be hoped that this will be a warning to them and others.

LARGE PURCHASE. Mr. William B. Rice of this town purchased on the 21st ultimo a large estate in the town of Winthrop, owned by the city of Boston, known as the Winthrop Farm, for the sum of $80,200.

The farm sold consists of 173 acres, the original Sale and Tappan farms, purchased by the city of Boston in 1863 for $28,000 with the intention of erecting thereon an insane asylum, which project was defeated by Mayor Norcross. As the city had no use for the land, and at the same time was paying a heavy tax for it, the land being assessed by the town of Winthrop at $136,000, it was thought to be most advisable to sell it. A number of the gentlemen on the public lands committee expressed themselves as well satisfied with the sum obtained. Mr. Rice is not certain as to what disposition he will make of the land purchased, but it is understood that it will be cut up into house-lots, more particularly for Summer residents, as Winthrop is being patronized more and more each year by this class, and bids fair to become one of the first Summer resorts of that locality. By the terms of the sale $25,000 was to be paid in cash and the balance in one year from the day of the sale, with interest at five per cent.

Brief Locals.

☞ Oysters R to the rear.

☞ The Quincy Yacht Club are making arrangements for their first regatta, which will take place off Great Hill in about a fortnight.

☞ William Webb has a large variety of beautiful cinerarias which have been blooming since last January. The seed was bought in France by his son.

☞ Mr. Albert Holt has improved the appearance of the old cemetery near the Town House this week by resodding the tombs near the road, &c.

☞ Joseph W. Lombard sold on Saturday last for $1660, a two story house with ell, off Granite street, formerly owned by Patrick Kennedy to Patrick Fitzgerald.

☞ The young folks, and some of larger growth, have had many good times this week at the skating rink at the old library building. This place is growing in popular favor with our people and is well managed.

☞ Hosie's street sprinkler commenced watering the streets for this season on May Day. Many of the store keepers and others on the main streets, were pleased to see that its labor had commenced.

☞ Mr. John Cavanaugh has done quite a little amount of moving of town buildings this spring, as follows:—old almshouse, Tiger Engine house, Neck School house and Hose house. The work was all done satisfactorily.

☞ Any of our citizens having shrubs or plants that they do not want, are informed that the Superintendent of the Quincy Home would be pleased to accept of the same to beautify the grounds.

☞ Mrs. Lewis Bass, mother of Mr. Waldron, who has been devoted in her care and attention to the afflicted ones was compelled by sickness to return to her home, where it is hoped a few days of quiet rest will restore her to health again.

Universalist Festival.

Unanimous opinion pronounces the Universalist festival a perfect success. It was our judgment that a rich advertisement was presented to the public, and we are happy to know that more was given than was promised. The first evening saw the vestry filled, while the second evening drew a generous patronage. The Ladies' Association and the several committees are entitled to much praise for the method and efficiency of arrangements. The suppers were marvels of excellence, both in quantity and quality, and the fancy tables revealed a diversity of taste and much preparation.

The young people who gave the drama, "Among the Breakers," were assigned with eminent fitness to the cast of characters, and acquitted themselves with a credit most unusual with amateurs. The careful direction of Mrs. Burrell bore ample results. Our young pianist, Master Jackson, shared the applause of the delighted audience.

The miscellaneous entertainment of the second evening had two surprises, for the enforced absence of Mr. Whitney was more than compensated by the presence of the talented elocutionist Miss Belle Cushman Eaton and the pleasing vocalist Miss Howe of Boston. In several highly dramatic and amusing readings the Hon. Gideon Haynes revealed great power of delineation, and Miss Eaton with charming versatility read to the unqualified delight of all. A neice of the lamented Charlotte Cushman, Miss Eaton is endowed with abilities of a high promise. We hope to hear her again the coming season. Our popular soprano, Mrs. C. P. Tirrell, quite excelled herself, and the numbers of Miss Howe were received with much favor. We understand that the financial result is very gratifying.

May Fair.

The fair and festival held at the Town Hall last Saturday evening, under the auspices of the ladies of the Unitarian Church, was a very enjoyable and pleasant affair. The singing by the young gentlemen from Harrison Square was very entertaining. The two little girls from Boston did credit to themselves in dancing. One of them played both on the violin and piano. The singing and playing by a number of other young ladies was very fine.

The tables on one side were loaded with fancy and useful articles for sale. On the other were rich viands. When supper was finished Mr. William B. Rice sold what was left at auction, so that those who had not laid in their Sunday dinner had a chance to get it all prepared.

Dancing then followed by the younger members of the society, until half-past ten, when the company retired; each wishing they could have a May fair oftener.

May Festival.

The festival Tuesday evening, at the Congregational Chapel was well attended. The exercises were commenced with a duet by Misses Carrie Hardwick and Carrie Norton, followed by readings appropriate to the occasion by a number of young ladies. Miss Gracie Spear sang some very pretty pieces, which were much enjoyed. The feature of the evening was the May pole. The audience voted for the May Queen and Maids of Honor — Miss Carrie Norton received the greatest number of votes, which was thirty-eight. She was crowned with a beautiful wreath of flowers, her five Maids of Honor standing beside her. She then led the way to the May pole, followed by fifteen young ladies dressed in white, who danced around it. The Queen then cut her cake and distributed it among her friends, who took it home to dream upon. Ice cream and flowers were for sale during the evening by the young ladies who had charge of the festival. The company separated about ten o'clock, every one declaring that they had had an excellent time.

SERENADE.

The Q. P. C. H. P. C. turned out in full force on Monday night to serenade one of their number, Frank E. Burrell, who was married on Saturday last. The concert was of the usual good (?) order, and the torches held by each man on the homeward march showed that no shout was lacking. The couple may now consider themselves fully married.

GIFT.

The Washington Street Congregational Sunday School received a gift of twenty-five dollars from H. H. Faxon, Esq., for which the school returned a vote of thanks to our generous townsman.

SCARLET FEVER.

There are three cases of scarlet fever in the place, all children, who are very sick. It is to be hoped that this dreaded disease will not spread further.

THIS AND THAT.

May night was observed quite generally by the children in hanging May baskets and making calls.

Who muffled the bell? Call on William for the handkerchiefs.

Singing School will meet next Tuesday evening, at 7.30 o'clock.

Vulture Engine Co. will hold the first regular meeting of the year on Monday night.

PERSONAL.

Miss Annie B. Sampson spent Sunday at her home.

Mr. George B. Sargent is improving quite rapidly, and will soon be able to tend to business again.

Capt. Daniel Higgins arrived home Friday night.

Mrs. John S. Freeman is visiting friends in Brooklyn, New York.

THE POCASSET FANATIC. Charles B. Freeman, the Pocasset fanatic who sacrificed his little daughter while in a state of religious frenzy, was released from the Danvers Insane Asylum on Monday, and was brought to Barnstable for trial for the murder, as it is now decided that he is perfectly sane. A hearing was had before the Supreme Court on Tuesday afternoon, and after examination of the prisoner and others, Judge Colburn ordered his discharge from the asylum and remanded him to the custody of the sheriff. In case the Attorney-General shall not proceed to trial within six months after the prisoner is put into confinement, the statutes provide for his release from further custody.

Atlantic.

Persons who witnessed the assault on Officer Seelye, Tuesday afternoon, by the Moon Islanders declare that the officer's situation was very critical. Considering the number and character of his assailants it was fortunate he did not fare worse.

Mr. George S. Blaisdell has been awarded the contract for constructing the reservoir on Billings street and will commence work next Monday.

The alarm from Box 53, Wollaston, on Wednesday A. M., came in all right and was promptly responded to by the J. Q. Adams Chemical Engine which arrived at the fire twelve minutes after the alarm struck, and ahead of the steamer by a few minutes.

The J. Q. Adams Chemical Engine Company held a meeting on Thursday evening for the payment of its members, and for the transaction of other business, after which they dissolved. Upon reorganization for the coming year, in accordance with the vote of the town, this company will consist of twelve members instead of twenty-five.

A man named Flaherty while walking on the rail road track near Atlantic station, on Thursday morning, was struck by the 8.30 train, but not seriously injured. He was removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

LARGE LAND SALE. It will be seen from an advertisement that 208 acres of woodland are to be sold at auction on Monday next. This land is in the neighborhood of the noble residence of Mr. Cunningham and has much finer sites for building. The time will come when it will be wanted for the most beautiful park in the environs of Boston. A right of way brings the property within half a mile of the West Quincy station. A few years ago one of our granite companies offered to guarantee a high rate of interest for a track connecting the quarries with the Old Colony railroad. This is a development which is certain to come. The sale is well worth the attention of those who believe in the future of land within ten miles of Boston State House and half a mile from a station. The name of the capitalist or company securing it will appear in our next issue.

SUDDEN DEATH. It is with sorrow that we record the death, after a short illness, of one of our highly respected citizens, Mr. Thomas G. Price. The deceased, who had been for several years a resident of Quincy, had by his uprightness of character and kind and genial disposition, won the confidence and esteem of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

The funeral took place on Tuesday last from his late residence on Granite street, and was very largely attended. Much sympathy was expressed for his sorrowing family. Hancock Council, No. 56, Legion of Honor, of which deceased was an honored member, attended in a body and took charge of the remains.

As a mark of respect, the distinguished piano-forte manufacturer, George H. Chickering, Esq., of Boston, in whose employ the deceased had been for the past nineteen years, was present with a large delegation of his employes, and escorted the remains to the grave. This latter feature attracted the attention of many of our townspeople and elicited warm expressions of admiration and praise, not only for the large heartedness and noble qualities which Mr. Chickering displayed as a gentleman, but for the noble example which he so modestly set before employers, as an instance of the kind feeling and respect existing between employes and employed,—an example which all employers might do well to imitate. Before the remains were laid in their last resting place, a prayer was offered and a beautiful hymn sung by members of the Legion of Honor. It was the general sentiment that a good man had departed.

☞ An Ashland concern is melting 10,000 old fruit cans per week for the solder that can be obtained from them. One party wishes to purchase twenty-five tons of them, after they have been heated, for sheet iron. These cans are taken from the swill of Boston.

☞ The house lately occupied by Edward E. Carlton in Watertown, where his wife was murdered six weeks ago, was burned Sunday night.

☞ Mr. Joel F. Sheppard has discharged at the Braintree wharf, from Monday noon to Saturday night last week 1250 tons of coal; being the cargoes of three schooners. This is regarded as quite a feat, especially when the facilities at command are taken into account.

☞ The Braintree Military Company have got permission to parade in public with arms by the authority of Samuel Dalton, Adjutant General of the Commonwealth.

☞ Quite a number of Washington society people attended the wedding at Frederick City, Md., recently, of Mr. Donald McLean, a New York lawyer, and Miss Emily Nelson Ritchie, a daughter of Judge Ritchie, one of the leading Democrats of Maryland, and at one time a congressman from that State. Miss Ritchie has fifteen sisters, who, like her, have the reputation of being the handsomest ladies in that State. Miss Emily is the first of the sixteen sisters who has married.

For the Patriot.

Wollaston.

May Day here was beautiful, and during the evening, and even the night we were on the qui vive with some excitement. The Road Commissioners are hard at work making side-walks, mending streets and attending assiduously to Spring cleaning. The citizens are improving their estates, and the child is making rapid strides to overtake its parent — Quincy. An other adjunct of a high state of civilization throws out each evening its beacon light as a warning or an invitation,— a fine drug store.

Tuesday evening closed with a May festival given by the children. A fairy dance in which tiny children daintily dressed in white and colored tissues, with the conventional wings, was first on the programme. Then followed a dance where the little ones carried arches of flowers. This was very beautiful. The crowning feature of the evening was the dance around a May pole, where the streamers were successfully braided and unbraided; the eager eyes of the children watched the colored ribbons, and so slowly and gracefully was the circle enlarged as they ended, that much applause was elicited. Round dances and Sailor's Horn-pipe followed. Evidently teacher and pupils had worked faithfully.

Towards morning two fires added to the list of those sad accidents that have so often visited our little town. The zeal of our people is not lessened by these fatalities, but it seems a sad feature in our growth to record the distress these frequent fires have occasioned.

FAY.

On Wednesday morning, about four o'clock, an alarm of fire from Box 53 called the department to Wollaston, where a brisk fire was in progress in a double house on Brook street, owned by Edmund S. Sparrow and occupied by Messrs. Clapp and Bicknell. The Chemical was on hand promptly, and the fire was mostly confined to the ell, although it eventually worked into the roof of the main house. Damage about $1000, which is supposed to be covered by insurance. Most of the furniture was saved in a damaged condition.

On Tuesday of this week, our worthy constable, Mr. William C. Seelye, who was working at the time at Atlantic, was the recipient of a token of friendship in the shape of a May Day boquet, at the hands of a large party of intoxicated persons who assaulted him, bruising and cutting him severely. After managing to escape from them assistance was secured and three sadly demoralized looking subjects were arrested. They were brought into court the next morning and received a four months' sentence for their folly.

AVON.

District Court, Quincy.

The following criminal cases have been before Judge Humphrey since our last issue:

William Kennedy, of Holbrook, for breaking and disturbing the peace. The case was continued until this Saturday morning.

Patrick Carey, Jr., of Holbrook, for breaking and disturbing the peace. Continued until this morning.

Horace G. Beals, of Weymouth, for neglecting to provide for a minor child. Found guilty and sentenced to the House of Correction for three months. He appealed.

Daniel Driscoll, Daniel Kiley and William Ellis, were arrested at Atlantic for an assault on Officer Seelye. Driscoll and Kiley received a sentence of three months at the House of Correction, and Ellis one month.

The same three assailants for an assault on Officer Hunt, received a sentence of one month. For disturbing the peace they were each fined $5 and one-third of the costs.

Seth Record, of Weymouth, for keeping a liquor nuisance. Continued until this Saturday morning.

John Hayes, of Weymouth, for keeping a liquor nuisance. Continued until this morning.

Christopher Nolan, of Milton, for malicious trespass. Plead guilty and sentenced to the House of Correction for thirty days.

Resolutions.

At a meeting of Hancock Council, No. 56, A. L. of H., held on Tuesday evening, May 1, 1883, the following resolutions were passed:—

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty in His divine power to remove from among us our dearly beloved companion, Thomas G. Price, be it

Resolved, That we heartily sympathize with the family and relatives of the deceased in this their hour of affliction.

Resolved, That by the death of Companion Price this Council has lost a diligent and earnest worker and a highly respected member, who, by his friendly acts, endeared himself to all.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and that they be published in the QUINCY PATRIOT and a copy be placed on the file of this Council.

Neponset.

The Baptist Church, which is the largest Protestant meeting-house in this village, was completely filled last Sunday evening; the occasion being a union temperance meeting. The address was by the Rev. Dr. Banvard, pastor of this church, who gave a very interesting, radical and eloquent discourse on this subject. He said some good words about Quincy, and also of the prominent and distinguished gentleman who had been so active and persevering in suppressing the liquor traffic in that town. The Congregational, Unitarian and Methodist clergymen of this village were present and took part in the services.

The city of Boston have recently covered their part of Neponset Bridge with new sheathing plank, the necessity of keeping horses sharp for the winter travel for nearly four months, and the small amount of snow on the bridge the past winter, having been very severe on the planking.

Some of our citizens have been repairing and painting their houses and front fences recently. They seem disposed to make things look as attractive as possible, expecting, no doubt, a visit soon from their old friends the Boston Assessors.

Vegetine.

SUPERIOR TO ANY FAMILY MEDICINE.

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

ITS MEDICINAL PROPERTIES ARE

Alterative, Tonic, Solvent and Diuretic.

VEGETINE is made exclusively from the juices of carefully-selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal Complaints, can only be effectually cured through the blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Scaldhead and Ringworm, VEGETINE has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine diseases and General Debility, VEGETINE acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammations, cures ulceration and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles, Nervousness, and General Prostration of the Nervous System, no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the VEGETINE. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact, VEGETINE is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases, and is the only reliable BLOOD PURIFIER yet placed before the public.

DWELLING HOUSE
— AND —
One Acre of Land
AT AUCTION
IN QUINCY, MASS.
WILL BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION ON
Saturday, May 12th, 1883,
At 4 o'clock P. M.,

A COTTAGE HOUSE and one Acre of Land, situated on Mount Pleasant, Quincy, belonging to MRS. PATRICK SULLIVAN. The House has 6 very convenient apartments, and is in thorough repair. The land is adapted for a grapery. There is a Rock on the premises called Squaw Rock, from which you can look over the entire town of Quincy, which makes it very delightful. The premises adjoin the estate of J. M. Goodhue, Esq., and land of the late Job Faxon.

Parties of small means looking for homes of the above description are invited to the Sale. It is situated within 10 minutes' walk of R. R. depot; near Schools and Churches. The neighborhood is very quiet. Just the place to purchase.

It will be sold without reserve at 4 P. M.
Conditions at Sale.

The Auctioneer has 2 HOUSE LOTS for Sale, in good location—one in Wollaston—one on Copeland Street, West Quincy.

There will be a large Sale of FURNITURE and CARPETS this evening at the Quincy Auction Room.

FIFTEEN CARRIAGES for Sale, of different make and styles. Will sell or trade.

WOODLAND
GRANITE QUARRIES.
WILL BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION, ON Monday, May 7th, 1883,
At 2 o'clock P. M.

THE well-known Quincy Wood Lot, formerly owned by the late Josiah Quincy, and lying near the Milton Boundary, and within twenty minutes' walk of the West Quincy Station, comprising 208 acres of Woodland, with a number of valuable Granite Quarries, among which are the well-known Pike's Peak and Bed-bug Quarries, formerly worked by the Quincy Granite Company, and from the latter were taken the columns of Sears' Building, Boston. Assessed valuation of the property is $9,800.

Together with the right of way in a road 33 feet wide, leading from Grove St. to said Wood Lot.

For plans and description apply to the Auctioneer, or WHITMAN & BRECK, 85 Devonshire St., Boston.

This is just the property for capitalists, or men of enterprise, as there are a few excellent Quarries in the vicinity. The public are well aware that a good Quarry is equal to a gold mine, and those that hold them have a key to the stone business.

P. S.—All parties that are looking for good Quarries and Woodland, of which there is a good growth on some parts of this property, are invited to be at the Ledge, formerly occupied by the Quincy Granite Co., at 2 o'clock, sharp, on day of sale.

Terms made known on day of sale.
Sale positive weather fair or foul.

AT AUCTION.
WILL BE SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION, ON Saturday, May 5th, 1883,
At 4 o'clock, P. M

TWO Dwelling Houses belonging to PATRICK PIERCE, of Oregon, California. This property is in two separate pieces, with a small Dwelling House on one lot, and House and Stable on the other. It may be sold in separate lots, or altogether.

This property is now rented for about $12.00 per month, and is situated within fifteen minutes walk of two Railroad Depots. The land is in a high state of cultivation, and well fenced. This is just the property to purchase, as it lies within a few minutes' walk of the Quarries.

This will be a positive sale. The conditions will be made known on day of sale.

— FOR THE —
TOWN OF QUINCY.

FOR the present year, hereby gives notice to the inhabitants of said town, that he will be at the Selectmen's room on the four following MONDAYS:—May 7, 14, 21 and 28, from 9 to 12 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of Sealing such Beams, Weights and Measures as shall be brought to him for that purpose.

Also, that he may be found at his store No. 90 Hancock Street, any day after that time.
GEORGE SAVILLE, Sealer.

"Any person using any scales, weights, measures or milk cans after a sealer of weights and measures has demanded permission to test the same, and has been refused such permission, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars."

"If any person shall knowingly use any false weight, measure, milk can, scale, balance or beam, or shall alter any weight, measure, milk can, scale, balance or beam, after the same shall have been adjusted and sealed, so that the same thereby shall not conform to the public standard, and shall fraudently make use of the same, he shall forfeit for each offence the sum of fifty dollars, one-half to the use of the city or town, and one-half to the use of the complainant."

Assessors' Notice.

QUINCY 1625; 1640; 1792

To the Inhabitants and all other Persons liable to pay taxes in the Town of Quincy:

THE Assessors of the Town of Quincy hereby give notice to the inhabitants of said town, and all persons liable to pay taxes therein, that they will be at the office of the Selectmen, EVERY SATURDAY in May, from 2 to 4½ o'clock, P. M., and from May 26th until June 2d, every day from 8 to 10 o'clock A. M., to receive the valuation of estates; and all persons liable to be taxed in said town are hereby required to bring in at said office, a true and correct schedule of the Real and Personal Estates, for which they are liable to pay taxes.

Mortgaged Real Estate.

"Any mortgagor or mortgagee of real estate may bring in to the assessors of the town or city wherein such real estate lies," within the time specified in this notice, "a statement, under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such real estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagor. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a recorded mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement."—[Chap. 175 of the Acts of 1882.] When a statement in conformity with the law above quoted is brought in, the real estate therein returned will be assessed under Sections 14, 15 and 16, of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes. But in cases where the mortgagor of the real estate has agreed in writing to pay all taxes assessed thereon, NO STATEMENT OR RETURN IS REQUIRED from either mortgagee or mortgagor, unless requested by the assessors in writing.

Returns of Property held for Literary, Benevolent, Charitable or Scientific Purposes.

[Chap. 217, Acts 1882.]

"All persons and corporations are required to bring in to the assessors, not later than the first day of July, 1883, true lists of all real and personal estate held by such persons and corporations respectively for literary, benevolent, charitable or scientific purposes on the first day of May, 1883, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures by such persons or corporations for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of May, 1883, such lists and statements to be in such detail as may be required by the Tax Commissioner." Blank forms for the above returns can be had of the assessors.

Persons holding estates in trust are requested to furnish the assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands, from some other causes, the executor or administrator is required to give notice of such change. In default of such notice, he will be held responsible for the tax assessed.

Any person bringing in a list of his taxable property will be assessed upon the valuation thereof, and any one neglecting to furnish the assessors with such list, within the time above specified, will at a legal meeting of the Board of Assessors, be doomed according to the laws of the Commonwealth.

All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing, and subscribed under oath before one of the assessors at their office, on or before the third day of June; and that the personal property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board of Assessors, notwithstanding a verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the assessors.

When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed upon such person for such property can be granted, unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per centum the amount which would have been assessed to that person on personal estate.

A New Market.

We learn that Mr. G. Fred Wilson is soon to erect a large block on Hancock street, between his residence and Mr. Tirrell's. It is to be a two story building with Mansard roof, and a cellar under the same. Mr. William Parker has the contract.

Mr. Wilson intends moving his stable to the rear of his land next week, then the work of excavating for the new block will soon commence.

The lower floor is to be used by Mr. Wilson and his sons for a large grocery and market; the second story for offices and business purposes; and above these is to be a large hall.

The new block will be an improvement to the street, and will afford greater facilities to the Messrs. Wilson to carry on their immense trade. They are among the larger merchants of the place—doing about $2000's worth of business a week—and their present accommodations are insufficient for their business.

For the Patriot.

Pure Salt Water.

If the engineers and experts who are responsible for the new system of sewerage for Boston are to be trusted, Quincy Bay will soon be freer from contamination than it has ever been since the country was thickly settled. The sewerage which the city is constantly discharging has hitherto been churned up and down between Nantasket beach and Deer Island, with small opportunity of going to sea. Any one who sails from Quincy, Weymouth, or Hingham will have occular demonstration of this fact when he reaches the open ocean. The line of perpetual sewerage is clearly marked and very striking. Arrangements will soon be completed to discharge the liquid sewerage of Boston at a time when the tide is setting strongly out, and from a point where it can easily reach the ocean. As the result of their experiments, the commissioners state that while some portion of this sewerage (so diluted as to be unobjectionable) will be brought by the following incoming tide upon the North Eastern shores of Winthrop and Deer Islands, the following ebb tide will carry it far out to sea. Quincy Bay, say these wise men, is the one place which is secure from contamination. Its position is like that of a man who stands behind a cannon when it is discharged. The man in front of the gun, though he be three miles off, may come to grief; he who is a few rods behind it is absolutely safe. As fears have been expressed about this matter, it is well to remember that those who have made it a special study promise us purer salt water than any one now living has seen in Quincy Bay.

YACHTSMAN.

A SHOCKING TRAGEDY. The steamer Bristol on its route to Boston last Monday night while near Point Judith, was the scene of a sad affair, which has brought grief and sorrow to a large circle of friends. Mr. Albert H. Beal, Jr., and his partner Mr. A. Perley Fickett were returning from New York and occupied a state room together, the latter gentleman having the lower berth. Before retiring Mr. Fickett opened the window a few inches and told Mr. Beal who was rather timid about robbers, that by closing the blind everything was secure. Mr. B. felt quite uneasy and woke up several times, the last time by the ray of light he saw a man's head in the window. He leaned over his berth and called to his friend and then seized his revolver and fired, shooting Mr. Fickett, who it is supposed was standing at the window to get the air, through the head. Mr. F. lived about one hour and a half but did not recover consciousness. He leaves a widow and two children to mourn his sad fate. The funeral took place from his residence in Dorchester on Wednesday. Mr. Beal at once summoned the officers of the boat and told his story. The remorse consequent to the killing of his partner wears heavy on him.

PASS THEM ROUND. We take pleasure in giving the following a place in our columns, as it is about time that the country publishers should be put on their guard against the swindling advertisers who use their columns with the intention of getting their advertising done free.

"At the recent meeting of the Suburban Press Association, it was resolved that members would send to the Corresponding Secretary any information coming to their knowledge in reference to the unreliability of parties doing a general advertising business, the Secretary to forward the same to all members. Circular No. 1 arrived at this office yesterday, exposing the 'Woman's Medical Institute' and 'Mrs. Van Bessen' advertisers. Luckily we are not caught by either, as we failed to be satisfied of their reliability in the first place and did not insert. Two large advertisers are also reported as paying no attention to bills sent them. The Association is making itself in this way invaluable to every publisher of a local paper.—Cambridge Chronicle.

MUTILATED CURRENCY. The appropriation for the redemption of mutilated currency is nearly exhausted, and will be completely used up before the close of the fiscal year. The last Congress neglected to make an appropriation for next year, and it is expected there will be a large accumulation of this currency, before money is again available to replace it with new notes.

☞ Only eight insane asylums had been built in the United States in 1830, 4 being State institutions; by 1840, sixteen were built; by 1850, twenty-five; 1860, forty-four; and by 1880, ninety, of which sixty-six are supported wholly or in part by State aid.

☞ The Weymouth Gazette says: "It is rumored that a female detective is to be engaged to get evidence against the liquor dealers in town."

Letter from New York.

NEW YORK, May 2, 1883.

The event of the present week has been a novel entertainment, called the Kirmess, which occurred on Saturday last, at Delmonico's, lasting from two until twelve, P. M. It was half way between a fancy-dress ball and a fair, the whole being of German origin. Some of the features of the day were the German peasant costumes, the children's room, flower room, gypsy encampment, &c. Its object was to pay the expenses of the poor patients at the Skin and Cancer Hospital. This was only one of the several really brilliant affairs which have taken place this week, making it the "gayest week of Spring."

May-day in New York is proverbial as being the gloomiest day in the year to many, for on that day fifty thousand families feel it a necessity to emigrate from their twelve-months' homes, reminding one of the old game of Stage Coach, in which the players occupying the chairs of a circle merely rise in order that they may exchange their places for others more or less desirable. It is remarkable that the origin of this grand first-of-May moving is unknown even to the residents of New York City.

On Saturday the Freshmen of the College of the City of New York, held their annual Spring games at the Manhattan Athletic Club Grounds. In spite of the rain there were many spectators present, and the sports went off well. Several games of base-ball were also played on that day.

An important transaction, which took place this week, is the signing of a contract between Mr. Thomas A. Edson and Stephen D. Field, for the consolidation of the Electric Motor patents, thus giving the control of the business into the hands of a new company. Experiments will probably soon be made on the Elevated Railways, similar to those now in such successful operation on the Berlin Electric Railway. Mr. Edson thinks that now, with the patents all in the hands of one company, electric roads will soon be running all over the country, and become one of the greatest successes of the day.

A good deal of braggadocio was indulged in the other day at a meeting of the Union League Labor Club, the members of which declared that if the Brooklyn bridge was opened on the 24th inst., (Queen Victoria's birthday), they would try the effect of dynamite on the structure. No one is at all frightened, however.

The Rev. Heber Newton, whose broad views have lately been attracting so much attention in this city, is supported by nearly all of his congregation, who believe that he will triumph if brought to trial, on the charge of heresy, by Bishop Potter. Nevertheless, the charges as set forth by the presenters, are of a very serious nature, containing among others, the following: "That he has virtually denied the divinity of Christ and His incarnation by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, as well as His second advent; affirming that the Bible is not the Word of God, but only contains it; discrediting the miracles of the Old and New Testaments, and teaching that Christianity is the outcome of natural historic evolution, and not a direct revelation from God." The Church of All Souls is receiving many accessions, and was never more prosperous, it is said.

Tom Lee, the Chinese Deputy Sheriff, was discharged from his position this week on the charge of exacting tribute from his countrymen for the privilege of keeping gambling houses. He denies the charges, and claims that his victims are jealous of his financial prosperity.

An enthusiastic mass meeting was held last night at Cooper Institute, to consider the project of a new aqueduct. Little preparation was made, as the meeting was called on short notice, in order to thwart the attempts of politicians at Albany to rush through a partisan bill. Resolutions were passed advising the construction of a new aqueduct in as short a time and economical a manner as possible, and a committee of sixty was appointed to carry out the objects of the meeting. Among those who addressed the assembly were Dr. Howard Crosby, Congressman-elect Potter, John H. Washburn and Mayor Edson.

W. L. M.

☞ The freight rates by rail between Chicago and Atlantic ports are thirty-five cents per hundred pounds on bulk meats, and thirty cents on meat in boxes and barrels. Live hogs to Boston or New York are thirty cents per hundred pounds.

☞ Two gentlemen passed before an owl set up in a window, discussed it for five minutes, and decided it was the worst case of botchery in stuffing they ever saw; and then the bird woke up and moved its head, and they felt terribly embarrassed.

☞ A new hospital in New York city is to be for scarlet fever, diptheria and measles. The appropriation for the purpose is fifty thousand dollars. The land is at the foot of East Sixteenth street.

☞ The gold in the Bank of France amounts to $198,484,848—which is $13,732,125.10 more than we have in the treasury of the United States. The French silver on hand exceeds $208,500,000. The amount of specie in the bank is $407,013,009.

☞ A certain parlor carpet in Springfield was taken up last week for the first time in 25 years and was found only a little the worse for wear. Nothing wears out carpets like cleaning them. Better call your wife's attention to this when she announces spring cleaning.

☞ Edgar Brewer of East Hartford kept the body of his deceased daughter in the parlor of his house since her death four months ago. He at last yielded to the importunities of his wife, and other friends, and consented to its burial.

☞ America supplies the world with gossamer water-proof garments. One rubber-clothing company in Boston turns out five thousand garments a day, and their drying-tables cover forty acres of ground. The goods are sold in Australia and South Africa, in Europe and Asia, South America, and in the Sandwich Islands.

☞ The State house bell in Philadelphia is the twenty-first in a list of large bells, weighing 13,000 pounds. The biggest in the world, at Moscow, weighs 443,772 pounds.

For the Patriot.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, April 30, 1883.

The hotels of Washington are very full for the season, and considering the absence of Congress the number of strangers in the city is very large. Among these birds of passage that may be seen flitting about the Capitol, the National Museum, Corcoran's Art Gallery, and the Department buildings, bridal couples are the predominating species. At all seasons of the year this city is a favorite resort for the honeymooners. They may always be seen loitering among the sights of the city, and are distinguishable from ordinary people, for, besides looking at the sights, they look at each other during unguarded moments, notwithstanding their intention to appear like matrimonial veterans. By their freshness, air, and manner the rural bride and groom, and even those who would resent the imputation of rusticity if they are from the smaller towns, are most easily identified. The careless observer may see through their studied indifference and assumed ease, and if other means of identification are wanting, newly married pairs may be known by their faultlessness in the matter of gloves, shoes, hats, and ties. To study them as a class no better opportunity can be found than a stroll through the public buildings of the National Capital.

The President has appointed Mr. Randolph Keim, of Pennsylvania, Chief Examiner of the Civil Service Commission. The disappointees at this appointment say Mr. Keim could not himself pass the examination prescribed by the rules of the commission. Perhaps he could not. But it must be remembered his business is not to be examined, but to examine others. Have not many men made good Presidents who could not have passed examination for a Government clerkship?

The next appointment to be made by the President will be a commissioner of internal revenue. The vacancy was caused by the resignation of General Raum, which was handed to the President Saturday. The reason Mr. Raum assigns for his step is that his salary of $6,000 per year is insufficient for the needs of his family, and he withdraws from the public service to resume the practice of his profession, the law. He held the position for more than six years and was a remarkably efficient officer. It is said the President received six applications for the vacant place from ex-members of Congress within three hours after he had accepted Gen. Raum's resignation.

There has been some complaint recently among young aspirants for office that the Departments are supporting many superannuated employes. There are more grey heads to be met in the Post Office Department than any other. Judge Lawrenson, the Notary of the Department is about as well known as the Post Office building itself. He began service during Jackson's administration, nearly sixty-four years ago. But Mr. James Marr has served in the Department the longest consecutive period. He was appointed in 1831, and has to-day a salary of $2,500 per year guaranteed to him for life by act of Congress. He may be found in his room at the Department every day, with fewer signs of superannuation than many younger men. Since the war the Post Office Department has been more of a political Department than any other, except, perhaps, the Treasury. There are several empty sleeves among the clerks, and here and there a pair of crutches and a wooden leg, but, considering the fact that of the five hundred and thirty-one employes in the Department, only one hundred and thirty claim to have rendered war service either in the Army or Navy, it would seem that the old soldiers had not unduly pushed their claims upon the appointing power.

This week, at a meeting held for the erection of a Presbyterian church in the city, James G. Blaine was the most conspicuous member on the committee appointed to solicit subscriptions and secure a lot. Mr. Blaine has endeavored to maintain a strictly non-committal attitude on the religious question, but some weeks ago his new residence was christened with much eclat by a Catholic marriage ceremony. Now follows this concession to Protestantism in his committal to Presbyterian interests, which, in the light of his presidential aspirations is significant.

ADAMS.

POSTAL INFORMATION. A new pamphlet prepared by Superintendent E. J. Dallas, containing some valuable suggestions upon the subject of addressing letters and parcels to be sent by mail, the manner of wrapping, limitations of size and weight, conditions of prepayment, etc., with brief description of treatment of undelivered matter when it reaches the dead letter office, has been printed for the information of the public.

MILTON. A pair of horses belonging to L. Crossman & Son of Milton, attached to a light wagon, in which were Mr. Henry Caswell and Mr. L. Crossman became frightened by the breaking of a pole strap, on Milton hill, Wednesday afternoon, and ran away. By the wagon striking a tree, the occupants were thrown out. Mr. Caswell was severely injured about the head and face, and Mr. Crossman was somewhat bruised. The horses ran to the Lower Mills, and there collided with a post, and one was probably fatally injured. He is valued at about $250.—Herald.

Dog Licenses.

The Town Clerk hereby calls attention to the law in relation to the licensing of dogs, and notifies all parties concerned to take heed to its requirements. Licenses are now ready for delivery.

Sec. 80. Every owner or keeper of a dog of three months old or over, shall annually, on or before the thirtieth day of April, cause it to be registered, numbered, described and licensed, for one year from the ensuing May, in the office of the Clerk of the city or town wherein said dog is kept.

Sec. 81. A person becoming the owner or keeper of a dog after the first of May, not duly licensed, shall cause it to be registered, numbered, described and licensed as provided in the preceding section.

Sec. 82. The fee for every license shall be two dollars for a male dog, and five dollars for a female dog.—Chap. 102, Pub. Statutes.

GEO. L. GILL, Town Clerk.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

To the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy:

THE Directors of the Old Colony Railroad Company respectfully represent that said corporation, having finished the construction of and put in operation its main road, desires to build a branch or extension thereof in the town of Quincy, upon a route shown by a map thereof, which map, together with a profile and engineer's report, agreeably to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, they herewith submit and ask that you will appoint a time and place for a hearing, of which due notice may be given, and after such hearing will agree with them as to a route of said branch or extension in said town, and sign and give to them a certificate setting forth said route, agreeably to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided.

The Directors of the Old Colony Railroad Company.

By CHARLES F. CHOATE,
President.

In the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy:

AND now, upon the submission of the foregoing petition and the accompanying map and report to the Selectmen, it is ordered that a hearing be had upon said petition before the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy, at the station of the Old Colony Railroad Company, in said town, on the fourteenth day of May, 1883, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice thereof be given by publishing said petition and this order in the QUINCY PATRIOT, a newspaper published in the County of Norfolk, for two successive weeks, the last publication to be at least two days prior to said hearing, and also by posting copies thereof and of this notice in at least two public places in the Town of Quincy, at least two weeks before such hearing.

The Covered Bridge.

Tell the fainting soul in the weary form
There's a world of the purest bliss,
That it's linked, as that soul and form are linked,
By a covered bridge with this.

Yet, to reach that realm on the other shore,
We must pass through a transient gloom,
And must walk unseen, upheld and alone,
Through that covered bridge—the tomb.

But we all pass over on equal terms,
For the universal toll
Is the outer garb, which the hand of God
Has flung around the soul.

Though the eye is dim and the bridge is dark,
And the river it spans is wide;
Yet faith points through to a shining mount
That looms on the other side.

To enable our feet in the next day's march
To climb up that golden ridge,
We must all lie down for one night's rest
Inside the covered bridge.

Farm and Garden.

The Fruit Garden.

The fruit garden should receive our attention; for one hour spent early in the season will accomplish more among the currant, gooseberry, and raspberry bushes than two hours a month later. So many neglect to keep the grass and weeds that live over winter cleaned out late in the autumn, that as a rule enough grass roots creep in to cover the ground among the bushes in a few weeks after the growing season commences. A single grass plant, which can be removed with but little effort if done early, will spread its roots, by the last of May, to such extent that it becomes a difficult task to remove it without disturbing the fruit plants.

Gooseberry and currant bushes start their leaves quite early in the season, and as the opening buds and young leaves break off very easily, it is very difficult to cultivate among them without injury after the buds get opened, until the shoots become old enough to become tough, therefore it is important to clean out the bushes of both grass roots and weeds, before the buds have advanced to a point where they will be rubbed off by working among them.

If one has plenty of material for mulching both the currant and gooseberry bushes are kept clean through the season with but little labor, by covering the land with a heavy mulch as soon as the grass and weeds are cleaned out in the spring; but if material for mulching has to be purchased, as a rule it is not economy.—Ploughman.

ROOTING GERANIUMS. I find the surest way to root geranium slips, or any other slips with few exceptions, is to plant them before a leaf wilts, in light soil, wet thoroughly and turn a tumbler over them, pressing it firmly into the dirt so as to keep the slips air-tight. After this, water very sparingly, and set in the sun an hour or two in the morning. In this way you cannot lose slips if you try.

☞ The Wilson strawberry still maintains its supremacy. At a late agricultural meeting at Buchanan, Mich., a paper read on small fruits, by W. A. Brown, stated that the Wilson strawberry, although sour with poor cultivation, has advantages over all other sorts. Thorough cultivation pays a good profit. Triomphe de Gand and Jucunda will not bear one-third the amount afforded by the Wilson, and none of the newer sorts have taken its place in the Chicago market.

☞ Who can see the beauties of this lovely earth better than the farmer and his family? Yet they should never forget that in addition to their land they have heads and hearts to cultivate.

Anecdotes.

"Minister," said an old woman in the North, "I'm going away fast, and I'll soon be in Judas' bosom."

"Hoots, toots, Jeanet," said the minister, "ye mean Abraham's bosom."

"Ah, minister, if ye had been as lang a single woman as I've been ye wouldn't be particular whose bosom it was."

Little Johnny had been to church and heard a very obese parson. On the way home he remarked: "What a norful stomach that preacher had. Didn't seem right, though, for him to get off that joke."

"What joke?" interposed his father.

"Why, don't you know?" returned Johnny, "where he put his hands down on the part where his vest stuck out, and said, 'man wants but little here below.'"

A poor Irishman offered an old sauce-pan for sale. His children gathered around him and inquired why he parted with it.

"Ah, my honeys," answered he, "I would not be afther parting with it but for a little money to buy something to put in it."

If you want to find a logician, go to your tailor. The other day one of these fractions of the human family was overheard to remark: "I never ask a gentleman for money."

"But suppose he doesn't pay you, what then?"

"Well, if he doesn't pay me within a reasonable time, I conclude he is not a gentleman—and then I ask him."

Fashion Notes.

Bangs and crimps are worn further from the eyebrows.

Old rose or ashes of roses is the rival of strawberry pink.

Lace and embroidery are equally fashionable for trimming.

Gloves and mits contrast with instead of matching costumes.

Colored mantles are not in good taste for any but carriage wear.

Pongees are selling rapidly for seaside and watering place wear.

The spider is the ornamental bonnet and scarf pin of the moment.

Gentlemen's scarfs show all the new colors and designs of the season.

A dash of grass green in a spring toilet is the latest fancy in decoration.

The preferred gloves are in cool shades of gray and tan, chamois and buff.

Yokes of children's dresses are square or round, high or deep, according to fancy.

The taste for mahogany red, terra cotta, and brick colored gloves is on the wane.

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

The Temperance Movement.

In June, 1831, the British and Foreign Temperance Society was organized in London, mainly through the persevering efforts of Mr. William Collins, of Glasgow. This was for many years the leading society of the party, its patrons being the Bishop of London, and its vice-presidents including several other prelates, distinguished officials, both civil and military, and a few members of parliament. The pledge taken by its members was simple: "We agree to abstain from distilled spirits, except for medicinal purposes; and to discountenance the causes and practices of intemperance."

We have not space to narrate its history and progress in detail, but we may notice that it was instrumental in awakening an interest in the temperance movement, both in the army and navy, and that, in the course of a single year, 1831-1832, it could boast of having induced 400 old Greenwich pensioners to give up their grog.

Gradually, however, the more fervid friends of temperance in England arrived at the same conclusion as the Dumferline "reformers," viz: that a crusade against gin and other alcoholic liquors was not enough; that beer was the great cause of drunkenness in their country, and that nothing but total abstinence from all intoxicating drinks would cure the evil.

The New Bedford Aldermen have voted not to issue licenses of the sixth class, the popular vote having prohibited all others.

Conundrums.

When is sugar like a pig's tooth? When its in a hogshead.

How many peas are they in a pint? Only one P, surely.

What is the difference between temptation and eternity? Whisper—One is a wile of the devil, and the other a devil of a while.

What class of people has done the most toward populating this country? Ans.—The Smith manufacturing company.

Why are young ladies like arrows? Because they are in a quiver till the next beau comes.

What is the longest and shortest thing in the world, the swiftest and the slowest, without which nothing can be done, which devours all that is small, and gives life to all that is great?—Time.

What is that which has three feet, but no legs, is all body, but no limbs, has no toes on its feet, no head, moves a great deal, and never uses its feet for that purpose, has one foot at each end, and the other in the center of its body? This is a queer creature in some respects, and is very popular among the ladies, and some men. It never walks out, but goes with one foot where its head might be, dragging the other foot behind. These feet have nails, but no toes, no heels, and no bones in the foot.—A yard measure.

Woman's Column.

A Georgia maiden became so interested in a recent church wedding at that place that just as the clergyman had finished his list of questions to the bride, she unconsciously took up the response and answered "I will," in place of the bride. This unexpected event paralyzed the minister, and caused a painful silence in the audience.

One of the new graduates of the New Haven high school, Ct., is a colored girl, and as she stepped upon the platform to receive her diploma she was enthusiastically cheered.

Ex-Mayor Green, of Boston, sympathizing with a poor apple woman, lately ordered from her old stand in front of the United States courthouse, wrote a personal letter, with several good indorsements, to the secretary of the treasury, and in consequence the woman has been allowed to return.

Mrs. Francis R. Phillips, wife of the solicitor-general, fell dead of apoplexy while making her toilet preparatory to going out. She was apparently in her usual health up to that time, and was out in the morning for several hours.

☞ A New York girl "skipped a rope" one hundred and six times and in a few hours was dead.

"And you wash your type with lye, do you?" said the æsthetic miss who was visiting a printing-office.

"Well, now I know how so many untruths get into the paper."

Household Receipts.

EMPRESS CAKE. One and one-half cupsful of granulated sugar, two-thirds cupful of butter, one cupful of milk, three cupsful of flour, very full, two-thirds of a cupful of seeded raisins, one beaten egg, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream-tartar, two-thirds teaspoonful of nutmeg. This quantity makes two loaves.

FRENCH LOAF CAKE. One pound of flour, one half pound of butter, one pound of sugar, one pound of raisins, five eggs, one cupful of new milk.

ROLL JELLY CAKE. Five eggs, two cups of sugar, two cups of flour, four tablespoonfuls of cold water and two tablespoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in thin sheets in a square tin or dripping pan, spread the jelly on and roll while hot.

FELONS. To kill a felon, or bring it to a head if too far advanced to kill, take poke root and boil till soft enough to make a poultice, apply, and if the felon is not too far advanced it will scatter it, if it is, it will hasten suppuration. It will deaden the pain in a short time and save much suffering.

REMEDY FOR BOILS. Peel a boiled egg and remove the tough skin, wet it and apply to the boil. It will draw out the pus, and relieve the pain in a few hours.

BREAD PUDDING. One pint of grated bread crumbs, one teacupful of sugar, six eggs, one quart of milk flavored to taste. Save the whites of four eggs, beat to a froth, add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, and when the pudding is done pour over the top, and set in the oven until a nice brown.

Experiment with Commercial Fertilizers.

WARWICK, MASS., Jan. 8, 1883.

I put a good dressing of manure upon a piece of land and planted it with potatoes, and tried the following experiment on three rows side by side. First row, with nothing in the hill, yielding 169 pounds good and 16 pounds small potatoes; second row, with seventeen cents' worth of a special potato manure, yielding 233 pounds good, and 23 pounds small potatoes; third row, with seventeen cents' worth of Bradley's Phosphate, yielding 273 pounds good and 21 pounds small potatoes. At fifteen cents per bushel for small potatoes, the first row, with nothing in the hill, was worth $1.48; second row, with the special potato manure in the hill, was worth 56 cents more, and third row, with Bradley's Phosphate in the hill, was worth eighty-eight cents more than first row. The special potato manure produced 37 1-2 per cent. and Bradley's Phosphate 61 per cent. more good potatoes than when there was nothing in the hill. JOSEPH A. WILLIAMS.

TO the Heirs-at-Law, Next of Kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of

SAMUEL G. WYMAN,

late of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, deceased,

GREETING:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by William Keyser and H. Irvine Keyser, both of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, with certain papers purporting to be copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the Probate thereof in said State of Maryland, duly authenticated, representing that at the time of his death said deceased had estate in said County of Norfolk, on which said will may operate, and praying that the copy of said will may be filed and recorded in the Probate Office of said County of Norfolk, and letters testamentary thereon granted to them.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the first Wednesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said Petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this Citation three weeks successively, in the newspaper called the Quincy PATRIOT, printed at Quincy, the first publication to be thirty days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, GEORGE WHITE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-fifth day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.

THE Board of Health issues the following notice:—That on and after MONDAY, July 31st, 1882, the following provisions of Chapter 68 of the Public Statutes will be strictly enforced:—

Sect. 18. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of Small Pox or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town in which he dwells. If he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $100.

Sect. 19. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with Small Pox or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit for each offence not less than $50, nor more than $100.

The Board considers the above sections to apply to scarlet fever, small pox, diphtheria, measles and whooping cough.

Poetry.

Our Dead.

Nothing is our own; we hold our pleasures
Just as little while ere they are fled;
One by one life robs us of our treasures—
Nothing is our own except our dead.

They are ours, and hold in faithful keeping
Safe forever all they took away.
Cruel life can never stir that sleeping;
Cruel time can never seize that prey.

How the children leave us! and no traces
Linger of that smiling angel band;
Gone, forever gone, and in their places
Weary men and anxious women stand.

Yet we have some little ones still ours;
They have kept the baby smile, we know,
Which we kissed one day and hid with flowers,
On their dead, white faces long ago.

Is love ours, and we dream we know it,
Bound with all our heart strings all our own,
Any cold and cruel dawn may show it,
Shattered, desecrated, overthrown.

Only the dead hearts forsake us never;
Love that to death's loyal care has fled,
Is thus consecrated ours forever,
And no change can rob us of our dead.

Miscellany.

Old Mrs. Bray's Story.

When my son Gregory married Miss Morrison, I gave him a piece of my mind, and told him I didn't care if I never saw him again. Why? Oh, well, I didn't like her. She wasn't the sort of girl I'd have chosen. I'd never seen her, but I knew she wasn't—a flighty young thing, just out of boarding-school; couldn't make a shirt or a loaf of bread; and there was Miss Fish, a very plain girl I must allow, but so good — a splendid housekeeper, and all that. I always liked Almira Fish; and Gregory to go marry Fanny Robinson! Well, as I said, I told him what I thought of him and of her, and the boy showed his temper, and for six months I never saw him.

I bore it as long as I could, but a mother must be a fool about her only boy; so one day, as he wouldn't come to me, I went to him, as the rascal knew I would. I went to his office, and I walked up to his desk, and I was going to scold him, but something came over me that made me choke to keep the tears back, and before I knew it we had kissed and made friends.

"And now you'll go and see Fanny," said he, "and I'll find you there when I come home at night," and after a little coaxing I said I would go; and what was more, I went.

The house was a cunning little place a mile or two out of town; and I must say it was very neat outside. I rang the bell; it shone as it ought to, and before it stopped tinkling some one opened the door. It was a pretty young woman in a blue chintz wrapper, and when I asked her if Mrs. Gregory Bray was at home, she quickly answered:

"Yes; that is my name. I have been expecting you for an age; but better late than never."

"How did you know that I was coming?" I asked, very greatly puzzled to guess how she knew me, for we had never met before.

"Oh, I didn't know," said she. "Indeed, I made up my mind you wouldn't; but it is a long way out here, I know. Come right up stairs. Miss Jones was here yesterday to cut and baste, but we'll find it as much as we can possibly do to do the trimming between us."

"This is cool," I thought. Then I said. "I suppose that you are having a dress made?"

"A suit," said she; "skirt, overskirt, basque and dolman. I do hope you make nice buttonholes?"

"I should hope that I did," said I. "I should be ashamed of myself if I couldn't."

"So many can't," said she; but I told Miss Jones to send me an experienced hand, and she said that there was no better than Mrs. Switzer."

Now I began to understand. My daughter-in-law took me for a seamstress she expected, and if ever woman had a chance I had one now. Not a word did I say. Only I wondered whether seamstresses generally came to work in black grosgrain silk and a cashmere shawl; and I sat down in the rocking-chair she gave me and went to work with a will. I can sew with any one, and as for buttonholes. But this is not my story.

She was a pretty girl, that daughter-in-law of mine, and very chatty and sociable. I talked of this and I talked of that, but not a word did she say of her mother-in-law. I spoke of people I had known who had had quarrels with relations, but she did not tell me that her husband's mother had quarreled with him.

At last I spoke right out about mothers-in-law, and said I:

"As a general thing mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law don't agree."

Said she, "That's a very wrong state of things."

"Well," said I, "I suppose it is, but how do you account for it?"

"I suppose young people are selfish when they are first in love," said she, "and forget old people's feelings."

It was an answer I didn't expect.

"It is plain you are friendly with your mother-in-law," said I.

"I'm sure I should be if I'd ever seen her," said she.

"Oh! then I've been misinformed," said I. "I was told—I forget by whom—that Mr. Gregory Bray was the son of the Mrs. Bray who lives on——street."

"That is perfectly true," said she. "But nevertheless we've never met."

"How singular!" said I. "I suppose it is old Mrs. Bray's fault. I've heard she was a very queer old lady."

"You haven't heard the truth, then," said my daughter-in-law. "My husband's mother is a very fine woman in all respects. But when my husband told her suddenly that he was going to marry a girl she never saw, she was naturally startled, and she said some things about me, knowing I was fresh from boarding-school and no housekeeper, that offended Gregory, and so there has been an estrangement. I think my dear husband a little to blame, and I've urged him a dozen times to go and see her. He's very fond of her, and thinks no one like her in many things; but his temper is up, and it will take time to cool it. Meanwhile, I feel quite sure if she knew me she'd like me better. Perhaps that is a piece of vanity, but I should try to make her, you know, and I won't fall into absurd superstitions that a woman must hate her mother-in-law. I mean to love mine some day. I can't remember my own mother, and Gregory's certainly would seem to come next to her. Now you have the whole of the story, Mrs. Switzer."

"I'm sure it does you credit," said I; "and the old lady ought to be ashamed of herself."

I wanted to get up and kiss my daughter-in-law there and then, but that would have spoiled my fun. So after that I sewed hard and did not say much, and together we finished the pretty silk dress, and had it just completed when the sound of a key in the door caught both our ears.

"That is my husband," said my daughter-in-law; and I knew it was Gregory. Up stairs he came, two steps at a time, opened the door and looked at us with a bright smile on his face.

"This is just as it should be," said he. "Fanny, I shall kiss my mother first this time."

And he came forward and put his his arms around us both. But Fanny gave a little scream.

"Oh! Gregory," she cried, "what are you about? This is Mrs. Switzer, who is making my dress. At least, I—I have thought so all day." For, you see, I had burst out laughing, and had kissed Gregory back and then kissed her. "My dear," said I, "I've played a little trick on you, or, rather, let you play one on yourself; but you have turned out as good as gold. I couldn't get you to say a word against the old lady. I am Gregory's mother, my dear, and yours, too, if you'll call me so."

"Indeed I will," said the dear girl; "but I have kept you sewing hard all the day. You see, I was expecting a Mrs. Switzer, and I—"

"We have been all the more sociable for that, my dear," said I, "and I am glad it happened. I have been very foolish all this while, and Gregory has chosen a great deal better wife for himself than I could have done."

And so I think to this day, for I believe there never was a better woman born than Gregory's wife, Fanny.

A Crippled Hermit.

The Boston Globe reporter gives the following account of a recent visit to a hermit living in this town, at Quincy Neck:

"It is an old and familiar saying that one-half the world knows nothing about how the other half lives. Whether this may be true or not there is room for some doubt, but it is nevertheless a fact that within the limits of the old granite town of Quincy, somewhat isolated from the rest of his fellows, there lives a recluse who, for the past thirteen years, has not been beyond the boundary line of his own limited domain, and who, for the past four years, has not been beyond the range of a stone's throw from the door of his 7x9 "squatter"-like residence, on the banks of Hayward's creek at Quincy Neck, some two and one-half miles from the main village. Of the busy town and its 12,000 inhabitants, located so close to him, and all the rest of the outside bustling world, his knowledge for the past dozen years is comparatively small; and, on the other hand, it is safe to say that not one in every hundred of the citizens of this largely populated town are aware of the existence of this strangely peculiar and eccentric hermit, who makes his home just inside the boundary line of the town.

"Very few realize that this strange old man, now in his dotage, was, in his youth, left a legacy of several thousand dollars, and had every advantage and prospect of becoming a wealthy and prosperous man. The name of this queer character is Otis Newcomb, son of the late Bryant Newcomb. With the money left him he started in life with every prospect of success, and with his brother launched out in a business enterprise which, according to report, did not return much profit. He gave himself up to having a royal good time, and travelled over the length and breadth of the continent. After a few years of this free-and-easy manner of life, the man and his fortune were strangers—forever. The reporter, accompanied by a Quincy gentleman, had an opportunity of learning from his own lips the story of his life and his manner of living. Arriving at the railroad station, a pleasant drive soon brought the party to Quincy Neck, and following the bend in Hayward's creek, the visitors soon came in view of the diminutive shanty which receives from the hermit the appellation of "home." It is located close down near the bank of the creek and commands a very conspicuous position at the head of the immense salt marsh land. The exterior of the little hut looks decidedly woebegone and dilapidated, and the summer sun and winter's storms have left their marks upon it. Paint it never knew, and consequently the boards have become black and dingy from exposure. The sides are all banked up with earth and seaweed, and serves, after a fashion, to keep out the weather, which, from the exposed position of the hut, must be in winter decidedly severe. A faint cloud of smoke issued from the funnel chimney, which was an indication that the hut was the habitation of some solitary mortal. The reporter knocked, and in response to the "Come in," pushed open the door. The hermit was seated by the fire, and eyed his visitors rather suspiciously as they stood inside the door.

"We would like to know if there is any fishing allowed here," said the reporter, by way of starting the conversation.

"Well, not a great deal," said the hermit, rising from his seat, and looking out upon the water.

The visitors by this time had managed to crowd into the small aperture, the reporter sitting upon a log, the gentleman occupying the one high back chair, while the hermit crawled upon his bunk. The gentleman, who was somewhat familiar with the history of the family, engaged the old man in conversation, and the reporter had an opportunity to take in the limited "domicile," its furniture and, most of all, its melancholly inmate. In one corner of the small house an antique cooking stove, which looked as though it had not been polished since the time of the flood, gave out a slight heat, and on it a greasy spider with a great big ladle. Piled up behind this were a lot of logs which had been washed up from the sea, and which serve as the fuel for the hermit. Scattered about in a promiscuous mass are old pans, broken plates, a heap of ashes swept up against a corner, a lot of broken wood and a quantity of old onions on a shelf, which were beginning to sprout. Everything indicates absolute negligence, and every thing about the house and its inmate indicates a complete stage of filth and abandonment. The cracks in the boards are stuffed out with rags, and a musty, unwholesome atmosphere pervades the interior which is almost stifling. A shelf, which comprises a wide board and covered with a net work of torn quilts and worn out coats, served as a bed, and over this, tacked up against the wall is a 2 x 3 looking-glass, with a little polished spot about the size of a horseshoe — the remainder years ago turned brown and coated over with rust.

The occupant of this queer abode is as neglected-looking as his surroundings. His age is 63, though he is somewhat younger looking in appearance. His unkempt hair is still dark, but his long beard has long since turned gray. He wears a long, greasy, ragged ulster, which is kept fastened about him by a lot of ropes, and his clothing gives him the appearance of a genuine Guy Fawkes. The knuckles of his fingers are swollen to three times their natural proportions, and the cords in his hands are shrunk up so that his fists are nearly doubled up.

"That was done by rheumatism," said he, noticing the attention of the reporter directed toward his hands. "How do I manage to help myself? Oh! you can see that my fingers are not entirely closed, and I can manage to handle a clam-digger and scrape up a few clams to make a meal, and that's about all I have to do."

"Don't you find it lonesome, living here alone as you do?" asked the reporter.

"No," he replied, looking sorrowful, "I've got used to it and I rather like it. Here, I'm my own boss, and I do just as I like. I've been here now four years, summer and winter, and in all that time I haven't been away from here. Sometimes in the winter I get snowed in, and don't get outside the door for weeks. How do I get along? Why! I just lay in enough things to last me and then I sit here and let it snow and storm away. If I happen to want a drink of water I can just melt some snow, let it cool, and there is water good enough for me."

Judging from the looks of the rest of the things about the place, the visitors did not need to doubt but what he would consider most anything good enough.

He has several lines drawn across the floor, and when the shadows of the sun fall across them he is enabled to tell the time of day. At night he has no means of knowing the time, and about this he cares very little. He very rarely lights the dust-covered lamp which is piled up among the broken plates, preferring to go to bed at eventide and remain there until sunrise. During the past winter he has been bedridden for several weeks with rheumatic fever and was unable to scarcely turn on his hard and uncomfortable bed. During all this time his brother came every morning and left something for him to eat on a chair beside the bed, and with this exception the old man had no care whatever. His brother, however, later built another shanty beside him, and since that time this brother has given him what little care he could. He had no physician and for want of proper care is now in a bad plight. His feet as well as his hands are terribly swollen, and he is obliged to wear a large pair of rubber overshoes. The old man takes great pleasure in telling of his early life and his travels. He has been in every State and Territory in the Union and was twice around Cape Horn. In his flush days he made two trips to the Rocky mountains, making the journey from St. Joe to Denver, a distance of 700 miles, on an ox team. In 1850 he went to California, but there was very little gold there for him. He is or was a medium, and is a devout believer in Spiritualism. He regards his own afflictions as mere trifles, and is imbued with the idea that he is shortly to regain his youth. During his afflictions he claims to have been solaced by the friendly spirits, who repeatedly told him when the time came he would be entirely cured.

☞ The post-mortem examination of a mulatto who died recently in Cincinnati revealed a brain weighing 61 ounces. There are on record but two brains heavier than this — that of Cuvier, weighing 64.33 ounces, and Abercrombie's which weighed 63 ounces.

Josh Billings on Whistling.

I never knu a good whissler but what hed a good constitution. Whissling iz composed of pucker and wind, and these tew accomplishments denote vigger.

Sum people always whissle whare thare is danger — this they do to keep the fraid out of them. When I was a boy I always considered whissling the next best thing to a candle, to go down cellar with in the nite time.

The best whisslers I hav ever herd have been among the negroes (I make this remark with the highest respekt to the accomplishments of the whites). I have herd a South Karoliny darkey whissle so natural that a mocking-bird would drop a worm out ov his bill and talk back to the nigger.

A fust-rate whissler is a middling-sized fiddler, good for nothing else, an though the whissling may keep a man from getting lonesum, it won't keep him from gitting ragged.

I never knu a bee-hunter but what was a good whissler, and I don't kno of any bussiness on the breast ov the earth that will make a man so lazy and useless, without aktually killing him, az hunting bees in the wilderness.

Hunting bees and writing second-rate verses are evidences of sum geenyas, but either ov them will unfit a man for a good square day's work.

I don't want enny better evidence ov the general onesty thare is in a whissle than the fact that thare ain't nothing which a dog wil answer quicker than the whissle ov his master, and dogs are as good judges ov onesty as enny critter that lives.

It is hard work to phool a dog once, and it iz next to impossible to phool him a seckond time.

I ain't afraid to trust enny man for a small amount who is a good whissler.

I wouldn't want to sell him a farm on kredit, for I should expect to hav to take the farm back after a while, and remove the mortgage myself.

You can't whistle the mortgage oph from a farm.

He Put His Arm Around Her.

The other day several men were standing on a street corner talking, when a handsomely dressed lady passed.

"You may not believe me," said a man named Spriggins, "but I have had my arms around that lady."

"You are a vile slanderer, sir," exclaimed young Mr. Paperage, and drawing off, he struck Mr. Spriggins a heavy blow between the eyes. Both parties were instantly arrested, and when Mr. Spriggins requested that the lady be summoned, a policeman caught up with her and requested her presence in court, which had just convened in afternoon session.

"Judge," said Paperage, while several acquaintances and myself were standing on the street talking, this lady passed. Then this man," pointing to Spriggins, "said that he had put his arm around her. The lady is nothing to me, judge, but my mother and sister are ladies, and I have always made it a point to chastise a man who speaks ill of a lady."

"Mr. Spriggins," remarked the judge, "did you say that you had put your arm around the lady?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then the gentleman did right in striking you. Ladies are not safe in Little Rock so long as such ruffians are allowed to insult them."

"Judge, allow the lady to speak," requested Spriggins.

"Certainly, You will please make your statement."

"I didn't hear the man when he said that he put his arm around me, and as I passed on I do not know what occurred."

"Excuse me for being blunt, but—but—"

"Do you mean to ask if the man ever put his arm around me?"

"Yes."

"Then, I must say that he has."

For a few moments there was a deep silence, only disturbed by a boy who picked at the plastering with a horseshoe nail.

"What right had he to put his arm around you?" stammered the judge.

"Because," answered the woman, "he is my husband."

The court deemed the reason sufficient and discharged Spriggins.

Meeting-House 200 Years Ago.

Uneasy girls and mischievous boys think it hard that they should be compelled to remain quiet during the one hour and a half of the modern church service. Their complaints may be moderated by reading the following description of church services in New England 200 years ago, when the prayer was almost an hour long, and all stood:

On foot, on horseback, singly, or on pillions (some of the old women and little children in ox-carts perhaps), they come. Some tie their beasts to the palings, others under houses they have had leave to build near by. Entering the meeting house they take their allotted places—all the married men and women, the elderly people, and civil and military dignitaries in the seats and pews below, according to rule, the unmarried of both sexes in the galleries, with a high paling between them; the boys under sixteen on the pulpit and gallery stairs, if the latter are not yet removed to the tower; otherwise in "hinde seats," or corner seats in the galleries—always with tithing-men, "to keep them from playing or sleeping." The younger children on little benches in the aisles by the side of the pews or seats, into which they often creep to huddle round the mother's foot-stove. Those who are too young to sit alone are in little cages in the pews close to their mothers.

The negroes, slaves or free,—every town has several of both, are on wall-benches in the gallery—men and women apart, of course; in the upper one, if there are two tiers of galleries; or perhaps their dark faces are peering out from those two queer crannies opening upon the gallery from the tower. These are two square pews built for them at the head of each staircase in the tower, from which they are entered. They are sufficiently elevated above the gallery pews to be very conspicuous from below. They are arched over the top, balustraded in front, and so arranged as to prevent any communication with the other seats in the gallery. The boys call them the "swallows' nests." Very near the pulpit on either side sit the aged deaf—the men on the right, the women on the left; adjoining the pulpit in front, the elders, if there be any; a step lower down, the two deacons in their respective seats.

The most elderly men of most distinguished birth or service in the community is honored with a seat at the communion-table — he, as well as the elders and deacons, facing the congregation. About the doorways the guard is seated, each man with his bandoleer slung over his shoulder, his match-lock close at hand. There is a rustle at the door. It is the minister? No—two constables leading in a culprit! He wears a paper cap on which his sin is written, and is placed conspicuously on the stool of repentance.

Memorial Day.

HEADQUARTERS G. A. R., }
OMAHA, NEB., April 14, 1883. }
GENERAL ORDERS, No. 10.

In compliance with the rules and regulations of the Grand Army of the Republic, Wednesday, May 30th, will be observed as Memorial Day. The National Encampment adopted a resolution at its session at Baltimore declaring that this holy day should be called Memorial and not Decoration Day. I earnestly request all ministers and priests of every denomination to deliver appropriate sermons or lectures, calling attention to the duties of the day —the sacrifices made and the lessons taught—on Sunday, May 27th.

I hereby command Posts of the Grand Army of the Republic to attend said services in uniform. In cities and villages where it will be practicable, I would recommend union services. I recommend that the Grand Army take especial steps to secure the presence and aid of the children and youth of the country in the ceremony of strewing flowers, and otherwise honoring the dead, and to that end I hope all public and private schools, colleges and academies will be closed. Let the hand of Fraternity and Charity be extended to the widows and orphans of our dead heroes. Seek them out; distinguish them from all others, and teach them that on this day the Grand Army mourns with them the loss of the precious ones whom they gave to save the nation. I recommend that the loyal women of the nation be invited to aid in this work. They will toil with willing hands and grateful hearts. Though others may have forgotten the dead, the women have never ceased to remember them and treasure in their pure hearts their heroic services.

The marvellous growth of the order throughout the country will be a new incentive to us to see that no grave is neglected. I trust every spot where a soldier lies buried will be strewn with sweet flowers of Spring time, and urge the Posts of the Grand Army to take immediate steps to remove every soldier's remains from the Potter's field or pauper's burying ground, and reinter them in Grand Army grounds. We cannot perform this ceremony in a proper manner unless we have done our duty to the living and the dead. "With malice towards none and Charity for all," let us unite in this sacred duty. Let the choicest, fairest most fragrant flowers be culled, and the soft, white hands of the loyal women of the land entwine the wreath and fashion the cross and crown, dropping here and there, like the dew, a tear for the dead. Let the choicest gardens be desolated that the memory of the Union soldier may not wither. We will lift once more the curtain that hides the dark past, and see our fallen martyrs die for liberty. They gave their lives a cheerful sacrifice. They died in the hospital on beds of pain before the flag was torn with shot and shell; on the battlefield in the fierce, maddening charge; on the picket line under the leafy trees, close to the babbling brook; in the prison pen, where no pitying voice was heard, and no hand reached out to save; in the swamps, fleeing from a fate worse than death, and some went down in the mighty deep, where the wild waves lash ceaselessly over their bones. Many sleep in graves marked unknown, but the loving hearts and eager hands of a grateful people will cast flowers upon the soft, green sward that covers their dust.

Let the gates of all the cemeteries in the land open wide, and their guardians render all the aid in their power in this noble work. Comrades, a few short years fleeting swiftly by, and our children will be called upon to perform this duty. Let us so live that the lessons of Memorial Day will be imprinted upon their hearts, and they will willingly take up the work where our palsied hands have left it, and perpetuate for all time to come the touching ceremony we have inaugurated. By command of

PAUL VANDERVOORT,
Commander-in-Chief.
F. E. BROWN,
Adjutant-General.

SATURDAY, MAY 12, 1883.

Anniversaries Celebrated.

The sixth anniversary of the Knights of Honor and third anniversary of the Knights and Ladies of Honor of Quincy, were very appropriately and pleasantly celebrated at Faxon Hall, on Tuesday evening last.

There was a very large gathering of ladies and gentlemen and after listening to an excellent programme, by members of the order, consisting of speeches, piano and cornet solos, songs, readings, etc., the assembly were invited to a tempting supper in the lower halls. After spending a half hour pleasantly at the tables the party returned to the upper hall where a few hours were enjoyed in dancing to the music of Loud's orchestra.

These lodges are in a very flourishing condition. The Knights of Honor have 105 members and have paid to widows and orphans since their organization six years ago, $7139.30; and there has been three deaths of $2000 each, amounting to $6000. The Knights and Ladies of Honor have paid since their organization, three years ago, $1439.15; and for one death $1000. The order is rapidly gathering members throughout the country and is destined to be one of the largest in the United States. The assessments are not heavy and the members generally speak highly of the order and urge their friends to join.

FIRE. A small wheelwright shop on Quincy avenue was nearly destroyed by fire on Monday evening last. It was occupied by Mr. Simeon Scammell and owned by Mrs. David W. Perry.

The alarm was sounded about nine o'clock and the Fire Department answered promptly. The steamer arrived very quickly, but was unable to work for some minutes for want of steam. The steam pump stationed on Hancock street got up steam and threw the first water on to the fire, and did good service, but would have done better, it is said, if the pipes in the street had been full of water instead of being empty.

The building was full of combustible materials, including oil and paint, and burnt very rapidly. Mr. Scammell lost his stock and tools valued at $550, and was insured for $450 in the Quincy Mutual. Mrs. Perry had no insurance on the building and her loss will be quite severely felt. There was an insurance on the building formerly, but it had expired as Mrs. Perry felt as through she could not afford to have it renewed. Her loss is estimated at $400. It is supposed that it was the work of an incendiary as no fire had been in the building for several weeks.

PRESENTATION. At the annual meeting of the J. W. Hall Hook and Ladder Company on Monday evening, the retiring foreman, Capt. John A. Green was presented with an elegant rosewood clock, valued at $15. On the face of it was inscribed the following:

Capt. JOHN A. GREEN,
FROM
J. W. Hall Hook and Ladder Co.
1883.

The presentation was made by Fred F. Green, who, with a few remarks informed the retiring officer of the friendly feelings the company bore him and that they presented him the clock as a remembrance of the many pleasant hours they had passed while under his command. The foreman, although completely surprised, replied in a pleasant manner, thanking the company for their kindly feelings and handsome gift, and closed by expressing the wish that under their new officdr they might be as congenial as they had been the past year.

FIRST PRIZE. At the public declamation for Boylston prizes at Harvard College last Thursday, the first prize was awarded to Mr. George B. Morison, a graduate of Adams Academy. The master announced the good news to the school yesterday morning; it was received with hearty applause, redoubled on the statement that the school would be dismissed after recess in consequence.

Mr. Morison is a son of N. H. Morison, Esq., of Baltimore, and nephew of our late citizen Dr. James Morison, and of the Rev. John N. Morison of Milton. Charles Francis Adams Jr., was one of the committee of award.

MEMORIAL DAY. Father Kelley is to deliver the oration on Decoration evening, at the Town Hall, and the Holbrook Brass Band is to furnish the music. It has been the custom in past years to have the oration delivered in the afternoon, after the decorating of the graves. But some have expressed a wish to have it in the evening, as it is much cooler.

ECONOMY. The Old Colony Railroad Company, which has used gas for years at the Quincy station, Harrison Square and Neponset, has substituted kerosene. Oil is so cheap that it makes quite a saving in a year. The railroad company was one of the largest patrons of the Citizens' Gas Light Company, and it is sorry to lose so good a customer.

MASQUERADE. We copy by request the following notice, of a masquerade, surprise and presentation, from the New Bedford Standard:

"Miss Emma S. Williams was surprised at her home, 69 Hillman street, Thursday evening, May 3, by about forty of her friends who came en masque. They not very quietly took possession of the house, leaving her to pick out her friends if she could. At ten o'clock the march was formed around the room, when the word was given to unmask, and amid the confusion and laughter she soon found out who her friends were. But still more surprised was the young lady when about eleven o'clock the company was called to order and on behalf of the company she was presented a splendid pair of brilliant earrings, Mr. Jerry M. Taber making the presentation speech, to which she responded with feeling as her surprise was so great she could hardly utter a word. She was also presented a very handsome basket of flowers by one of her lady friends. Miss Williams has made many friends in the short time she has been in this city. After having a nice collation served the friends took their leave wishing her success. Some of the costumes were very elegant as well as grotesque, more especially the little boot-black who kept the brush flying pretty lively."

TERRIFIC FIRE. Lightning struck a tank of oil in the yard of the Standard Oil Works at Cavan Point, Jersey City, at 3.30 last Thursday morning. The tank exploded and was followed by the explosion and burning of seven more. Loss estimated $500,000.

Brief Locals.

☞ The cherry blossoms are creeping out slowly.

☞ The grass is very green on highly cultivated grounds.

☞ Mr. H. P. Kittredge has our thanks for Chicago papers.

☞ The first three days of the week were decidedly warm and spring-like.

☞ Henry H. Faxon, Esq., has a large ice chest which he will sell cheap

☞ Asparagus has grown very fast the last week. In some gardens it is high enough to cut.

☞ Mr. Enos Ricker and wife are intending to go to housekeeping in Boston this spring.

☞ The reader's attention is called to the general order relating to Memorial day, on the first page.

☞ Mr. Aldrich, our new Superintendent of Schools, has moved to Chestnut street, near the Reform Club Hall.

☞ The Hon. Charles Francis Adams and family moved to their summer residence in this town on Tuesday last.

☞ Read G. F. Wilson's new double column advertisement, on the next page. He has a splendid stock for the trade.

☞ Joseph W. Lombard will sell this evening a lot of furniture, including several nice stoves and ranges, at his auction room.

☞ Mr. Jacob Flint, on Hancock street, has some of the prettiest crocuses in blossom that we have seen. They are of all colors.

☞ Mr. John F. Merrill of the Boston Branch store is enjoying a brief tour through some of the Western states.

☞ Undertaker Hall had four funerals to attend on Wednesday; two of the deceased were residents of this town.

☞ On the third page of this day's PATRIOT will be found the Act passed by the Senate and House incorporating the Quincy Water Company.

☞ The ladies of the Unitarian Church made such a complete success of their May fair that they contemplate having a lawn party next month.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Capt. Prince W. Kenney who recently moved from Quincy, died at Harwich on the 4th inst., of congestion of the lungs, after an illness of about one week's duration. His funeral was held from the north Chapel in that place on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Lothrop performing the last sad rites; selecting as a foundation of his discourse, a portion of the 18th verse of the 14th chapter of St. John:—"I will come to you." His remains were placed in the Snow family vault in that village, to be removed at some future period to Quincy, for interment. Capt. Kenney was a sailor on board the gunboat Katahdin, and was at the capture of New Orleans, receiving in the service disabilities, for which he received a pension. He was a member of the Paul Revere Post.

VULTURE FOUR.

The first regular meeting for the year, of the Vulture Engine Company, was held Monday evening, under the new board of officers, viz:—Foreman, T. Harris Newcomb; First Assistant, Frank E. Burrell; Second Assistant, Alfred L. Mead; Clerk, Geo. H. Higgins; Treasurer, Walton Hall and Steward, Elijah S. Brown.

While the meeting was in session the alarm of fire from box 35 was struck, for the wheelwright shop on Quincy avenue. The Vulture made a good record, reaching the fire about twenty minutes after the alarm was struck, and had a stream on the building only two minutes later than the steamer. This is a good beginning for the year which lies before them, and may it as a whole prove as good as it has the past twelve months, a credit to the place, both officially and socially.

THIS AND THAT.

A paper is being circulated to raise funds for watering Washington street during the next four months; it is certainly to be hoped that the people will contribute liberally, for this luxury which has become almost a necessity.

Many of our young people express themselves well pleased with the skating rink at the centre, and while away many an evening pleasantly, on the rollers.

We are glad to state that there are no new cases of scarlet fever, and those mentioned last week are improving.

There seems to be quite a moving fever at the Point, by which we neither gain nor lose many residents, as those afflicted are merely trying another house.

PERSONAL.

On Friday of last week, Deacon D. Howard Bills fell and broke his right arm. Dr. Gordon was at once called to set the bone and the Deacon is now doing nicely.

Rev. J. L. Harris was ill on Sunday and unable to fill his pulpit, but is now feeling somewhat better.

Rev. Mr. Tyler of North Weymouth substituted for him in the morning service and preached an excellent discourse.

Mrs. William T. Barry is visiting friends in Philadelphia. F.

Braintree Chips.

Saturday night last was quite a busy time at the South, the North and the East part of the town judging from the appearance of things on Sunday morning, when gates, blinds, etc., were missing from their proper places and when found were in a damaged condition, or perhaps set before some near or remote neighbor's house, or in the street; upon sundry buildings written signs were placed, and other things were done which had better been left undone. Now this was all fun for the boys but our citizens do not see it in that light. The Law and Order League of Braintree have offered a reward of twenty dollars for information that will convict the perpetrators of the raid. We think Peck's Bad Boy and his chum were perhaps in the crowd, as the signs hung up were somwhat similar to those hung up before the grocery man's store.

The alarm of fire on Sunday evening was caused by the burning of a building belonging to Naaman White, in what is called White's Row, at East Braintree.

Mr. M. A. Perkins, late foreman of the Butcher Boy, has been chosen chief on the board of engineers; and on Monday evening Mr. J. T. Mellus was chosen foreman, and Mr. Walter Holbrook and Mr. Elisha Hollis, first and second assistants for the Butcher Boy.

Gen. Swift of Boston is to be orator on Decoration Day. The Holbrook Brass Band are to furnish music for the G. A. R.

Another of those select parties were held at the Town Hall on Thursday evening. As usual the dancers had a pleasant time and did not go home till morning. D.

Boots and Shoes.

We copy from the Boston Daily Advertiser the following notice of the business of Mr. Noah Curtis, a son of Mr. Benjamin Curtis, of Quincy:

"Foremost amongst boot and shoe manufacturers, who confine themselves exclusively to the making of fine goods, are Messrs. N. Curtis & Co., of No. 147 Federal street, Boston. This firm was established as far back as 1858, under the name of T. Curtis & Co., the business being carried on at No. 108 Hanover street. Four years later a removal was made to No. 62 Milk street, from whence they were dislodged in the fire of November, 1872. In 1876 Mr. N. Curtis purchased his partner's interest in the business, and carried it on upon his own account so successfully that in January 1882, larger quarters were found necessary in order to carry on the rapidly increasing trade in a proper manner. The premises which the firm at present occupies at 147 Federal street were accordingly secured, and here the firm has been located ever since. The "Curtis" goods, which are renowned all over the United States are manufactured at Quincy and Weymouth, where the firm has extensive establishments employing one hundred and fifty hands. The factory at Quincy is devoted exclusively to the production of the very finest hand-sewed boots and shoes, which are made of the best imported stock; while at Weymouth domestic materials of the finest quality are used in the manufacture of fine machine and hand-sewed goods. The trade of the firm is large all through the New England States, and extends also to the West. The excellent reputation this establishment has acquired in its various productions is owing to the skill and energy which Mr. Curtis has shown in seeking out and adopting any new improvements in the style of the articles manufactured. In fact, no similar concern in this section of the country is better prepared, or has finer facilities than this one for the production of such work."

☞ The Rev. Mr. Jerome, pastor of Trinity Church, Weymouth, has resigned his charge of that parish.

Probate Court.

The regular monthly session of Probate Court in Quincy, was held on Wednesday last,—George White, Judge presiding,—and the following business was transacted:—

Petitioned, Louis A. Cook to be administrator of estate of Lucius S. Bates of Weymouth. Martha E. Newcomb to be appointed trustee of Martha C., Martha B. and Caroline A. Newcomb of Quincy. Ellis W. Morse, administrator for leave to sell real estate of the late Lewis Morse of Dedham.

Hough's Neck.

The summer residents at Hough's Neck are beginning to put their beach houses in order.

Mr. Joseph T. French has been digging a well near his pretty little cottage which is now about ready for occupancy.

Mr. Elbridge Porter of the Braintree Clothing Store has about completed a neat and cosy little dove cot.

Mrs. Callendar has enlarged and improved the appearance of Woodbine cottage.

Mr. William C. Daniels has had his house newly painted.

A new house is being erected by a Mrs. Emery from Boston near Mr. John Cavanaugh's.

Mr. A. L. Litchfield is erecting a house near Mr. W. I. Tuckerman's for Mrs. M. E. Green.

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION. Roger Amero, a French Canadian, has been arrested at Digby, N. S., on suspicion of having murdered Mrs. Etta Carlton at Watertown, Mass., in March last. This is the same man who was seen on the train between Brunswick and Bangor, Me., by a personal friend, and who denied his identity when spoken to. Although Amero has had his moustache shaven off, this man positively identifies him. Amero went through to St. John and there took a steamer for Digby, N. S., where he arrived ten days after the murder. He was arrested there a few days since at the request of Boston officers to await extradition. He had previously been employed at various places in the vicinity of Watertown, and disappeared shortly after the murder. He tells conflicting stories of his whereabouts at the time and of his travels since.

THE CARLTON HOUSE INSURANCE. The Carlton house at Watertown, recently destroyed by an incendiary, was insured, with the barn, for $3000 in the Quincy Mutual. Besides this an insurance of $2000 was effected on the building only a couple of weeks or so before the fire, in a stock company. About two days after the fire Mr. Chase Langmaid, the owner, sent a request for the payment of the stock insurance, but it has not yet been paid. The agent of the company was in Watertown recently, and he disclosed the foregoing facts. The house was valued by the assessors of Watertown at $3800.

RETURN OF

Births to the Town Clerk,

BY PHYSICIANS AND MIDWIVES.

AN ACT to compel a more accurate Registration of Births.

BE IT ENACTED, ETC.:—

SECTION 1. It shall be the duty of every physician and midwife in the several cities and towns in this Commonwealth, excepting Boston, to report on or before the fifth day of each month to the clerk of each city and town a correct list of births of all children born therein during the month next preceding, at which such physician or midwife was present, stating therein the place, date of each birth, and parents' names.

SECTION 2. Town and city clerks shall give public notice that they are prepared to furnish the necessary blanks to all physicians and midwives applying therefor.

SECTION 3. Any physician or midwife neglecting to report such list for ten days after it is due, shall, for each offence, forfeit a sum not exceeding twenty dollars.

SECTION 4. This Act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved February 26, 1880.

I hereby give notice that I am prepared to furnish the blanks above mentioned.

NORFOLK, SS. PROBATE COURT.

TO the Heirs-at-Law, Next-of-Kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of

MARY HEGARTY,

late of Quincy, in said County, deceased,

GREETING:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Patrick Hegarty and Timothy Deasy, who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, and that they may be exempt from giving a surety or sureties on their bond, pursuant to said will and statute.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, on the second Wednesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause if any you have, against the same.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this Citation, once a week, for three successive weeks, in the newspaper called the Quincy PATRIOT, printed at Quincy, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, GEORGE WHITE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this ninth day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.

IN QUINCY, MASS.
WILL BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION ON
Saturday, May 12th, 1883,
At 4 o'clock P. M.,
A COTTAGE HOUSE and one Acre of Land, situated on Mount Pleasant, Quincy, belonging to MRS. PATRICK SULLIVAN. The House has 6 very convenient apartments, and is in thorough repair. The land is adapted for a grapery. There is a Rock on the premises called Squaw Rock, from which you can look over the entire town of Quincy, which makes it very delightful. The premises adjoin the estate of J. M. Goodhue, Esq., and land of the late Job Faxon.
Parties of small means looking for homes of the above description are invited to the Sale. It is situated within 10 minutes' walk of R. R. depot; near Schools and Churches. The neighborhood is very quiet. Just the place to purchase.
It will be sold without reserve at 4 P. M.
Conditions at Sale.
The Auctioneer has 2 HOUSE LOTS for Sale, in good location—one in Wollaston—one on Copeland Street, West Quincy.
There will be a large Sale of FURNITURE and CARPETS this evening at the Quincy Auction Room.

Mortgagee's Sale.

PURSUANT to a power of sale contained in a certain Mortgage Deed given by Ferdinand Wolf to James Dolan, dated June 1st, 1875, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 468, Fol. 110, and for breach of the conditions of said Mortgage Deed, will be sold at Public Auction, on MONDAY, the 4th day of June, 1883, at 3 o'clock P. M., on the premises, in Quincy, all and singular, the following described real estate, viz:

A certain lot of land situated at Hough's Neck, in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and bounded and described as follows: commencing at the northeasterly corner of said lot, on Bay View avenue, and running on said avenue in a southerly direction forty-six (46) feet, there turning and running southeasterly on land of said Dolan, seventy-nine and nine one-hundredths (79 9-100) feet; then turning and running northeasterly forty (40) feet, on land of said Dolan, and then turning and running northwesterly seventy-five and fifteen one-hundredths (75 15-100) feet, on land of said Dolan, to point of beginning; and containing about three thousand two hundred and ninety-six (3,296) square feet of land, the same being a portion of the land conveyed to said Wolf by James Dolan, June 1st, 1875, and being a portion of the land conveyed to him by Chapin Thayer, Oct. 21st, 1873.

Terms made known at the time and place of sale.

JAMES DOLAN,
Mortgagee.

Also, at the same time and place, will be sold several other beach lots in the same vicinity.

SEALER'S NOTICE.

The Subscriber, Sealer of

Weights and Measures,

— FOR THE —
TOWN OF QUINCY.

FOR the present year, hereby gives notice to the inhabitants of said town, that he will be at the Selectmen's room on the four following MONDAYS:—May 7, 14, 21 and 28, from 9 to 12 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of Sealing such Beams, Weights and Measures as shall be brought to him for that purpose.

Also, that he may be found at his store No. 90 Hancock Street, any day after that time.

GEORGE SAVILLE, Sealer.

"Any person using any scales, weights, measures or milk cans after a sealer of weights and measures has demanded permission to test the same, and has been refused such permission, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars."

"If any person shall knowingly use any false weight, measure, milk can, scale, balance or beam, or shall alter any weight, measure, milk can, scale, balance or beam, after the same shall have been adjusted and sealed, so that the same thereby shall not conform to the public standard, and shall fraudently make use of the same, he shall forfeit for each offence the sum of fifty dollars, one-half to the use of the city or town, and one-half to the use of the complainant."

Assessors' Notice.

MANET
QUINCY
1625. 1640. 1792

To the Inhabitants and all other Persons liable to pay taxes in the Town of Quincy:

THE Assessors of the Town of Quincy hereby give notice to the inhabitants of said town, and all persons liable to pay taxes therein, that they will be at the office of the Selectmen, EVERY SATURDAY in May, from 2 to 4½ o'clock, P. M., and from May 26th until June 2d, every day from 8 to 10 o'clock A. M., to receive the valuation of estates; and all persons liable to be taxed in said town are hereby required to bring in at said office, a true and correct schedule of the Real and Personal Estates, for which they are liable to pay taxes.

Mortgaged Real Estate.

"Any mortgagor or mortgagee of real estate may bring in to the assessors of the town or city wherein such real estate lies," within the time specified in this notice, "a statement, under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such real estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagor. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a recorded mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement."—[Chap. 175 of the Acts of 1882.] When a statement in conformity with the law above quoted is brought in, the real estate therein returned will be assessed under Sections 14, 15 and 16, of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes. But in cases where the mortgagor of the real estate has agreed in writing to pay all taxes assessed thereon, NO STATEMENT OR RETURN is REQUIRED from either mortgagee or mortgagor, unless requested by the assessors in writing.

Returns of Property held for Literary, Benevolent, Charitable or Scientific Purposes.

[Chap. 217, Acts 1882.]

"All persons and corporations are required to bring in to the assessors, not later than the first day of July, 1883, true lists of all real and personal estate held by such persons and corporations respectively for literary, benevolent, charitable or scientific purposes on the first day of May, 1883, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures by such persons or corporations for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of May, 1883, such lists and statements to be in such detail as may be required by the Tax Commissioner." Blank forms for the above returns can be had of the assessors.

Persons holding estates in trust are requested to furnish the assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands, from some other causes, the executor or administrator is required to give notice of such change. In default of such notice, he will be held responsible for the tax assessed.

Any person bringing in a list of his taxable property will be assessed upon the valuation thereof, and any one neglecting to furnish the assessors with such list, within the time above specified, will at a legal meeting of the Board of Assessors, be doomed according to the laws of the Commonwealth.

All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing, and subscribed under oath before one of the assessors at their office, on or before the third day of June; and that the personal property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board of Assessors, notwithstanding a verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the assessors.

When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed upon such person for such property can be granted, unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per centum the amount which would have been assessed to that person on personal estate.

Quincy Water Company.

The following is an act passed by the General Court at its present session, to incorporate the Quincy Water Company in this town:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

SECTION 1. William L. Faxon, John A. Gordon, John O. Holden, Charles H. Porter, and their associates and successors, are hereby made a corporation by the name of the Quincy Water Company, for the purpose of furnishing the inhabitants of the town of Quincy with water for the extinguishment of fires, and for domestic and other purposes; with all the powers and privileges, and subject to all the duties, restrictions and liabilities set forth in all general laws which now are or may hereafter be in force applicable to such corporation.

SECT. 2. The said corporation, for the purposes aforesaid, may take, by purchase or otherwise, and hold, the water, or so much thereof as may be necessary, of "Town Brook," so called, in the town of Quincy, at any point south of Water street in said town, and the water rights connected therewith, and also all lands, rights of way and easements, necessary for holding and preserving such water, and for conveying the same to any part of said town; and may erect on the land thus taken or held, proper dams, buildings, fixtures and other structures; and may make excavations, procure and operate machinery, and provide any other means and appliances as may be necessary for the establishment and maintenance of complete and effective water works; and may construct and lay down conduits, pipes and other works, under or over any lands, water courses, railroads, or public or private ways, and along any such ways in such manner as not unnecessarily to obstruct the same; and for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and repairing such conduits, pipes and other works, and for all proper purposes of this act, said corporation may dig up any such lands, and, under the direction of the board of selectmen of the town in which any such ways are situated, may enter upon and dig up any such ways in such manner as to cause the least hindrance to public travel on such ways: provided, that no taking or holding of water under authority of this act, shall impair the supply of water now used by said town for the extinguishment of fires.

SECT. 3. The said corporation shall within sixty days after the taking of any lands, rights of way, water rights, water sources or easements as aforesaid, otherwise than by purchase, file and cause to be recorded, in the registry of deeds for the county within which such lands or other property is situated, a description thereof sufficiently accurate for identification, with a statement of the purpose for which the same were taken, signed by the president of the corporation.

SECT. 4. The said corporation shall pay all damages sustained by any person in property the taking of any land, right of way, water, water source, water right or easement, or by any other thing done by said corporation under the authority of this act. Any persons sustaining damages as aforesaid under this act, who fails to agree with said corporation as to the amount of damages sustained, may have the damages assessed and determined in the manner provided by law when land is taken for the laying out of highways, on application at any time within the period of three years from the taking of such land or other property, or the doing of other injury, under the authority of this act; but no such application shall be made after the expiration of said three years. No application for assessment of damages shall be made for the taking of any water, water right, or for any injury thereto, until the water is actually withdrawn or diverted by said corporation under the authority of this act.

SECT. 5. The said corporation may distribute the water through said town of Quincy; may regulate the use of said water, and fix and collect rates to be paid for the use of the same; and may make such contracts with the said town, or with any fire district that is or may hereafter be established therein, or with any individual or corporation, to supply water for the extinguishing of fire, or for other purposes, as may be agreed upon by said town, or such fire district, individual or corporation, and said corporation.

SECT. 6. The said corporation may, for the purposes set forth in this act, hold real estate not exceeding in amount fifty thousand dollars; and the whole capital stock of said corporation shall not exceed two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, to be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each.

SECT. 7. Whoever wilfully or wantonly corrupts, pollutes or diverts any of the waters taken or held under this act, or injures any structure, work or other property owned, held or used by said corporation under the authority and for the purposes of this act, shall forfeit and pay to said corporation three times the amount of damages assessed therefor, to be recovered in an action of tort; and upon conviction of either of the above wilful or wanton acts shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding one year.

SECT. 8. The said corporation may issue bonds, and secure the same by a mortgage on its franchise and other property to an amount not exceeding its capital stock actually paid in and applied to the purposes of its incorporation.

SECT. 9. The said town of Quincy shall have the right, at any time during the continuance of the charter hereby granted, to purchase the franchise, corporate property, and all the rights and privileges of said corporation, at a price which may be mutually agreed upon between said corporation and the said town; and the said corporation is authorized to make sale of the same to said town. In case said corporation and said town are unable to agree, then the compensation to be paid shall be determined by three commissioners, to be appointed by the supreme judicial court, upon application of either party and notice to the other, whose award, when accepted by said court, shall be binding upon all parties. This authority to purchase said franchise and property is granted on condition that the same is assented to by said town, by a two-thirds vote of the voters of said town, present and voting thereon at a meeting called for that purpose.

SECT. 10. The said town may, for the purpose of paying the cost of said franchise and corporate property, and the necessary expenses and liabilities incurred under the provisions of this act, issue from time to time, bonds, notes or scrip, to an amount not exceeding, in the aggregate, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; such bonds, notes and scrip shall bear on their face the words "Quincy Water Loan;" shall be payable at the expiration of periods not exceeding thirty years from the date of issue, shall bear interest payable semi-annually, at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, and shall be signed by the treasurer of the town, and countersigned by the water commissioners hereinafter provided for. The said town may sell such securities at public or private sale, or pledge the same for money borrowed for the purposes of this act, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem proper. The said town shall provide, at the time of contracting said loan, for the establishment of a sinking fund, and shall annually contribute to such fund a sum sufficient, with the accumulations thereof, to pay the principle of said loan at maturity. The said sinking fund shall remain inviolate, and pledged to the payment of said loan, and shall be used for no other purpose.

SECT. 11. The said town shall raise annually, by taxation, a sum which, with the income derived from such water rates, will be sufficient to pay the current annual expenses of operating its water works, and the interest as it accrues, on the bonds, notes and scrip issued as aforesaid by said town, and to make such contributions to the sinking fund and payments on the principal as may be required under the provisions of this act.

SECT. 12. The said town shall, after its purchase of said franchise and corporate property, as provided in this act, at a legal meeting called for the purpose, elect by ballot three persons to hold office, one until the expiration of three years, one until the expiration of two years, and one until the expiration of one year from the next succeeding annual town meeting, to constitute a board of water commissioners; and at each annual town meeting thereafter one such commissioner shall be elected by ballot for the term of three years. All the authority granted to said town by this act, and not otherwise specifically provided for, shall be vested in said board of water commissioners, who shall be subject, however, to such instructions, rules and regulations as said town may impose by its vote; the said commissioners shall be trustees of the sinking fund herein provided for, and a majority of said commissioners shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business relative both to the water works and to the sinking fund. Any vacancy occurring in said board from any cause may be filled for the remainder of the unexpired term by said town, at any legal town meeting called for the purpose.

SECT. 13. The county commissioners for the county within which any land, water, or water rights taken under this act is situated, shall, upon application of the owner thereof, require said corporation to give satisfactory security for the payment of all damages and costs which may be awarded such owner for the land or other property so taken; but previous to requiring such security the county commissioners shall, if application therefore is made by either party, make an estimate of the damages which may result from such taking, and the county commissioners shall in like manner require further security, if at any time the security before required appears to them to have become insufficient; and all the right or authority of said corporation to enter upon or use such land or other property, except for making surveys, shall be suspended until it gives the security so required.

SECT. 14. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

EASILY PROVEN. It is easily proven that malarial fevers, constipation, torpidity of the liver and kidneys, general debility, nervousness, and neuralgic ailments yield readily to this great disease conqueror, Hop Bitters. It repairs the ravages of disease by converting the food into rich blood, and it gives new life and vigor to the aged and infirm always.

Letter from New York.

NEW YORK, May 9, 1883.

The State Legislature was adjourned on Friday, after a busy and animated session. Some of the best measures passed were the creation of a state civil service commission, the Niagara Falls Park bill, a receivership measure, and a bill to prevent "baby-farming." Others not so acceptable to many were the excise bill, the bill interfering with the prison contract labor system, the aqueduct bill, &c.

Boyd's and Hussey's penny (private) post-offices were raided last week, and several thousand letters seized. These concerns carry city letters for one cent each, thereby, as the general post-office authorities claim, defrauding the government revenue of several hundred dollars daily. Mary Blackman, the owner of the business carried on under the name of "Boyd's City Despatch," one of the private offices raided, yesterday began suit against the officers concerned in breaking up the establishments, claiming that it is lawfully carried on, and if they continue to raid the place, seizing letters, her business, which is worth $100,000, will be destroyed.

Brooklyn has decided to have a grand time on the 24th, the day for the opening of the great bridge. As it is to be an historic event, active preparations to appropriately commemorate it are going on upon a large scale. Fireworks will be displayed upon the tops of the bridge towers, and the whole harbor will probably be illuminated. Tolls will probably be charged for all travel across the bridge, including foot passengers. The latest rate proposed has been one cent, or twenty-five tickets for ten cents, for pedestrians, and three cents, or ten tickets for twenty-five cents, for those who patronize the cars.

The last of the winter and the early spring has been remarkable for the marvelous cheapness of oranges and lemons, these fruits selling steadily at from twenty-five to thirty for a quarter of a dollar. The oranges are Valencians, and of excellent quality. Their places are now taken by the early Summer fruits and vegetables, the markets being full of green peas, beans, lettuce, new potatoes and radishes, while strawberries have been selling for twenty-five cents a box for the past three or four weeks.

The committee appointed to act upon the erection of a statue to Peter Cooper, in the small triangular park, called Stuyvesant Square, in front of the Institute, has decided to place one there, and they are now examining plans from celebrated artists.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey, the evangelists, arrived in New York City on Sunday morning, and the following day started for their homes, to remain until their departure for England the coming Fall.

The Chamber of Commerce of the City of New York, celebrated its 115th anniversary by an elaborate dinner at Delmonico's, on Wednesday evening last. Speeches were made by General Grant, Mr. Erastus Brooks, Henry Ward Beecher, Mr. Chauncey M. Depew and others. About two hundred gentlemen were present, the tables were beautifully decorated, and the whole affair was a most enjoyable one.

A short and sudden, but severe, storm struck the city yesterday afternoon, accompanied by thunder and lightning, and doing considerable damage to small property and shipping.

GLENNON'S PATENT CRANES AND DERRICKS.

The above beautiful cut representing the new cranes and derricks recently patented by Mr. Wm. H. Glennon, a citizen of West Quincy. For a cheap and practicable derrick, it surpasses anything ever before offered to the public. Mr. Glennon has made at his residence a good derrick for forty-five cents, not including ropes, blocks, etc., which answers for common purposes as well as one that cost $200. Any information will be cheerfully given by the patentee.

Mr. Glennon is prepared to put up Monuments.

THOMAS'
OIL TROUGH TREE PROTECTORS.

(Patented August 9, 1881.)

This Improved Protector effectually protects the trees against the Canker Worms.

PLEASE Examine our new Protector. Below are some of the reasons why every one owning trees should use this Protector.

1. It is a first-class tree Protector, with a perpendicular front to the oil-pan, which prevents the oil from blowing out.
2. It has a pan large enough to contain oil for the season.
3. It is manufactured from heavy zinc, and will last for years.
4. Being corrugated prevents sagging when on the trees.
5. The protectors are smaller in the centre, which prevents the packing from falling through.
6. We use tow for packing, so there is no danger of girdling or injuring the tree.
7. By using our protectors, you will get more and finer fruit.
8. It is so constructed as to be a perfect barrier against canker worms; it will prevent codling moths, tussock moths, bark lice, curculio, caterpillars, etc., from ascending the trees.
9. This Protector is so cheap that every one owning trees can apply it. It is simply insuring your trees against insects for a few cents at

My experience of several years in selling protectors has taught me what is required by the public is a cheap Oil Trough Protector, easily taken care of and something that cannot injure the trees, and will stop the grub from ascending. I am convinced that nothing can be fastened solid to a tree without doing more or less injury. We have applied our Protectors to hundreds of trees, where other protections have failed. Parties ordering, will please give their orders early to insure their being filled on time. Now is the time to put them on and prevent the codling moths, curculio bark lice and tussock moth from ascending the trees.

The Price of our Protectors is

10 cts per Inch in diameter, which includes applying to the tree and filling with oil.

Neatest, cheapest and most durable Protector in the market.

We are prepared to execute with promptness all orders. Address all orders to

The Quincy Granite Co.,

F. J. FULLER, PROP.,
West Quincy, Mass.

ONE of the oldest and most reliable firms in New England, would respectfully inform the public that they are better than ever prepared to furnish the finest quality of Granite work that can be produced. Our facilities are such that we can furnish all work in this line at the lowest prices. Being the entire owner of one of the oldest Dark Blue Granite Quarries in Quincy, Mass., our Quarry has a reputation far above any other of its kind, and the stone being procured from so great a depth (having been worked down about one hundred and fifty feet) that we obtain a richness and purity of color that cannot be excelled. We guarantee that this stock will retain its rich color and polish longer than any other Dark Blue granite that is now produced. We have also control of a superior White Granite Quarry in New England, and with our constantly improving machinery, are doing the best quality of work.

All our stock is carefully selected from the quarries, and as the most skilled workmen are employed to oversee the work, we are willing to guarantee entire satisfaction in all cases before the work is accepted. Persons wishing to purchase any Granite Memorial Work, such as will find it decidedly in their interest to communicate with us for any information desired, as we keep on hand a large supply of designs, which we will furnish for the inspection of our patrons.

Parties can order work of us at much less expense than of dealers in their own vicinity, many whom buy their stock and work of us. We will gladly answer all communications and submit designs if required, with confidence that our prices and workmanship will secure for us an extended patronage.

We make a specialty of all kinds of

and can supply any demand at short notice. Also Polished Columns of all sizes for building and other architectural purposes.

We furnish large quantities of Granite Pavements, and are prepared to contract with cities or corporations to supply the same or to construct and pave streets.

Thankful for the liberal patronage which we have received during the last ten years, we expect a continuance of the same and respectfully solicit your orders.

For the Patriot.

Home Again.

Back to the grand old mountains,
Back to the woods and hills,
Back to the playful fountains,
And the happy, rippling rills.

Back to the broad, smooth meadows,
Back to the sunny lawn,
Back to the wild, sweet May-flowers,
That wake with the coming dawn.

Back to the grove by the schoolhouse,
With their maple boughs bending low,
That throw us a kiss in a funny twist,
Just tipped in their crimson glow.

Back to the fields where the clover,
And the buttercups blossom in June,
While the violets sweet and daisies greet
The roses' rich perfume.

Ah! bright, happy home of my childhood,
How I love every corner and nook,
From the rustic stone wall by the orchard
To the ferns that grow by the brook.

Yes, dearer than all other climates
Or mansions that ever could be,
Is my sweet, peaceful home 'mong the mountains,
And the loved ones who welcome me.

The Apple Crop.

Although the present year is the off year for apples, the trees this spring indicate that there will be more blossoms than is usual the off year. The autumn of 1881 and winter of 1882 were very destructive to the blossoms of the apple tree; so badly were they injured in some orchards that the quantity of fruit was very small, much below the usual amount the bearing year; this gave the trees a chance to recover from the injury caused by the very unfavorable weather of the preceding autumn and winter, and to form more blossom buds than they naturally would if the trees had been loaded with fruit, even though the preceding winter had been favorable.

The first of May finds the trees this year rather backward, but to all appearance in a much better condition than for many years, except in those portions of the State where the drouth last summer was very severe; in such sections, on dry ground, the trees were injured to a degree that will affect them during the entire season. Trees often show the injury caused by dry weather, the following season more than they do during dry weather; but only a very small portion of the State was dry enough to seriously injure the orchards, therefore the present outlook for a crop of apples this season is very good. The blossom buds are looking remarkably well, and the small twigs of the trees look healthy.

If the coddling moth can be kept from the fruit, the chances are that we shall have a larger crop of fruit this year than last. This pest of the orchard seems to be on the increase, and unless something more is done in the future than in the past, the chances for a crop of good apples will be very small.

Bugs and Worms.

By the third week in May the creeping things of the earth will have commenced their work of destruction in good earnest, and unless the farmer is both watchful and diligent his share of the harvest will not only be small but of inferior quality. By the fifteenth of of the month the currant worm will put in an appearance; at first he will be found hid away in the centre of the bushes near the ground; part the bushes and dust with hellebore; this, if well done, will prove so destructive that few will escape to make a second crop. Closely following the currant worm will be the tent caterpillar, which is so easily destroyed with a brush moistened in kerosene oil, that there is no excuse for having trees injured by this pest. The cut-worm, that grey worm which cuts down so many bean, cucumber, beet and other plants, must be looked for early in the morning, when he will be found near the surface by the side of the plant he has cut off; to dig him out and kill him is the remedy. The small fly that makes such destructive work with the turnip, cabbage, and beet plants should be attended to; a slight sprinkling of wood ashes on the plants will drive them away.

Protect the toads and they will do much to keep in check both the bugs and worms. It is the custom in some portions of Europe for gardeners to purchase toads to keep in the garden; would this not be a good practice for New England farmers?

The Grass Crop.

A careful examination of the mowing fields in different sections of the State discloses the fact that in those localities where the drouth was the most severe last autumn, the roots of the grass are more or less injured. Land that has been seeded down only two or three years show more dead roots than land which has been in grass several years. Timothy roots of one and two years' growth have suffered very much; some fields we have noticed are so badly injured that they should be reseeded.

In those sections of the State where the drouth was not severe, the grass looks remarkably well, it having made a good autumn growth, and being well covered with snow during the winter, it was so well protected that it was in a good condition to grow as soon as the snow was melted, and although somewhat late, it has started very thick, and now, the last of April, bids fair to produce a large crop.

Anecdotes.

"Hullo! I say, Pompey, what d'ye give yer hoss when he sick?"

"A pint of turpentine," was the reply. Away started Sambo and did likewise. In a week he falls in with Pompey again.

"Look'ee here, Pompey, you niggah! Give my hoss a pint er turpentine and it kill him ded as — Julius Cæsar!"

"So it did mine," quoth Pompey.

"Where are your kids?" a society man asked, looking at the bare hands of a poor but deserving editor at Vanderbilt's party. "At home in bed," was the indignant reply. "Do you suppose I'd bring my children to a party like this?"

Mistress:—Forgot it! Why, I told you to impress it on your mind."

Bridget:—It was on me moind I put it, mum, and me mind went astray with it."

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

Total Abstinence Movement.

The movement in this direction first took shape at Preston, in Lancashire, in September 1832, when Mr. Joseph Linsey and some other members of the temperance society there pledged themselves to abstain from all liquors of an intoxicating quality, whether ale, porter, wine, or ardent spirits, except as medicines. An active propagandism in all the principal towns of Lancashire followed and a considerable number of adherents were gained to the new cause. In September 1833, according to the commonly received story, the notable word teetotal was first used. A certain Richard Turner, or, as he was more commonly called, "Dicky" Turner, a plasterer's laborer who was much given to holding forth in the Lancashire dialect at the meetings of the new sect, happened in the course of a Philippic against temperance to say: "I'll hev nowt to do wi this moderation—botheration—pledge; I'll be reet tee tee total forever and ever." "Well done, Dicky," said Mr. Linsey, "that shall be the name of our new pledge." This origin of the word which appears to make it but a stuttering pronunciation of total has been disputed, and it if affirmed that the term is simply a Lancashire phrase for final, thorough or complete. Whatever may have been the origin of the term, the new sect was resolved to be "thorough."

The Legislature of Vermont has wisely forbidden the use of tobacco by teachers and pupils in the public schools. It is none too early to begin the work of stemming the filthy tide that threatens to overflow the youthful green pastures of American life. One of the greatest trials of a clean American citizens to-day, is the omnipresent curse of the weed in every disgusting variety of its use. Even the palatial Pulman car, for whose comfort you pay your last spare dollar, is everywhere pervaded by the stench of the smoker who forces himself in at one end, or your stomach is turned by the dreadful performance of the honorable chewer at his spittoon. Why is it that tobacco, of all things, seems to extinguish the gentleman in the most kindly and cultivated man? A christian gentleman, even parson or priest, full of the most genial attentions, and considerate to the last degree of your comfort in other ways, will puff you into a nausea, or spoil an interview by making himself a tobacco-squirt, without the slightest suspicion that he is doing aught to give you trouble, or is making life itself a hideous burden while in his presence. In this respect tobacco may indeed be regarded as "the reminder of wrath" that in spite of our theories of christian perfection, still inheres in the infirm human nature of the saintliest man. — Journal of Education.

Fashion Notes.

Cashmere is the popular early spring dress fabric.

Gay colors in costumes are worn only in the house.

Bottle-green velvet trims ecru cashmere admirably.

Brides' dresses are made with elegant simplicity this season.

Chicken down, the color of the newly hatched, is the latest shade of yellow.

Gold thistles and gold burrs are the latest millinery and hair ornament.

Amber, topaz, and all yellow stones are in vogue for ornamental jewelry.

Sleeves for street costumes remain tight and plain, and are larger than last season.

Plaid skirts worn under plain fabric polonaises and overdresses are in high favor.

Leather buckles appear among new ornaments for hats, bonnets and dresses.

Both high and low chignons are worn by fashionable women, but they must be small.

Long shell or metal hairpins take precedence of all other ornaments for the coiffure.

Pansies of all colors and sizes on grounds of various colors appear in chine effects on some sash ribbons and scarfs.

The requisite dash of yellow in a white toilet is sometimes given by wearing an amber necklace and amber bracelets or with yellow topaz jewelry.

The fancy work of the coming season will be outline embroidery in bright colored wools, cottons and silks on shams, tidies, bibs, bureau covers and table and chair scarfs.

Household Receipts.

CHEESE OMELET. Beat up three eggs with two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, and pepper and salt to taste; melt one tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan, and pour in the mixture. Fry brown.

LEMON ICING. One cupful sugar, one egg, one grated lemon peel, pulp and juice; add one tablespoonful of butter. Boil all together till thick. Spread four layers.

GRANDMOTHER'S PANCAKES. Three tablespoonfuls of sugar, six tablespoonfuls of sweet milk, three tablespoonfuls sour cream, one half teaspoonful of soda, one half teaspoonful of salt; spice to taste; stir to a thick batter, and drop by the spoonful into hot lard and fry like crullers.

MOCK MINCE PIES. This receipt for mock mince pies is contributed by a practical housekeeper, who says that the pies made from it are delicious, and are not nearly so indigestible as those where meat and suet is used: Two cups of chopped apple, one cup of dried bread crumbs, rolled very fine; dry the bread in the oven till it is crisp without being brown; one cup of raisins, one cup of vinegar, one cup of molasses, and one of brown sugar; spice to your taste. Put little lumps of butter in the pies just before putting the top crust over. The apples are to be quartered, and the cores and all spots carefully cut out, but they are not to be peeled. A little jelly or jam is an addition, and gives good flavor to the pies, and is a good way to dispose of small quantities left over from tea.

The Scarlet, Cardinal Red, Old Gold, Navy Blue, Seal Brown, Diamond Dyes give perfect results. Any fashionable color, 10 cents.

Onions Raised on Phosphate Alone.

SUNDERLAND, MASS., April 8, 1882.

Last year I sowed three and one-half acres to onions, using 1,500 pounds of Bradley's Phosphate to the acre, at a cost of $33.75 per acre. No other manure was used. I sold the onions from these three and one-half acres for seventy cents per bushel, and the whole amounted to $906. Onions were grown on part of this land the year before with nothing but Bradley's Phosphate and I harvested at the rate of 600 bushels to the acre. This satisfies me that onions can be grown year after year with nothing but Bradley's Phosphate, and get a yield of from 400 to 500 bushels to the acre. I am sowing five acres to onions this year, using nothing but this Phosphate.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the Heirs-at-Law, Next of Kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of

SAMUEL G. WYMAN,

late of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, deceased,

GREETING:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by William Keyser and H. Irvine Keyser, both of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, with certain papers purporting to be copies of the last will and testament of said deceased, and of the Probate thereof in said State of Maryland, duly authenticated, representing that at the time of his death said deceased had estate in said County of Norfolk, on which said will may operate, and praying that the copy of said will may be filed and recorded in the Probate Office of said County of Norfolk, and letters testamentary thereon granted to them.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the first Wednesday of June next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said Petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this Citation three weeks successively, in the newspaper called the Quincy PATRIOT, printed at Quincy, the first publication to be thirty days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, GEORGE WHITE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-fifth day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.

SUPPLEMENT.

QUINCY, MASS., MAY 12, 1883.

"It is Just As You Say."

In a Scotch country parish, not long ago, there lived a church officer who had filled that office and that of grave digger for the long space of fifty years. Suspicions had long been entertained that he was in the habit of helping himself out of the collection plate whenever opportunity permitted. It was difficult of course to prove this. At last, however, the sum of one pound was abstracted from a missionary box which stood in the vestry, and everything combined to point out this man as the culprit. The elders told the minister that something must really be done. The minister said, "Leave him to me, and I'll see what can be done. The following Sabbath, after the forenoon service, the minister was taking off his gown and bands; and, being alone in the vestry with the suspected man, he thought the opportunity was too good to be lost, so he said, "Andrew, have you heard of the money that is missing from the box?" "O, aye," said Andrew, "I was hearing something about it." "Andrew," continued the other, very gravely, "the matter lies between you and me. We are the only two who have had access to the box. Either you or I must be the thief." "Deed, sir," rejoined the imperturbable Andrew, "it is just as you say; we are the only two that has had access to the box, and I think the best way will be for you to pay the half and I pay tither, and say nae mair aboot it."

A Pleasant Adjective.

Dear is a pleasant adjective — my a pronoun of possession, implying that the being spoken of is one's own, very own, property. We rather object to "dearest," as a word implying comparison, and, therefore, never to be used where comparison should not and could not exist. Witness, "dearest mother," or "dearest wife," as if a man had a plurality of mothers or wives, out of whom to choose the one he loved best. And as a general rule we dislike all ultra expressions of affection set down in ink. We once knew an honest gentleman, blessed with one of the tenderest hearts that ever man had, and which in all his life was only given to one woman. He, his wife told us, had never, even in their courtship days, written to her otherwise than as "My dear Anne," ending with "Yours faithfully," or "Yours truly." Faithful — true — what more could he write, or she desire?

A Relic.

The silver baptismal bowl used at the Centre Church, New Haven, was presented to the church in 1735 by Jeremiah Atwater, at that time a merchant buying his supplies in Boston and receiving them by vessel. Among the goods received were several nail casks, one of which, under a layer of nails at each end, was found to be filled with silver dollars. Mr. Atwater, who was a conscientious man, immediately wrote to the Boston merchant that there must be some mistake in the invoice of nails, as some of the casks contained other articles beside nails. It was promptly answered that the supposed nails were bought for nails, sold for nails, and nails they must be. Mr. Atwater then melted the silver, and had made from it the silver basin which he presented to the church.

Sunshine in Dwellings.

The time will very likely come when sunshine, or sunlight, will be so utilized as to be the entire remedy used for very many diseases. That it is a wonderful vitalizer, none can doubt who knows anything about it.

But how many houses are constructed with a view to getting all the sunshine possible especially when so much needed as in winter and spring? The living, or sitting room, at these seasons of the year, at least, should have a full southern exposure, with large windows to let in the sunshine. Sleeping rooms, wardrobes, closets, passage ways, should receive the cleansing vivifying influence of the sun. Sickly persons should court the sunshine as much as possible—sit in it, lie in it, luxuriate in it. It does not cost anything, only appreciation.

A room warmed neither by the sun, nor by fire, is unhealthy, and not fit for habitation. It is a poor theory that sends men, women or children off into a cold room to sleep, on health principles, when warmth has been excluded for a day or a week, perhaps months. The change in the temperature of a room having both fire and sunshine, after the sun goes down, is exceedingly marked. A perceptible chill is felt.

Could not Answer that Way.

"Do you keep overcoats here?" he asked, as he stopped in front of a clothing store?

"Of course — vhalk right in. I haf der best assortment in the hull State."

"I want to ask you a plain question, and I want a square answer."

"Certainly."

"Have you an overcoat for four dollars."

"Vhell, you see — you" —

"Never mind, now! I want a square answer to the question. Have you an overcoat for four dollars?"

"Vhell" —

"Stop! Answer me yes or no."

"My frendt, I can't answer dot vhay. I have some overcoats for six dollars, and if I can't sell you one for eight dollars, den maybe I come down to four dollars. Come in, und we shplits the difference und calls it seven!"

Sharp Retort.

"Have you had a job to-day Tim?" enquired a well known legal gentleman of the equally well known, jolly, florid faced old drayman who, rain or shine, summer or winter, is rarely absent from his post in front of the Michigan Exchange.

"Bedad, I did, sor."

"How many."

"O'ny two, sor."

"How much did you get for both?"

"Sivinty cints, sor."

"Seventy cents! How in the world do you expect to live and keep a horse on seventy cents a day?"

"Some days I have half a dozen jobs, sor; but biznis has been dull today, sor. On'y the hauling of a trunk for a gintleman for forty cints, an' a load of furniture for thirty cints; and there was the pots an' the kittles, and the divil on'y knows phat, a big load, sor."

"Do you carry big loads of household furniture for thirty cents?"

"She was a poor widdy, sor, an' had no more to give me. I took all she had sor; an' bedad, sor, a lyyer could have done no better nor that, sor."

And old Tim had won the first fall.

Earth Not Our Home.

I cannot believe that this earth is man's abiding place. It cannot be that our life, cast up by the ocean of eternity, is to float a moment upon the waves, and sink into nothingness. Else why is it the glorious aspirations, which like angels, peep from the temple of our hearts, are forever wandering about unsatisfied? Why is it that the stars, which hold their festival around the throne, are forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory? And finally why is it bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view, and then taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affections to flow back in Alpine torrents upon our hearts? We are born for a higher destiny than that of earth. There is a realm where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will be spread before us like islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beings that pass before us like shadows, leave our presence forever.

Curious.

In Yarmouth, Maine, there was a sign over a tavern many years ago which read, Byrom & Drinkwater. Passers by amused themselves by dividing the syllables. About the same time (1820) might have been seen a notice in a leading Philadelphia paper of a new copartnership in the dry goods business, signed, William Shot and Jonathan Fell. On Merrimack street, in this city, says a Haverhill paper, may be seen one no less suggestive but somewhat more business like. It reads: Daniel Fitts Shoes."

Thinking the Matter Over.

A servant girl who had been admonished by her mistress to be careful in "washin' up" the best tea things, was overheard shortly afterwards indulging in the following soliloquy while in the act of washing the sugar basin: "If I was to drop this 'ere basin, and was to catch it, I suppose I shouldn't catch it; but if I were to drop it, and wasn't to catch it, I reckon I should just catch it."

☞ A New York woman has been awarded $5000 damages in a suit against a dentist, who broke her jawbone while extracting a tooth. The award for damages is not heavy. A broken jaw-bone is a serious thing to a married woman.

A Curious Case.

We copy the following from the Framingham Gazette of April 27:

"On the 28th of July, 1854, S. O. Daniels conveyed to William Welsh of Braintree a small dwelling house on Waverly street, in the village. Welsh entered the army, and in 1864, while he was away doing military service, the Deputy Sheriff Bannister attached the place and sold it at auction, Welsh owing a Braintree party at the time, who caused this action to be taken. The estate was purchased by John Anderson of South Framingham who was killed a few years ago while unloading logs. At the time of purchase Bannister gave Anderson a sheriff's deed of the property, but it seems neglected to make a return on the execution as he should properly have done. Anderson afterwards deeded the place to his wife. On returning from the war Welsh having learned that the property had changed hands, applied it is said to the late Gov. Andrew and to Gen. Butler for advice in the matter, and the legislature was also petitioned in Welsh's behalf. The case was brought before the courts some time since, and the Supreme Court having decided recently that the property belonged to Welsh, Mrs. Anderson has been notified that she must vacate the premises but this she refused to do. Wednesday afternoon however, she was forced to do so and to have her goods removed, for Mr. Welsh, Mr. Stearns his counsel from Boston, and Deputy Sheriff John C. Hastings visited the premises and took possession, the aged widow being obliged to go elsewhere to live, the neighbors now giving her shelter.

Attacking a Caterpillar.

A singular combat between insects was witnessed by a traveller in South Africa. Pursuing a caterpillar was a host of small ants. An ant would mount upon the caterpillar's back and bite him. Pausing the caterpillar would turn his head and bite and kill his tormentor. After slaughtering a dozen or more of his persecutors the caterpillar showed signs of fatigue. The ants made a combined attack. Betaking himself to a stalk of grass, the caterpillar climbed up, tail first, followed by the ants. As soon as one approached he seized it in his jaw and threw it off the stalk. The ants, seeing that the caterpillar had too strong a position for them to overcome, resorted to strategy. They began sawing through the grass stalk. In a few minutes the stalk fell, and hundreds of the ants pounced upon the caterpillar and he was killed, and the victors marched off in triumph, leaving the foe's body on the field.

☞ There are 7923 steam boilers in use in Massachusetts, and the accident in Lynn was the only one reported last year.

THE NEW

Quincy Directory

For 1882 and 1883

IS FOR SALE

AT THE PATRIOT OFFICE.

It contains 150 octavo pages and is devoted exclusively to Quincy.

Sent to any part of the United States, postage prepaid.

Price 60 Cents.

In it will be found the names of al the streets in town, both public and private, and where they are located. Also, the hills, hummocks, islands, streams, bridges, wharves, halls, public buildings, and places of interest, railroad stations, post offices and cemeteries. A general directory, giving the names of every male person over twenty years of age in Quincy on the first day of May. Also, all widows, and ladies having any particular occupation. Containing a list of over 3700 names.

Also, a general business directory of the town, each branch classified and arranged for the convenience of the public; town officers, public schools and teachers, fire department, county and town offices, corporations, religious and charitable societies and associations; temperance, political and social societies; advertising cards from nearly all the principal business firms in the town.

Many citizens who have left Quincy and gone abroad, will find much in its pages that will be of great interest to them; bringing to memory many old associations and friends. Any orders received at the PATRIOT OFFICE will meet with prompt attention. Green & Prescott, publishers.

SUPPLEMENT.

THE GREAT AMERICAN ABOMINATION. "Popular taste for pies," the manager of the biggest pie-baking establishment in the world said, "changes with the seasons, and is a precious sight more regular, if we are to take the last month of April as a sample of Spring. There is one steady stand-by. That is apple pie. The demand for it is double that of any other kind the year through. But outside of that they run about in this way: In December, January and February mince pie comes to the front, and runs a good second to apple. Just about the holidays it takes the lead just for a spurt, as, for instance, on the day before last Christmas, when we used ten tons of mincemeat in pies in the one day. In March, April and May people want custard and rhubarb, which come next to apple, both together amounting to about as much as the apple in the aggregate supply. In June, July and August whortleberry, blackberry and strawberry pies are largely in demand, and strawberry shortcake, which is a sort of pie, is no small item. In September, October and November, the ripened fullness of the year, the public taste yearns for pumpkin, and there is also a pretty good run on peach. Of course, you understand, we make all these pies, and a good many more varieties, such as lemon, plum, cocoanut and pineapple all the year round. The use of the best canned fruit enables us to keep the supply of any sort required, irrespective of the season. Just about now we average 100,000 pies a week. Of that number one-quarter are apple. Of the others there are about equal quantities made of each kind that I have mentioned."—New York Sun.

☞ It is estimated that the eight railroads running into Boston take 12,000 passengers regularly to and from the city daily to suburban homes. The Boston & Albany carries the most passengers, the Old Colony coming fourth in the list, bringing into Boston last year 1,992,334 persons, and carrying out 1,969,718. The Old Colony does the best business of any road; it runs only sixty-four trains in and out of Boston, but several split up and make two or three soon after leaving the city; they average about 192 passengers to a train. Two of the eight roads charge the same rate for package tickets to stations twenty miles out, namely the Old Colony and the Fitchburg. The Boston & Maine charge fifty-three, and the Boston & Lowell sixty cents. The lowest rate for the distance on any road is forty cents.

☞ Mr. Potter Palmer, the Chicago millionaire, has determined not to finish the palatial residence begun by him a year ago on the lake shore, and has ordered the walls, now completed and ready for the roof, to be torn down. The cost of the building thus far has been about $100,000, but Mr. Palmer does not like its architectural appearance. It is probable that he will have built on the same foundations a finer house of an entirely different style.

☞ A Turin jeweler has made a tiny boat, formed of a single pearl, which shape it assumes in swell and concavity. Its sail is of beaten gold, studded with diamonds, and the binnacle light at its prow is a perfect ruby. An emerald serves as its rudder, and its stand is a slab of ivory. It weighs less than half an ounce; its price is $5,000.

☞ A new pleasure boat has been recently purchased for Gen. Tom Thumb, to be run on Assawampsett lake at Middleboro, in which town the famous little man has his Summer residence. The boat will probably be fitted as a steam propeller.

☞ The Hingham water company is making arrangements to supply the town of Hull with water. A 10-inch pipe will be laid to Hull village, and a stand pipe, of boiler iron, 40 feet high and 40 feet in diameter will be erected, to equalize the pressure.

☞ The eight telegraph cables between the United States and Europe are capitalized at $64,000,000. They cost about $2,500,000 each, or $20,000,000 for all. Their patrons are thus forced to pay interest on 44,000,000 of watered stock, which a tariff of twenty-five cents a word will not cover.

☞ An intemperate man at St. John, N. B., has spent nearly thirty years of his life in the common jail. For thirty-five years he has been in jail about ten months out of every year.

☞ Nebraska has an "arbor day" appointed by the governor on which every one of the citizens plants a tree by the wayside or on his land. It wouldn't be a bad idea for Massachusetts to follow suit.

☞ If all the liquor shops in London were placed side by side, they would line one side of a street seventy-five miles long.

bell of the person called is the only one which rings. The mechanism consists of an ordinary electro-magnet, between the ends of which the bell projects, from a firm steel string, a piece of soft iron. By a simple device the vibratory power of this spring is altered so as to be brought into unison with the pulsations of the electro current sent from the central office. When properly adjusted, the bell will respond only to an instrument producing the same number of pulsations per minute. Not only is much convenience gained for the subscriber, but the telephone companies are enabled to put more instruments upon a single line without annoyance, and almost without the knowledge of their customers.

The device is based upon the same principle as that used in the so-called "musical instruments" tried some time ago on Western Union lines, and which failed then because of the heavy battery currents. It has worked so well on the light telephonic batteries, however, that the Lowell syndicate has already ordered 5000 for immediate use.

Transplanting at Night.

A gentleman, anxious to ascertain the effect of transplanting at night, instead of by day, made the experiment with the following results: He transplanted ten cherry trees while in bloom, commencing at four o'clock in the afternoon. Those transplanted during the daylight shed their blossoms, producing little or no fruit; while those transplanted in the dark maintained their condition fully. He did the same with ten dwarf trees after the fruit was one-third grown. Those transplanted during the day shed their fruit, those during the night perfected their crop and showed no injury from having been removed.

STATE PAUPERS. The board of health, lunacy and charity, who have assumed temporary charge of the state almshouse at Tewksbury, have voted that "state paupers in the counties of Norfolk, Plymouth, Bristol, Barnstable and Dukes, when requiring to be sent to a state alms house, shall be sent by the towns in said counties to the almshouse department in the state workhouse at Bridgewater for support therein; the maintenance of such paupers at Bridgewater being now deemed expedient for special reasons." The "special reasons" may be assumed to have reference to the recent investigations of the Tewksbury institution.

TWO-CENT STAMP. The new two-cent stamp for letter postage after October 1st is to be exactly like the present three-cent stamp, except that over the vignette the words "United States Postage" will appear instead of "U. S. Postage," while the words "two cents" below will be in plain letters upon a straight line. In order to distinguish it completely from the present three-cent stamp, it will be of some other color than green. The new stamp is devised to take the place of the present one, in order that the stamp in most common use may have Washington's head upon it, as has always been the case. After October 1st no more of the threes and twos will be printed.

☞ Two women, each claiming to be the widow of the same man, have gone to law at Omaha to determine which is the mother of two girls aged fifteen and seventeen years. This proves that in the great and growing West life is too full of stirring incidents and changes to permit ordinary incidents to be long remembered with positive certainty even by those most nearly interested.

☞ Ohio has a law making the person who sells a toy pistol to a boy liable for all the damages resulting. For instance, if the boy shoots at a target and hits a cat and she rushes into a barn and frightens a woman who is milking a cow and she kicks over a kerosene lamp and sets the barn afire and that results in burning the whole town, the man who sold the pistol will be liable to a very considerable extent.

☞ The tobacco tax reduction went into effect on the 1st inst., and on the same date a strike occurred among the cigar-makers in all parts of the country. Their reasoning seems to be, that if the consumers do not get the benefit of the reduction, labor ought to get it; and hence the general strike for higher wages.

☞ One class of people who are responsible for keeping up the price of eggs is the photographers. It is said that nearly 2,000,000 eggs a year are used at three factories in this country in the manufacture of paper used by the picture makers.

☞ The District Commissioners of Washington have awarded to the Boston Standard School Company the contract for furnishing twenty-eight teachers' desks and 1300 pupils' desks for use in the public schools, at $4600. The bids range from this sum upward to $8000.

It is thought from present indications that Irish immigration to America will be unusually large this year.

A Boston firm recently shipped a lot of base balls to the students of Roberts College, at Constantinople.

There is in a graveyard in Pennsylvania a tombstone inscribed: "Methuselah Smith, aged one year."

An apple tree near Minneapolis blossomed three times during the past season, and yielded two big crops of fruit.

At a wood-sawing contest in Pennsylvania, the other day, two women won the prize, and each has since been overwhelmed with offers of marriage.

Japanese investigations in Corea fix the population of that kingdom at 7,294,367. The majority of females is about 200,000. The capital, with suburbs, contains 200,000 persons.

Wood choppers from Sweden are arriving at Philadelphia, having been hired to work in the forests of Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The Crow Indians of Montana number 3400, and are chiefly engaged in agriculture and stock raising.

Between 18,000 and 20,0000 vehicles is reported as the total product of the carriage makers of Amesbury, Mass., during the year 1882.

The electric lamps used in lighting New York city cost $255.50 a year each, and are equivalent in illuminating power to six and one-third gas lamps, the aggregate cost of which is only $110.83 a year.

Seventy-seven towns in this state have no debt.

The green three cent postage stamp which will disappear in a few months has been in use thirteen years.

A young man in Montpelier, Vt., wears his hair in long wavy ringlets, and affects the æsthetic. The young ladies in that town have presented him with a full set of curling tongs and crimping pins, and a large and choice assortments of cosmetics.

RETURN OF
Births to the Town Clerk,
BY PHYSICIANS AND MIDWIVES.

AN ACT to compel a more accurate Registration of Births.

BE IT ENACTED, ETC.:—

SECTION 1. It shall be the duty of every physician and midwife in the several cities and towns in this Commonwealth, excepting Boston, to report on or before the fifth day of each month to the clerk of each city and town a correct list of births of all children born therein during the month next preceding, at which such physician or midwife was present, stating therein the place, date of each birth, and parents' names.

SECTION 2. Town and city clerks shall give public notice that they are prepared to furnish the necessary blanks to all physicians and midwives applying therefor.

SECTION 3. Any physician or midwife neglecting to report such list for ten days after it is due, shall, for each offence, forfeit a sum not exceeding twenty dollars.

SECTION 4. This Act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved February 23, 1880.

I hereby give notice that I am prepared to furnish the blanks above mentioned.

GEORGE L. GILL,
Town Clerk of Quincy.

SEALER'S NOTICE.

The Subscriber, Sealer of Weights and Measures,
—FOR THE—
TOWN OF QUINCY.

FOR the present year, hereby gives notice to the inhabitants of said town, that he will be at the Selectmen's room on the four following MONDAYS:—May 7, 14, 21 and 28, from 9 to 12 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of Sealing such Beams, Weights and Measures as shall be brought to him for that purpose.

Also, that he may be found at his store No. 90 Hancock Street, any day after that time.

GEORGE SAVILLE, Sealer.

"Any person using any scales, weights, measures or milk cans after a sealer of weights and measures has demanded permission to test the same, and has been refused such permission, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars."

"If any person shall knowingly use any false weight, measure, milk can, scale, balance or beam, or shall alter any weight, measure, milk can, scale, balance or beam, after the same shall have been adjusted and sealed, so that the same thereby shall not conform to the public standard, and shall fraudently make use of the same, he shall forfeit for each offence the sum of fifty dollars, one-half to the use of the city or town, and one-half to the use of the complainant."

Assessors' Notice.

1625. 1640. 1792

To the Inhabitants and all other Persons liable to pay taxes in the Town of Quincy:

THE Assessors of the Town of Quincy hereby give notice to the inhabitants of said town, and all persons liable to pay taxes therein, that they will be at the office of the Selectmen, EVERY SATURDAY in May, from 2 to 4½ o'clock, P. M., and from May 26th until June 2d, every day from 8 to 10 o'clock A. M., to receive the valuation of estates; and all persons liable to be taxed in said town are hereby required to bring in at said office, a true and correct schedule of the Real and Personal Estates, for which they are liable to pay taxes.

Mortgaged Real Estate.

"Any mortgagor or mortgagee of real estate may bring in to the assessors of the town or city wherein such real estate lies," within the time specified in this notice, "a statement, under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such real estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagor. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a recorded mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement."—[Chap. 175 of the Acts of 1882.] When a statement in conformity with the law above quoted is brought in, the real estate therein returned will be assessed under Sections 14, 15 and 16, of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes. But in cases where the mortgagor of the real estate has agreed in writing to pay all taxes assessed thereon, NO STATEMENT OR RETURN is REQUIRED from either mortgagee or mortgagor, unless requested by the assessors in writing.

Returns of Property held for Literary, Benevolent, Charitable or Scientific Purposes.

[Chap. 217, Acts 1882.]

"All persons and corporations are required to bring in to the assessors, not later than the first day of July, 1883, true lists of all real and personal estate held by such persons and corporations respectively for literary, benevolent, charitable or scientific purposes on the first day of May, 1883, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures by such persons or corporations for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of May, 1883, such lists and statements to be in such detail as may be required by the Tax Commissioner." Blank forms for the above returns can be had of the assessors.

Persons holding estates in trust are requested to furnish the assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands, from some other causes, the executor or administrator is required to give notice of such change. In default of such notice, he will be held responsible for the tax assessed.

Any person bringing in a list of his taxable property will be assessed upon the valuation thereof, and any one neglecting to furnish the assessors with such list, within the time above specified, will at a legal meeting of the Board of Assessors, be doomed according to the laws of the Commonwealth.

All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing, and subscribed under oath before one of the assessors at their office, on or before the third day of June; and that the personal property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board of Assessors, notwithstanding a verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the assessors.

When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed upon such person for such property can be granted, unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per centum the amount which would have been assessed to that person on personal estate.

Poetry.

God Pity Us All.

God pity us all as we jostle each other;
  God pardon us all for the triumph we feel
When a fellow goes down 'neath his load on the heather,
  Pierced to the heart, words are keener than steel,
  And mightier far for woe or for weal.

Were it not well in this brief little journey,
  On over the isthmus down into the tide,
To give him a fish instead of a serpent,
  Ere folding the hands to be and abide
  Forever and aye in dust at his side?

Look at the roses saluting each other;
  Look at the herds all at peace o'er the plain;
Man and man only makes war on his brother,
  And laughs in his heart at his peril and pain,
  Shamed by the beasts that go down on the plain.

Is it worth while that we battle to humble
  Some poor fellow-soldier down into the dust?
God pity us all! Time eftsoons will tumble
  All of us together, like leaves in a gust,
  Humbled indeed, down into the dust.

Miscellany.

Not Suited.

Grave, sedate John Ryder married pretty Emma Thomas, after a courtship of only six weeks' duration. He met her at the seaside. She was gay, witty, and lively, and had many admirers, yet she chose to marry plain John Ryder, and settle with him in a perfect bijou of a house, which they greatly enjoyed furnishing and beautifying. When it was quite complete John could scarcely realize that it was his home, for he had been a bachelor for thirty years, and lived in boarding-houses and hotels without number. He was quite able to appreciate his charming little house, and enjoy it much longer than the novelty lasted. In the parlor he placed a large book-case, and, being a great reader, filled it with choice volumes which he had collected during his bachelor days. Emma gazed in pretty astonishment at the well-filled shelves, and turning with a pout to John—

"You will read so much, John, that you will never devote ten minutes of the evening to talking to me," she said.

"Don't be jealous of my books, dear," replied John, gaily, "for I shall enjoy reading them aloud to you. In a few years we shall have read every book in the case. How wise we will be! You can spend many an hour over these books, Emma, and not be lonely while I am away at the office."

"O, I don't care to read much," replied Emma, a cloud coming over her bright, youthful face.

"Not care to read, Emma!" exclaimed John, whose books had ever been his chief solace and delight. "But you must learn to like it for my sake. You are young and have much to learn."

For a time a cloud hung over these two young people, who had been only six weeks married, but Emma's naturally sweet disposition finally dispelled it.

John had pleased himself with imagining what nice times he and Emma would have, after they were settled, reading aloud in the evening. They could take turns, and both would be improved by what was read together. Full of this idea, he seated himself after tea one evening, and taking out from the book-case a volume of historical researches, bade Emma stop talking, and in his fine, musical voice began to read.

Emma sat by the table crocheting some fleecy work of intricate design, and for some time the reading was uninterrupted. Then—

"O, John, Mrs. Gerry was here to-day, and I must tell you what she had on; a lovely lavender silk, a good deal the shade of mine, and — O, she thinks she will give a party on Christmas eve."

"Well, well, let her give it," said John, rather impatiently, and resumed his reading, which ran smoothly for a quarter of an hour.

"John," said Emma, looking up brightly, and utterly oblivious of the book he held, "would you wear your wedding dress, or the rose colored silk?"

"Emma!" said John, rather sternly, "I do not believe you have thought of a single thing but that party since you last spoke."

"Well, John, I can't help thinking of it," said Emma, rather timidly.

"Do you know what I have been reading?"

"No, not exactly. Dear John, indeed I can't bear history in any way, shape or form. When I was at school the teachers always excused me from history lessons, because I hated them so."

"Very foolish in them, that's all I have to say," replied dignified John; "but still, Emma, we will put the book away, and get a novel."

"Not to-night, dear John. Indeed, I am awfully sleepy. Don't read any more to-night, and to-morrow I'll be good, and listen to every word."

With a sigh John closed the book and spent the next half hour in talking of the ball, which appeared to engross Emma's whole mind.

The next night Emma met him at the door on his return from his office, and after kissing him repeatedly, and helping him take off his overcoat and hat, led him into the dining-room, where a bright fire burned on the hearth, and a cosy table was set for two.

Emma was as merry as a bird, and gaily poured out John's tea and helped him to cream toast, which she assured him, with delighted pride, had been made by her own dimpled white hands.

"And, John, I've got such a nice receipt book, and I mean to make all the fancy dishes, and let Jane do the plain, horrid cooking."

John praised the toast, which set Emma's tongue off again:

"You thought me so flighty before you married me, John, and just see how I've sobered down. Guy Sturtevant was here to-day to call, and said I'd changed ever so much. I told him he must come up some evening and sing over our old songs. You know he and I sing so well together. You can do the bass, John, and Guy has such a delicious tenor."

"Did he say when he would come?" asked John, just the least shade of jealousy in his heart toward the handsome young man who had been a former lover of Emma's.

"No, but he said very soon," replied Emma.

As they entered the cheerful parlor, Emma threw herself on the sofa, and began to rattle on about Mrs. Gerry and the coming ball. But John drew from the library "Joseph II. and his Court," and seated himself by the drop-light. On seeing this a shade of disappointment came on Emma's joyous face, but she made no comment, and John began to read. For an hour he read without looking up, and then something very closely resembling a snore made him look at Emma, and to his surprise and disappointment he saw that she was sound asleep.

The book fell from John's hand, and he sat gazing into the fire lost in a reverie from which a gentle touch upon his shoulder aroused him.

"Did I go to sleep? But, O John, that Joseph somebody is just like history, and I told you—"

"Never mind, Emma, let it pass," said John, sadly, "I see I must not expect a companion in my wife."

Emma drew away her hand from the clasp in which he held it, and turned away.

For the first time they fell asleep without the usual "good-night," and the tender, loving caresses they were accustomed to give one to another.

John felt it his duty to improve Emma's mind, if possible, and so he steadily adhered to the practice of reading aloud every evening, whether Emma listened or not; and as for the poor young wife, she sat silently at her fancy work, and lost herself in some bright air castle.

To interrupt the dull evenings, Emma repeatedly invited Guy Sturtevant to come to the house, and the young man whose gay, pleasant manners made him everywhere a favorite, made it a practice to come to the house several times a week, never imagining that by so doing he roused the demons of jealousy and suspicion in John's breast.

One evening the usual book was produced, and John patiently waded through the pages, which were dull even to him. Emma's brow was clouded, for she had expected Guy Sturtevant and he had not come, and now she must endure for three hours this hateful reading.

Unable at last to endure it, and suffering her temper to sway her, Emma rose, and in an excited voice, said:

"John, you may put away your book or I will leave the room. I am sick of this trying to teach me as though I were a child at school. I hate to hear you read."

Astonishment kept John silent for a moment, then rising from his chair, and laying the book on the table, he said, in a stern voice:

"I will not tell you, Emma, just how much I am disappointed in you, for it would be useless. I expected you would be a companion to me, and that my tastes would be yours, but your whole mind is absorbed with dresses, parties and visiting. I hear you talk of nothing else."

"I have but to say that I believe in the adage 'marry in haste and repent at leisure.' We did not know each other's tastes or dispositions. You think of books and science, while I—"

"Think of Guy Sturtevant," interrupted her husband, in a bitter, sarcastic tone.

Unable to endure this speech, Emma's temper was fully roused. "Unsay that, John Ryder, or I'll never speak to you again," she cried, hotly. "I like him as a friend only, and you know it. He is too much of a gentleman to stoop to insult me as you, my wedded husband, have done."

"You would have done well to marry this paragon of virtues," sneered John, "and not burdened me with an uncongenial companion. He thinks only of the last figure in the German. You would have been fitly mated."

In a calmer moment John would never have spoken such words to his bride of three months, but jealousy and anger had lashed him beyond control.

At his last speech Emma's face had grown deadly pale, and, unable to control her emotions, she left the room, and John put on his hat and went to a hotel, where he spent the night. Morning found him still bitter and severe against his wife, but he went to the house. The servant opened the door, and he went to his own room. On his dressing-table lay a note, which he hastily read:

"I have gone to live with my Aunt Maria. I ask no help from you. I never wish to see you again. You have grossly insulted me. EMMA."

In three days John Ryder had resigned his situation in the bank where he had been cashier for seven years, and had left for California.

The Aunt Maria who had gladly taken Emma under her protection, was an old maid, who always predicted unhappiness when she heard of a marriage, and affected to feel no surprise when Emma came to her with the story of her wrongs. She gave her a home, and did not annoy her with questions and constant references to past unhappiness. When Emma heard of John's departure for California she fell senseless on the floor, and was ill for many weary weeks. Poor girl! she had imagined that her husband would seek a reconciliation. She longed, after a week's absence from him, for his tender caresses, his loving words, and she forgot the cruel things he had said to her. But he had gone to California, and all hope was over. He did not love her, and she was too proud to seek him. Thus her thoughts ran until her brain grew bewildered. When she had entirely recovered from her illness she used to go out walking every evening, and always went by the pretty little house where she had been happy for so short a time. It was rented now to an old couple who were "well suited" to each other.

"John and I were not suited," Emma often sighed. "We married in too much haste. I should have first studied his character, and adapted myself to his habits."

She blamed herself, and would allow no one to blame John.

One day she was looking over her aunt's writing-desk for a missing receipt, and her heart throbbed fast as she saw a note lying there in John's familiar writing. Hastily catching it up she read:

"DEAR AUNT MARIA.—I received your note and thank you for endeavoring to mend the breach between your niece and myself, but must assure you that all efforts will be useless, as we are not suited to each other. I appreciate your well-meant intentions, and deplore the necessity which has given rise to them. I hope your niece is well, and feel gratified that she has with you a comfortable home.
Yours, etc., JOHN RYDER."

Emma sank in the nearest chair, and covered her face with her hands.

"Poor Auntie!" she murmured. "She did wish, then, to make up the quarrel between John and me, although she never told me. She was afraid to show me this note, for fear of wounding my feelings. And, oh, to think! not one tender word in this for me! Not even asking to hear of me ever! Well, he no longer loves me. I shall never trouble him again."

And so Emma Ryder took up the cross she had to bear, and bore it without a murmur. But her former gaiety was gone. Dress and parties no longer interested her. She spent her time in study, and her aunt feared that she would ruin her health by such close application to her books, but Emma heeded not her warnings or advice. She had an object, and meant to gain it.

* * * * * *

John Ryder, in his California home, no longer found that zest in life which had spurred him on during his short married life with Emma. Life seemed to him a miserable thing, and he often sighed for the clinging, tender arms around his neck, which he had loved so well. He was at first very angry at the course Emma had taken, and felt as though he could never forgive her, but anger at last died away, and he began to reason with himself. Emma was not a literary woman. Well, could she help that? Ought he not to have taught her, and gradually led her to enjoy the books which pleased him? He might have cultivated her taste. He blamed himself for his hasty course, but he was far too proud to go to her and ask pardon, and beg to begin again. He expected a letter; just a line from Emma would have brought him in haste to her side. But he waited in vain. No letter ever came from the wife he had so fondly, nay, still loved.

About six weeks after his arrival at San Francisco, John became acquainted with a gentleman named William Terry, who invited him to his house, and introduced him to his pretty and charming young wife, and showed, with a father's pride, his two lovely children. He formed a warm attachment for John, and the latter, in a burst of confidence, told him, one evening when they were alone, his whole painful story. William Terry listened with interest to all he had to say, and then, placing his hand on John's shoulder, said gravely:

"You should go home at once, John. You are treating Emma very badly. Take a friend's advice, and do not stay here another day."

"She would never take me back," said John, with a sigh.

"I think she would. You have told me so much of her lovely, bright disposition, and I am sure she has loved you, yet loves you fondly."

"I will think it over," replied John.

"Your pride prevents you from going, John," resumed Mr. Terry. "I will tell you of something known to only a few, but which may help you to act wisely in this matter. I allude to my first and last quarrel with my dear wife. It occurred when we had been married but five weeks. We were housekeeping, and I went home unexpectedly one day, and found Abbie was not in the house. I asked the maid where she had gone, and she replied that she had gone away two hours before with a young man. This fired my jealousy, and I waited with impatience for her return. I grew more angry every minute, and when Abbie at last returned I was like a madman in my excitement. She returned alone, and I rushed up to her, and, in no gentle tone, told her she had no right to go promenading about with young men, and asked her how she dared to do it; and I demanded to know who he was. She put her hand on my arm, and in her usual quiet, even tone, said, 'William, I will not answer that question until you ask me in a far different manner,' and she left me and went up stairs to her own room. Maddened by her calm manner and cold tone, I rushed from the house, and, mounting my horse, rode rapidly away, I knew not whither. Dusk came on, but I did not turn back. I at last came to a miserable little wayside inn, where I dismounted and asked for a room.

"Once on the miserable bed provided for me, my better reason asserted itself, and I became calm. I thought it all over, and came to the conclusion that Abbie had done right in not replying to my question. As soon as morning came I mounted my horse, and did not slacken the rein until I reached my house. I found Abbie in the dim, cool parlor, traces of tears on her cheeks. I eagerly asked her pardon for all I had said and done. She kissed me, and forgave me, and then said. 'And, William, the young man was my brother Albert, who had come here to spend the day in sight-seeing.' "Four years have passed, and since that time we have never quarrelled."

* * * * * * *

It was a calm evening in May, and Emma Ryder sat by her bedroom window sewing. One could hardly recognize this pale, sad-faced woman for the gay and laughing girl of six months before. With a sigh she laid down her work, her thoughts busy with the bitter past.

"Will he ever come?" she murmured. "O, if I but dared to write him how weary I am of this estrangement. O, John, John!"

She bowed her face in her hands, and bitter tears fell through her white, thin fingers on the work she had put down.

"Did you call me, Emma?"

"John, John!"

Emma Ryder sprang up, and was clasped in her husband's arms.

Never again did a bitter quarrel disturb the happiness of this now contented pair. Emma was again mistress of the lovely little house, and John used often to say to her, proudly, "Dear, we are just suited to each other."

They were, indeed. They learned to bear with each other's faults, and their first quarrel had been a lesson for life.

His Registered Letter.

A German in New York, getting a notice of a registered letter awaiting him at the post office, repaired to that place, and on searching for the proper place to apply, he saw in a side passage a line of citizens outside a closed door, each with a slip of paper similar to his, and he fell in at the foot. At intervals of ten minutes the door opened and a man called "Next!" The man at the head of the line entered, and the door closed. In an hour and a half the German's turn arrived, and, entering, he found himself alone with a man of professional aspect, who, merely glancing toward the slip of paper said:

"Take off your coat."

"Dake off mine goat? Vot you dink I come for? To get shafed? I vant—"

"All right—take off your coat, or I can't examine you."

"Den I vos got to be oxamined? So? Dot's all right, I s'bose," and off came the coat.

"Well, off waistcoat and shirt."

"Look here, mine vriend, you tink I vas a tief. You vant to zearch me. Vell, dot's all right. I peen an honest man, by cracious, and you don'd vind no stolen property my clothes insite. I was never zearch pefore already—"

"I don't want to search you; I want to examine you. Don't you understand?"

"No, I ton'd understanb—but dot's all right—dere's my shirt off, und if I a cold catch, dot vill your fault peen."

The professional man placed his hand on the visitor's shoulder-blade, applied an ear to his chest, tapped him on the breast-bone, and punched him in the small of the back, inquiring if it hurt.

"Hurt? No, dot ton'd hurt; but maybe if dose foolishness ton'd stop somepody ellus gits breddy soon hurt."

"Does that hurt?" was the next question, accompanied by a gentle thrust among the ribs.

"No, dot ton'd hurt, but py cracious if—"

"Oh? be quiet; I'm in a hurry, and have got a dozen more to attend to. Now can you read this card when I hold it out so?"

"No."

"Can you read it now?" bringing it a few inches nearer.

"No; but you shoost pring me out my spedagles py my goat bocket, und I read him."

"Oh! that won't do; your sight is defective, I'm sorry to say, and you're rejected. Put on your clothes, quick, please."

"Dot's all right. So I vos rechected, eh? Vell, dot vos nezezzary, I subbose; but it's very vunny, shoost the same. Und now I've been rechected und oxamined, und all doze dings vot you mit me, maype you ton'd some objections got to gif me dot rechistered letter?"

"Dot rechistered letter vot vos sboken about on dis biece of baber."

"The dickens! Who sent you to me with that? I thought you had come to be examined. Didn't you apply to be a letter carrier?"

"A letter garrier. No, I haf got pusiness got py mine own self; but, py cracious, I vants my rechistered letter from Sharmany vat mine bruder sents me."

"Here?" said the doctor to a messenger in the lobby, "show this man to the registered letter clerk;" and the bewildered foreigner was conducted to the proper window.

It happened to be the day for examination by the medical officer of candidates for letter-carriers.

Old Tin Cans Utilized.

That heretofore useless article, old tin cans, has become quite a factor in trunk making. Newark, N. J., is famous for its trunk making industry, and recently some of its manufacturers discovered that old tin cans may be advantageously used, and they are now gathered and sold to trunk makers to bind the edges and bottoms of trunks, and some times to cover up defects of woodwork. The process of heating the cans also has its profitable results, for the solder, running into a receptacle, is sold for 12 cents a pound, it alone paying, it is claimed, all that is originally paid for the cans.

Lower Prices.

Our citizens will be pleased to learn that the Old Colony Railroad Company have reduced their fares. The new arrangement went into operation on Tuesday last. A package ticket good for ten rides between Boston and Quincy is now $1.40; former price $1.56. Between Boston and Neponset now 88 cents; Boston and Atlantic $1.00; Boston and Wollaston $1.15; Boston and Quincy Adams $1.60; Boston and Braintree $1.90.

A ticket for one trip between Quincy and Boston remains the same as formerly—20 cents; from Quincy to Wollaston 5 cents; from Quincy to Quincy Adams 5 cents.

The prices between Quincy and the following stations have been reduced from two to ten cents. The prices now asked for single tickets purchased at the Quincy station are as follows:—To Crescent Avenue 13 cents; Savin Hill 12 cents; Neponset 8 cents; Atlantic 6 cents; Braintree 5 cents; South Weymouth 18 cents; North Abington 25c.; Abington 30c.; Holbrook 15c.; Brockton 30c.; Randolph 15c.; Weymouth 10 cents; East Weymouth 15c.; Hingham 20c.; Old Colony House 20c.; Cohasset 35 cents. Trip ticket (10) for Boston from West Quincy is $1.40; from East Milton $1.15.

Fire Last Sunday.

Last Sunday afternoon a large quantity of corded wood belonging to Messrs. Joel F. Sheppard and H. H. Faxon was burned. The fire was set in the woods near South street; the alarm was sounded promptly and the department answered with all possible dispatch; but owing to a fierce breeze and scarcity of water it swept rapidly through to Quincy avenue, destroying from 110 to 125 cords of pine wood, belonging to Mr. Joel F. Sheppard, and a few cords owned by H. H. Faxon, Esq. The wood owned by Mr. Sheppard was valued at $500. Mr. Faxon's loss is estimated at $10. No insurance.

The wind carried the flames very near to the residence of John L. Eldridge, Esq., and it was thought at the time that they would devour it. The furniture was removed, the carpets wet and placed upon the roof, and by considerable exertions the house was saved. Most of the woodland burned over belonged to Mrs. Thomas Webb.

There are those who comment quite severely on the actions of our Engineers but we think if they held a like position they would find that hard work and unkind comments came oftener than words of praise.

Surprise Party.

Mrs. Sarah Underwood was very pleasantly surprised at her residence on Washington street, last Wednesday evening. It being her seventy-fourth birthday, her family thought they would give her a little surprise. They assembled about eight o'clock. She met them at the door, and gave them a very cordial invitation to walk in, which they accepted.

They presented her with some beautiful flowers and a large box, which, on being opened, was found to contain an elegant china set. This completely astonished her; but she soon recovered, and thanked her friends for their generous gift.

The time was then spent in social conversation until supper was announced, which everyone did ample justice to. The remainder of the evening was spent in singing and playing. The party separated as the clock was striking twelve, each one hoping that Mrs. Underwood would enjoy a great many more birthdays.

Memorial Day.

The anniversary of decorating the graves of those who fell in the late rebellion, occurs one week from Wednesday next. From the copy of the General Order to be published in our next issue we glean the following, relating to the ceremonies of the day by Paul Revere Post of this town.

At 7.30 A. M. the comrades are to assemble at their headquarters, when a detail will proceed to decorate the graves in the Hancock street and Episcopal cemeteries, while another detail, accompanied by the chaplain of the day, will visit the National Sailors' Home, where appropriate services will be held, and the graves in the cemetery at that place decorated.

W. B. Munroe, with one comrade, will visit Mount Auburn and deposit a wreath on the grave of Paul J. Revere. At 9 o'clock the Post will proceed in carriages to West Quincy and decorate the graves in the cemeteries in that part of the town.

The comrades of Post 121, of Hyde Park, have accepted an invitation to visit Paul Revere Post on this occasion. The comrades of Post 88 will assemble at 1.15 in front of their headquarters and take up a line of march preceded by the Holbrook Band, to the corner of Hancock and Adams streets where they will receive their visitors and escort them to their headquarters.

At 2.30 they will again form in line, and accompanied by their guests from Hyde Park and others, will proceed to Mount Wollaston Cemetery where the monument will be decorated and appropriate ceremonies will be held. All the graves of their fallen comrades located in this cemetery are to be decorated at the same moment at the bugle's call. The ceremonies at this cemetery will be very impressive.

At 7.30 the Post will again assemble at their headquarters and preceded by the Holbrook Band take up their line of march for the Town Hall where the Rev. Samuel Kelley will deliver an oration.

FLOWER MISSION. The deserving and beautiful charity connected with the "Boston Flower and Fruit Mission" will commence its work on Wednesday of next week. It is hoped that the call will be responded to by all who have flowers in garden or conservatory, and that children will be encouraged in gathering and sending the violets and early wild flowers that are now abundant in the fields. Teachers are earnestly requested to interest themselves with their pupils in this pleasant work.

☞ Mr. Bryant N. Furnald, our veteran driver, carried a party of ladies to his residence, in Scituate, on Thursday, where they had a jolly good time. The load was composed mostly of sisters and nieces of the "knight of the whip."

Brief Locals.

☞ The days are fourteen and one-half hours long.

☞ Applications for dog licenses are still coming in.

☞ Mr. Joseph S. Whall's building has been painted the present week.

☞ Carpenters, painters and masons are quite busy this spring.

☞ A very large circle around the sun attracted much attention Monday noon.

☞ A great many of the school children have been sick with the chicken-pox.

☞ Mr. John Cavanagh has moved the stable belonging to Mr. G. F. Wilson, this week.

☞ The Misses Buckley invite the attention of readers to their advertisement of a new laundry.

☞ Mr. Elwood Litchfield, with brush and paint, has greatly beautified the PATRIOT office building.

☞ The teachers' convention, held at Franklin last Friday, was well attended by Quincy teachers.

☞ There threatens to be a scarcity of flowers on Memorial Day, owing to the backwardness of the season.

☞ The First Church Sunday School will celebrate its Floral Festival the second Sunday in June, at 3 P. M.

☞ There will be a Union Memorial Service in the First Church the Sunday evening previous to Memorial Day.

☞ Is it not about time the Selectmen offered a reward? Fires are getting to be too common in Quincy.

☞ Joseph W. Lombard will sell on Monday next a large wooden building belonging to Messrs. McKenzie & Paterson.

☞ Charles appeared out in a straw hat the other day, and said he was endeavoring to hasten the advent of summer. Happy man.

☞ Mr. George J. Jones is having the old Tiger engine building neatly renovated and intends letting it for business purposes.

☞ We would call attention to the special sale of paper hangings for thirty days at Thomas Strahan's, corner of Washington and Franklin Sts., Boston.

☞ Several very interesting communications will be found on the next page; among them is a letter from a Quincy boy who resides in Kansas City.

☞ Mr. Joseph W. Lombard sold on Monday last, some very valuable property in Marshfield belonging to the estate of the late Albert Tirrell of Weymouth.

☞ Mr. John Cavanagh moved a barn yesterday for Henry H. Faxon, Esq., from the estate of the late George Nightingale on Temple street to Coddington street.

☞ In the Court of Insolvency held at Dedham on Wednesday, the adjourned third hearing in the case of Thomas Drake, Jr., was given, and a discharge granted.

☞ Contributions for the "Boston Flower and Fruit Mission" may be left on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday next, at the house of Mrs. George Saville, Saville avenue.

☞ A writer from Atlantic complains bitterly of the bone factory. A petition with more than two hundred names of citizens, presented to the Selectmen, will be published next week.

☞ A trained bear accompanied by a man and woman were in town the present week. Thursday morning they exhibited in the square and the bear showed his agility by climbing one of the telegraph poles.

☞ The Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of the Unitarian Church, will begin next Sunday a series of sermons on "Modern Isms." They will be delivered every other Sunday, and the first will be upon "Agnosticism." The public are invited.

☞ The beautiful brick mansion, built expressly for the late William Dehon, Esq., near the new park which Quincy intends some day to lay out, is to be sold at public auction on Saturday next, by our wide-awake auctioneer, Joseph W. Lombard, Esq.

☞ There are quite a number of new houses being built in the West part of the town. Anyone who has not visited Copeland street lately would hardly know it, as the trees have been cut down and the swamps filled in with gravel, and very pretty cottages built.

☞ The virtues residing in our chief magistrate affect even the Quincy school children. A teacher told the class of little one, to write a composition and select the subject. One brought in: "Benjamin Butler is governor of the state. He is a Democrat, and cross-eyed."

☞ At the recent funeral of Mr. Thomas Craig, his wife and twelve children were present. Such an unusual case deserves mention. Mr. Craig was a Scotchman, but had resided in Quincy for many years, and through industry and perseverence had raised to usefulness a large family.

☞ The officers and teachers of the Quincy Universalist Sunday School presented to their retiring Superintendent last Sabbath four very choice books. It was wholly a surprise and will always be gratefully remembered, as a token of kindness and good will, from those he has worked with in the past two years.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL. The Universalist Ladies' Association will hold a strawberry festival in the vestry of the church on Saturday and evening of next week. For the pleasure of the children a basket party will be held in the afternoon with supper at 4.30. A very pleasing entertainment will be given in the evening. For particulars see advertisement.

☞ A national prophetic and holiness convention of special interest is to be held by able and devoted ministers of the various Christian denominations, at Lake Walden, Concord, Mass., on the Fitchburg Railroad, eighteen miles from Boston, commencing Saturday, June 9th, and closing the 18th. Full particulars sent on receipt of postal card, addressed to Boston P. O. box 5140.

☞ The Legislature of Texas has enacted a law forbidding the shipping of live stock out of that State unless duly inspected, to prevent the stealing of horses and cattle, which is said to have been very common of late.

FIRE.

On Sunday at 12.45 P. M., an alarm was struck from Box 73, for a fire in the pine woods owned by Mrs. Thomas Webb, at the Neck. The standing timber was purchased some time ago by Mr. Joel Sheppard, and all but a small portion of the trees have been felled the past winter, and though some of the wood was taken away while good sledding lasted, most of it remained piled up on the land. The underbrush was of course very thick and dry, and a fire once started there, would have to be well and early fought, to prevent a great deal of damage being done.

The steamer came at the usual rate down Quincy avenue and Howard street to Box 73, at the corner of Winter street, where it was met by Engineer Ditson, who had arrived a little in advance, and immediately ordered the steamer back, for it was only a fire in the woods; as if it was costing a hundred dollars a minute while it remained out of the house. Here a recall was at once struck, and Mr. Newcomb, the holder of the key, received a reprimand from Engineer Ditson for allowing any one to take the key to strike an alarm for burning brush; all this, too, before the fire had been visited.

The Vulture, well manned, was soon on the spot, and here a delay occurred, by Engineer Hayden not ordering the engine to play for at least fifteen minutes, when it was only too evident that matters were getting serious, and that Mr. Sheppard's piles of wood were rapidly making excellent bon fires, so the Vulture was allowed to begin operations by throwing water from the swamp. The wind now began to blow stronger, and the fire spread rapidly, and went up over the hill at a fearful rate, until it struck the standing trees, just back of Mr. J. L. Eldridge's place, and it seemed as if nothing could save the house and barn.

The furniture on the lower floor was taken from the house, and at this late hour a second alarm was struck.

The Vulture was now brought round in the face of the fire, to draft water from an old well; but the smoke and flames burst upon it and drove the men from the spot, but they rallied just in time to save the tub. It now took a position near the house, and threw water from the cistern. The steamer arrived and drafted from the well at "Four Corners." The chemical from Wollaston also aided, and by the united efforts of all these the mastery was gained.

THIS AND THAT.

On Sunday evening the Washington Street Congregational Sunday School gave a concert. The exercises were pleasing and closed with some interesting remarks by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Harris. Notice was given that one Sunday in June would be observed as "Children's Day," both in the morning service and by a concert in the evening.

The Vulture Engine Company will hold a meeting on Monday evening.

The Fourth of July Committee will meet next Wednesday evening, at the residence of Mr. H. M. Federhen.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Sarah Kingman has returned home for the summer. We understand that during her absence her house has been somewhat defaced by boys, who have broken windows and otherwise injured the appearance of her neat little cottage. This would prove to be expensive fun for those lads, should they be found out.

Miss Anna Starbuck spent two or three days last week visiting Rev. Geo. W. Coon, at Swampscott, and found him very pleasantly situated as pastor over the Methodist Church at that place.

Lemuel Baxter, Esq., has gone to New York for a few days.

On Friday night a surprise party was tendered Lemuel Tinkham.

Mr. H. B. Richardson has rented the house lately occupied by Mrs. John Charter, on Washington street. F.

Boston's Two Fairs.

The arrangements for the Foreign Exhibition go on apace. Reports are coming in from all the commissioners and agents, and also many applications for space directly from foreign manufacturers and others who purpose exhibiting. The building of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association passes into the hands of the Foreign Exhibition Association June 1, and the work of preparing it for the exhibition will begin at once.

While the managers of the Foreign Exhibition are so industriously engaged, the officers of the New England Institute are making much progress with their exposition. Taking the two exhibitions together, Boston will have this fall a world's fair; and these expositions, one showing the arts and industries of foreign lands, and the other the vast resources of America, will attract to Boston many thousands of visitors.

The managers of the New England Institute are hard at work, and their successful exhibition of last year is likely to be eclipsed by that to be held this Fall. The exhibit of the Southern States is to be very complete and interesting, and a new feature, the Women's Department, will attract much attention. The manufacturers of New England are showing great interest in the fair, and promise to make the exhibition a representative one of New England's many industries. When the magnificent building of the institute was erected, it was feared by some that it was too remote from the business centre of the city, but the wise foresight of the founders is now seen, for so rapidly are buildings going up on the Back Bay, and so easy is the communication by horse cars, that what then seemed far out of the way now seems near by, because of its accessibility.

MILK. Boston consumes 35,646 gallons of milk. The yearly value of which is estimated at $3,500,000 and employs 1500 persons exclusive of producers.

A GOLD BOOM. There are rumors of a gold boom in Milford, the mineral rights on the farms of James Mowry and the Millett Bros. having been purchased by a gentleman identified with mining interests in North Carolina.

☞ The narrowest house in New York is only five feet wide. It is built upon a strip of land left by a street widening. The owner of this and the adjoining lot could not agree upon a sale, and the result was the erection of a house five feet wide, 100 feet deep and four stories high. It is divided into two tenements, each fifty feet long, and the rent asked for one is $500.

West Quincy Items.

An ancient racoon was brought down by the boys, in the woods near here, a few days ago.

The Quincy Band have just purchased a new thirty-six-inch drum; it is one of the finest manufactured. The twenty-eight new uniforms have arrived. They consist of white broadcloth coats, artistically trimmed with blue cloth and gold braid; belts, regulation caps and light blue pants. The band will present a fine appearance on Memorial Day, when the uniforms will be used for the first time.

Mr. John A. Jordon has moved to Melrose.

Mr. John Woddick is now occupying his fine cottage, on Copeland street.

The course of physiological lectures by Dr. Miller was well attended, and greatly appreciated by the people. We trust another full course may be given here next season.

Baked beans, without pork, are the order at present.

A new Estey "Harmonic Organ" has been purchased for the audience room of the M. E. Church. The new chorus of over twenty voices render fine music for church service, and are improving rapidly.

Mrs. H. S. Luce has arrived home after an absence of several weeks with friends in Rhode Island.

Owing to no license in Quincy this year, the druggist is compelled positively to refuse selling to any person, either with or without prescription.

We hear that Mr. H. F. Doble is soon to erect an elegant residence near his father's.

Mr. M. Monohan has moved his cottage to Cemetery street, and will erect a fine new house in its place on Copeland street. A.

Braintree Chips.

A sad and fatal accident occurred on Saturday afternoon of last week, the youngest son of Mr. W. W. Saunders, gate keeper at the south depot, a child nearly three years old, strayed from his home soon after noon and it is supposed climbed upon one of the cars of a coal train which was standing at the depot. The train was soon in motion and about half way to the north depot the child was seen to fall from the car, some part of the train passing over him.

Those who saw the fall found the poor little fellow alive but both legs crushed fearfully. The child could not give his name but called piteously for papa and mamma. Telegrams were sent in all directions, and Mr. Saunders hearing of the accident, hastened to the spot fearing that it might be his little one and found his fears were realized. The child had been dead about five minutes when he arrived. The afflicted parents have the sympathy of all who know of the said affair.

Our road commissioners are spreading the fruits of the stone crusher on Washington street at the north part of the town. They are also repairing the main drain at the south part, and making many needed improvements in other places.

South Braintree is happy, the big shop near the depot is now being put in order for business, workmen are getting ready to set a new boiler and very soon a Boston firm will occupy a part of the building with the expectation of using the whole in the near future. Their business will be the manufacture of machinery; no mistake about it this time.

Obituary.

Mr. Alpheus Gleason, whose death occurred in South Boston last week, at the age of 63 years, was a descendant of a well known Quincy family, his mother was a daughter of the late Seth Spear of Hough's Neck memories.

Mr. Gleason's early life was spent in Quincy, several years of which were with his uncle, Alpheus Spear, at Mt. Wollaston farm. He afterwards served an apprenticeship at the carpentering business at Neponset. It is well known that boys of fifty years ago had but few advantages compared with most of those of the present day; and those who have had experience know that a boy on a farm in those days had but little spare time.

Soon after his term of apprenticeship he went to South Boston where his parents resided. In 1849, thirty-four years ago, he found employment at the Old Colony Rail Road, and in a few years secured a position as master car-builder for that corporation, which he held until his death. Although having but few advantages in early life, compared with many, he by industry and perseverance secured a position honorable to himself and useful to others. He had made arrangements whereby his remains should find their final resting place near the scenes of his early life, and on Wednesday of last week was interred in the family lot in the Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

☞ The Old Colony Railroad continues the most persistently firm stock in the market, advancing from 139 to 140 1-2. But little over a month ago this stock was selling at 131 1-2. The condition and prospects of this road never stood so well as they do to-day.

☞ A new paper to be issued weekly, entitled "The Nantasket Visitor," will no doubt meet with instant favor by the residents of Nantasket this summer. This new enterprise will be managed by Mr. F. W. Walsh.

☞ Mr. William Beach Lawrence purchased Ochre Point Farm, Newport, for $12,000, about thirty years ago. Since his death, two years ago, his heirs have sold portions of the property that have alone netted $800,000.

☞ The Old Colony Railroad has recently added to its rolling stock two new cars numbered 136 and 137. They are about sixty feet long and were built at the company's shops at South Boston; they are finished in artistic style with mahogany, and are to be used on the Fall River route.

☞ San Francisco is soon to have a new four page Chinese newspaper—Kin Wing, editor. It will be called the "Wah-May," and at first will be issued weekly. Two pages will be in Chinese and two in English.

☞ Mrs. Myra Clark Gaines who has long been prominently before the public as a claimant for a large tract of land in New Orleans, has obtained a final decree in her suit against the city for nearly $2,000,000.

Letter from New York.

For the Patriot.

NEW YORK, May 16, 1883.

A feature of mission work in this city is the Chinese Sunday-school, several of which have been started by various churches. One peculiarity is the necessity of having a separate teacher for each scholar, as the minds of no two Celestials can comprehend the same thought at the same point. The pupils in these schools appear docile, polite and teachable, and the Rev. Mr. Virgin, pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims, Harlem, with which is connected a Chinese Sunday-school of forty members, speaks of them in the highest terms of praise.

The members of the University Crew of Columbia College are confident of winning in the annual race with Harvard, which takes place at New London on the 20th proximo. They have practised every afternoon, but one, since April 14, and before that, in the gymnasium, since about the middle of January, and are in fine condition.

A fifteen-story apartment house is the last new project, plans for which have been filed at the Bureau of Buildings. Its location will be at the corner of Seventh avenue and Fifty-seventh street, and it is to rise to the height of 180 feet, or thirty feet higher than any building now on the island. Its estimated cost is $650,000.

One of New York's distinguished visitors this week has been S. Yanagihara, ex-minister to Russia, from Japan, who has been recently recalled by his government for service in home affairs. He is now on his way from Russia to his native country, and intends visiting Washington, Niagara and Chicago, after which he will sail for Japan from San Francisco.

The production of the Passion Play is at last abandoned. Salmi Morse has again applied for a theatrical license, which, however, he only obtains upon promising not to use it for the Passion Play. Mayor Edson has declared his intention never to issue a license for this purpose.

The annual meeting of the Silk Association of America was held on Tuesday last. About one hundred and twenty gentlemen were present at the dinner in the evening at Delmonico's, toasts were responded to by Messrs. General Woodford, Collector Robertson, Mr. John Hopper, and others, the principal toast of the evening being "The Silk Association of America," to which Hon. William Walter Phelps replied in a short, but humorous, speech.

It is expected that before long the electric light will be used on the ferry boats of the harbor. The necessity for this arises from the dangerous character of the gas tanks now in use, and which the United States Steamboat Inspectors have lately ordered to be removed from the holds of these vessels. AN ELEGANT HOME

In Quincy, Mass.,

AT AUCTION.

WILL BE SOLD ON

Saturday, May 26th, 1883,

At 4 o'clock P. M., on the premises, the

BEAUTIFUL BRICK MANSION,

Formerly a part of the Estate of

The Late Wm. Dehon,

SITUATED on Wollaston Park Avenue; Comprising about one Acre of Land, in a high state of cultivation; together with a French Roof Brick Mansion House, containing 14 Rooms, conveniently arranged, heated by furnace; marble Mantle and Fire Places; Cooking Range, set in brick; Water Tanks and Boiler; Bath Room; Laundry, with soap-stone Tanks, &c.

The house was built expressly for the late William Dehon, and is first-class in every particular.

The estate is one of charming attractions, while the surrounding scenery gives a picturesque panorama of natural loveliness.

In the neighborhood is the beautiful estate of the late Josiah Quincy, and adjoining is the land which the town has contemplated for its PARK. It is in the vicinity of churches and schools, and within five minutes' walk of the Wollaston Station, where trains pass half-hourly to and from the city.

A gentleman looking for a good, comfortable home, where his family can have pure air and good water, will find this one of the few to select from.

Be on hand sharp, as it will be sold to the highest bidder without reserve.

Terms at sale.

Any information in regard to the above property will be given by the Auctioneer, by calling at his office, in Quincy.

The Auctioneer is prepared to sell FURNITURE on installments, from $1 to $1,000. Terms easy.

Apply to JOSEPH W. LOMBARD.

There will be a large sale at the Quincy Auction Room this evening, consisting of Crockery, Furniture, Mattresses, Bedsteads, and Stoves.

Two Rooms to Let, for Office or Sleeping Rooms, in the centre of the town.

Enquire of J. W. LOMBARD.

Number of Children.

Ensign S. Fellows, Esq., who was appointed by the school committee to collect the number of children in Quincy, between the ages of five and fifteen on the first day of May, 1883, has completed his labors and finds the total number to be 2446; an increase of 132 over 1882. The following table shows the number in each district from 1879 to 1883 inclusive:

Walks and Talks about Town.

It may be encouraging to some of us old men from forty to sixty years of age, to know what has been done by one of our citizens, a young man of eighty-one years.

In a recent walk about town the writer made the acquaintance of the Rev. Mr. ——. He is so modest a man that his name is withheld, but many people will recognize him from this description. He has for years kept a journal of work done and the figures are exact.

To show the young what industry and system will enable one to do, is appended a list of work done by this good citizen from April 1, 1882 to April 1, 1883. In travels he does not count trips of less than two miles; and in reading he omits mention of periodicals, the dailies, weeklies, and monthly magazines. The writer thinks the list interesting and trusts the perusal of it may give a useful hint to many:

112 Sermons preached.
86 Social meetings attended.
34 Business meetings attended.
179 Charitable meetings attended.
62 Sunday school meetings.
49 Funerals presided over.
4 Sacraments.
17 Marriage services.
10 Children baptized.
108 Sermons and lectures heard.
847 Pastoral visits made.
530 Families prayed with.
364 Visits to the sick.
1039 Chapters in the Bible read.
3118 Octavo pages read.
7276 Pages of tracts distributed.
4173 Miles travelled for work.
4148 Cards and little papers [for children given out.

Temperate in all things but in the use of his own strength, this good steward in the Lord's vineyard brings an enthusiasm to bear upon the duties and labors of to-day that puts to shame the luke warm interest manifested in life, by many younger men. Lately he attended a concert of war songs in the city, and his eyes filled with tears as he spoke of the effect that the tattered battle flags and soul stirring war songs had upon him. Returning in the last train, and having some chores to do, he said he "went late to bed, but slept till half past six in the morning to get rested." He is now planting his own little garden, subscribing for an encyclopedia, and asked my advice about the cultivation of a new kind of rose.

The Quincy Bone Factory.

The people of the northern part of the town are perfectly indignant that the "Dole Fertilizing Company" is still permitted within its limits, notwithstanding the unanimous vote of the town at its adjourned town meeting imperatively ordering the Board of Health to prevent "Manufacturing fertilizers within the limits of the town of Quincy." They have waited patiently nearly two months for the action of the town to be carried out. But as they understand that the company intends to stay, and has distinctly stated to the Board of Health that it did not care at all for the action of the town, and as no force has been used to eject them from their premises, the people of North Quincy feel that the whole town should unite against this contempt for their wishes and authority and use what measures are now necessary to prevent this vicinity from being further poisoned by this nuisance which has been smelled both in Neponset and in Atlantic; which has proved such a nuisance in South Boston that the men at the "Sugar Refinery," which is near the Dole Works, were made sick by its poisonous odors and were obliged to leave their work, and sued the Company for damages; and which, if it cannot regulate its manufacturing to suit the noses of the people of South Boston, will not find less difficulty in adapting itself to the olfactories of the people of North Quincy.

It is not necessary, to further prove it a nuisance when it is as plain as the nose on one's face that a cemetery above ground and swill-yard combined, which constitutes the condition of the premises when in working order, challenges the whole catalogue of nuisances.

The people of North Quincy were early alive to the fear of this nuisance, and very soon after the Company purchased the land, sent in a petition to the Selectmen to restrain the Company from carrying on their occupation in Quincy. Afterward another petition from North Quincy was sent in. Then, a petition against the establishment of the works was forwarded to the Selectmen by the people of Neponset. And this week a petition of more than two hundred names of property owners and residents of North Quincy in the immediate vicinity of the works has been presented to the Selectmen. The people of North Quincy feel that they have a [illegible] their health exert itself to immediately relieve them from anxiety in respect to both. Already, several families have expressed their intention to sell their property and remove from the town unless they are so protected, and tenants are asking for reduction in rents.

There is no healthier portion of Quincy than North Quincy. It has a gravelly soil and has always been a summer resort. The place of the Dole Company's Works has been known for many years as "Billings' Rocks" and is one of the oldest land-marks. It is the point to which President Adams projected a bridge to connect with Boston by way of Commercial Point. But the appropriation asked for was so large that the Legislature did not grant it and the present Neponset Bridge was built instead, as less expensive though a more circuitous route to Quincy. It is a lovely situation with picturesque rocks even to the shore, close to which is the channel of the Neponset, and with knolls and up-land covered with savins and verdure and presenting a marked appearance from whatever point it is viewed. It is to be hoped that the property will fall into the hands of some persons who will appreciate its beauty and natural advantages and who will desire to retain it in its natural condition, as the people who are advocating the preservation of the the "Middlesex Fells" plead for that locality.

It is also to be hoped that all of the men and women of Quincy who value the sanitary conditions of the surroundings of their own homes, especially those who are first and foremost in desiring a Park for the benefit of the people of Quincy, will interest themselves in this serious grievance and will use their influence in urging the Selectmen to proceed against the nuisance.

Seining Smelts.

QUINCY, MAY 10, 1883.

DEAR EDITOR:—I noticed in a recent issue of your paper an article on seining smelts. It gave a brief account of how and when two persons of this town were caught violating the law. I gathered from the article, as others probably did, that one of the parties, Mr. S. T. Allen, had in times past done all in his power to bring any violator before the Judge and Jury. Now I find, and upon very good authority, that such is not the case, and that instead of Mr. Allen pushing to the front and convicting when and where he could, he simply went when he was in duty bound to; and I also find that although two or three parties were brought into court by him, none ever came in with more than three or four fish. Simple enough to make a case and an example, and in one case when the party had not money enough to pay the fine, he was loaned the remainder by Mr. A. There is not a case on record where our townsman ever brought a party into court with a case, which, if found guilty, would bring a fine of about forty-five hundred dollars to the guilty party.

I think, dear Editor, that the facts of this thing have been misrepresented to you in the same way that they have been to me. I hope that you may find room for a part, if not the whole of this, in your next issue, for I believe not in painting a person blacker than he really is, just for the reason that he is in trouble. Visit to Nebraska.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.

DEAR PATRIOT:

I will endeavor to give you a short account of a trip into the State of Nebraska which I recently enjoyed. I left Kansas City on the morning train over the Great Burlington route, now the most popular route west, and after a swift ride of 200 miles, passing the cities of Leavenworth, Atchison, and Kansas, we came to the broad plains of Nebraska. Here the long stretch of country is under a high state of cultivation. It is now planting time. The steam ploughs and farming tools are kept busy. Corn and grain is up and the prospects are grand for a good harvest. At Falls City, we stopped for dinner. The dining halls of this line are neat and pleasant in all their appointments and are not surpassed by other lines in setting a good table. On arriving at Lincoln, late in the afternoon, I was met by a friend formerly from Quincy.

Lincoln, the capital of Nebraska, is situated some seventy miles west of Omaha, on the Burlington and Missouri River R. R. The country here is a rolling prairie, numerous streams, tributaries of the Missouri and Platte rivers flow through this section. The largest is Salt Creek, which passes Lincoln on its way to the Platte. It takes its name from the briny waters which it takes from numerous springs in the Salt Basin, in the near neighborhood; notwithstanding this there is no limit to good fresh water. It is said that the salt springs arise from a strata at a great depth containing chloride of sodium. In the square opposite the Post Office, in Lincoln, is an artesian well, which is curious as penetrating strata, that at various depths, gives mineral waters of different quality and kind. There are two institutions in which the water is used for bathing and medical purposes, so that here nearly 2000 miles from the ocean one can enjoy a swimming bath of "sea" water if he chooses.

But it lacks the sandy beach and sound of dashing waves. Little has yet been done to make it a financial success but possibilities are good in the near future.

The old capitol building, which had become too small for the growing wants of the State, is now remodeled and nearly finished. It is of Grecian style and of light grey, rough face granite, the whole to cost $750,000.

We made a short visit to the State Prison, which is two miles out of the city. Here everything was found neat and clean in appearance. The dinner for that day was corn beef and sour crout, which I hope tasted better than it smelt. At present there are some three hundred inmates, all males. Work of all kinds is carried on as in other prisons, granite cutting being the principal branch. On returning to the city we took a drive about town which had improved very much since my last visit only seven months ago. During that time several large business blocks have been put up on vacant lots.

GENTLEMEN—Your Hop Bitters have been of great value to me. I was laid up with typhoid fever for over two months and could get no relief until I tried your Hop Bitters. To those suffering with debility or any one in feeble health, I cordially recommend them.

Washington Letter.

By order of the President the open air concerts given by the Marine Band in the White House grounds on Saturday afternoons will begin at half past five o'clock. These concerts have been a feature of Washington summer life for the past twenty-five years. The opening concert of the season was held last Saturday. The attendance was large and the music fine.

Among preparations for the great event of this week, the reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, a stand has been erected on the sidewalk of Pennsylvania avenue directly in front of the White House, from which President Arthur will review the pageant on Wednesday as it passes.

The soldiers who will congregate in the city this week will come from every quarter. Many of them have not seen the city for twenty years. They will compare the Washington of 1863 with the Capital City of 1883. To them the transformation will be sudden and marvellous. Besides, they will see the city under the most advantageous circumstances, wearing its garb of fresh spring green. The society will make its headquarters at the Riggs House, and the Committee of Reception will be at the Ebbitt.

The civil service commissioners have left Washington for the purpose of establishing in the principal cities of the country local examining boards to carry out the provisions of the civil service reform act. The commissioners were accompanied by an assistant trained for such work. They expect to return and begin examination for the Departmental service here June 10. The local examining boards will begin the examination of candidates about June 18.

Mr. Foster, United States Minister to Spain, sailed for his post last Thursday. The Swedish Minister and family, the French Minister, and the Mexican Minister will leave Washington within the next ten days for Europe. Foreign diplomatists are said not to be partial to the American mission. So little intrigue is needed in negotiations with this country that the highest form of diplomatic talent is wasted when sent to America.

The embezzlement of Paymaster Wessen, a young officer who has stood high in the service, has caused a great sensation in army circles, where he was a favorite. He married a daughter of Hon. John Bingham, then minister to Japan, but it is thought he will be compelled to go to the penetentiary

The Washington Monument, which has been at a standstill for some time, has taken a new growth and this week many tons of marble will be added to the top of the immese pile. ADAMS.

KILLED BY RUM. On Saturday, May 7, John Callahan of Winchester, went to Woburn and obtained a gallon of rum, which he took home, and while intoxicated compelled his little son, 3 years of age, to drink of the liquid until the child was stupefied and could no longer comply with his father's demands that he should drink more. This enraged Callahan so that he threw a portion of the liquid in the child's face. Soon after that the boy went into convulsions, and continued having them until he died the next morning. Callahan has been arrested.

☞ The Washington monument at the capital is now three hundred and forty feet high. When completed it will have a height of five hundred feet of stone and fifty-five feet of glass, and will, it is thought, exceed in height the highest structure ever reared by man. The Strasburg Cathedral towers to the height of 468 feet, and St. Peter's at Rome 448; the spire of the Cathedral of Cologne rises to 511 feet, and the highest of the pyramids was but 479 feet high when it was first built.

☞ Mrs. Isaac Braman of Georgetown, has lived under all the presidents of the United States. She was seven years of age when Washington died, and finding her mother in tears, she inquired the cause, and was told that "the 'Father of our Country' is dead."

☞ Eleven children have been born into one family in Ipswich, the birthday of each being upon a different month. Not long since, the only month which had not been thus honored, was made the occasion for the advent of the first grand-child.

☞ By a law passed at the present session of the legislature, assessors of cities and towns are required to deposit in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth a copy of their books for the year 1883 and every third year thereafter.

☞ Taxes in the town of Weymouth this year will be about sixteen dollars on $1000, the total amount to be raised footing up $103,000.

Vegetine.

SUPERIOR TO ANY FAMILY MEDICINE.

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

ITS MEDICINAL PROPERTIES ARE

Alterative, Tonic, Solvent and Diuretic.

VEGETINE is made exclusively from the juices of carefully-selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal Complaints, can only be effectually cured through the blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Scaldhead and Ringworm, VEGETINE has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine diseases and General Debility, VEGETINE acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammations, cures ulcerations and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles, Nervousness, and General Prostration of the Nervous System, no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the VEGETINE. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact, VEGETINE is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases, and is the only reliable BLOOD PURIFIER yet placed before the public.

WHEAT BITTERS

THE BEST AND The Richest BLOOD, BRAIN and NERVE -F-O-O-D-

CAREFULLY PREPARED, THOROUGHLY TESTED, ACCEPTABLE AND RELIABLE.

The Phosphates of the Wheat are its most valuable food property, and are, when properly prepared, the most acceptable nutriment with which to build up the system.

The Blood, Brain and Nerves are the forces which bear the strain of every day work and life, and in order to save sickness it is wise to BUILD FOR HEALTH.

Wheat Bitters are prepared, not by fermentation but by solution and are richest in the Phosphates, while the starch and impure matter are eliminated. These make in themselves a basis, to which is added the best and choicest medicinal qualities, necessary to make it a tonic and bitter. It is at once healthful, pleasant to the taste and must not be confounded with the thousand and one cheap alcoholic bitters which are sold as cure-alls. Medicine is doubly effective when used with food, so as to nourish while it corrects.

HEART DISEASE.

Now IS YOUR HEART SOUND?

Many people think themselves sick and doctor for kidney or liver troubles, or dyspepsia, while if the truth were known, the real cause is at the heart. The renowned Dr. Clendinning, startlingly says "one-third of my subjects show signs of heart disease." The heart weighs about nine ounces, and yet man's twenty-eight pounds of blood passes through it once in a minute and a-half, resting not day or night! Surely this subject should have careful attention. Dr. Graves a celebrated physician has prepared a specific for all heart troubles and kindred disorders. It is known as Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator and can be obtained at your druggists, $1. per bottle, six bottles for $5 by express. Send stamp for Dr. Graves' thorough and exhaustive treatise. (1)

Hope's Song.

I hear it singing, singing sweetly,
Softly in an undertone,
Singing, as if God had taught it,
"It is better farther on!"

Night and day it sings the sonnet,
Sings it while I sit alone,
Sings so that the heart may hear it,
"It is better farther on!"

Sits upon the grave and sings it,
Sings it when the heart would groan,
Sings it when the shadows darken,
"It is better farther on!"

Farther on! but how much farther?
Count the miles-stones one by one;
No! no counting—only trusting
"It is better farther on!"

Farm and Garden.

Experiment with Potatoes.

The following experiment was tried the past season to ascertain which end of the potato would secure the best results. A piece was first cut off the seed end of the potato, then a piece, as nearly as possible, of the same size cut from the opposite end. All but two eyes were cut from each piece. Two pieces were dropped in each hill. That there might be no possible chance for a difference in the soil or culture, the pieces cut from the seed end were planted in alternate hills, with those cut from the other end. The result at harvesting was as follows: Whole amount from the seed cut from the large end of the potato, 21 pounds, of which 13 1-2 were large and 6 1-2 were small potatoes. Whole amount from seed cut from the seed end, 27 pounds, of which 21 1-2 pounds were large and 6 1-2 were small potatoes. The tops of the potatoes that came from the seed end looked the best throughout the season, and were earlier than the others, but the potatoes were not as smooth, the worms having eaten them more, and quite a number of good-sized potatoes were rotten, which were not included in the above weight. Had it not been for the worms and the rot, the weight would probably have exceeded 30 pounds. The reason why the potatoes from the seed cut from the large end did not receive any injury from the rot or the worms was undoubtedly because they were later.—Ploughman.

Morning Glories and Sweet Peas.

Among our climbing annuals we have none that equal Sweet Peas and Morning Glories. If a screen for a window or porch is desired, the Morning Glory should be planted. It grows rapidly, will climb to the top of any ordinary window, and generally grows until frost comes. It is a most profuse bloomer, and a quantity of thrifty vines covered with velvety purple and mazarine blue and pearl white flowers, early in the morning, is a fine sight.

Sweet Peas are beautiful and are delightfully fragrant. They are especially adapted to use as cut flowers, having a graceful habit of growth. They do not fade or drop their petals soon after being brought into the house. By daily changing the water in which they are kept, Sweet Peas will remain fresh for several days. They are charming flowers for little boquets, a cluster of them is very suitable for the button-hole.

Sweet Peas should have some support, like a trellis. They seem to like brush better than anything else. The Morning Glory will climb a string, and can be trained wherever desired. The Sweet Pea will make a hedge three feet high. It is useful for covering old fences or stumps.

Anecdotes.

A lady whose husband had been dead three days was weeping and lamenting:—

"Ah, mother," she cried, all at once, raising her eyes to heaven, "I would give half of my life if it were a week later."

"Why, my child?"

The widow, looking at the photograph of the deceased with a tender air:—

"Because then I should think no more about him."

"You have asked to see me?" said an employer to his clerk.

"Yes, sir."

"What is wanted?"

"I wish to make a claim which I doubt not your sense of justice will accept."

"Very well, what is it?"

"I do the same work as Z., and I gain six dollars a month less than he. Is that fair?"

"No, you are perfectly right. I will at once reduce Z.'s pay six dollars!"

Tommy sees a negro.

"O, mamma, how happy I should be if I were like that!"

"Why, what an idea!"

"I should never be washed!"

Woman's Column.

The blushing cheek of maidenhood grows brighter as it grows older, but the brightness is often due to rouge.

"The last word" is the most dangerous of infernal machines; and the husband and wife should no more fight to get it than they would struggle for the possession of a lighted bombshell.—Douglas Jerold.

It is said a young woman forgot to take off her bonnet the other night on retiring, and never noticed the oversight. Then it is pretty certain she did not spend her evening at a theatre. A woman couldn't wear her theatre bonnet to bed without knowing it.—Waif.

A baby born at the New Haven Almshouse was born with four upper and four lower teeth. It must have had pre-natal information as to the quality of beef furnished that institution.—Hartford Post.

While a New York woman was passing a quarry a blast was fired. When she revived after being struck with a stone weighing fifty pounds the first words she uttered were: "Good laws! how glad I am that I didn't have on my new bonnet!"—Philadelphia Chronicle.

A Philadelphia girl says that the race of young men with noble principles, superior intelligence and personal graces seems to be dying out, but she is mistaken. They are merely hidden away in editorial rooms and are too busy saving the country to make her acquaintance.—Philadelphia News.

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

Temperance in England.

In April, 1834, a Youth's Temperance Society on strictly tee-total principles, was formed at Preston, and before a year had passed it reckoned nearly 1,000 members. By dint of zeal, respectable tee-total societies were established at Manchester, August, 1834; at Lancaster, November, 1834; Colne, December, 1834; Isle of Man, December, 1835, and numerous other places.

Meanwhile, September, 1835, a conference of Lancashire and Yorkshire delegates was held at Manchester, and and a new general society formed under the title of the British Association for the Promotion of Temperance on the Principles of Total Abstinence from all Intoxicating Liquors. This title clearly indicated the ambitious views of the new sect. It wished, and it hoped ere long, to speak in the name of the whole temperance party; and as early as 1836 one of the Yorkshire district societies, that of Wilsden, ventured to memorialize the British and Foreign Temperance Society of London on the subject of the total abstinence pledge. The answer that it received showed that a disruption was not far off.

Household Receipts.

COTTAGE PUDDING. A cottage pudding is an inexpensive dish, and if these directions are carried out in making it the pudding will be light and inviting: Beat two eggs very light, add half a cup of sweet milk, one tablespoonful of butter, one cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder and one pint of flour; flavor with spice or with lemon; bake for half an hour. Serve with sauce made thus: Let the yellow peel of a lemon boil for fifteen minutes in half a goblet of water; when cool thicken this with a tablespoonful of cornstarch or arrowroot which you have first rubbed smooth in a cup of sweet milk; then put it back on the stove, add a lump of butter; do not let the sauce boil, but let it heat gradually to the boiling point; just before serving add any flavoring you choose.

BUTTER BISCUIT. Rub a quarter of a pound of butter into one and a half pounds of flour; add half a teaspoonful of salt and one pint of milk and one half teaspoonful bicarbonate of soda, dissolved in a little hot water; knead it thoroughly; then roll out into a sheet a quarter of an inch thick; cut into biscuit, prick with a fork and bake in a moderate oven.

GINGER SNAPS. Two cups of molasses, one cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of alum dissolved in six tablespoonfuls of boiling hot water, one cup of butter or fried meat grease, one tablespoonful of ginger, four tablespoonfuls of soda dissolved in six tablespoonfuls of boiling hot water, and flour enough to roll out nicely. Stir each article in well as they come in order and you won't fail of good success.

CAKE WITHOUT EGGS. Two cups of milk, two cups of sugar, two cups of fine chopped raisins, two tablespoonfuls butter, one teaspoonful of soda, spice to taste, and four cups of flour. Mix it thoroughly. This makes two loaves.

MARKING CAKES IN GOLD. Bake small cakes for the children and when the frosting is hard, dip a small brush into the yoke of an egg, and write a motto or their name upon the cake. It will please them much.

Fashion Notes.

EHRICH'S QUARTERLY. The spring number of Ehrich's Fashion Quarterly more than fulfils the promise of its predecessors. Within the compass of its one hundred and twenty pages, it sets before its readers an absolutely complete epitome of the fashions of the coming season in ladies' wearing apparel and fabrics of every kind; and this, not in the shape of a series of vague generalities, such as the ordinary fashion journal too often contents itself with, but by means of a succession of clearly written descriptions of actual articles, each accompanied with an engraving of the thing described, and all arranged in so orderly and methodical a manner that any desired information can be referred to without difficulty. Over sixty new designs for ladies' and children's dresses are illustrated and described, together with a large number of trimmed hats, light spring wraps, and other articles for the adornment of the outer woman. A new feature of the magazine is the introduction of fashions in men's clothing, a large variety of stylish-looking and economical suits being illustrated and described.

The literary features of the magazine also deserve their meed of praise. Margaret Eytinge, Josephine Pollard, Eben E. Rexford, and other well-known writers are represented by tales, sketches and poems. An interesting article on "Household Decoration" is contributed by Mrs. E. V. Battey, of the New York Sun; and Hope Ledyard's talk from the Easy Chair will be read with interest by mothers, far and near.

Altogether, we think the emphatic verdict pronounced by every lady reader on the present number of the Fashion Quarterly will be "Worth its price and ten times more."

Published by EHRICH BROS., Eighth Avenue, New York, at 50 cents a year, or 15 cents a copy.

Scotch ginghams in greater variety than ever are largely imported.

Foule cloth will be the rival of cheviots and tweeds this spring.

Strapped shoes and slippers are worn for evening and house dress only.

Corn-blue pelisse cloth is largely imported; its finish is soft but rough.

The combination costume still remains the marked feature in spring styles.

Olive shades combine well with the new shades of strawberry, terra cotta, and shrimp pink.

Gold, silver and colored spotted nets are occasionally worn for veils, but they are not becoming.

The only colored wrap worn by women of taste for walking costume is the Cashmere or India shawl.

THAT HUSBAND OF MINE

Is three times the man he was before he began using "Wells' Health Renewer." $1. Druggists.

Rev. Robert Scott, East Hebron, Penobscot Co., Me., writes: "I am a strong believer in the Wheat Bitters, being fully satisfied from experience of their virtues.

*Lydia E. Pinkham, whose benevolent face is shadowed in almost every paper we pick up, appears to have discovered what Addison calls "The grand elixir, to support the spirits of human nature." It is quite evident that she has the patent and has secured the contract for making over and improving the invalid corps of American Womanhood.—Globe.

Mrs. S. E. Wing of Hampden, Me., writes: "I have used several bottles of your Wheat Bitters and think them an excellent remedy."

Mrs. I. S. Livingston, of Contoocook, N. H., writes: "I have used your Wheat Bitters and highly recommend them to all.

CATARRH OF THE BLADDER.

Stinging irritation, inflammation, all Kidney and Urinary Complaints cured by "Buchu-paiba," $1.

☞ One may be better than his reputation or his conduct, but never better than his principles.

"Mean people take advantage of their neighbor's difficulties to annoy them." Mean diseases, such as piles, rheumatism, constipation, dyspepsia, malaria, lame backs, etc. take advantage of people's exposures and attack them. It is then that Kidney-Wort appears on the field and by its timely agency puts to rout this flock of evil ailments It is a friend in need and therefore a friend indeed.

FLIES AND BUGS.

Flies, roaches, ants, bed-bugs, rats, mice, gophers, chipmunks cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

☞ He who can at all times sacrifice pleasure to duty approaches sublimity.

It seems impossible that a remedy made of such common, simple plants as Hops, Bucha, Mandrake, Dandelion, &c., should make so many and such great cures as Hop Bitters do; but when old and young, rich and poor, pastor, doctor, lawyer, and editor all testify to having been cured by them, you must believe and try them yourself, and doubt no longer.

Our best farmers claim they can raise larger crops of potatoes and corn, and mature them earlier, by using a good phosphate than with barn manure.

On this subject we publish the following communication:—

HANSON, MASS., Nov. 14, 1882.

Having used Bradley's Phosphate for several years, and having tested it by the side of four other kinds of fertilizers in 1881, I can say that it has given the best satisfaction of any fertilizer I have used. I used it this year principally upon potatoes. A part of it was used upon land where I had ploughed under a good coat of stable manure, and part of it where there was no other manure, and I had a good crop upon both fields. The potatoes were the finest I have raised for many years, and are much smoother and of better quality than those raised on manure alone.

For the Patriot.

Remembrance.

When the moonlight's silvery splendor
Falls upon the sea,
Tinting all its waves with beauty,
Then I think of thee.

When the hush of twilight cometh,
Ah! so sweet to me,
In the holy silence, darling,
Oft I think of thee.

When in other scenes I wander,
Parted now are we,
In the busy throng a stranger,
Still I think of thee.

Memorial Day, 1883.

Our Dead.

Another Decoration Day marks the 18th cycle of national quiet following the crowning of the Northern army with victory in 1865. This day is the nation's monument to its dear dead—a monument with the name of the private soldier as well as the officer engraved upon it; for in the grave, field distinctions are forgotten; we only know, as we lay our floral tributes upon their hallowed dust, that all were soldiers. By a happy idiom of our language we cannot bestow any higher praise upon an officer than by calling him a good soldier. Originating as this day did within the memory of the present generation, it devolves upon us to celebrate it in such a manner as is best calculated to insure its permanency. Grief being abnormal to human nature, is necessarily transitory, and a holiday that celebrates nothing more than a sorrow must pass away with that sorrow. Let us then lay aside the weeds of our first bitter mourning, and, with sadness mellowed into a grateful veneration, make of this day the most joyous of the year. Let the day be kept after the fashion of a wedding festival, not with funereal gloom, for it is a day of reunion. It means the union of the dead with the living; it means the union of the North with the South; it means that union of sentiment that promotes universal brotherhood among American people. With the lapse of time the sectional character of the day is being diminished, while a national character is being developed. This is as it should be. As a sectional institution merely, it points to a calamity; as a national holiday to a painful period of time that marked the Republic's growth—for nations, too, have their growing pains. The idea of a modern thinker, that an advanced civilization is not favorable patriotism, surely grows out of a false and pessimistic conception of patriotism. If the sentiment of gratitude ennobles him who is exercised by it, patriotism does the same in a higher and wider sense. Patriotism is the most exalted form of gratitude; the former is generic, the latter specific. A republic cannot afford to be ungrateful. It is sad to be forgotten; it is far sadder to forget. Alas for the nation which forgets those who went down to death in its struggle for existence. The life-blood of a republic is the patriotism of its people, and one of the most hopeful signs of the future greatness of this country is the fervor manifested in the celebration of Decoration Day. It is a holy sentiment that brings the living into union with those who died for a principle. By this yearly offering of flowers on the graves of the nation's heroes, we testify not only an affection for tender individual memories, but a sympathy with the patriotic virtue which inspired the men, and an appreciation of the benefits they achieved for us. These gallant dead are hostages to American liberties.

Bargaining with a Pump.

Some thirty years ago an intemperate man was reformed by being refused one cherry. Penniless he went to the public house one morning where he had squandered many a shilling, to get a drink "on tick." The landlady refused to trust him. Seeing a plate of luscious ripe cherries on the bar, he asked for but one. "Save your money and buy your own cherries," was her surly reply. "I will," he said, and he did. His wounded pride forced him to reflect; reflection insured amendment. From that morning he was reformed.

The following story tells of a flannel weaver who also was induced by a surly answer to reflect, and then to make a good bargain with a pump.

This man had saved a guinea for the purpose of having a whole week's dissipation. He began on Monday, spending three shillings per day for seven days. On the morning of the eighth day he was burning with thirst, and his money was gone. He went to the back door of the place where he had spent his guinea, to beg a pint on trust.

Judy, the landlady, was mopping the passage. He stood looking at Judy, with his cracked lips, parched tongue, and bloodshot eyes; expecting her to ask him just to take a drop; but she did not, and he requested her to trust him for only one pint.

With an indignant look of scorn and contempt she replied: "Trust thee! thou dirty, idle vagabond! Set a step in this house, and I will dash this mop in thy face."

The poor wretch hung down his head in shame. He was leaning against a pump, and after a little study began to talk to the pump.

"Well, Pump," he said, "I have not spent a guinea with thee, Pump; wilt thou trust me a drop?"

He lifted up the handle, put his burning mouth to the spout and drank his fill; this done, he again said to the pump:

"Thank thee, Pump; and now, hear me, Pump. I will not enter a public house again for the next seven years; and, Pump, thou art a witness."

The bargain was kept, and this man afterward became a respectable manufacturer, and often said it was a grand thing for him that Judy threatened to dash the mop in his face.

The Woodward Wills, &c.

By request of several citizens we republish the wills of the late Dr. Ebenezer Woodward and Mary A. W. Woodward, his wife, which were published in the PATRIOT some twelve years ago. By these wills it will be seen that a large amount of property was left to the town. The income of said property was to be used in erecting and maintaining a school for young ladies.

The former editions containing these wills were long ago exhausted, and for the convenience of those desiring copies, we have thought best to publish the wills all in one number, so that they can more easily be preserved. An extra edition is published, and those desiring copies will do well to procure them at once.

Dr. Woodward's Will.

In the name of God, Amen: I, Ebenezer Woodward, of Quincy, County of Norfolk, in the Commonwealth of Mass. do make, ordain, and declare this instrument to be my last will and testament.

In the first place, I give and bequeath to my dearly beloved wife, the use, profit, and benefit, during her life, of the dwelling house in which I live, together with the land and buildings attached thereto. I also give her all the furniture in said house, wearing apparel, harnesses, carriages and horses in my possession, at the time of my decease, together with the pew No. 58 in Stone Temple, situated in the broad aisle; the before mentioned house, buildings, land and pew to be used by her during her natural life, and then to be disposed of as hereinafter mentioned.

Secondly,—I give and bequeath to my wife all my personal property of whatever nature, with the exception of that portion which I may specifically give away hereafter in this instrument, for her sole use, during her life, and to be disposed of as this will directs at her death.

Thirdly,—I give and bequeath to my sister, Eliza Woodward Hudson, five thousand dollars ($5000), in personal estate, at my death, if she may be living. I also bequeath to her and her husband Frederic Hudson, after the death of my wife, the house, buildings and land, where I now live and pew No. 58 in Stone Temple, during their natural lives, and then, at their death, to go in fee simple to Woodward Hudson, or if they, Eliza Woodward Hudson and Frederic Hudson die before my wife, then the estate to go in fee simple to Woodward Hudson, or his heirs, either brothers, sisters or children; but, if he leaves no heirs, then it is to go to the town of Quincy, for the same purposes and objects as my other real estate.

Fourthly,—I give and bequeath after the death of my wife, to Woodward Hudson or his heirs, either brothers or or sisters or children, the sum of twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars in personal estate, to be paid to some responsible person at the time of my wife's death; if Woodward Hudson leaves no heirs, as specified, then the twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) to go to the town of Quincy, for the same purposes and objects as my real estate.

Fifthly,—I give and bequeath to the town of Quincy, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and County of Norfolk, in its corporate capacity, all my real estate in the town of Quincy, and all the pews I may own in the various meeting-houses or churches in and out of town, at my death, with the exception of the homestead, where I now live, the portion of the farm of the late Daniel Greenleaf, to be hereafter described, and pew No. 58 in Stone Temple, as a Fund for purposes to be hereafter mentioned, to be disposed of or kept as the town may think proper; the sales together with the rents and profits and income from whatever source obtained, to be kept as a perpetual fund, guaranteed by the town with six per cent interest forever for the purposes to be hereafter mentioned, viz.:—

1. Whenever the income from the foregoing bequests shall be sufficient in the opinion of the managers of said fund, or at least within twenty-five (25) years, after my decease, they shall establish and continue for the town of Quincy, forever a Female Institute, for the education of females, from the age of ten to twenty years, who are native born,—born, I wish to be understood, in the town of Quincy, and none other than these, to be allowed to attend this Institute, which I wish to be as perfect and well constructed as any other in the State.

2. The property which I bequeath to the town of Quincy for this purpose is to be perpetually managed by the selectmen of said town, together with the clerk and treasurer of Quincy, for the best advantage of said town and said Institute.

3. Whenever the town of Quincy becomes a city then the government of said city to have the management of said property, for the benefit of said city, to be used according to the directions of this will and for the purposes herein mentioned.

4. I would recommend that the said town or city, as the case may be, should choose a committee from time to time, to confer with the above named officers concerning the best mode of managing said property and to see that it is not wasted or lost.

5. The management of said Institute or school, so far as the selection of instructors and the studies to be pursued and all internal regulations, to be and to remain under the direction of the following gentlemen forever, viz.:—

The several ordained and settled ministers of the town or city, as may be, and all settled ministers to be added to this committee from time to time, as they become residents of Quincy. I mean the Catholics as well as the Protestants, and all who are settled for one or more years, and reside in the town of Quincy. I wish no sectarianism taught in the Institute, leaving that to the parents and the pastors of their choice; the senior pastor of Stone Temple is to be perpetual Chairman of said Board or Committee.

6. I wish all the ornamental as well as useful branches of learning taught in this Institute, or school, which are taught in any other similar Institute in the State.

7. The said Institute is to be located on land given by said donor to the town of Quincy My present opinion is that the most proper location is nearly opposite the Hancock lot on the farm of the late Daniel Greenleaf; but the said committee, with the selectmen, town treasurer and clerk, are to decide on what part of said farm the location shall be.

8. I ordain that the farm, the whole of which is now occupied by Peter Butler, Esq., shall, after the expiration of the present lease, be occupied by him after my death until Woodward Hudson becomes of age, or if Woodward Hudson dies before that period, then, if the said Peter Butler so wishes, to be occupied by him for ten years from my death, at the rate of one thousand dollars ($1000) per year, together with all taxes levied thereon; the rent to be paid to the town of Quincy as a fund for the Female Institute, deducting sufficient therefrom, for posts and rails to keep the fences in repair and good order.

9. When Woodward Hudson becomes of age, then he is have in fee simple, to be diposed of as he pleases, the mansion house, the farm house, with all the buildings thereunto belonging, together with twenty-one acres of land or thereabouts, viz.: Beginning on the north west side of Pond street, which runs into Putnam street, hence continuing through Putnam street, over the bridge to Hancock street, together with the land opposite the mansion house, on the west side of Hancock street as far as the railroad line with the brook through the centre; which place I now value at fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000).

10. I ordain, that under penalty of losing or forfeiting this donation, the town of Quincy do not allow any part of the farm which I leave to the town in this my will, north of the brook running through it, to be sold under ten (10) years after my decease; and also that the town, or its agents, do not sell or lease lot marked on the plan number thirty-three (No. 33) or permit or cause to be permitted, any bridge over Black's creek, so called, for the space of twenty-five (25) years after my death. The town or its agents are forbid under penalty of forfeiture to my heirs, cutting, opening or making or permitting to be cut, opened, or made, any street, road or passage way through lot number thirty-three (No. 33), to Mount Wollaston, for the space of twenty-five (25) years after my decease, and if the county commissioners cut, open or make any road or passage way through land next Mount Wollaston, then the town of Quincy forfeits all rights to the property.

11. I recommend to the managers of the Female Institute to clear out the inlet called Black's creek, and to make wharves there for the accommodation of the town of Quincy, and to increase the value of the property that it may, to the utmost extent, be made productive to the town for the purposes named in my will.

Sixthly,—If the town of Quincy refuses to accept the above property upon the terms herein specified, or fail to comply with the words and interest of the will, as determined by good judges, or should surrender the property, or use it for any other purpose than contemplated in this will, then I bequeath the said property to the trustee, of Dartmouth College to be used by them in the manner they may think best, for the promotion of Science and Literature.

Seventhly,—I wish all the real estate held in trust by me for my wife, both in Quincy and Boston, to be given by her to the town of Quincy for the same purposes as this will directs, providing the town of Quincy accepts of my donation and not otherwise. This my wife can do by confirming this will or by making one of her own; the real estate in Boston not to be conveyed till after her death.

Eighthly,—If Thomas Brooks be alive at the decease of myself or wife, and continues in the service of the survivor as long as said survivor may desire said service, he is to receive the sum of one thousand dollars ($1000) from my personal estate, on the death of the survivor or the termination of the service.

Ninthly,—If my wife neglects to make a will then the remainder of the property on her death after complying with the bequests in this will, is to be divided equally between Woodward Hudson, and the town of Quincy for the Female Institute, and if Woodward Hudson be not living at the time, and leaves no children, then I make the said Institute for the town of Quincy my residuary legatee.

Tenthly,—I direct that all my debts at the time of my death be at once paid from my personal property, and that all debts due me be immediately collected, so far as the law will allow and permit.

I appoint my wife, Mary Ann Ware Woodward and Frederic Hudson, of Concord, Mass., executors of this will. If neither of them be living, the selectmen of the town of Quincy will be the most appropriate persons to act in this capacity. I wish no bonds required or exacted of M. A. W. Woodward or Frederic Hudson, for the performance of this duty; no apprisement or record of property, except to comply with the laws of the Commonwealth. My executors are simply to convey to the town of Quincy, the real estate willed by me after the requirements and conditions of my will are complied with, the remainder of the property to remain in the possession and hands of my wife, Mary A. W. Woodward, with Frederick Hudson for her advisor.

In witness of each and every one of these items herein contained, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this eighteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord, 1869.

EBENEZER WOODWARD.

Witnessed by Joseph Arey, Jr., Thos. Brooks and George L. Gill.

From Quincy Patriot, Dec. 4, 1869.

Disclaimer and Release.

WHEREAS, My late husband, Ebenezer Woodward, of Quincy, in and by his last will — which will was duly proved, approved and allowed in the Probate Court for Norfolk County—devised to the town of Quincy, certain Real Estate, which is fully described in said will, to be held on certain terms and conditions, and for certain trusts and uses, which are in said will fully set forth; and, whereas, a question has arisen, as to the title of the said estate and property so devised, so far as relates to the interest in the farm of the late Daniel Greenleaf, given and devised for my benefit, in and by the will of my late father, Thomas Greenleaf.

Now know all men by these presents, that I, Mary A. W. Woodward, widow of the said late Ebenezer Woodward, in consideration of the premises, and to quiet and assure, to and for the said town of Quincy, the title to so much of the farm of the said late Daniel Greenleaf, as is given and devised them, by my late husband's will, do hereby disclaim, all and any right, title and interest, whatsoever, in and to the estate and property so devised as aforesaid, and do hereby, so far as in me lies, confirm the said gift and devise, to the said town of Quincy, and in consideration of one dollar to me paid, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, do hereby release to the said town of Quincy, the said estate and property, and all my right to the and interest therein — if any.

To have and to hold the same to the said town of Quincy, its successors and assigns, upon the terms and conditions, and for the uses, trusts and purposes, in said will of my late husband contained and set forth.

Witness my hand and seal, this fifth day of November, in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-nine.

MARY A. W. WOODWARD.

Signed sealed and delivered in presence of E. Price Greenleaf.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

NORFOLK ss. November 5, 1869.

Then personally appeared the within named Mary A. W. Woodward and acknowledged the foregoing instrument to be her free act and deed. Before me,

George L. Gill,
Justice of the Peace.

From the Quincy Patriot, Feb. 12, 1870.

MRS. WOODWARD'S WILL.

The will of the late Mary Ann Ware Woodward, widow of the late Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, of this town, was filed in the Probate Court of this County, on the third day of the present month. The first seven sections of the will provide for the disposition of her personal and private effects, and include several private legacies, among which are one of $1,000 to Mr. Thomas Brooks, and one of $10,000 to Dr. W. M. Ogden. The will then provides as follows:—

Eighth,—I give and devise the use and enjoyment of all the rest and residue of my estate, real and personal, after paying the legacies aforesaid, my just debts and charges of administration, unto my brother and sister, for their lives and the life of the survivor of them, and after the decease of both of them, I hereby give, devise and bequeath the said estate, real and personal, unto the town of Quincy, to be held by the said town on the same conditions, upon the same trust and for the same purposes as are set forth in the will of my late husband, Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, touching the foundation and maintenance of a Female Institute in the town of Quincy.

Ninth,—I hereby appoint Charles P. Curtis and Richard C. Greenleaf to be the Executors of this will, and I direct that they be exempted from giving surety on their bond as such.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, hereby revoking all previous wills made by me, this eighteenth day of December, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine.

MARY A. W. WOODWARD.

Signed, published and declared by the said Mary Ann Ware Woodward to be her last will and testament, in our presence and hearing, and by us in her presence, and by her request, and in the presence of each other subscribed as witnesses.

CHARLES P. CURTIS,
HENRY A. HALE,
ROBERT CODMAN,
DAVID BARRY.

Amount of Funds.

By the Treasurer's account, which was published in the town's report of Feb. 1, 1883, it will be seen that this Woodward property has accumulated to nearly $100,000, and is largely invested in city and railroad bonds, at five or six per cent.

The Treasurer's statement is as follows:—

Personal property, per appraisement,	$30,089.83
Received from sale of land,	19,407.22
" " " pews,	120.00
Income account,	49,424.22
Total,	$99,041.27
Less profit and loss account,	4,430.00
Total, Feb. 1,	$94,611.27

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1883.

Memorial Day.

Again the solemn services of Memorial Day come round, again with death-diminished numbers the remnant of the Grand Army which preserved the integrity of our nation and redeemed it from slavery, will decorate the graves of the heroic and numberless departed; again the steady tread of veterans will be heard in our streets, recalling with a thrill of the heart the noble uprising of the spirit of the North; and again our youth will be quickened in all patriotic emotions by the recital of the deeds of that great time, and by the lessons which, without failure, will be drawn from them. It is to be hoped that our citizens will take part in these services with renewed interest. Soon the soldiers of the civil war will all have passed away, and no more will there be opportunity to testify directly to them our appreciation of their sacrifices. Let our children witness our gratitude, and by our demeanor learn to cherish the memory of the thousands who were "faithful unto death."

The solemnities of the day will be ushered in by the Union Memorial Service which is to be held in First Church Sunday evening, beginning at 7.30 o'clock. This promises to be a very interesting occasion.

Wednesday, Memorial Day, will be generally observed in a very becoming and appropriate manner by Paul Revere Post and their guests. The arrangements made by the Post are much the same as in former years. The members assemble at their headquarters on Hancock street at 7.30 A. M., and detachments will be sent to the Episcopal, Hancock Street, National Sailors' Home and Mount Auburn Cemeteries, where the beautiful custom of decorating the graves of the fallen heroes will be carefully attended to.

At 9 A. M., the Post, in carriages, will visit the cemeteries at West Quincy and strew with flowers all the graves of soldiers and sailors in those cemeteries. Then the members return to their hall and partake of a collation.

At 2 P. M., the Post, preceded by the Holbrook Brass Band, will march to the corner of Hancock and Adams streets, and receive their guests from Post 121, of Hyde Park.

At 2.30 P. M., a procession will be formed in front of the Town Hall in the following order:

Police,
Holbrook Brass Band,
Commander I. M. Holt,
Paul Revere Post, No. 88, and guests,
Town Officers and guests,
Disabled soldiers in carriages,
Citizens generally.

The procession will march to the Mount Wollaston Cemetery, where very appropriate and beautiful exercises will be observed. All work on lots will be stopped at 10 o'clock A. M., and all carriages will be forbidden in the cemetery from that hour until after the ceremonies in the afternoon.

At 7.30 P. M., an oration will be given in the Town Hall, by Rev. Samuel Kelley, to which the public are invited. This is a new feature, of having the oration delivered in the evening instead of the afternoon; but it has been adopted by other posts, and is thought to be much preferable in the cool of the evening, than during the intense heat of the afternoon.

Scarlet Fever.

This terrible disease, which quite often proves fatal, we are sorry to learn is on the increase in our villages. It does not seem to be located in any particular part of the town, but all sections seem to have many cases, if we except Atlantic, which has the Dole nuisance, something more horrible, if possible, than the fever, if we can judge by the long petition of names in our columns to-day.

There has been two or more deaths at West Quincy, and the School Committee have thought it wise to close the Willard School; there has been two fatal cases at Wollaston and another at Quincy Point, but the schools there have not been closed, as far as we know. The cases in the centre of the town have been more mild, and by careful nursing, have not proved fatal.

A Beautiful Place.

Quincy never looked more beautiful we think, than now. The trees, the rich green fields of grass, the flowers, the residences and grounds about them, all combine to make a delightful appearance. Quincy never had so many attractive houses as to-day. They are, as a whole, better and more tastily painted than at any previous time.

As we are rapidly growing toward a city in population, we are striving to look more beautiful and inviting in our outward appearance. Real estate is becoming more and more valuable, and finds good purchasers at fair prices under the hammer. It is rarely we see about town now, an old house free of paint and in a dilapidated condition; all our citizens appear to be active, industrious people who are striving to make their homes attractive as their neighbor's, and with this spirit we are bound to prosper.

A GOOD FARMER. Mr. Bryant N. Adams, at Quincy Neck, has one of the best vegetable farms, we think, that there is in Quincy. The large amount of lettuce, asparagus, cucumber and strawberry plants, together with raspberry and blackberry bushes, which he has under a high state of cultivation, is a sight pleasing to behold. And, when we learn that he intends to deliver his "garden sass" fresh daily to our citizens, we cannot help thinking what a blessing such a citizen is to our community.

He has greatly improved his residence this season, and our best wish is that he may continue to beautify the same, and make it as attractive in its interior and exterior appearance as his beautiful plots of garden things are to the lover of nice vegetables.

ENJOYABLE TIME. A very pleasant time was enjoyed at the skating rink on Friday evening of last week. Several young gentlemen connected with the Unitarian Church hired the rink for an evening's pleasure, and invited their young lady friends to participate in the enjoyment. Three pieces of music—harp, violin and cornet—were engaged, and skating commenced about half-past seven. Between forty and fifty couple were on the floor, and the sport was kept up until nine; when dancing followed until twelve.

☞ Nice strawberries are selling for fifteen cents a quart.

Brief Locals.

☞ A new milch cow, giving twenty quarts of milk a day, is advertised for sale.

☞ The Coddington School had one session Tuesday, on account of the rain.

☞ Capt. Joseph Robinson returned home Tuesday, after a long absence in California.

☞ The Quincy Post Office will be closed between 10 A. M. and 5 P. M., on Memorial Day.

☞ The lawn of Mr. C. R. Mitchell was mown last Thursday for the first time this season.

☞ Our death record numbers six this week, all children. Five of them died in Quincy.

☞ Mr. D. H. Bills has several estates which he offers for sale or to let. Read his advertisement.

☞ The Academy boys will have athletic sports Memorial afternoon, on the Greenleaf street grounds.

☞ The comrades of Paul Revere Post would be pleased to receive contributions for their collation Memorial Day.

☞ Mr. Philip Carver will open his ice cream saloon for ladies and gentlemen, on Memorial Day. His delicious creams are much prized.

☞ Another new house is being erected on the Quincy Bay side of Hough's Neck, making six new ones in that locality this season.

☞ The usual notice for Memorial Day, regarding work and decorations at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, can be found in to-day's PATRIOT.

☞ Mr. Frank L. Merrill of Wollaston has painted the buildings of Capt. P. H. Glover on Mill street, the color of which is much admired.

☞ All persons having lots in Mount Wollaston Cemetery can have them repaired and kept in first-class condition on applying to the Superintendent.

☞ There will be a large sale of woolen and straw carpeting, lounges, marble top tables and ice chests at the Quincy auction room this evening.

☞ There was a robbery of rubber coats, hats, and boots from the teams of W. A. Hodges, while standing outside his building last Wednesday night.

☞ The copious showers of Tuesday and Wednesday were very acceptable to the agriculturists, including those who cherish a grass plot or flower garden.

☞ Sunday June 24, which is the great festal day among the Swedes will be celebrated by the Swedish-American Society on Quincy's future park.

☞ A very pleasant and enjoyable time is expected at the vestry of the Universalist Church this evening, when the Ladies' Association hold a strawberry festival.

☞ It is reported that five children from the Adams School were sent home one day this week, sick, the teachers fearing that they might be coming down with scarlet fever.

☞ Contributions for the Boston Flower and Fruit Mission may be left on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday next, at the house of Mr. J. B. Bass, Granite street, next to the post office.

☞ It is rumored that G. F. Wilson keeps very good cigars. Of course we don't wish to intimate that our readers are addicted to any bad habit, but some of their acquaintances may be.

☞ The engineer of the watering-cart, who, by the way, has filled his arduous position very acceptably, took a two-days' respite from business the fore part of this week; other elements kindly volunteering to lay the dust in his absence.

☞ The beautiful brick mansion formerly belonging to the estate of the late William Dehon will be sold by Auctioneer Lombard this afternoon. It contains all the modern improvements, and is a very attractive and charming estate.

☞ This week's PATRIOT contains some very interesting reading. The wills of Dr. Ebenezer Woodward and wife; also an original poem written by the late William S. Morton for Decoration Day. This was the last poetry that Mr. Morton ever wrote.

☞ A two-seated tricycle, rode by a lady and gentleman, recently passed over Milton Hill, attracting considerable attention. A one-seated one, owned by Mr. Edward B. Souther, has attracted much attention. Sometimes its occupant is a lady, and sometimes a gentleman.

☞ Mr. Thomas Fenno and Miss Abbie F. Taylor were married at the residence of the bride at Wollaston, last Wednesday evening. After a quiet wedding they were driven to Boston, and took the cars for Washington, where they contemplate stopping a few weeks.

☞ The first regatta of the season, by the Quincy Yacht Club, will take place off Quincy Great Hill this, Saturday afternoon, beginning at one o'clock. There are two prizes offered in each class. The distances to be sailed are as follows: First Class, 8 miles; 2d class, 7 1-2 miles; 3d class, 6 miles.

THE FLOWER MISSION. Last season, in some towns in the vicinity of Boston, the school children united in sending large quantities of flowers for distribution among the poor city children, who rarely see so much as a blade of grass. The interest and enthusiasm of these children was delightful; and often very touching were the little crushed bunches of almost stemless flowers which some tiny fingers have picked and crowded together, and labelled with a bit of paper on which is printed, "For the poor little sick boys and girls in the hospital." But, if the teachers or some older persons would direct the work of their little ones in the daisy and clover fields, and in the woods, we think the results would be more satisfactory. A dozen daisies arranged with a few blades of feathery grass and several buttercups or clover blossoms, is as pretty a little nosegay as one could wish.

Some of the prettiest bunches sent last season were made by school children, who were regular weekly contributors during the early summer, and who had learned to arrange graceful, small bouquets, and to pack them so carefully that they always arrived in good condition.

WATERING CART.

Through the efforts of Mr. Walton Hall, nearly, if not quite enough, money has been subscribed to pay for watering Washington street during the next four months. Mr. Wilson Tisdale is to do the work. We think we can say without boasting that it would be hard to find a prettier spot than the Point in summer, now that the great annoyance—dust—will be overcome.

THIS AND THAT.

The members of the Y. M. B. C. of the W. S. C. S. S. should all be present on Sunday, promptly at 11.45 A. M., as their teacher will be in attendance, the day being pleasant.

Yachting parties are already talked of by the young people, and many express themselves sorry that Mr. George Higgins has sold his yacht "Fantina."

The 4th of July Committee held their first meeting on Wednesday evening. For the past three or four years the celebration of this day at the Point has been exceedingly pleasant, and we now look forward with eagerness for the programme which will be prepared for the coming holiday.

We understand that Point Holes is being used as a Sunday base ball ground. Six days in the week should be sufficient for this sport, and a stop should be put to this Sabbath breaking.

SHIPPING.

May 24th, schooner "Carrie Strong," Capt. J. L. Strong, arrived from Thomaston, Me., with hard pine for Porter Keene, North Weymouth.

May 21st, schooner "Jas. Pike" sailed.

May 21st, schooner "Helena Russell," Capt. Jos. Mehaffey, sailed.

PERSONAL.

Arthur W. Stronach, a Point resident, on Wednesday drew one of the Miller pianos, valued at $700, at the Weymouth Grand Army Fair. The number of the lucky ticket was 7739.

The neighborhood was saddened on Wednesday morning by the intelligence of the death of Roscoe Collins, a little boy, nine years old, who was taken sick on Thursday of last week with scarlet fever, and died Tuesday night. On account of the contagious tendency of the disease, he was buried Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. John Federhen, 3d, and Miss Kate Starbuck went to New York on Wednesday to be present at the dedication, on Thursday, of the great suspension bridge over East River, between New York and Brooklyn.

Henry P. Kittredge is at home on a visit from Kansas City, Mo.

Rev. Mr. Chapin, of the Old North Church, North Weymouth, filled the pulpit of the Washington Street Congregational Church on Sunday, and preached an excellent sermon.

Mr. Alfred Sampson has been quite sick for two weeks, but is now more comfortable. F.

Hall place is being much improved by the new fences built by Messrs. McCormick and Loud, and also by the finely kept gardens and lawns.

The celebrated Hawthorne Club are "brushing up" and will present their two very interesting dramas to a select audience, at Temperance Hall, about June 5.

Mr. Harry Clements has just returned after an extended tour through the South and West.

An entertainment of unusual interest, will be given in the audience room of the M. E. Church next Tuesday evening. Select readings, solos, duets, quartetts etc., will be on the programme. Mr. W. C. Barron of Boston will be present on the evening of the occasion and render some fine selections on the piano.

A few days ago Miss Alice Williams had one of her eyes severely injured by a bent twig flying back into it. It is feared she will lose her sight. She is at present in the infirmary in Boston.

On Wednesday last Mr. David McGrath, our enterprising telegraph operator, had one of his fingers badly injured while assisting in unloading stone.

Mr. John Nutting is improving finely. A.

Scarlet Fever is one of the principal diseases in West Quincy at the present time. The Willard School has been closed the past week.

Mr. Wm. B. Barry, the former foreman of the Granite Engine Company, has been appointed Engineer for this part of the town, a position which he deserves and one that he will fill in a manner creditable to himself and the citizens.

There are more workmen employed in West Quincy at the present time than ever before.

Mr. Daniel F. Desmond, an employé of the Old Colony Railroad was appointed conductor, the present week, on the Granite branch. Mr. Desmond has been in the company's employ for a number of years, and no doubt his present position was given him for the faithful manner in which he has served his employers. He enters upon his new duties with the best wishes of his many friends. REPORTER.

GRANITE ENGINE CO. The following citizens have been elected officers of the Granite Engine Company for the ensuing year:—

Foreman,—John G. Woddick.
First Assistant,—James O' Brien.
Second Assistant,—James Usher.
Clerk,—Matthew Lyons.
Treasurer,—John C. Kappless.
Standing Committee,—W. F. Powers, John O'Brien and Daniel Geary.
Steward,—John Barry.

The Granite boys are a tough, hearty set of fellows, and make excellent firemen, but require a good commander. The newly elected foreman we are well acquainted with.

He served a good apprenticeship at type setting in the PATRIOT Office, and is capable of filling the new position with honor. His duties will be arduous, but if he gives them that attention and respect they should command, he will have as good a fire company, at the close of the year, as can be found in Quincy or vicinity.

SUSTAINED. Before the Supreme Judicial Court at Dedham this week, Judge Devens on the bench, the case of Lewis Bass executor, of Quincy, against William H. Morrison and others, appellants, was decided. The will of Elizabeth Morrison, of Braintree, had been presented to the Probate Court and allowed by Judge White, and the appellants desired to break the will, but the jury found upon all the issues in favor of sustaining the will.

Memorial Day.

The following beautiful poem for Memorial Day was written by our late townsman, Wm. S. Morton, in May, 1871, and appeared in the PATRIOT at that time; and as he died in September the same year, this was his last tribute to the day:

DECORATION DAY, 1871.

Once more around this sacred shaft,
That lifts its spire to heaven,
Upon whose shield dear names are carved,
To them be glory given.
We meet again, and though dark dreams
Of battles wild affray,
Come o'er us, yet the sunlight gleams
On dear homes saved, and throws its beams
Upon this mound to-day.

In youth's bright way—oh! well we know,
These buried ones of ours,
And loving, honoring them, we strew
Their graves with sweetest flowers.
We left with them our peaceful life,
With blessings, hopes and prayers;
By side we stood in battles strife,
When all the murky air was rife
With death and wounds and cares,

Yet quailed they not, though shot and shell
Strewed our red fields with dead,
With faces to the foe they fell,
Met death in forward tread.
Comrades, attention!—gather near,
Around this tablet stone,
Mourn not for those remembered here,
But rather joy, that more so dear,
Can never shed the mourner's tear,
For us so left alone.

Close up the ranks, as one by one,
Is passing from our sight;
Let us not grieve his journey done,
Who fought the patriot's fight.
No, let us fling our fairest flowers,
Above his honored dust,
For heaven it's sweetest blessings showers,
On these departed comrades; ours
In love, in hope and trust.

The National Banks.

On the first of May the ten banks in Norfolk County made a report of their condition to the comptroller of the currency at Washington, which shows them to be in a very prosperous condition. The amount of capital paid in is over two millions of dollars, while the surplus or profits now on hand is $906,000 or about 30 per cent. of the whole capital invested in the business of banking. The Randolph bank has an amount of surplus equal to its capital stock. We subjoin the following figures, which will be of interest to our readers, especially to those of them who are fortunate enough to be stockholders:—

Mt. Wollaston National Bank,—Quincy—Horace B. Spear, cashier. Loans and discounts, $248,254.97; specie and legal tender notes, $3,388.45; surplus fund, $50,000; undivided profits, $13,578.96; bank notes outstanding, $90,000; individual deposits subject to check, $100,167.49; demand certificates of deposit, $4,670.

Granite National Bank—Quincy, R. F. Claflin, cashier. Loans and discounts, $224.320.70; specie and legal tender notes, $7,388; surplus fund, $40,000; undivided profits, $11,133.95; bank notes outstanding, $132,300; individual deposits subject to check, $120-616.22.

Dedham National Bank, Dedham—L. H. Kingsbury, cashier. Loans and discounts, $467,445.09; specie, $10,042.75; surplus fund, $75,000; undivided profits, $20,879.74; bank notes outstanding, $264,510; individual deposits subject to check, $193,201.63.

Franklin National Bank—M. Farnum, cashier. Loans and discounts, $288,908.35; specie, $1790; surplus fund, $29,483.01; undivided profits, $5,471.67; bank notes outstanding, $180,000; individual deposits subject to check, $77,258.01.

Blue Hill National Bank.—Milton, S. J. Willis, cashier. Loans and discounts, $267,301.78; specie, $8,041.80; surplus fund, $40,000; undivided profits, $4,433.10; bank notes outstanding, $178,000; individual deposits subject to check, $98,960.81; demand certificates of deposit, $3,303.

Neponset National Bank—Canton, N. W. Dunbar, cashier. Loans and discounts, $298,558.18; other stocks, bonds and mortgages, $108,110; specie, $7,075; surplus fund, $50,000; undivided profits, $33,591; bank notes outstanding, $225,000; undivided deposits subject to check, $130,722.

Randolph National Bank, Randolph,—C. G. Hathaway, cashier. Loans and discounts, $458,926.09; specie and legal tender notes, $10,675.51; surplus fund, $200,000; other undivided profits, $18,671.54; national bank notes outstanding, $177,460; individual deposits subject to check, $191,146.89.

Union National Bank, Weymouth,—John J. Loud, cashier. Loans and discounts, $448,883.55; specie and legal tender notes, $11,500.75; surplus fund, $80,000; undivided profits, $20,275.66; bank notes outstanding, $358,985; individual deposits subject to check, $69,624.06.

First National Bank, South Weymouth—J. H. Stetson, cashier. Loans and discounts, $193,839.80; specie and legal tender notes, $4432.35; surplus fund, $30,000; undivided profits, $11,950.07; bank notes outstanding, $135,000; individual deposits subject to check, $113,517.21.

National Bank of Wrentham,—F. N. Plimpton, cashier. Loans and discounts, $108,401.14; surplus fund, $21,000; undivided profits, $954.12; bank notes outstanding, $48,250; individual deposits subject to check, $41,603.86.—Dedham Transcript.

Union Memorial Services.

The churches of the centre will unite with the Grand Army Post in Memorial Services at the First Church next Sunday evening. The Post will attend in a body, and all soldiers and sailors of the civil war and the citizens generally are cordially invited to attend these interesting services. Coming the Sunday before Memorial Day, they will properly prepare the minds of the people to engage in the exercises of that notable occasion. Addresses will be delivered by clergymen, also by several distinguished laymen of the town, and a male quartette has been engaged to aid the musical part of the services.

ENTERPRISING. Our coal dealers at Quincy Point are enterprising men and are making extensive preparations for their fall and winter trade. Mr. Cyrus Patch is making large additions to his coal sheds, and Mr. Joel F. Sheppard has torn down his old one and is erecting an immense new one 150 feet long, 84 feet wide, with twenty-foot posts. If these merchants should ever succeed in filling their bins, Quincy will need have no fear of a coal famine.

NEPONSET. Mr. William Morey, a native of Plymouth, but for several years past a resident of Neponset, died in that village on Tuesday last, at the advanced age of ninety-one years and eight months.

VEGETINE. By its use you will prevent many of the diseases prevailing in the Spring and Summer season.

Rare Coins.

We were shown this week by Charles Breck, Esq., of Milton two old cents which he has had in his possession for many years, and which have become quite valuable.

One had a profile on the face, with the word "Liberty" at the top, and the date "1793" at the bottom. On the reverse was "One Cent" in a circle in the centre, with the words "United States of America" around the edge.

The other, had on the face a sundial, with the word "Fugio" on the left, and the date "1787," on the right, with the words, "Mind your business" at the bottom. On the reverse in the centre were these words "United we are one State," encircled by thirteen rings, indicating the thirteen states.

At a recent sale of coins in New York, the highest price paid was for a half-dime of 1804, which brought $400. Coins of this date are so rare that even the cabinet of the United States mint is without a specimen, and the piece sold was the finest known. A cent of 1793 similar to the one owned by Mr. Breck, brought $23. A rare silver dollar of 1858 and one of 1852 brought respectively $28 and $26.

PETITION. A petition has been in circulation in Quincy this week, to procure names of citizens who are in favor of asking Gov. Butler to pardon Thomas Smith, of Quincy, who is now in the Dedham jail, under a sentence of four months for selling intoxicating liquors. He promises never again to sell intoxicating liquors as long as he shall live, if the Governor will pardon him.

MOUNT WOLLASTON CEMETERY.

IN order to give time for the proper clearing of the paths, avenues and lots, it is desirable that all work and decoration on lots should be finished by 10 o'clock A. M. on Memorial Day; and for reasons frequently given, the general good will be promoted by the exclusion of all riding, excepting such as may be required by the order of arrangements, in the Cemetery, from 10 o'clock A. M. until after the close of the exercises.

Scarlet Fever.

OWING to the prevalence of Scarlet Fever in Quincy, the Board of Health deem it necessary, to prevent the spread thereof, that the children in families where such disease exists be kept from the Public Schools, and not allowed to return except upon the certificate of the physician attending the case that all necessary precautions have been taken, and would recommend that all parents be particularly careful about allowing children to associate that have been liable to contagion.

HEADQUARTERS'
Paul Revere Post 88, G.A.R,
DEPARTMENT of MASSACHUSETTS.
Revere Hall, Quincy, May 19, 1883.

General Order No. 3.

In compliance with the laws of our Order, our established custom and General Orders from Headquarters, the Comrades of this Post will observe Wednesday, the 30th day of May, as Memorial Day.

The anniversary of the beautiful custom of decorating with fair flowers the resting places of our fallen comrades has arrived, and the duty devolves on us. The day's memory is full of the gentle sympathy and kindness of those who unite or assist us in perpetuating the love and reverence to our honored dead. Let no comrade's grave be neglected. See that the flag for whose honor they died waves over each. Lay upon their graves the laurel and the rose, and tenderly cherish their memories and the sacrifices they made for a nation redeemed.

All living in town who served in the late war are cordially invited to join with the Post in the services of the day. Comrades of the war days, will you not assemble with us throughout the day, assist us in our duties, and partake of our rations?

All members of the Order, and all who served in the late war, are invited to meet at Revere Hall at 7 P. M., Sunday, May 27th, to attend Union Service at the First Church.

All friends of the Order are invited to send food to Revere Hall during the forenoon of May 30th for the noon collation of the Post and its guests.

All persons are cordially invited to send flowers to Revere Hall on the morning of Memorial Day.

ORDER OF THE DAY.

1. The Post will assemble promptly at 7.30 A. M. at Headquarters.
2. A detail of Comrades, under the command of S. V. C. Samuel B. Turner, will decorate the graves in the Hancock and English cemeteries.
3. A detail of Comrades, under the command of J. V. C. Albert Parrott, accompanied by the Chaplain of the day,—Rev. D. M. Wilson—will proceed to the National Sailors' Home, hold appropriate services, and decorate the graves in that cemetery.
4. O. D. Warren B. Munroe will make a detail of one Comrade, and, accompanied by him, proceed to Mount Auburn Cemetery, and deposit a wreath marked, "Post 88, G. A. R.," on the grave of Paul J. Revere.
5. Quartermaster W. P. Martin will have charge of Headquarters during the day.
6. Surgeon George A. Ordway will have charge of invited guests.
7. At 9 A. M. the Post will proceed in carriages to West Quincy, where appropriate services will be held, and the graves decorated in the cemeteries located at that part of the town.
8. At 12 M. a collation will be served at Post's Headquarters for the Comrades and their invited guests.
9. At 2 P. M. the Post will assemble in front of Post's Headquarters, and, headed by the Holbrook Brass Band, proceed to the corner of Hancock and Adams Streets, at which place the Comrades of Post 121, of Hyde Park, will be received with due honors and escorted to Headquarters.
10. At 2.30 P. M. a procession will form, headed by the Holbrook Brass Band, in front of Town Hall, consisting of the Post and other soldiers and sailors of the late war; Post 121, Hyde Park, Commander L. B. French; invited guests and citizens of Quincy. The line of march will be taken to Mount Wollaston Cemetery, where, with appropriate ceremonies, the monument will be decorated with flowers, and the graves of our fallen comrades, located therein, decorated by the Post and visiting Comrades by detail, under the command of the several officers of the Post, each grave to be decorated at the same moment,—at the bugle call.
11. At 7.30 P. M. the Post will assemble at Headquarters, and, headed by the Holbrook Brass Band, proceed to the Town Hall, where the oration will be delivered by the orator of the day,—Rev. Samuel Kelley—to which the public is invited.

Grand Public Parade.

Every day next week, and in fact for ten days, between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock in the forenoon, Adam Forepaugh's Great Railroad Show will appear upon the streets of Boston, in processional order; and on June 8th at Brockton.

Our exchanges from the places where the establishment has exhibited, assert that in extent and magnificence this display exceeds all spectacular or show parades ever made by any exhibition in the United States.

The procession is led by the beautiful pageant illustrating the departure of Lalla Rookh from Delhi. The lovely Princess, who is personified by the handsomest woman in America, and for whose services in this pageant Mr. Forepaugh pays the sum of ten thousand dollars, is seen sitting in a genuine East India howdah, upon the back of a kingly elephant. Maids of honor, servitors, and all the pomp and wealth of an Eastern Monarch's court, surround her.

Another most attractive and novel feature of the parade is the presentation, for the first time in America, of the fascinating Egyptian spectacle, "Cleopatra Journeying to Meet Marc Antony." The famous and beautiful Queen is personated, seated in a magnificent barge ablaze with gold, and all the surroundings are in keeping with the account given by the most reliable historians of this remarkable regal journey. Then follow twenty-two elephants, attached to chariots ablaze with gold and glitter; two martial bands enliven the occasion; the "Grand Bashaw," with his retinue of slaves, cup-bearers, sultans, etc., are represented, riding upon white camels and black dromedaries; upon a colossal chariot, designated as the "Car of India," a monster living lion is placed, and by his side sits a youthful maiden, with her hand resting upon the head of the savage brute. A monster cage with glass sides and ends, is filled with anacondas and pythons, and in the midst of this wriggling mass of serpents the spectators behold an East Indian Snake Charmer, dallying with the shining, slimy monsters. Ten Ceylon elephants, draw another chariot, followed by the "Car of the Seasons" and the "Chariot of Olympus," which is embellished with representations of the fates, furies, graces, sirens, nymphs, gods, heroes and men. Next, the Leo De Westes' Hanoverian Stud of twenty-two performing stallions and ponies, in elegant and elaborate trappings, followed by open dens of lions and tigers, are to be seen at intervals. A mammoth steam orchestrion mingles its shrill notes with those of the bands, and at intervals are to be seen mardi-gras masqueraders in fanciful and mirth-provok-

Petition to Selectmen.

The following petition, containing the names of 216 citizens of North Quincy, was presented to the Selectmen last week. Residents are designated by r; summer residents, sr; and property owners, p.

To the honorable Board of Selectmen, the Board of Health of the town of Quincy:

In the face of the fact of the town of Quincy, at its adjourned town meeting, holden Tuesday P. M., March 27, 1883, having voted on Articles 33 and 34 of the town warrant as follows:

"That the Selectmen of Quincy are requested not to grant to any company nor individual, consent nor permission to carry on a melting nor rendering establishment within the limits of the town of Quincy:"

"That the Board of Health of the Town of Quincy is hereby instructed to prevent any person exercising any trade or employment which is a nuisance, or dangerous to the public health or the exercise of which is attended by noisome or injurious odors, or is otherwise injurious to estates; and especially the trade or employment of manufacturing fertilizers within the limits of the town of Quincy."

We, the undersigned, parties interested as specified against our respective names, do hereby petition and pray your honorable body, to take the speediest and surest steps in your power and under your instructions in the foregoing articles as voted upon to stop any further and more active work on the part of the Dole Common Sense Fertilizer Company towards the establishment and continuance of its business (which is covered by the Articles 33 and 34 herein before mentioned) at its works now in process of completion in that part of Quincy called Atlantic.

Letter from New York.

NEW YORK, May 23, 1883.

In view of the festivities attending the opening of the great Bridge, on the 24th, a few items regarding the structure may be interesting. The length of the span is 1,595 feet 6 inches, a distance which has never before been bridged by a single arch, while the roadway from City Hall, New York, to

THE GREAT CENTRAL,
OLD AND RELIABLE, COMPLETE
HOUSE FURNISHING
EMPORIUM,
512 WASHINGTON STREET,
Near Bedford Street.

WE desire to call attention to the finest and most complete line of House Furnishings ever on show at our Warerooms, having taken unusual care to produce better Goods, of superior style and design, which, coupled with the fact that all last season's goods have been closed out, allows us to present entirely new and desirable goods for inspection. Owing to the extreme and very unusual lateness of the season, we have placed much lower prices on all our goods than intended, yet we do so with the object to entirely close out every article of Household Goods now on hand before another season, and such prices are very decidedly in favor of the purchaser.

The complete renovation of every department of our store has made it much more convenient for customers to select, and the use of elevator brings every floor within easy reach of all.

Beyond such addition, we have greatly improved the entrance to our store by a new stained-glass front, with cherry casings, giving us one of the most attractive entrances in Boston, and, while this change makes an entirely new appearance, we are still at the old situation, so centrally located, and which we have occupied these many years. Our immense stock includes ing costumes.

An instructive, as well as humorous feature of the pageant, is the appearance of a real slave-singing band of old-time old plantation darkies. All were formerly slaves; not one of them has ever been away from the South; and, seated upon cotton bales, in a genuine Southern mule team, this band of freedmen sing, as the procession moves, the camp-meeting melodies and songs of the cabins, as was customary in slavery days. Three great bands of music are in position along the line of the cavalcade. Droves of camels, diminutive ponies, ornate tableau cars, and nearly a mile of statuary-adorned and beautifully-embellished animal cages, all drawn by hundreds of plumed steeds, drivers uniformed, constitute some of the attractive features of this princely pageant. Our readers should reach one of the above cities by nine in the forenoon in order to behold this grand free-for-all holiday parade.

Base Ball Match.

The annual base ball match between St. Mark's School, of Southboro, and Adams Academy, was played last Saturday on the Greenleaf-street grounds. The home club took a strong lead in the first innings, and held it to the end. The features of the game were Young's brilliant catching, which undoubtedly saved the visitors from a bad defeat, and a fine running catch, made by Morse, cutting off two runs. Heavy batting was done by Wright and Pocock.

By previous agreement, the game was called at the end of the seventh innings, to enable the visitors to catch their train for Southboro.

The following is the score:

NOTICE. The former friends of Mr. H. Collins, at 70 Summer street, Boston, will now find him at 155 Kneeland Street, between the Old Colony and Boston and Albany railroad stations, where he has an excellent stock of goods and will be pleased to have them give him a call.

Sands St., Brooklyn, is over a mile. The first granite blocks of the Brooklyn tower, were laid in position on the 15th of June, 1870. Those of the New York tower, which were placed a little over a year later, reach down below high water mark seventy-eight feet. The width of the Bridge is eighty-five feet, which is divided into five avenues, the middle one being higher than the others, and designed for foot passengers. The bridge has been thirteen years in building, and has cost $16,000,000, two-thirds of which amount is borne by the city of Brooklyn.

A petition signed by several leading ladies of this city, has been presented to the School Commissioners, asking that girls, between the ages of ten and twelve, in the primary schools, be taught to sew. It is to be hoped the paper will receive careful consideration.

Cooper Institute was crowded on Sunday evening last, on the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the evangelistic work carried on by a committee of citizens, under the leadership of Mr. C. W. Sawyer. D. L. Moody addressed the meeting taking his text from John 4:35, and was listened to with the closest attention. Mr. Sankey was also present and sang some of the newer Gospel Songs. Over a thousand people were turned from the doors before the beginning of the exercises.

A most important invention, lately brought to light by Mr. H. B. Sheridan, a prominent electrician of this city, is the Electric Arm-chair, for the painless execution of criminals. Mr. Sheridan has offered his invention to the United States and foreign governments free, as he desires to make no money out of it, having invented the engine of death in the interests of humanity.

There is, in this city, under the auspices of Grace Episcopal Church, an association, called "The Young Century Club," the object of which is to afford to strangers coming here for work a substitute for a home. Young men and women without friends or social relations of any kind, can secure admission on a letter of introduction or of good character, upon application to the rector of the church. The club is wholly unsectarian, and is accessible to all worthy young people, upon the payment of twenty-five cents per month, this nominal sum opening to all the privileges of the association. Two evenings in each month are devoted to social exercises, in which the members of both sexes take an active part.

Williamsburgh yesterday witnessed a pretty sight, in the procession of 8,000 Sunday-school children. The display made by the pupils of the colored Sunday-schools, and those of the Industrial Home, formed an interesting feature of the parade. To-day fifty thousand Brooklyn children are in line.

President Arthur arrived in this city last night at 10.35. He comes to attend the exercises of the Brooklyn Bridge, and will be the guest of Mr. Charles Miller, during his stay, which will probably last until June 1st.

A Chinese consulate is about to be established here, with Mr. Ow Yang Ming as Consul. This is quite an important proceeding, not only for the Chinese residents, but also for the commercial community, as they have now no one to whom they can appeal as to their rights, and it will be of great advantage to have the interests of China represented here, as this country's trade with that nation is constantly increasing. W. L. M.

tional Union, held May 19th, 1883, the following Preamble and Resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to take to himself the soul of our beloved brother, John J. White, whose amiable and Christian character, as a man, has so much endeared him, not only to the members of this Branch, but to the community at large; therefore be it

Resolved, That while we humbly bow in submission to Him, "who doeth all things well," we deeply deplore the loss of a brother whose death creates a void which will be keenly felt; a man whose love for his fellow man endeared him to all, and whose memory we will ever fondly cherish.

Resolved, That we tender our most heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved parents and relatives, and pray that God may support and console them in their affliction.

Resolved, That as a tribute of respect to his memory, a copy of these resolutions be suitably engrossed and presented to his sorrowing parents, and that the same be published in the Granite Cutters' Journal and Quincy PATRIOT, and entered on the records of the Branch.

THOMAS'

OIL TROUGH TREE PROTECTORS.

(Patented August 9, 1881.)

This Improved Protector effectually protects the trees against the Canker Worms.

PLEASE Examine our new Protector. Below are some of the reasons why every one owning trees should use this Protector.

1. It is a first-class tree Protector, with a perpendicular front to the oil-pan, which prevents the oil from blowing out.
2. It has a pan large enough to contain oil for the season.
3. It is manufactured from heavy zinc, and will last for years.
4. Being corrugated prevents sagging when on the trees.
5. The protectors are smaller in the centre, which prevents the packing from falling through.
6. We use tow for packing, so there is no danger of girdling or injuring the tree.
7. By using our protectors, you will get more and finer fruit.
8. It is so constructed as to be a perfect barrier against canker worms; it will prevent codling moths, tussock moths, bark lice, curculio, caterpillars, etc., from ascending the trees.
9. This Protector is so cheap that every one owning trees can apply it. It is simply insuring your trees against insects for a few cents ar

My experience of several years in selling protectors has taught me what is required by the public is a cheap Oil Trough Protector, easily taken care of and something that cannot injure the trees, and will stop the grub from ascending. I am convinced that nothing can be fastened solid to a tree without doing more or less injury. We have applied our Protectors to hundreds of trees, where other protections have failed. Parties ordering, will please give their orders early to insure their being filled on time. Now is the time to put them on and prevent the codling moths, curculio bark lice and tussock moth from ascending the trees.

The Price of our Protectors is

10 cts. per Inch in diameter, which includes applying to the tree and filling with oil.

Neatest, cheapest and most durable Protector in the market.

WHEAT BITTERS

THE Great LIQUID FOOD FOR BLOOD, BRAIN AND NERVES.

IS A SUPERIOR NUTRITIVE MEDICINE, RICH IN PHOSPHATES AND NOT A CHEAP, ALCOHOLIC DRINK. Highly recommended by Chemists and Physicians as A POSITIVE TONIC, ALWAYS ACCEPTABLE AND RELIABLE, as it does not stimulate the brain or irritate the system and leave deleterious effects. On the contrary, it furnishes just that which is necessary to the brain, strengthens and quiets the nerves, purifies the heart's blood, and thereby makes only the best flesh, bone and muscle. It works wonders, curing NERVOUS and GENERAL DEBILITY, MALARIA, DYSPEPSIA, INSOMNIA. Produces a healthy action of the Liver and Kidneys, fortifying the system against the miasmatic influences, and will be found invaluable in all pulmonary and bronchial difficulties. DELICATE FEMALES, NURSING MOTHERS and WEAKLY CHILDREN can find no remedy equal to this healthful blood and nerve food tonic. For sale by all Druggists. $1.00 per bottle. Prepared only by WHEAT BITTERS CO., Office 10 Park Place, New York City.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

Life's Seasons.

In the spring of life we are born,
And know nothing of care or sorrow,
Life is to us a happy morn,
And we do not think of the morrow.

Then comes summer, in all her glory,
And we take what we can from life;
In the latter part comes the old, old story—
With a mate we are ready for strife.

And in the autumn our life is in prime,
And of struggles we've had our share,
Some have remained courageous and kind,
While others are peevish from care.

Then comes the winter, it comes to all,
And we are weary and lone;
We patiently wait for the welcoming call
Which brings us to God and his home.

How to Make Callas Blossom.

Some one in a back number wanted to know something about the care of a calla lily. Having had several years' experience with them, I will give my plan, which I think is a good one, as I never fail to have them bloom all through the winter months.

About the first of June I take my lily out on the north side of the house in the shade, turn the jar over on its side and leave it there, and pay no more attention to it; do not water it, but just let it rest, and by the first of September it will be ready for work again.

About the first of September I turn my lily out of the jar, (which is a two-gallon one, without any hole in the bottom for drainage, as none is required,) and I get a quart of fresh cow manure (the fresher the better), and put it in the jar, then I take common garden soil, leaf, mould and sand, about equal parts, and mix thoroughly, then fill the jar about half full, put in the lily bulb, and fill the jar within two inches of the top, which space must be left for water, of which they will require about a pint each day after they get to growing nicely. If the water is quite warm I think it would be better, but I am not particular about this.

After the bloom appears and begins to turn brown, cut the stem off within three or four inches of the base, for inside the stem you will find a second bud, or perhaps the second bud will be found inside the leaf stem that the first bud came out of, as was the case with mine to-day.

My first lily measured five inches across and the second bud gives promise of another equally as large as the first.

☞ A Medway, Mass., woman has 85 hens, and during the months of January, February and March, they laid 354 1-4 dozen eggs, bringing a fraction less than 29 cents a dozen or $99.08 for all. The expenses were $32.78, which left her $66.30 for her labor. Why not keep hens?

☞ The sale of fancy cattle was continued in New York on the 18th inst., and high prices were realized. The cow "Khedive's Virginia" brought $2050; the heifer "Cicero's Mabel," $1525; the cow "Mabel 4th," $2,100, and the cow "Guy Fawke's Pride," $2050.

Anecdotes.

"Now, my dear," said a Hartford man this morning, "you have made the sleeves of this shirt too awful short. I never can wear it in the world."

"Well, I'm awful sorry; but can't you wear it just one day?"

"If I only had a wart on my elbow I might."

"Why, what difference would that make?" "I could use it for a cuff button and be solid.

Once upon a time a woman died, and as the mourners were carrying her to the grave, they tripped against a stump and let the coffin fall. She revived, having been only in a deep trance. Two years afterward she really died, and as they were carrying her down the same road and neared the same stump the disconsolate widower sobbed:

"Steady, boys, steady, there. Be very, very careful!"

At the police court:—

"Accused, you have already had eleven condemnations for vagabondage, assaults, abuse of confidence, swindling, etc."

"Be so kind as to speak lower, your honor; my future father-in-law is in the court room, and you might prejudice my prospects!"

"Where are you going?" said a young gentleman to an elderly one, in a white cravat, whom he overtook a few miles from Little Rock. "I am going to heaven, my son. I have been on my way for eighteen years."

"Well, good-bye, old fellow! If you have been travelling towards heaven for eighteen years, and got no nearer than Arkansas, I will take another route."

Louis Veuillot was not tender for any one, but above all he was bitter against literary people.

One evening that he had dined in company with several of them, he said: "Those people astonish me! they write much better than they talk!"

Woman's Column.

One of the best farmers in Maine is said to be Miss Martin, of South Auburn. She carries on a farm successfully and pays much attention to fine stock raising.

A South Carolina bride's dowry included a $4,000 set of false teeth. And her husband, when he speaks of her precious mouth, knows what he is talking about.

The meanest slight a girl can put upon an admirer is to use a postal card in refusing an offer of marriage. It proves that she doesn't actually care two cents for him.

At Victoria, B. C., a man who resided there for twenty years had accumulated, through a small business, a fortune of many thousand dollars. His wife concealed the money in a place known only to herself. Last week she died suddenly, and the strictest search has failed to reveal the place of deposit. The husband is distracted in consequence of his double loss.

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

Temperance in England.

CONTINUED.

In Scotland and Ireland the progress of teetotalism, as distinct from temperance, was not at first very marked; but its votaries were resolute, and held vehement discussions, public and private, with the advocates of the rival system, in which they were generally considered victorious by the crowds before whom they disputed.

During 1834 and 1835, teetotalism was struggling hard for recognition in London, the influential leaders of the old temperance society being dead against it. At length, however, owing to the persevering efforts of Mr. Livesey, of Preston, and other enthusiasts, the teetotallers got a footing, and in September, 1835, established the British Teetotal Temperance Society, which, in August, 1836, was merged into the New British and Foreign Society for the Suppression of Intemperance. Teetotalism now in turn began to get the upper hand, and in the course of two or three years the "moderate" party almost disappeared, the majority of its members doubtless passing over to the ranks of the total abstainers. But these now fell out among themselves.

Up to 1839 the New British and Foreign Society had two pledges—the long and the short—the former including the neither give nor offer clause, the latter omitting it. The more rigorous teetotallers made strenuous efforts to get the "short" pledge abolished, which were as strenuously opposed, and in a very brief period the whole teetotal world was up in wild commotion on the subject. Various meetings of delegates from the different societies in England, Scotland and Ireland were held in London in May, 1839, under the presidency of Earl Stanhope, and scenes of the utmost disorder ensued. The result was a temporary disruption, and the formation of two societies. Still the cause prospered, in spite of fierce distractions. Strong provincial associations were formed in Yorkshire, Leicestershire, Lancashire, Norfolk and Cornwall and Wales, almost always on the long pledge principle. In Scotland the long pledge took deep root; indeed, after 1837 and 1838 the short pledge was scarcely ever thought of.

But it was in Ireland that the most brilliant successes attended the movement. In 1838 Father Matthew commenced his extraordinary career, and in less than two years 1,800,000 men and women were enrolled in Ireland's Great National's Total Abstinence Society.

Fashion Notes.

New York Fashions.

MILLINERY.

Immensely popular are capotes; so much so that one is set thinking, wherefore this lease of life prolonged? — this cat-like gift of nine lives? Firstly, the capote sets snug on the low coil; secondly, it does not catch the breeze as one walks or drives; it is easily gotten up, and therefore one may have three or four in place of a single, large, elaborate bonnet. There is not a little, too, in that "not catching the breeze, for when the bonnet catches the breeze, the breeze is pretty apt to catch the bonnet and send it tumbling one knows not where, and worse yet, exhibiting one's frizzes and the like when not exactly gotten up for exhibition, or possibly one's own dark locks under one's blonde wig, wig and all being arranged with a view to having one's hat on one's head. The great picturesqueness, however, of the large hat is a strong card in its favor, and accounts for its prolonged fashionableness; yet the inconvenience of a continual clutching to keep it in place of a windy day militates seriously against it; causes one to fall back on turban shapes and to look favorably on the inoffensive little capote, which if no protection, at least remains quiet in tis place and gives rise to no anxieties or awkward complications.

THE MYSTERIES OF COLOR.

Make a thing difficult, give it a name, and everybody wants it. Think of what dark-haired women go through to be made blondes. The difficulty half the charm, the name of blonde the other. So with crushed strawberry and crushed raspberry. Who would care anything about them but for the absurd names and the trouble of determining which is which. The distinction is as puzzling as to know how to get hold of a Louisiana State Lottery ticket. Everybody wants one because it is hard to get one, while thousands are taken in and paid back in prizes to people who think the names of Gens. Beauregard and Early insure the fairness of the drawings. Throughout the world of color, indeed, there is a pleasing sort of mystery. Blues we have that are endeavoring to be greys or greens; yellows that disdain to be yellows and take in puzzling mixtures of red, orange or pink, obtaining curious names thereby and mounting high the ladder of fame. Consider, too, the position reached by color; a lady walking forth in a red costume, a red spotted with blue and the like, nobody looking at her a second time. These reds, however, are no more genuine reds than are most of the blues, greens or yellows—the rather brick dust or terra cotta reds or red having tinges of wine, or mongrel reds bringing us back to whence we started—to crushed raspberry and strawberry. Green is extremely fashionable this season, and while there are hybrid greens, you see charming outfits of clear, positive forest greens.

ARMS OBJECTIONABLE.

Arms seem to be as objectionable as necks. No chance at all for them, since wherever your dress sleeve ends there must your glove extend, unless perhaps in case of an extremely short sleeve, but even then the glove boldly turns the elbow and follows up, leaving only a little of the arm. The exquisitely fitting Harris mousquetaire comes first, the more so as it has been found in every way reliable, yet for morning wear, traveling, etc., the Harris gauntlet is the favorite, since it is closed to the wrist and joined to a cuff, small and snugly fitting the arm. There is no fastening; it requires none, and such convenience is a great card in its favor. Lace mitts are shown, but are subordinate to the beautifully fitting jerseys of silk and Lisle thread mousquetaires. Remember, however, that your gloves must not match your costume, tan and yellow shades being all the go.

CUMMINGTON, MASS., Dec. 2, 1882.

MR. EDITOR:—

As some farmers claim that commercial fertilizers do not last but a month or two, at the most, I would like to tell what I did with Bradley's Phosphate. I turned over a piece of sward land, and spread on a coat of manure, harrowed it in, and planted it to corn, using one tablespoonful of the Phosphate in the hill, covering with soil before dropping the seed. Had a good crop of corn, which I took off as early as possible, and seeded the land to timothy. When the grass was up well the next season, I could see where every hill and row of corn had been, as plainly as I could see the corn the year before. The grass where the hills of corn stood was from six to eight inches higher than anywhere else on the field.

I do not believe that the first crop uses all the plant-food in this Phosphate. I think it pays well to spread on 200 pounds of Bradley's Phosphate to the acre, between the rows of corn or potatoes before the second hoeing, when you have used it in the hill. GEORGE BILLINGS.

SUPPLEMENT.

QUINCY, MASS., MAY 26, 1883.

A Story for Neglected Wives.

"No, Lucy, never make a love-match," said young Mrs. Strong to an old school friend who was paying her an afternoon visit. "Marry for money, for interest—for anything but love. I have tried that and made a failure, such as it would break my heart to see you make."

Lucy Moore listened silently, a thoughtful shadow on her fair young face.

"Is it indeed true?" she said. "I grieve to hear it. How I remember your wedding-day, Mary. How handsome and noble he looked! How bright and happy were you! Oh! surely he loved you very dearly, then?"

"He thought he did, and so did I," said Mrs. Strong, with a half-choked sob. "But it did not last long, Lucy. We have been married just two years, to-day. He will not remember the day. He left me this morning without a kiss, as he usually does. He will come back to dinner in the same way, and after it is over he will go out to his club or some other place, and never come home until after I have gone to bed. And yet I have been a good, faithful and careful wife, and this is my reward."

She hid her face in her hands as she spoke. Lucy Moore bent over her and whispered. "In every way save one, my dear Mary."

Mrs. Strong looked up.

"What do you mean?"

"Promise me not to be angry, and I will tell you."

"Go on."

"Your husband as a young man was very fond of music. Do you ever play or sing to him on an evening now?"

"Oh, no. We gave that up long enough ago."

"But why?"

"I'm sure I can't tell. It was such a bore to practice."

"Do you read aloud to him or have him read to you?"

"No, I used to; but somehow that is given up too."

"And your dress; shall you change it before he comes to dinner?"

Mrs. Strong shook her head. She wore a dingy, flounced delaine, no collar or cuffs, and her hair was rough and untidy; her whole look one of carelessness.

"He would not notice it if I did. What is the use, Lucy? It is all too late."

"No, it is not too late. But it may be soon," said Lucy, earnestly. "Mary, some one ought to tell you. No one dares to but me. Your husband does not go to his club of an evening. He goes to Mrs. Wylie's. You know her; you have heard her name—'The Queen of Flirts.' Mary, she is a dangerous woman. She lives but for admiration, and that she means to have. Your husband gives her admiration now; take care that he gives her no more—his love!"

Mrs. Strong burst into tears.

"What can I do?" she asked. "I know that woman, too well. What chance have I against her?"

"Give yourself a chance," said Lucy, with a kiss. "Let your husband find a pleasant welcome from a wife neatly dressed, Mary. Forgive the hint. You have beauty and grace. Do not neglect them longer. Sing to him, Mary, play to him, charm and fascinate him. You have done it once. Try again, and save him from the 'Queen of Flirts.'"

She stole softly from the room. It had not been a pleasant lesson to receive; it might not have been a pleasant one to give; who shall say? But Mrs. Strong was a sensible, as well as a pretty woman, and five minutes after Lucy Moore had gone she went up to her own room, acknowledging that her friend had spoken but the truth.

That evening, just after the street lamps were lighted, Mr. Strong came carelessly toward his home. Carelessly? Yes, that was the word. That house was fast becoming to him only a place to eat, sleep and dress in—a place for which he had to pay rent and taxes, but in which he took no comfort or pleasure, if the truth must be told.

"Never mind, I'll go to Grace Wylie's as soon as dinner is over, and she will make it up to me, bless her bright eyes!" thought Mr. Strong, as he opened the front door with his latchkey and strode across the hall.

Only half-way, however, for there before him, at the foot of the stairs, stood a graceful, pretty woman, with satin smooth brown hair and bright blue eyes, and cheeks as red as roses, wearing a pretty evening dress of dark blue silk, and shining ornaments upon her snowy neck and arms.

"Welcome home, dear James!" she said, with a heavenly smile. "It's the second anniversary of our wedding day. Won't you spend this evening with me, dear?"

His only answer was a cold embrace and a sudden kiss. Her eyes were dim as he sped up stairs to his own room to prepare for dinner.

"Brute, fool that I have been!" he thought to himself.

And after dinner, on the plea of smoking one cigar, he went into Pond street, and returned with a pretty gold watch and chain as a present for his wife. They sang the old songs together that evening; they talked a long time over the dying fire. Ah, it was not too late. He loved her still, and she saved him and their happy home.

The lesson was not lost upon her. From that day she has never grown careless—never ceased to strive to keep her husband's as she once tried to win her lover's love.

How to Advertise.

A Hartford, Conn., man was denouncing newspaper advertising to a crowd of listeners.

"Last week," said he, "I had an umbrella stolen from the vestibule of the church. It was a gift, and valuing it very highly, I spent double the worth in advertising, but I have not recovered it."

"How did you word the advertisement?" asked a merchant.

"Here it is," said the man, producing a slip cut from a newspaper.

The merchant took it and read:

"Lost from the vestibule of the—— Church, last Sunday evening, a black silk umbrella. The gentleman who took it will be handsomely rewarded by leaving it at No. — San Fernardo street."

"Now," said the merchant, "I am a liberal advertiser, and have always found it paid me well. A great deal depends upon the manner in which an advertisement is put. Let us try for your umbrella again, and if you do not then acknowledge that advertising pays I will purchase you a new one."

The merchant then took a slip of paper from his pocket and wrote:

"If the man who was seen to take an umbrella from the vestibule of the —— Church, last Sunday, does not wish to get into trouble and have a stain cast upon the Christian character which he values so highly, he will return it at once to No. — San Fernardo street. He is well known."

This duly appeared in the papers, and the following morning the man was astonished when he opened the front door of his residence. On the porch lay at least a dozen umbrellas, of all shades and sizes, that had been thrown in from the sidewalk, while the front yard was literally paved with umbrellas. Many of them had notes attached to them, saying that they had been taken by mistake, and begging the loser to keep the little affair quiet.

The Spare Bed.

A well-known bishop, eminent in his position and personal dignity, during the exercise of his official duties was once quartered upon the wealthiest resident of a certain village, whose wife chanced to be away from home. The bishop, with grim humor, frequently complains at being put into the spare room, which is opened especially for him and the encouragement of rheumatism. He is withal a slim man, and on this occasion when his host inquired how he had slept, and hoped he had passed an agreeable night, he answered with some vehemence "No, I did not; I passed a very disagreeable night indeed!"

"The bishop departed, and when the wife of his host returned she naturally asked who had been to the house in her absence.

"Bishop P——," said the husband.

"Bishop P——!" exclaimed the good woman. "And where did you put him to sleep?"

"In the spare bed, of course."

"In the spare bed!" shrieked the horrified matron. "Why, I put all the silver-ware under the mattress before I went away!"

Peter Cooper.

He was of the people and for the people. He was born in their ranks, and he never left their ranks. Prosperity did not produce sluggishness in his blood. Wealth did not taint his goodness. The toiler was as his brother. Pride he never knew. Mere outward appearance he despised. Dissimulation he abhorred; and he went through his long life as gentle as a sweet woman, as kind as a good mother, and as guileless a man as could live and remain human.—New York Truth.

New Remedy.

A new remedy for headache has been found by Dr. Haley, an Australian physician, who says that for some years past he has found minimun doses of iodide of potassium of great service in frontal headache; that is, a heavy, dull headache, situated over the brow, and accompanied by languor, chilliness and a feeling of general discomfort, with distaste for food, which sometimes approaches to nausea, can be completely removed by a two-grain dose dissolved in half a wineglass of water, and this quietly sipped, the whole quantity being taken in about ten minutes. In many cases, he adds, the effect of these small doses has been simply wonderful—as, for instance, a person who a quarter of an hour before was feeling most miserable, and refused all food, wishing only for quietness, would now take a good meal and resume his wonted cheerfulness. If this cure of Dr. Haley's is in reality a practical one, he will merit for the discovery the gratitude of suffering millions.

☞ A somewhat remarkable dwelling is to be constructed for an eccentric personage of Pennsylvania. It is to be entirely of iron, even to the doors and window-sashes. The mantels are to be of polished steel and the floors of polished cast-iron tiles or stout iron plates bolted to the iron joists. The hollow walls are to be arranged to act as chimneys, ventilators and conductors of heat to various parts of the house. Expansion and contraction from the effect of heat and cold are to be obviated by having breaks in the iron at intervals, which will be filled in with rubber. Fire risks on that house ought to be light.

SUPPLEMENT.

Personal.

We copy the following notice of a young man, a native of Quincy, who is now engaged in lecturing in Minnesota, from the Lacqui Parle Press, of May 4th:—

"Mr. Geo. W. Penniman, who has lectured here recently, is but twenty-three years of age, and is probably the youngest temperance lecturer in the field. He came to this state from Massachusetts Aug. 7th, 1882, as a lecturer for the constitutional amendment committee; he was added to the committee in November, and in December was chosen manager of the work in the the Third Congressional District. He was secretary of the recent state temperance convention, and was unanimously chosen Field Manager and State Organizer of the prohibition party of Minnesota at a subsequent meeting of the state committee. During his stay in this state he has delivered 155 lectures and addresses to 19,992 people, visiting 27 counties and travelling 6,237 miles; added to this, he has organized 13 open and 6 secret societies, including 7 prohibition clubs, attending 3 state conventions, and had charge of 8 county conventions. Our readers will unite in saying that this is a pretty good work."

The New Five-Cent Piece.

The coinage of the new nickel five-cent pieces continues at the rate of five or six hundred thousand pieces a week, and the mints will continue there issue until there is no longer any demand for them. There are now about three million pieces of the new design of "nickels," and 120,000 of the old coinage in, as is sometimes said, but will still form the bulk of the nickel coinage circulation, the new design being used when a demand for more is received. There are at present order on file for nearly one hundred thousand pieces of the new coin, though requests for them come to the mints every day.

TELEPHONES. Providence claims to have more telephones in proportion to the population than any other city in the world. It may have a larger per cent. then any other city, but not more than any other place. The Walpole Star last week published a list of subscribers in that town, 39 in all, making one to 64 inhabitants. Providence has one to 72; Sharon, one to 222; Boston, one to 253; New York, one to 400; Paris, one to 471 and London, one to 2563; thus far Walpole seems to lead the world. The rent of telephones there is $30 per annum.—Canton Journal.

OBITUARY. Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham widely known in connection with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound died May 17th, at Lynn. She first made small quantities of the medicine in an ordinary kettle on a kitchen stove. Her sons took up the business and built up an immense trade by advertising. The concern did a third of a million of business in one year and the advertising payments were $200,000.

DIVIDED IT. A gentleman of Fort Wayne, Ind., received $4,600 pension money from the Government a few days ago, and divided the same equally between the two hospitals of that city.

☞ A small army of workmen are putting finishing touches to the steamer Pilgrim at Newport. It it expected that she will be ready for duty about June 1. A short excursion trip is talked of, to give the directors and other officials of the company, with representatives of the press, an opportunity to see the noble steamer and test her machinery, etc.

☞ Eight pieces of silver service were found in the woods at Saugus last week and have been identified as that stolen from the Universalist Church in Everett recently.

☞ Engraved visiting cards for pet dogs are the latest ridiculous touch of fashion in Philadelphia, and these are samples from the canine card-receiver: "Spider—Maheim street, Germantown;" "Topsy Bowow and the Misses Bowow, 309 South——street;" "Prince, No. 831 South —— street, Saturdays —Bones." That last suggestive word means that refreshments will be provided for callers.

☞ An aged citizen of Brockton died last week, having passed his whole life on the spot where he was born; the changes of time, while he occupied in the old homestead, having made him resident of three towns and one city.

☞ A Middleboro' undertaker was put to considerable extra expense by the non-arrival of a casket ordered from New York. He had to charter an engine for $50, and send it to Fall River to bring along his dilatory freight.

let is the latest fancy in decoration.

The preferred gloves are in cool shades of gray and tan, chamois and buff.

The taste for mahogany red, terra cotta, and brick colored gloves is on the wane.

Yokes of children's dresses are square or round, high or deep, according to fancy.

The exaggerated style of the court of Marie Antoinette are very popular in Paris.

Olive shades combine well with the new shades of stawberry, terra cotta and shrimp pink.

Ribbons lined with colored satin are much used for strings, and are found very useful and effective for the "ribbon roses" employed as trimming upon many bonnets, instead of flowers or feathers. The colors of the two sides of the ribbon must harmonize well, or the good effect is lost.

Very wide cape collars, after the style of those worn by children, but made of richer laces, are found so dressy and becoming that they are now worn by ladies with even simple every day costumes. With deep cuffs to match, collars, in fact have become a very important feature of the toilet.

EXPERIMENTAL BARN. An experimental barn has been completed at Amherst college, Massachusetts. The large stables have cement floors and sides, where cattle are to be kept while experiments in feeding are going on. The cement is to prevent loss in manure. Space is reserved for a capacious silo, and in annex are an engine and machinery for cutting and cooking feed. In a wing is a piggery consisting of twenty apartments each with a door opening into the alley, and the porkers who are being tried with various kinds of food will be invited to stand upon a portable platform scale every day.

HYDE PARK. The committee of the insurance companies to adjust the loss of the Hyde Park Town Hall, burned March 9, have agreed to settle for the full amount of the insurance, $15,000, less a salvage of $72 on the vault and ruins.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE. Speaker Marden, of the House of Representatives, has appointed Messrs. Hutchinson, of Chelsea, E. P. Butler, of Boston, and Geo. E. Craig, of Wapole, as the committee on the part of the House for the reception of distinguished visitors from abroad during the foreign exhibition soon to be held in Boston.

DON'T WHIP HIM. "Ma,' howled a boy, running into the house and approached his mother, "Ma, little brother hit me with a stick."

"Well, I'll whip your little brother," said the mother, abstractedly tucking together a pair of stockings she had been darning.

"No, don't whip him. Don't let him have any supper. I whipped him before he hit me."—Arkansas Traveller.

☞ A little three-year-old girl impressed her parents with her juvenile wisdom the other night by wording the following prayer: "Bless the food; make the baby good; forgive the sins; bless everything in the house. We thank you for keeping us through the storm. Keep the baby good. Amen."

☞ A number of residents of North Grinnell, Ia., along the track of last year's cyclone, have prepared underground caves to which they can flee for protection in case of repetition of the disastrous storm. Prof. H. W. Parker of Iowa College is said to be one who has thus prepared for an emergency.

☞ The Brooklyn bridge is not to be free, after all; one cent toll will be charged for foot passengers. Even so insignificant a sum will probably in a few years pay the expenses of the entire structure.

☞ This running out of town to spend your dollars is a sure way to kill out all enterprise among the local dealers. Trade at home, where you expect to get your own living.—Milford Journal.

☞ The combined efforts of four policemen were recently required to carry into the House of Commons a petition in favor of closing public houses on Sunday—one of the largest documents of the kind ever presented to Parliament. It contained 590,332 signatures upon a continuous roll of paper, which was 4832 yards long and weighed 350 pounds.

RETURN OF

Births to the Town Clerk,

BY PHYSICIANS AND MIDWIVES.

AN ACT to compel a more accurate Registration of Births.

BE IT ENACTED, ETC.:—

SECTION 1. It shall be the duty of every physician and midwife in the several cities and towns in this Commonwealth, excepting Boston, to report on or before the fifth day of each month to the clerk of each city and town a correct list of births of all children born therein during the month next preceding, at which such physician or midwife was present, stating therein the place, date of each birth, and parents' names.

SECTION 2. Town and city clerks shall give public notice that they are prepared to furnish the necessary blanks to all physicians and midwives applying therefor.

SECTION 3. Any physician or midwife neglecting to report such list for ten days after it is due, shall, for each offence, forfeit a sum not exceeding twenty dollars.

SECTION 4. This Act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved February 23, 1880.

I hereby give notice that I am prepared to furnish the blanks above mentioned.

Quincy, Mar. 17. Jan. 20.—1y

The Subscriber, Sealer of

Weights and Measures,

—FOR THE—

TOWN OF QUINCY.

FOR the present year, hereby gives notice to the inhabitants of said town, that he will be at the Selectmen's room on the four following MONDAYS:—May 7, 14, 21 and 28, from 9 to 12 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of Sealing such Beams, Weights and Measures as shall be brought to him for that purpose.

Also, that he may be found at his store No. 90 Hancock Street, any day after that time.

GEORGE SAVILLE, Sealer.

"Any person using any scales, weights, measures or milk cans after a sealer of weights and measures has demanded permission to test the same, and has been refused such permission, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars."

"If any person shall knowingly use any false weight, measure, milk can, scale, balance or beam, or shall alter any weight, measure, milk can, scale, balance or beam, after the same shall have been adjusted and sealed, so that the same thereby shall not conform to the public standard, and shall fraudently make use of the same, he shall forfeit for each offence the sum of fifty dollars, one-half to the use of the city or town, and one-half to the use of the complainant."

Assessors' Notice.

1625 : 1640 : 1792

To the Inhabitants and all other Persons liable to pay taxes in the Town of Quincy:

THE Assessors of the Town of Quincy hereby give notice to the inhabitants of said town, and all persons liable to pay taxes therein, that they will be at the office of the Selectmen, EVERY SATURDAY in May, from 2 to 4½ o'clock, P. M., and from May 26th until June 2d, every day from 8 to 10 o'clock A. M., to receive the valuation of estates; and all persons liable to be taxed in said town are hereby required to bring in at said office, a true and correct schedule of the Real and Personal Estates, for which they are liable to pay taxes.

Mortgaged Real Estate.

"Any mortgagor or mortgagee of real estate may bring in to the assessors of the town or city wherein such real estate lies," within the time specified in this notice, "a statement, under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such real estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagor. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a recorded mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement."—[Chap. 175 of the Acts of 1882.] When a statement in conformity with the law above quoted is brought in, the real estate therein returned will be assessed under Sections 14, 15 and 16, of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes. But in cases where the mortgagor of the real estate has agreed in writing to pay all taxes assessed thereon, NO STATEMENT OR RETURN is REQUIRED from either mortgagee or mortgagor, unless requested by the assessors in writing.

Returns of Property held for Literary, Benevolent, Charitable or Scientific Purposes.

[Chap. 217, Acts 1882.]

"All persons and corporations are required to bring in to the assessors, not later than the first day of July, 1883, true lists of all real and personal estate held by such persons and corporations respectively for literary, benevolent, charitable or scientific purposes on the first day of May, 1883, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures by such persons or corporations for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of May, 1883, such lists and statements to be in such detail as may be required by the Tax Commissioner." Blank forms for the above returns can be had of the assessors.

Persons holding estates in trust are requested to furnish the assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands, from some other causes, the executor or administrator is required to give notice of such change. In default of such notice, he will be held responsible for the tax assessed.

Any person bringing in a list of his taxable property will be assessed upon the valuation thereof, and any one neglecting to furnish the assessors with such list, within the time above specified, will at a legal meeting of the Board of Assessors, be doomed according to the laws of the Commonwealth.

All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing, and subscribed under oath before one of the assessors at their office, on or before the third day of June; and that the personal property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board of Assessors, notwithstanding a verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the assessors.

When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed upon such person for such property can be granted, unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per centum the amount which would have been assessed to that person on personal estate.

Assessors' Notice.

QUINCY 1625: 1640: 1792

To the Inhabitants and all other Persons liable to pay taxes in the Town of Quincy:

THE Assessors of the Town of Quincy hereby give notice to the inhabitants of said town, and all persons liable to pay taxes therein, that they will be at the office of the Selectmen, EVERY SATURDAY in May, from 2 to 4½ o'clock, P. M., and from May 26th until June 2d, every day from 8 to 10 o'clock A. M., to receive the valuation of estates; and all persons liable to be taxed in said town are hereby required to bring in at said office, a true and correct schedule of the Real and Personal Estates, for which they are liable to pay taxes.

Mortgaged Real Estate.

"Any mortgagor or mortgagee of real estate may bring in to the assessors of the town or city wherein such real estate lies," within the time specified in this notice, "a statement, under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such real estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagor. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a recorded mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement."—[Chap. 175 of the Acts of 1882.] When a statement in conformity with the law above quoted is brought in, the real estate therein returned will be assessed under Sections 14, 15 and 16, of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes. But in cases where the mortgagor of the real estate has agreed in writing to pay all taxes assessed thereon, NO STATEMENT OR RETURN IS REQUIRED from either mortgagee or mortgagor, unless requested by the assessors in writing.

Returns of Property held for Literary, Benevolent, Charitable or Scientific Purposes.

[Chap. 217, Acts 1882.]

"All persons and corporations are required to bring in to the assessors, not later than the first day of July, 1883, true lists of all real and personal estate held by such persons and corporations respectively for literary, benevolent, charitable or scientific purposes on the first day of May, 1883, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures by such persons or corporations for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of May, 1883, such lists and statements to be in such detail as may be required by the Tax Commissioner." Blank forms for the above returns can be had of the assessors.

Persons holding estates in trust are requested to furnish the assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands, from some other causes, the executor or administrator is required to give notice of such change. In default of such notice, he will be held responsible for the tax assessed.

furnish the assessors with such list, within the time above specified, will at a legal meeting of the Board of Assessors, be doomed according to the laws of the Commonwealth.

All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing, and subscribed under oath before one of the assessors at their office, on or before the third day of June; and that the personal property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board of Assessors, notwithstanding a verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the assessors.

When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed upon such person for such property can be granted, unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per centum the amount which would have been assessed to that person on personal estate.

PRAYER.

BY ALDEN H. DAY.

Oh! Father, thou whose name is love,
Whose glory lights the world above,
We pray Thee hear our prayer;
Help us to walk the appointed way,
Comfort and bless us every day,
And guide us safely there.

The precious blood by Jesus shed,
Oh, God, pour out upon our head,
That we from sin be clean,
Until on earth all souls shall be United in their praise to Thee,
Thou glorious unseen.

We have Thy promise that if we,
With contrite hearts, will come to Thee
And bow before Thy throne,
That Thou our hearts will purge from sin
And make us ever pure within,
And claim us as Thine own.

Teach us that we no more repine,
But humbly say: "Thy will, not mine,
For evermore be done,"
Until our earthly life be spent,
And we, recalled from banishment,
See Thee and Christ Thy son.

Miscellany.

Losing Both.

"Cora," said old Miss Duchesne, abruptly, "did you ever have your fortune told?"

Cora Leslie was dreaming over her needlework in the soft light of the April noon. Blossoming cyclamens were in the deep casements; a white hyacinth hung its odorous bells in the sunshine; a blue-ribboned work basket was drawn close to the window, and a fire of logs burned, with a comfortable, crackling sound, in the deep, tiled fireplace.

Cora started at the sudden question, and then smiled.

"I?" said she. "My fortune told. How should I? We city girls never stumble across gypsy camps; and I don't believe in the wise women who advertise from city flats."

Old Miss Duchesne was sallow, with very black hair, scarcely as yet sprinkled with gray, although sixty years had passed over it; sharp, black eyes, and a nose and chin which nearly met. She looked almost like a sphinx herself as she sat there.

"I used to tell fortunes, when I was a girl," said she.

"With cards?" laughed Cora.

"No; by palmistry. Shall I tell yours?"

Cora looked at the old lady with sur-

their way into her very brain.

But Miss Duchesne had been the school-friend of Cora's mother, years and years ago, and Cora had always humored her eccentricities.

"If you choose," said she half hesitating.

"Give me your hand," said Miss Duchesne—"the same hand which you are one day going to bestow upon Duke Chesterton in marriage!"

"Yes," said Cora, calmly.

"A white, plump, velvety little hand," said Miss Duchesne, peering so closely into the palm that her nose almost touched the rosy skin. "Let me see! let—me—see! The line of luck; the line of life; the line of love! Ah, here we are! Beware of a dark girl. She is coming between you and the line of love. She will work you sore trouble yet."

Miss Duchesne dropped the hand, took off her spectacles, and solemnly placed them in her pocket. Then she leaned back in her chair and regarded Cora intently.

The girl sat as if some new light had suddenly dawned upon her brain.

"You mean my Cousin Ariadne?" said she, involuntarily.

Miss Duchesne nodded.

"I mean your Cousin Ariadne," said she. "Child, child! can it be possible that you are so blind as not to see what is going on under your very eyes? That girl is winning your lover away."

Cora smiled incredulously.

"Oh, but," said she, "that is quite impossible. Duke loves me! He is engaged to me!"

"Men are false as Mephistopheles," said Miss Duchesne, with energy. "There never was one yet proof against the wiles of a siren like Ariadne Buckingham."

"Miss Duchesne, you must not talk so," faltered Cora, with the color varying on her cheek, and a startled look in her eyes. "Ariadne is my guest. Duke is my engaged lover. I—"

Silently Miss Duchesne drew aside the ruby velvet draperies of the window and pointed to where Miss Leslie's own carriage was drawn up opposite the curbstone. Ariadne Buckingham—a tall, brilliant brunette—in a carriage costume of salmon satin and plush, was just stepping out. Marmaduke Chesterton, bowing low over her hand, pressed his lips to it as he assisted her to alight.

"Do you see that?" said Miss Duchesne.

Cora burst into tears and hurried from the room, just as Miss Buckingham entered from an opposite portal, all smiles, followed by Mr. Chesterton.

"Where is Cora?" said the brunette, airly. "I hope her headache is better. We have had such a delightful morning at the picture gallery, Duke and I. And we have brought home some exquisite cut-flowers to arrange for dinner. Where are they, Duke? Bring them in here. I am sure Cora will excuse us for invading her boudoir."

But Miss Duchesne did not return the fair Ariadne's smiles. She gathered up her knitting, made some curt reply about desiring to be alone, and stalked out of the room.

"Cross old thing!" pouted Ariadne. "One would almost imagine, Duke, that you were her lover, and that she was jealous!"

She laughed a shrill, sweet tinkle of sound. Marmaduke Chesterton laughed, also. All that Ariadne Buckingham did or said was perfect in his eyes.

Miss Buckingham's father had lost his all in unfortunate ventures, and Ariadne had been brought up on an income of nothing per annum.

Every one pitied poor Ariadne, who, nevertheless, was always exquisitely dressed, went everywhere, and lived, metaphorically speaking, on the fat of the land.

She had written to Cora Leslie, her mother's cousin, that she would like to spend a winter in Philadelphia, and Cora, full of sweet, womanly compassion, had promptly sent money for her to come.

"I never had a sister," wrote Cora, "and I am sure that I shall love you dearly!"

And it was thus that Ariadne had rewarded her. The old story over again of the serpent who stings its benefactor.

But, although Cora had been blind the rest of the world, like Miss Duchesne, were more clear-sighted.

Colonel Vavason, Mr. Chesterton's uncle, took him sternly to task for his defection from the line of equity.

"Duke," said he, "I may be a little old-fashioned, but all this looks to me like a piece of first-class villainy! Miss Leslie has neither father nor brother to interfere in her behalf. She is a jewel among women, and that Buckingham girl is a heartless flirt!"

Duke laughed.

"My dear uncle," said he, "you take things too seriously! Cannot an engaged man so much as look at other women?"

But one day, in blossomy May, Colonel Vavason's card was brought up to Miss Leslie.

Cora was preparing to go out with Miss Duchesne for a drive. She was full of bright happiness that morning, and even Miss Duchesne breathed more freely, for Ariadne Buckingham had left them the night before, in response—so, at least, she gave them to understand—to a telegram from her father, who was ill. The nightmare dream was over at last—all the world was May!

She ran down into the drawing-room, where Colonel Vavason leaned against the mantle, tall, pale and handsome.

"Oh, Colonel," she said, brightly, "I am so glad to see you. Duke is coming here at two o'clock to—"

But she paused as her eyes fell on his pale features, the look of mute horror in his eyes.

went away

note asking me to tell you. He loves Ariadne Buckingham, and has followed her to her home!"

And so Cora Leslie closed the chapter of her first love—or, rather, Marmaduke Chesterton closed it for her.

Of course there were plenty of people to pity her with ostentatious sympathy, and plenty to say that they had prophesied it all along; plenty to comment on Cora's trusting blindness and Duke's smooth hypocrisy.

But Cora held her own valiantly. She was a little paler, perhaps; a little quieter. But the heart wound was too deep for any surface bleeding. And the world whispered behind its jewelled fan: "How well she bears it."

At the end of a year Marmaduke Chesterton came back. He was not married to Miss Buckingham after all. The beautiful brunette had accepted his presents, smiled on him with those melting eyes of hers, amused herself at his expense, and finally wedded a young lieutenant of artillery, to whom she had been engaged for years, and poor Duke's eyes had been summarily opened to the folly of his ways. He was pale and haggard as he stood there in the boudoir, where he had first asked Cora Leslie to be his wife.

But Cora was lovelier than ever. As he looked at her he marvelled that he could ever have cared for one like Ariadne Buckingham.

"Cora," he said in a broken voice, as she cordially gave him her hand, "can you ever forgive me?"

"Oh, yes," she answered, smiling, "I forgave you long ago. And oh, how you must have suffered, Duke?"

"But," he went on eagerly, "I am disenchanted now. My eyes are open at last. I know now that I never really loved any one but you. Sweet Cora, is it too late to ask you to renew our engagement once more?"

"I am afraid it is," said Cora, still serenely self-possessed and calm.

"But why?" he urged, half maddened by suspense.

"One reason," answered Cora, "is that I have long since ceased to care (except, of course, as a friend) for the man who loved Ariadne Buckingham better than me. The other is that I am to be married next week to Colonel Vavason."

"To—my uncle?"

"Yes, Duke," she answered serenely, "to your uncle. I love and honor him as I never loved or honored man before!"

So Marmaduke Chesterton lost both blonde and brunette, and Miss Duchesne was satisfied at last that her darling was happily wedded. As for Cora, she believes with the poet that:

"There is a Providence that shapes our ends, Rough hew them as we may!"

For did not that darksome path of pain and suffering lead into the sweetest sunshine at last?

☞ "Father," said Johnnie, "this paper says that "many prominent citizens are now ill with pneumonia and kindred diseases. What is a kindred disease, father?" "Why, my son," said Smithy, "a kindred disease is—is—why—yes, yes! a kindred disease is one that runs through an entire family—kindred, relatives, you know. Surprised you didn't know that, Johnnie!"

Brooklyn Bridge.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 26, 1883.

The opening of this supurb, aerial avenue has been the event of the season. Indeed, no event is comparable with it since the Walloons settled here 259 years ago. I have seen crowds in American and in foreign cities before, but Thursday eclipsed all previous spectacles. Fourteen years waiting had made millions impatient. The completion was a cause of general joy. The exquisite beauty of the day drew thousands from the vicinity. The street cars took 250,000 fares. The President and Cabinet attracted many, and the costly fireworks were another alluring spectacle, but the bridge itself was the centre of interest to all. It has cost nearly fourteen years toil, twenty-five lives and fifteen million dollars. It is the arch of triumph that proclaims, not, as at Paris, the victory of war, but that of industry and peace, as well as the alliance of nations. Swedish skill planned our Monitor, German talent our bridge, and French generosity lifts the lofty Statue of Liberty with its crown of electric fire. Brooklyn will soon be the bride of New York. She brings a rich dower. She has a population close on to 700,000; and many miles of streets, 330 paved and 200 unpaved; more shipping at her piers, which now stretch twenty-five miles; 130 miles of street railways, carrying ninety millions a year; and manufactures producing one hundred million dollars. Those who have thought it only the "domitory" of New-York, a sleeping place for the living and a Greenwood for the dead, or the City of Churches, alone, are rubbing their eyes.

It was a hamlet of a hundred houses sixty years ago, now they "sport" a debt of thirty-five millions!

The speeches of Mayor Low and Dr. Storrs were the gems of the occasion. They were in print when delivered and for sale immediately afterwards. The travel over this broad avenue, 85 feet wide, yesterday was simply immense.

The Scarlet Fever.

It is as unnecessary for a child to die of the scarlet fever as it is that it should be blind with a cataract. Let us see. At any time before the body has finished its ineffectual struggle we are able to help it, not by wonderful medicines, but by the knowledge of anatomy and the application of common sense. We consult the sympa-

it—not vinegar, but lemon juice, because the first coagulates albumen, and the latter does not, on account of the surplus of oxygen which it contains. To imitate the soothing mucus in the intestines, which is now wanting, and to give some respiratory food at the same time, we add some gum arabic. To restore and relieve the injured nerve, we apply moist warmth. In practice we can fulfil all this with the following simple manipulations: Undress the child and bring it to bed at the very first sign of sickness. Give it, if it has already fever, nothing but sourish, warm lemonade with some gum arabic in it. Then cover its abdomen with some dry flannel. Take a well-folded bed sheet and put it in boiling hot water; wring it out dry by means of dry towels, and put this over the flannel on the child's abdomen. Then cover the whole and wait. The hot cloths will, perhaps, require repeated heat. According to the severity of the case, and its stage of progress, perspiration will commence in the child in from ten minutes to two hours. The child is then saved; it soon falls to sleep. Soon after the child awakes, it shows slight symptoms of returning inclination for food; help its bowels, if necessary, with injections of oil, soap and water, and its recovery will be as steady as the growth of a greenhouse plant, if well treated. Of course, if the child was already dying, nothing could save it, or if it has already effusions in the lining of the heart or brain; it is much better that it should die. But if the above is applied in due time, under the eyes and direction of a competent physician, I will guarantee that not one in a hundred children will ever die of scarlet fever. I know this will startle some of my readers, especially those who have lost children already, but I shall go still farther. I maintain that a child will never get scarlet fever if properly treated. If a child has correctly mixed blood, it will not catch the disorder if put in bed with a sick child. This is still more startling, but nothing is easier of proof.—Good Health.

Boys will be Boys.

A boy will tramp two hundred and forty miles in one day on a rabbit hunt and be limber in the evening; when, if you ask him to cross the street and borrow Jones' two-inch auger, he will be as stiff as a meat block. And he will go swimming all day and stay in the water three hours at a time, and splash and dive, and paddle and puff, and next morning he will feel that an unmeasured insult has been offered to him when he is told by his mother to wash his face.

And he'll wander around a dry creek bed all the evening piling up a pebble fort, and nearly die when his big sister wants him to pick up a basket of chips for the parlor stove. And he'll spend the biggest part of his time in trying to corner a stray mule or a bare backed horse for a ride, and feel that all life's charms have fled when it comes his turn to drive the cows home. And he'll turn a ten acre lot upside down for ten inches of angle worms, and wish for the voiceless tomb when the garden demands attention.

The Blue Hill.

BY E. G. CHAMBERLAIN.

The following sketch of the Blue Hills we copy from a recent number of the Appalachia, a journal printed by the Appalachia Mountain Club, and we think it will be found to be quite interesting:—

"The Blue Hills may be considered as the nearest mountain range to Boston. Their summits do not appear very high, to be sure, in tables of altitudes; but as the surrounding country, so near the seacoast, is very low,—the Providence Railroad near Green Lodge having an elevation of only about fifty feet,—their height counts for its full value.

"The entire range is seven miles long. Beginning at Little Blue, in Canton, it extends Easterly and then North-easterly, and terminates at President's Hill, opposite the Old Colony station in Quincy. The highest summit, and at the same time the highest elevation of land in Eastern Massachusetts, is Blue Hill, or "Blue Hill Mountain," as it is called by those living near it. It is situated in the township of Milton near the Canton line, and rises 635 feet above the sea. It was an important station of the State Survey, and afterwards of the U. S. Coast Survey. A mile Easterly from Blue is Hancock Hill, 507 feet; a mile further East, Bear Hill, in Quincy, 495 feet; a mile North-east of Bear is Fenno's Peak, 518 feet, the second in height of the range. Seven other summits reach 400 feet or upwards. Diligent inquiry for their names has resulted in but slight success.

"So wild is this region that a section nearly five miles long, extending from East Milton through Quincy into Braintree and Randolph, is crossed only by the cart-paths leading to the quarries and wood-lots. Between Hancock Hill and its Western ridge is an elevated basin, open to the north, called the Hancock Valley. On the Eastern slope of Fenno's Peak is a wild, narrow pass, resembling a railroad cut, which I have called Fenno's Notch. In answer to a question often asked me, let me say that I have never seen a rattlesnake among these hills.

"The quarries of Quincy granite are near West Quincy, where the hills are almost honeycombed with quarry-holes. Here is Railway Hill, where may be seen remains of what is claimed to be the first railroad in America, built once stood a stone observatory, we see the quarryman still excavating."

Missionary Work.

"Is your husband at home?" "No, he is 'coon hunting. He killed two whopping big 'coons last Sunday." "Does he fear the Lord?" "I guess he does; 'cause he always takes his gun with him." "Have you any Presbyterians around here?" "I don't know if he has killed any or not. You can go out behind the house and look at the pile of hides and see if you can find any of their skins." "I see that you are living in the dark." "Yes, but my husband is going to cut out a winder soon."—Wheeling Register.

Remedy for Rats.

Mr. Fogarty and Mr. Samuelson have long been friends, but they are so no longer, in consequence of Mr. Fogarty's propensity for joking. Mr. Samuelson is known to be very parsimonious. He remarked to Fogarty: The rats are very bad in Austin. They are trying to gnaw a hole into my pantry. What should I do to circumvent them?" "Starve them to death by leaving the door of your pantry open at night."—Texas Siftings.

A Misunderstanding.

A new brick building is being erected on Main street, and recently a double-eyed, banged-hair woman with a basket of eggs on one arm and a can of butter in her hand, stopped before the boss of construction and said:

"Want to buy any eggs?"

"You will have to give her about three tenpennies more," said the boss directing a workman.

"Give who some tenpennies?" asked the woman setting down her butter.

"Say, Jim, come around here with your axe and hit her in the head."

"Oh, your agoin' to have me hit in the head," said the woman putting down her eggs. "Well, when you want me hit in the head, just you commence ahitten'. I'm—"

"Hoist her up, hoist her up. Hurry up, she'll burst in two," yelled the boss as a large timber commenced splitting.

The boss, now that the affair is over and his nerves in a healthful state, says he knows it was the old woman who hit him, but at the time he thought the building had caved in, and for the salary of a Senator he wouldn't undertake to again convince that woman that he was talking to the workmen instead of her.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Uncle Sam's Example.

One of most influential Georgia grangers was superintending affairs at his cotton press the other day, when he was accosted by a neighbor. "I see colonel, that the tariff bill has passed." "Is that so? How about cotton ties "Still thirty-five per cent. ad valorem." "Well, here, you boys, thar! sift another shovel o' sand in the middle of the bale; I can't afford to reform until the tariff does." And the sifting was strictly attended to.—Georgia Major.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1883.

Memorial Day.

The weather on Wednesday was perfect in all respects for carrying out the programme arranged for Memorial Day. Business throughout the town was almost universally suspended. The day being pleasant and inviting, the people availed themselves of the privilege of enjoying it in the open air, and the streets were filled most of the day with throngs of people.

The members of Paul Revere Post commenced their labors very early by decorating the graves of their Comrades in the several cemeteries. These duties were attended to as in former years. At the two Catholic Cemeteries there were 49 graves decorated; Rev. Father Francis showed his good feelings and sympathy with the Post by being present and holding services. The Hall Cemetery in the west part of the town, the Episcopal in the south, the Sailors' Home in the north and the Hancock street in the centre were visited, and all the graves received their token of remembrance, in the shape of beautiful baskets of flowers.

Having attended to their duties, the comrades assembled at their headquarters, about 12 o'clock, where a bountiful collation awaited them which they heartily enjoyed after their long tramps; about two o'clock, they formed in line, and preceded by the Holbrook Band marched to the corner of Adams and Hancock streets, where they received a delegation of comrades from Post 121 of Hyde Park, who were to be their guests for the afternoon. They then took up their line of march for Mount Wollaston cemetery and a large procession of citizens in carriages and on foot joined them.

The ceremonies at this beautiful resting place of the dead were very impressive. Before proceeding to the Soldiers' monument, details from the Post, marched to the soldiers' graves, of which there are one hundred and one, and at the sound of the bugle, reverentially placed a basket of flowers on each. At the call of the bugle they again formed in line and marched to the Soldiers' monument where prayer was offered, and Rev. D. M. Wilson, Chaplain of the day, made a brief address. Beautiful wreaths of flowers were placed by the comrades, with appropriate remarks around the base of the monument, and at the close of the ceremonies a benediction was given and the band played which concluded the exercises at this lovely spot.

"Nearer my God to Thee,"

The Post again took up their line of march for Paul Revere Hall, where they partook of a supper, and after a short but pleasant time spent in listening to some excellent music by the band, their guests from Hyde Park took their departure.

About 7.30 they proceeded to the Town Hall to listen to a very interesting and appropriate address by the orator of the day, the Rev. Samuel Kelley. The hall was well filled and the audience listened with marked attention to the excellent address.

A contributor to these columns says:

"We wonder if many who were in the Town Hall that evening appreciated as they should the treat offered them. It was a rare occasion. The significance of it was not in the orator's words altogether, though so sincere, nor in his presence, though at times so commanding, but in these combined with the whole man himself. He is in years about "40 strong," as he said after the oration, years that cover some of the most momentous in the history of our country. He has lived through them all with open mind and tender conscience, their great questions throbbing in his heart beats, the while he did his part to wrest from the future righteous answers. Saturated he certainly is with the moral elements, which, through those "forty strong" years battled with the slave power, and finally overcame it in the civil war, and what our people witnessed last Wednesday evening was the fervid exhalation of all that."

"He was full of a half-century's emotions which demanded expression; a "burden was on his heart" of which he must free himself, and he did it passionately and with a noble sincerity, in words which those who knew the days before the war would understand, but which to those born later might seem strange. Some of us heard the genuine eloquence of one who feels deeply and truly, and we hope all who listened were as fortunate."

Rare Coins.

We were shown this week a very ancient gold coin, which was found many years ago, among oyster shells, on one of the wharves in Boston, by the late Jacob Tirrell, of Weymouth, and bears the date of 1733. It is now in the possession of Mrs. Sarah J. Nash, a granddaughter of the finder, who resides near the canal in Quincy. It is a foreign coin and has on one side a crown with the following inscription: "Joannes V. D. G. Peialgrey, 1000." On the opposite side around the edge is the following:—"IN * HOC * SIGN * VINCES * 1733." These quotations were interpreted in part some years ago by the late Judge Leland, as follows: In this sign we conquer John V. By the grace of ——King of Italy.

We made mention last week of an old copper coin owned by Mr. Charles Breck of Milton. It appears that a similar coin has been found in Marshfield, from the following paragraph cut this week from the South Shore Herald:

"Charles Darling while excavating at the "Ames Place," Marshfield, found a copper coin, bearing the date 1787, and the inscription, "we are one" on one side, and on the other, "mind your own business." This copper was the first United States coin and was known as the Franklin cent, as the philosopher recommended the adoption of such pithy sentences on our coinage. Although a United States coin, it was coined by private contract, and a large portion of the issue was minted in Connecticut. It formed the chief article of copper currency down to the issue of the cent of 1793 and even later."

GYPSIES. The Gypsies are once more among us. They came last Saturday and put up their tents on Hancock street, West of Mr. Peter Butler's. There are quite a number of families, consisting of young, old and middle-aged. They seem pleased to see visitors, and a great many young people have visited them. The first salutation is, "Won't you buy a basket?" or "won't you have your fortune told?" "Tell your past, present and future, and if it isn't true you needn't pay us." They have some very fine horses, and good carriages.

Brief Locals.

☞ Eight shares of the Mount Wollaston Bank stock are advertised for sale.

☞ Several slight accidents occurred on Wednesday whereby one or two carriages lost their wheels.

☞ Mrs. William H. Baxter and her mother, Mrs. Morrill, returned home to New York on Tuesday.

☞ Paul Revere Post decorated two hundred and forty-six graves in the several cemeteries in this town.

☞ Mr. Charles H. Hardwick has a beautiful lawn in front of his residence; the handsomest, we think, in Quincy.

☞ Mr. William D. Webb left last Saturday for Europe, under the instructions of Jordan, Marsh & Co., to fill orders for the firm. May success attend him.

☞ Contributions for the Boston Flower and Fruit Mission may be left on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday next, at the house of Mrs. Wm. S. Morton, on Spear street.

☞ Mrs. Noah Cummings, who has been spending the winter in East Milton, is intending to pass the summer with a sister, the widow of the late Hon. Alden B. Savery, in Deerfield, Maine.

☞ A large egg has been placed on our table, which was the production of a clever biddy belonging to Mrs. Ann M. Everson. Its measure is 8 3-4 by 7 1-4 inches, which, we think, would make a generous breakfast for a hungry man.

☞ The Quincy branch of the Irish National League will hold a special meeting at their hall on Water street, Tuesday evening, to ratify the proceedings of the Philadelphia convention.

☞ Among the private sales in Norfolk County, we notice the following in Quincy: Catherine Sullivan has sold to Mary Durran land and buildings on Mount Pleasant for $1275; Harry C. Rogers has sold to Royal M. Pulsifer land and buildings on Billings street, Atlantic, for $5000.

☞ A horse belonging to E. Hawes, of East Stoughton, became unmanageable, and clearing himself from the carriage rushed up Sea street soon after the procession had left Mount Wollaston Cemetery, on Wednesday, springing the wheel and breaking a shaft of another carriage. Fortunately no further damage was done.

☞ A large basket of splendid roses, whose rich perfume scented the whole building, was received at the public library on Wednesday from Mrs. Thos. Crane, of Strawberry Hill, Stamford, Conn. They were sent to the memory of the late Thomas Crane, to whose name the building, which our citizens so much enjoy, was erected.

☞ A big seizure of liquor was made on Granite street about nine o'clock on Memorial day. The "officers" consider it one of the best hauls they ever made and it is doubtful if any four could do the job better. What Ed. and Charles didn't do, Owen and John carried out in apple-pie order. After the Court examines the liquor it will probably be turned over to the Commonwealth. Where's the next jug?

☞ There has been erected at John Quincy Adams' farm, at Mount Wollaston, and put in operation this week, one of Martin's turbine wind mills. It is thirty-eight feet high, self-regulating, has the latest improvements, and will pump six hundred gallons of water an hour. It was put up by Messrs. Everett & Small of Boston, and is giving good satisfaction. If the wind is too strong the wind mill shuts up and waits until the fierce breeze is passed, and then it will start again of its own accord. There being no brook on the farm, and a large number of cattle to water, it saves an immense amount of labor.

☞ The floral festival of First Church Sunday School will be celebrated a week from Sunday, June 10th, at 3 P. M. The exercises will be similar to those of previous years: singing by the children, addresses, and baptism of children. All wishing their children baptised on this occasion are requested to communicate with the pastor immediately. The addresses are to be delivered by Rev. H. W. Foote of King's Chapel, Rev. W. H. Lyon of Mount Pleasant Unitarian Church.

☞ In the designation of property owners (p) in the list of petitioners from North Quincy, published in last week's PATRIOT, the husband and wife were both considered property holders if either of them possessed the property. This was a mark of courtesy to both of the parties, as in some cases the property was in the wife's hands, and it might not be agreeable to disclose this circumstance.

District Court, Quincy.

The following cases have been before Judge Humphrey at the District Court this week:—

James Sproul of Quincy, for an assault on William Keegan. Found guilty and fined $3 and costs. He was also complained of for disturbing the peace, but for want sufficient evidence he was discharged.

Timothy Credon of Quincy for being drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

Edward Keegan of Quincy, for being drunk, discharged for want of evidence.

On Monday the Court was occupied nearly all day in hearing cases against liquor sellers in Quincy and vicinity, on complaint of Henry H. Faxon, Esq. William P. Cook of the Blue Bell house of East Milton and Frederick Hardwick of Quincy were discharged. The cases of James Sullivan of Quincy and David Thayer of Braintree were continued.

Michael Donahue of Quincy, for being drunk was fined $1 and costs.

MEMORIAL SERVICES. A union memorial service was held last Sunday evening, in First Congregational Church, in memory of the soldiers and sailors of the civil war. There was quite a large congregation present, including the members of Paul Revere Post, in whose honor this service was held. The exercises were opened with a very fine prelude on the organ, followed by invocation by Rev. Edward Norton; reading of Scripture, by Rev. Mr. Sawyer; prayer, by Rev. S. Kelley. Addresses were then made by Rev. D. M. Wilson, Rev. Mr. Sawyer, Messrs. Theophilus King, Jr., and E. C. Bumpus. The singing by the choir was very fine. The service closed by the congregation uniting in singing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," followed with benediction by Rev. D. M. Wilson.

A Singular Occurrence.

On Sunday afternoon last, as the Baptist Society at Quincy Point was holding its usual service, an insane man rushed into the chapel and created quite an excitement. The Globe gives the particulars as follows:

"A poor, demented fellow, who, being hunted down by real and imaginary men, rushed pell mell in at the door, whooping like a Comanche and gesticulating in a wild and delirious manner. Down one of the aisles he sped, and, reaching the vicinity of the pulpit, mounted a chair and commenced to belabor the air with a piece of glass evidently warding off his imaginary enemies. There was danger that he would break somebody's head if any came near him, and everybody took good care to keep at a respectable distance. In his endeavors to keep off his supposed foes, he kept continually calling on the Deity to save him. The women, after their first scare, rushed out of the building and began to breathe a little freer after they were once safely outside. The maniac was entreated to leave the place, and said he would go with a Catholic clergyman. The good pastor said he was a minister, but the fellow didn't take kindly to his appearance, and wouldn't budge an inch. Officer Hayden soon arrived. He proceeded down the aisle and told the fellow, who was still perched upon the stool, that he must go with him. He had not stopped his gymnastic exercise, and the officer coming within range of his weapon, received a severe blow on his head. The officer then seized hold of the madman, and with the assistance of some five or six of the congregation, succeeded in overpowering and handcuffing him. He was then taken to the lockup in the depot carriage. Before going, however, he managed to bite two men in the hands.

"Previous to his escapade in the church, the man had raced madly all around the "Point," and had the dogs set at him in one or two yards. Two men seeing him, and believing him to be insane, endeavored to capture him, when he rushed toward the church, where he caused such a commotion. He was possessed of the idea that two men were following him to kill him, one with a large bag in which he carried a huge knife, and the other wearing a long butcher frock which was to keep his clothing from being stained with blood. Maddened by the idea, the poor fellow had fled on foot from South Boston to Hingham, and thence to Quincy Point."

A friend of the prisoner called at the lock-up soon after he was placed there, and said he would take him to his home in South Boston. Being released, the maniac was taken into his friend's buggy, and they proceeded to Boston. When reaching the corner of Dorchester avenue and Swett street, South Boston, the insane man jumped out and ran away.

On the same evening, it is supposed he was drowned, as a track-walker on the New York and New England railroad reports that an unknown man was drowned under the drawbridge, near the wire mill, which answers his description. His name was Dennis Scully, aged 22, and lived at 358 Eighth street, South Boston.

West Quincy Items.

Memorial day passed unusually quiet; the lack of martial music was noticeable to all. Many of the people passed the day in Boston or at some pleasure resort.

The schools are in session as usual this week and diseases seem to be abating.

Mr. John E. Burns has just purchased a splendid piano, the finest we have heard yet.

The entertainment given last Tuesday evening at the M. E. Church, was well attended by an appreciative audience. The selections read by Miss Webster were unusually fine. Mr. Samuel King's solos were finely rendered and loudly applauded, as were also the selections by Miss Annie Miller, the Male Quartette, and the wonderful young pianist, Mr. Willie Barron.

The Hawthorn Club will give a public recital of two dramas to a select audience at Temperance Hall, on Tuesday evening.

A strawberry festival with ice cream, cake, etc., will be given at the M. E. Church next Thursday evening. Music, singing, etc. will be on the programme, and a general good time may be expected.

Mr. Gilman, who has been very sick with pneumonia, is slowly recovering.

The newly remodeled market of E. H. Doble & Co., presents a very attractive appearance with its finely frescoed ceilings and modern appliances, it is the finest we have seen outside the city.

The artistic tonsorial rooms of Mr. C. E. Watts have been rendered a "joy forever," by the addition of a splendid new chair.

A

Quincy Yacht Club Regatta.

The first regatta of the season of the Quincy Yacht Club took place off Quincy Great Hill on Saturday last. It was a lovely day, although a heavy southwest wind prevailed at the time of starting. A number of yachts, belonging to the third class, were present, but remained anchored, concluding that it was not prudent to venture out into the deep white caps; and it was for that reason that the fleet was not larger.

The judges were Messrs. G. H. Hitchcock, P. H. Gavin, N. B. Furnald, G. A. Ordway, C. H. Porter and C. F. Pettengill.

During the regatta the secretary and treasurer of the club, N. B. Furnald, served a collation to the members of the club at his summer cottage, which gave a great deal of satisfaction, and was highly enjoyed by all present. It was the largest gathering that has attended the races for two years.

It will be seen that the Dandelion, Capt. C. F. Adams, 3d, with the Hon. J. Q. Adams as guest on board, was the only boat in the third class, that sailed the course.

The next regatta of the season, the first championship, will be sailed June 12, at 2.30 P. M.

Athletics.

The Spring field meeting of the Adams Academy Athletic Association was held at the football grounds on Greenleaf street, on Memorial Day.

The sports began at 11 A. M. with the 100 yards dash, for which there was six entries. A. D. Hitch won handily in 11 seconds, with Fargo but two feet behind.

For the second event, throwing the base ball, there were eight contestants, and G. T. Westland won by a throw of 260 feet, with Nicholson's throw only a few feet short of that.

The first heat of the hurdle race (100 yards, 6 36-inch hurdles,) was won easily by E. T. Hoyt, in 14 3-4 seconds; and the second heat was taken by F. E. Hughes, in 15 1-2 seconds. The final heat was postponed till later in the programme, to give the winners time to rest.

For the mile run only C. F. Ayer appeared at the scratch, but Messrs. Burton, Clewley, Slade and Whitman ran a quarter each with him to keep him up to his work. Ayer finished in good form in 5 minutes, 40 1-2 seconds. With a good competitor his time would have been many seconds better.

The broad jump was won by G. T. Westland, against five rivals. He cleared 15 feet, 4 inches, with Palmer close behind at 15 feet, 3 1-2 inches.

Three pairs appeared at the line for the three-legged race. A. D. Hitch and W. Pocock won, making the 100 yards in 13 3-4 seconds; Tyler and Keays being but a foot or two behind them.

The high jump was won easily by H. Edwards, who cleared 4 feet, 8 1-2 inches, without much pressure from his opponent, Westland.

The next event, the 440 yards dash, proved a very close affair. There were two entries, Ayer, who had just won the mile run, and Hoyt, the winner of the first heat of the hurdles. Hoyt led the running from the start, and at the second 100 yards both were racing all they knew, with Hoyt having a little the best of it. Ayer ran a game race till well into the home stretch, when, seeing that Hoyt was too fresh for him, he eased up and Hoyt won in fine form in 1 minute, 2 1-2 seconds.

Running the bases was attempted by three competitors. Fargo won in 16 3-4 seconds, though Hitch and J. P. Loud were only half a second behind.

Hughes and Hoyt were then placed for the final heat of the hurdle race. They raced side by side for the whole distance taking the hurdles almost simultaneously. A flying bar from one of the hurdles seemed to impede Hughes for a moment near the finish, but he kept on and finished only half a foot behind Hoyt, who won the closest event of the day in 15 1-2 seconds.

The final event of the morning and the one which seemed to excite most enthusiasm, was a tug-of-war between six members of the first class, A. A., and an equal weight picked from the rest of the lower school. The school presented a team of seven, and thus had the advantage in weight by about 20 pounds. The first class were captained by Robinson, the school by Fargo. As they pulled on dirt, without cleats or belts, a three-minute limit was agreed to. Immediately at the drop Fargo's team showed the result of careful coaching. Before Robinson had his men together, the school had won a good bit, and settled down in their holes, from which nothing could start them, and when time was called they were found to be winners by 6 feet, 5 inches.

The judges were Messrs. P. S. Billings, H. A. A., and W. R. Tyler, A. A. A. A., and Mr. J. O. Holden acted as time-keeper.

There was a large attendance of interested spectators, among them many ladies, and nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of a most successful meeting. The citizens of Quincy have shown their interest in these sports so kindly that we may now look upon spring and fall meetings of the A. A. A. A. as fixtures in our sporting calendar.

Braintree Chips.

Mrs. Smart has opened a restaurant in the building corner of Washington street and Holbrook avenue. We predict for her a smart business.

Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post 87, G. A. R., attended service at the North Congregational Church, on Sunday last, in the morning, and in the afternoon were in attendance at the Methodist Church. On Wednesday the Post, led by the Holbrook Brass Band, and escorted by the Braintree Military Company, left Grand Army Hall at 8.30 A. M., visiting the South and North Cemeteries, and after decorating the soldiers' graves returned to the soldiers' monument, where the principal services were held. Comrades were detailed to visit and decorate the soldiers' graves in Potter's and in the Plain street cemeteries. In the evening Gen. John L. Swift delivered an oration to a good audience at the Town Hall. Singing by the Braintree Musical Association.

On Thursday evening Braintree Lodge, K. of H., gave a strawberry festival at their hall. A large company were present, who very much enjoyed the great abundance of strawberries, ice cream, cake, &c., and were particularly pleased with the new feature introduced by the Knights on the occasion, namely: a button-hole boquet for every one present. The latter part of the evening was spent in listening to entertaining remarks by gentlemen, select singing, and other entertainments. The Knights are a success.

D.

MAY PARTY. The eighty-fourth birthday of Mrs. Sally Harmon, of Quincy, was very pleasantly observed at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Maria Crane.

Her many friends called during the afternoon and evening, with their offerings of flowers, or other tokens of remembrance, which were acknowledged and duly appreciated by the aged lady. She seemed as young as the youngest, and was pleased to think that her anniversary brought with it so many of her old friends with the old time recollections. A fine large birthday cake graced the table, and seemed fraught with the good wishes of the giver.

Four generations were represented, and one of the party said, "We will come again the next time you are eighty-four years old."

DIVORCES. The following divorces were granted on Monday of last week, at the session of the Supreme Court, in Dedham: Mrs. Lovena Patterson, from Augustus Patterson, on the ground of extreme cruelty; Mrs. Sarah J. Leonard, from Isaac N. Leonard, for extreme cruelty.

For the Patriot.

Is it Right and Shall it be.

It is a well known fact that authority over others, often works unfavorably on the one in power, and it is clear that that, or some other cause, is producing bad results in some of our schools. In two instances of late, little girls of only five years of age, for slight misdemeanors have been punished in such a manner as ought not to be allowed. In the one case, the child who has the fault of hesitating always, when spoken to got her ear boxed so soundly that she came home at noon with her ear red and swollen, because when told to fold her hands she did not obey promptly. She had then been but two days at school, and could hardly have known thoroughly the rules and routine of the school. The other little one broke from the ranks when they were marching out, and, crying "I want my mamma," attempted to run home but was caught by the teacher and slapped side of the face, while the principal of the school looked on and laughingly calls out, "give it to her, give it to her."

And one night this week a little fellow seven years old was sent home marked shamefully from the shoulders down, for playing truant. He had been whipped once before for the same offence and no doubt the teacher meant to do the business thoroughly this time, and if stripes, and black and blue marks will make him attend his school it won't be her fault sure if he is not there promptly. No doubt it will make him love his school and that I believe is held up as one of the much to be desired results of our Quincy system. In the afternoon the teacher sent home a note by a younger sister stating he was not there and asking if he had been sent, and in answer the mother wrote she had sent him, but "do not whip him until you hear from me again," for she thought it barely possible the boy might be with his father and she did not want him whipped if he was not to blame; but, notwithstanding, when he made his appearance in the yard he was brought in and thoroughly whipped. The teacher evidently meant to assert her authority over the parents as one other in the same building did, who answered when asked to allow a child to leave the room whenever necessary because the physician had said she must always go at once: "I can't have so much running up and down stairs, and the children are under my care and I shall do as I please." And afterwards threatened to whip the child if she asked to go again.

It is also told that in one case, at least, that one rattan was not considered enough, so a new stiff one with two older ones were bound together, in order to have a good sized rod to punish with, and that by the orders of the principal, so the teacher who used it stated.

Another strong point in the discipline of these schools is the shutting little ones of five years, down cellar, putting them into the coal bin and telling them the rats will eat them up, and leaving them there to cry themselves sick.

The writer of this article has no personal grievances to air in this particular matter, and is prompted solely by a sense of justice, in writing this, but it is high time such doings were stopped. A nervous, sensitive child might be ruined for life, and if such things are allowed at all, will eventually injure some child.

Then again these teachers are paid to teach these children and with the number of pupils they have under their care ought to be able to deal justly and patiently with them. If they can't they have mistaken their vocation and the sooner they change it, the better for the children. There are other things that ought to be corrected but I hope our new Superintendent will attend to them now he knows of it, so will not complain until we have to. The children must be taught obedience. That is the first step, but from present appearances I should think some of our teachers thought they owned the children, school house, the yard and public highway; and were regularly appointed guardians of the parents themselves.

A MOTHER.

Forepaugh Great Circus.

This colossal circus commenced exhibiting in Boston on Monday last, to large audiences and will continue until next Friday when it goes to Brockton. The street spectacle is described as being the most gorgeous ever seen upon the streets of an American City. The loveliest lady in the land has been secured to personify the beautiful Eastern Princess, Lalla Rookh, whom poets describe as "more beautiful than any of those heroines whose names and loves embellish the songs of Persia and Hindostan; more perfect than the divinest images of the House of Azor." In this gorgeous, glittering, Oriental pageant, Lalla Rookh is seen reclining in her sumptuous howdah, borne aloft upon the back of a ponderous and kingly elephant, the largest on this continent, whose embroidered velvet trappings touch the ground; a fair young female slave sits fanning the Princess through the rose-colored veils, with feather's of argus-pheasant's wings, and the lovely troupe of Tartarian and Cashmerean maids of honor ride upon each side of the Princess upon small Arabian horses. Rajahs and Mogul Lords follow, accompanied by Cavaliers in costly armor, mounted upon

> "Steeds with their houstings of rich silver spun,
> Their chains and poitrels glittering in the sun;
> And Camels tufted o'er with Yemen's shells,
> Shaking in every breeze their light-toned bells."

In keeping with the author of Lalla Rookh's description of this grand, glittering, lavish and luxuriant spectacle, are seen the Guards of the great Kedar Khan, with their silver battle-axes and maces of gold, followed by the Great Nazier, or Chamberlain of the Harem, and the retinue of the Court of Delhi, mounted upon elephants, camels and Arabian horses, decorated in Oriental trappings, and bearing aloft the royal standards—the entire scene recalling to the beholder the glories and the grandeur of the distant Indies; the whole forming the most magnificent, picturesque and realistic Oriental spectacle ever presented in the New World, requiring the expenditure of a hundred thousand dollars in its preparation, eclipsing all displays of pageantry ever produced by any exhibition, and in itself worth miles of travel to behold. Remember, this superb spectacle is presented daily, between the hours of 9 and 10 A. M., and is a great, grand, gorgeous, free public festival for all to look at and admire.

G. A. R.,

DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 4

IN accordance with an honored custom, and in compliance with the rules and regulations of the Order, Wednesday, the 30th day of May, was observed as Memorial Day.

The Commander desires, first, to congratulate the Post and its friends that unanimity, promptness and interest characterized all the exercises of the day. He desires, also, to thank all those who by their services assisted to make the day so complete a success, and especially the ladies who so bountifully supplied the table with rations, and so acceptably presided at the same; to the clergy of the town; to Rev. Samuel Kelley, for his eloquent and pleasing oration; to Rev. D. M. Wilson, for his valuable assistance as Chaplain of the day; to those who gave flowers for decorating the graves; to those who assisted in bearing the expenses of the occasion; to Post 121, of Hyde Park, Commander L. B. French and Staff, for their valuable assistance in the ceremonies at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery; to the Comrades of Post 88, for turning out in such large numbers; to the visiting Comrades, and all not members of the Order who united with us in the services of the day.

To all these he tenders his thanks and those of the Post.

Per order,
I. M. HOLT, Commander.
J. M. CLEVERLY, Adjutant.

THE NEW

Quincy Directory

IS FOR SALE

AT THE PATRIOT OFFICE.

Price 60 Cents.

In it will be found the names of all the streets in town, both public and private, and where they are located. Also, the hills, hummocks, islands, streams, bridges, wharves, halls, public buildings, and places of interest, railroad stations, post offices and cemeteries. A general directory, giving the names of every male person over twenty years of age in Quincy on the first day of May. Also, all widows, and ladies having any particular occupation. Containing a list of over 3700 names.

Also, a general business directory of the town, each branch classified and arranged for the convenience of the public; town officers, public schools and teachers, fire department, county and town offices, corporations, religious and charitable societies and associations; temperance, political and social societies; advertising cards from nearly all the principal business firms in the town.

Many citizens who have left Quincy and gone abroad, will find much in its pages that will be of great interest to them; bringing to memory many old associations and friends. Any orders received at the PATRIOT OFFICE will meet with prompt attention. Green & Prescott, publishers.

The Quincy Granite Co.,

F. J. FULLER, PROP.,

West Quincy, Mass.

ONE of the oldest and most reliable firms in New England, would respectfully inform the public that they are better than ever prepared to furnish the finest quality of Granite work that can be produced. Our facilities are such that we can furnish all work in this line at the lowest prices. Being the entire owner of one of the oldest Dark Blue Granite Quarries in Quincy, Mass., our Quarry has a reputation far above any other of its kind, and the stone being procured from so great a depth (having been worked down about one hundred and fifty feet) that we obtain a richness and purity of color that cannot be excelled. We guarantee that this stock will retain its rich color and polish longer than any other Dark Blue granite that is now produced. We have also control of a superior White Granite Quarry in New England, and with our constantly improving machinery, are doing the best quality of work.

All our stock is carefully selected from the quarries, and as the most skilled workmen are employed to oversee the work, we are willing to guarantee entire satisfaction in all cases before the work is accepted. Persons wishing to purchase any Granite Memorial Work, such as will find it decidedly in their interest to communicate with us for any information desired, as we keep on hand a large supply of designs, which we will furnish for the inspection of our patrons.

Parties can order work of us at much less expense than of dealers in their own vicinity, many whom buy their stock and work of us. We will gladly answer all communications and submit designs if required, with confidence that our prices and workmanship will secure for us an extended patronage.

We make a specialty of all kinds of

and can supply any demand at short notice. Also Polished Columns of all sizes for building and other architectural purposes.

We furnish large quantities of Granite Pavements, and are prepared to contract with cities or corporations to supply the same or to construct and pave streets.

Thankful for the liberal patronage which we have received during the last ten years, we expect a continuance of the same and respectfully solicit your orders.

Proposition.

The following proposition by the Quincy Water Company has been submitted to the Selectmen for consideration by an agent of the company. As it is of great importance to the citizens it has been deemed worthy of publication:

QUINCY, May 22, 1883.

The Selectmen of Quincy:

Gentlemen: On behalf of the Quincy Water Company, I wish to submit the following proposition for the Town's consideration, and respectfully request you to call a special town meeting, on the 19th day of June, at which time action may be taken thereon.

PROPOSITION.

The Quincy Water Company will construct a complete water works, and lay not less than eight miles of pipe, and set thereon not less than 80 hydrants, and at all times maintain a full and sufficient supply of water at a head of not less than 150 feet above tide; provided the town will contract for a term of twenty-five years to pay the sum of $3,000 annually, for the use of said hydrants for fire purposes. The company will, if desired by the town, extend said main pipes, provided the town will locate one hydrant for each 400 feet of pipe so extended, and pay the additional sum of $35 per annum for each additional hydrant.

The company will furnish water for the town house, public schools, engine houses, police stations, and other public buildings of the town for a sum each year equal to the amount of town tax on the real estate of said company.

W. L. FAXON,
For the company.

For the Patriot.

The North Quincy Nuisance.

The petition of the residents of North Quincy calling upon the Selectmen to obey the instructions of the town in the matter of the Dole Fertilizing Company calls for the active support of our citizens. A melting and rendering establishment is distinctly specified by the statute as a nuisance which a board of health has power to prohibit. But even leaving out the question of "noisome and injurious oders" the statute goes so far as to declare that citizens may be protected from the exercise of any trade or employment which is "otherwise injurious to their estates." Now who is going to put up a good class of taxable houses in the vicinity of this establishment? If it is to stay, the Assessors must proceed to mark down the valuations over a wide area of perhaps [illegible] town. Can the taxpayers of Quincy afford this? Is it not their policy to make every acre of the town as attractive as possible in order that new residents may reduce our heavy taxes?

There are great difficulties in removing a nuisance after it is once fairly established. No time is to be lost in dealing with it. Every dollar paid by the proprietors to a lawyer to help them gain a foot-hold must be met by another dollar paid to a lawyer whose business it is to oppose them. That is the long and short of the matter. It is said that a special town meeting is immanent. Let the Atlantic sufferers see that the Selectmen are instructed to employ counsel who shall make it their business to represent the town in looking up evidence to enforce the law. Such a course will have the support of all tax payers. WOLLASTON.

IN A STUPOR. Sherman W. Platt, a young man belonging to one of the most respected families of Newton, Ct., has slept almost continuously since last Christmas, and in the meantime has not once spoken. He sits in a rocking chair, with his eyes closed, all day long, paying no attention whatever to his mother, who ministers to him constantly, or to the numerous friends and curious acquaintances who call daily at his home. Twice a day he rouses from what seems to be sound slumber, and in a half-dazed fashion leaves his chair to enter an adjoining room where the family's meals are served. He eats very little. The country doctors admit that they do not understand the case. Platt was a bright, active young man until he was attacked by malarial fever last fall, after suffering from a sunstroke. He was to have been married this spring, but does not recognize his intended bride when she calls, and no efforts have availed to arouse him from his stupor.

THE WATERTOWN MURDERER. Roger Amero, now at Digby, Nova Scotia, will be brought to Boston next week by Detective Wiggin, who left Boston on Tuesday for that purpose. Amero will be committed to the East Cambridge jail to await trial for the murder of Mrs. Carlton.

POISONED BY GREEN VELVET. Miss Mary Kelly, employed in the millinery department in Milwaukee, died after an illness of three weeks, from the effects of inhaling arsenicated hydrogen, emanating from green velvets which she handled. Dr. Stadler, who attended her, says it was a clear case of arsenical poisoning.

REVENUE STAMPS. Every mail and express continues to bring in large quantities of old internal revenue stamps, which come for a rebate of the tax and exchange of stamps under the provisions of the new law. The corridors of the Treasury building in the vicinity of the offices of the internal revenue bureau are almost blockaded with mail and express packages of stamps, which, for want of other room, are stored there until they are severally opened for the purpose of counting and exchange.

Walks About Town.

BY THE TURNPIKE.

Quincy has awakened from a sort of Rip Van Winkle sleep, and the latest suggestion from an enterprising citizen is a sewer. We are not educated up or down to a sewer yet, having lived in the woods many years, where our sewer was the ground, and the sewage, as it does frequently in most country towns, found its way into the well.

We think the water ought to come; we can find a way to dispose of it after we get it. In case of fires, of which we have a generous share, it would be useful and convenient; but we are preaching the gospel of the "beautiful" although in almost all the tangible things of life, the useful and the beautiful can go hand-in-hand.

It has also lately been suggested by some young women (and let not this fact lead you to believe the town is going to lose its right judgment and espouse the woman suffrage cause, we are not so wide awake as that), that a village improvement association be formed here to establish the fashion of ornamental places and of planting trees by the roadside. This has been done in other places, and we can do what others can, as witness the result of good work in the license question.

Æsthetically, we are not a success. Quincy topographically has excellent advantages. Lying on a sea girt bay, whose shores are washed by the ever musical waves, with granite hills standing guard in the back ground between numberless other hills, it has a capacity with but little outlay in taste and money, of being made a very attractive town. A stranger, after crossing Neponset bridge, until he reaches the centre of the town, sees only a dusty or a muddy road, with few sidewalks, almost no trees by the road side, and often untrimmed gateways. Within the past year one of our irrepressibles —and we are thankful we have a few such—whom nothing can daunt, has improved even this road. How different an impression one would receive of our town and people, if this street were lined with trees! They would afford shelter as well as shade. Mention must be made of a fine row of maples near Beale street, on Mr. Faxon's land. Near here are two solitary elms of great delicacy of outline, and the magnificent avenue of six rows of elms leading to Mr. Quincy's house. Near the bridge over the brook by Mr. Butler's are two of the finest trees it was ever our fortune to see. The Lindens, one towering in majestic height and beauty, the other rounder and broader are both monuments of grace and lovliness. One of the most striking views near the road is the meadow scene just before we descend the hill by the Lindens. This bit of scenery ought to engage the brush of our favorite landscape painter, Mr. Heade, who often, if not generally, selects such meadow views for his subject. This meadow with the serpentine creek upon whose banks a few cattle now graze, the one solitary elm which relieves the otherwise sunny foreground, the long rows of trees which skirt two sides of the intervale, ranging in color from dark green to one white with blossoms, the vivid green of the meadow bottom which takes its rare color from the moisture it draws, all these bearing the bright bit of color which Mr. Heade always throws in, are spread out for every passer by. This living canvass is a daily inspiration to all who seek visible beauty. Further on one involuntarily stops to look at one cottage [illegible] breathe from the curbstone to the rustic seats beneath the trees; where from the long crocus bed in Spring, from the profusion of summer flowers to the wreath of winter blossoms, is breathed a refinement which makes this home attractive to the traveler.

Then we pass a row of poplars which are a promise of more shade. The next wealth of trees is to be seen on the Brackett place, the fine elms and great horse chestnut, whose generous gift of flowers was a delight to us from childhood. Opposite these is a little row of those maples which in the autumn fling out so rich a dash of color.

In lingering on the road, we are kept from admiring one or two structures in this vicinity. One is a mammoth building on the old Saville estate; this reminds us of some old castle in Venice where one gets lost in its spacious apartments. Were the outlines of this harmonious building broken up more by ivies or some other of the ingenious devices which the owner (one of the irrepressibles) probably has in his fertile mind, this structure would bid fair to rival the Post Office in lovliness. With an addition to the block of business houses beyond the stone church, and a more generous sprinkling of trees in this neighborhood, we should need only good road beds, water, a sewer, and a more conservative fire department to realize our dreams.

We started with trees for a text. Give us more trees, oh, town fathers! Give us, oh, citizens upon whom fortune has smiled, more trees! They are > "Posthumous glories! Angel like collection,

> Upraised in seed or bulb interred from earth,
> They are to me a type of resurrection,
> A second birth."

☞ A tramway is to be built up Pipe's peak, it is said, which will overshadow the Mt. Washington railway. The plan is to construct three of these tramways, each nearly three miles long, one beginning at the end of the other. The first will start at the rear of the iron springs at Manitou, and the last will be terminable in front of the signal station at Pike's peak, an elevation of 14,200 feet. The supports will be made of trees not less than eight inches in diameter, and about 24 feet high, braced above and below. On these an endless wire cable will revolve, upon which will be fastened, at intervals of about 100 feet, a large covered armchair, in which two persons can comfortably sit. This will be suspended about eight feet from the ground, and pass at entering and discharging points along a movable platform to load and unload without stopping. The lower section will be propelled by an engine at the lower end. The centre one will be driven by water power, utilized on the mountain side through a turbine wheel, and the third by an engine erected on the summit of the peak.

☞ William Fields of Franklin, is said to be the oldest member of the Grand Army in Massachusetts. He was born at Deerfield in 1800, and is now in his eighty-third year. He entered the army at sixty-two years of age, serving till the end of the rebellion in Company A, Thirty-ninth Massachusetts regiment.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, May 31, 1883.

President Arthur will soon go to the Soldier's Home cottage to live, spending only the business hours of each day at the White House. The cottage which he will occupy has been newly fitted up to receive him, and is the one in which President Hayes lived each summer of his administration.

At the memorial services at Soldiers' Home on Decoration Day, Ex-Justice Strong of the Supreme Court delivered the oration. The poem for the occasion was written by the author of the song; "Sherman's March to the Sea," Capt. Byers, our present consul in Switzerland, who is now at home on leave of absence.

The Soldiers' Home is in a flourishing condition. Besides affording a comfortable asylum for disabled, invalided, superannuated, and discharged soldiers of twenty or more years faithful service, it is a beautiful pleasure ground for the city. It is about three miles from Washington, and approached by a perfectly graded, well kept roadway, and is a popular drive for all who can afford the luxury of wheels. The grounds contain five hundred and two acres. Farming operations are constantly carried on, vegetables are raised for the use of the inmates, a large amount of grass is cut, and a large dairy is maintained. Besides these substantial advantages, the Home grounds furnish some of the loveliest bits of natural scenery that can be found in any park. General Winfield Scott suggested the Soldiers' Home, and was mainly instrumental in having it endowed.

When the American army entered the city of Mexico, the citizens who took refuge on the housetops fired at the soldiers. After the city was captured a tax of over a hundred thousand dollars was levied on them for the offense. In 1848 Gen. Scott transmitted this amount to the Secretary of War with the expressed hope that it would be appropriated for an army asylum. Commissioners were then appointed to take charge of the matters under the direction of Congress, and the first provision made was a rented house in the city. Afterwards a suitable site containing two hundred and fifty-six acres was secured for the proposed institution at a cost of $57,000.

This ground with the additions that have since been made forms the present Soldiers' Home park. Besides the interest on the accrued bonds belonging to the institution, which are $800,000, it has other revenues altogether amounting to about $150,000 per annum. A tax of 12 1-2 cents per month on all the soldiers of the army, the unclaimed effects of deceased soldiers, the dues of deserters at the time of desertion, forfeitures, and the fines imposed by court martial go to the benefit of the Home. There are now 490 inmates, and 140 old soldiers who reside elsewhere but are entitled to a support of $8 per month. Those who are physically able are required to perform certain duties assigned to them by the governor of the institution, for which they are allowed one dollar and one pound of tobacco per month. Some of the inmates are dissipated, and the pensioners especially, have been enabled to squander in that way; but a new law now in force requires them to transfer their pension to the institution while receiving its benefits, and it is hoped scarcity of money will hereafter partly overcome the evil.

There is a reading-room and library of 2,400 volumes, but the majority of the soldiers are [illegible] te its advantages. They want the [illegible] daily [illegible] to an audience of old soldiers, seated around smoking their pipes. An effort is now being made to have a band of music attached to the Home, for the entertainment of visitors as well as the inmates, and to give additional attractions to the place. President Buchanan was the first who summered at this beautiful retreat in the cottage now known as the governor's quarters, and the next was President Lincoln.

ADAMS.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS. Vertical travel, by means of passenger elevators, is rapidly increasing throughout the United States. The first one went into operation less than twenty-five years ago, and now between 45,000 and 50,000 are in constant use, New York alone having 15,000. It is estimated that for every new mile of railroad which is constructed, a passenger elevator is built. The travel on them is enormous. The eight elevators in the Equitable building, in New York, carry up and down a daily average of 20,000 people, while several thousand per diem is not an unusual number for large stores and hotels in our large cities.

☞ There is one good feature of the Suburban Press Association which is now being put in force, and that is the showing up of those advertising agents and patent nostrum dealers who impose upon country papers. All editors and publishers who have been victimized by this class of "beats," are requested to send the particulars to the secretary of the association, who has the name and business of said "beats" printed in circular form and distributed throughout the State. In this way they get an "ad" not exactly according to contract. Patent medicine and Yankee notion advertisers recognize the country papers as the best medium for advertising their wares, and it is mean business to cheat these papers out of the whole or a part of their contract.

THE GREAT CENTRAL,
OLD AND RELIABLE, COMPLETE
HOUSE FURNISHING
EMPORIUM,
512 WASHINGTON STREET,
Near Bedford Street.

WE desire to call attention to the finest and most complete line of House Furnishings ever on show at our Warerooms, having taken unusual care to produce better Goods, of superior style and design, which, coupled with the fact that all last season's goods have been closed out, allows us to present entirely new and desirable goods for inspection. Owing to the extreme and very unusual lateness of the season, we have placed much lower prices on all our goods than intended, yet we do so with the object to entirely close out every article of Household Goods now on hand before another season, and such prices are very decidedly in favor of the purchaser.

The complete renovation of every department of our store has made it much more convenient for customers to select, and the use of elevator brings every floor within easy reach of all.

Beyond such addition, we have greatly improved the entrance to our store by a new stained-glass front, with cherry casings, giving us one of the most attractive entrances in Boston, and, while this change makes an entirely new appearance, we are still at the old situation, so centrally located, and which we have occupied these many years. Our immense stock includes

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1883.

The World as it is.

"The world is not so bad a world
As some would like to make it;
Though whether good, or whether bad,
Depends on how we take it;
For if we scold and fret all day
From dewy morn till even,
This world will ne'er afford to man
A foretaste here of heaven.

This world in truth's as good a world
As e'er was known to any
Who have not seen another yet,
And these are very many;
And if the men, and women, too,
Have plenty of employment,
Those surely must be hard to please
Who cannot find enjoyment.

This world is quite a clever world,
In rain or pleasant weather,
If people would but learn to live
In harmony together;
Nor seek to burst the kindly bond
By love and peace cemented,
And learn the best of lessons yet—
To always be contented.

Then were the world a pleasant world,
And pleasant folks were in it,
The day would pass most pleasantly
To those who thus begin it;
And all the nameless grievances,
Brought on by borrowed troubles,
Would prove, as certainly they are,
A mass of empty bubbles."

Farm and Garden.

The Curculio on Plum Trees.

A writer from Waltham, Mass., says:—

"I noticed in last week's Ploughman an Ontario fruit grower advises the use of Paris green as a remedy for the prevention of the curculio on plum trees. Owing to the dislike of using Paris green, very few will adopt that remedy, and as I can recommend a harmless and sure remedy, I send it to you. The remedy is air-slaked lime. Attach to a long pole that will reach the top of the tree a fine seive, or a large-sized corn popper will answer, fill with the lime, and commence using when the blossoms fall, and continue using at intervals of ten days; about six applications will be enough. A half dozen plum trees have been served with this remedy for the past five years, and the result has been full crops and no stings. Apply the lime when the dew is on the trees."

The Currant Worm.

Lysander S. Richards writes to the South Shore Herald: "It will not be long before the currant worm will attack the foliage of the currant and for this the best and surest remedy is White Hellebore, a poison obtained at the apothecaries. We prefer adding water to the powder rather than putting it on dry, mixed with flour or plaster, for this dust we are apt to inhale when we shake it on the plants, and as we don't like the tickling sensation of being choked, we put about two teaspoonsful of the Hellebore into a pail of water, or in a sprinkler, stir it up well; if we fail to have a sprinkler close at hand, take a small broom clothes brush and sprinkle the vines liberally with the solution, and about two morning sprinklings will kill the worms. It will not poison the berries, or injure them in the least, if you put it on as soon as the worm appears, for the berries are then very small, and by the time the berries are large enough to pick, the rains and the winds will have blown and washed off every grain of the Hellebore that may have dropped on them."

[illegible] Vick's Monthly states that a good remedy for the insects which infest the rose, is to syringe [illegible] oil soap, using one pound of the soap to one gallon of water. Another remedy is kerosene mixed with an equal quantity of milk, a spoonful of the mixture being then stirred in a gallon of water for syringing. In a few hours wash off either of these applications by syringing with clear water. Caution is recommended in the use of carbolic acid on plants, as it will destroy them if used too freely. It is advised to mix a few drops in soap-suds made from soft soap, and try its strength on weeds.

A CHEAP FARM. A valuable farm in Marshfield, belonging to the estate of the late Albert Tirrell, of Weymouth, was sold recently at auction for the sum of $3,850, to Bradford Blanchard of Marshfield. Mr. Tirrell expended in improving the land and in building, the sum of $28,000. The place is assessed by the town for $7,000, and is one of the first farms of the town.—South Shore Herald.

☞ This is the way to deal with hen droppings: A barrel of the manure is emptied out on dry and hard ground and worked over with shovels or six-tined forks until it is fine, and then about three barrels of fine, dry earth is mixed with it and all worked over together until no one would know by scent or handle what it is. The largest crop of potatoes I ever saw was manured with one large single handful of this preparation in each hill.

Anecdotes.

"Father," said Johnnie, "this paper says that 'many prominent citizens are now ill with pneumonia and kindred diseases.' What is a kindred disease, father?" "Why, my son," said Smithly, "a kindred disease is — is — why — yes, yes, a kindred disease is one that runs through an entire family — kindred relatives you know. Surprised you didn't know that, Johnnie."

"I thought," remarked the victim, after the dentist had dragged him around the room several times, "I thought you advertised to extract teeth without pain?"

"So I do, sir," replies the operator, blandly; "it doesn't hurt me at all to yank 'em!

A gentleman who is no longer young and who was never handsome, said to a youngster the other day, before his parents:—

"Well, baby, really, what do you think of me?"

As the child did not reply, the gentleman continued:—

"You do not wish to tell me. Why not?"

"Because I know that if I should tell you I should be whipped."

Professor (to class in history)—"Why does an Indian usually make up his mind more quickly than a white man?"

Small Boy (near the foot)—"Because he mostly has less mind to make up."

☞ What the wife of an editor named her two girls—Addaline and Addenda.

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

Temperance in England.

CONTINUED.

The subsequent history of the movement must be briefly sketched. In November 1842 the disruption, above mentioned, of the British and Foreign Temperance Society was healed, and the two societies which that disruption had called into existence were amalgamated in the National Temperance Society. The work of proselytising then went on vigorously. Innumerable tracts were circulated, and all Britain echoed with the noise of infinite speech. Excursions, processions, Exeter Hall demonstrations, incessant teaparties, &c., were got up with enthusiasm which spoke volumes for the energy and sincerity of the teetotal agents.

Fashion Notes.

Red in all shades will be much worn.

Shoes to match dresses grow in favor.

The simpler the hairdressing the better.

White kids are revived for evening dress.

Embroidered pongee robes will be much worn.

High shoulders are the rule in spring wraps.

Old rose or ashes of roses is the rival of strawberry pink.

Gloves and mittens contrast with instead of matching costumes.

Colored mantles are not in good taste for any but carriage wear.

Chine effects appear in many of the new wool and silk dress goods.

Bangs and crimps are worn further from the eyebrows.

Household Receipts.

ORANGE CAKE. Mix two cups sugar with the yokes of two eggs, then add the whites beaten to a froth, next add a large tablespoonful butter, then one cup of milk, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder dissolved in it, and last of all flour; flavor with lemon extract; bake in jelly pans. Filling: Two oranges, one lemon, grate the rinds and add the juice, one cup of water, one cup of sugar, tablespoonful corn-starch; boil until smooth; cool before putting between cakes.

CRULLERS. Beat three eggs well with four tablespoonsful of sugar; add four or five tablespoonsful of melted lard, then flour enough to make it not too stiff. Roll rather thin (one third of an inch). Cut the cakes into shapes and throw them into boiling lard, like doughnuts.

TEA ROLLS. One quart of flour, one half teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a tablespoonful of lard, one pint of milk; mix as soft a dough as you can handle easily, and take pains not to work in much flour on the moulding board; cut out in narrow strips, about three inches long; rub the top over with a little hot milk and bake in a hot oven.

STEAMED FRUIT PUDDING. Take two cups of suet, chopped fine, two of boiling hot coffee, and two cups brown sugar, one half pound of raisins chopped fine, one half pound of [illegible] cups of flour, and three teaspoons of baking powder sifted into the flour, one teaspoon of salt. Pour into a bag and steam three hours. Do not lift the cover from the steamer during that time. Then serve hot with this dressing. Take two tablespoons of flour, three-fourths cup of sugar, one table spoon of butter, one pint of hot water; boil all together; add lemon or vanilla flavoring.

MACARONI. Boil in milk till tender and season with pepper and salt. Add milk enough to make three pints. Then add grated cheese and butter until it makes a thick mess. Serve hot.

To keep linen from turning yellow, put it away rough dry after washing and bleaching well and rinsing in blue water.

To take the brown discoloration off of cups in which custards are baked, rub with damp flannel dipped in the best whiting.

To clean diamonds nicely, wash in soap-suds, rinse in alcohol and dry in sawdust; then brush with a soft brush and polish with fine tissue paper.

Conundrums.

Why is a room full of married folks like a room that is empty? Because there is not a single person in it.

Why are ladies out shopping like birds that are long on the wing? Because it is a long time before they settle on their purchase (perches).

What is that which has never been felt, seen, nor heard, never existed, nor never will exist, and yet has a name? Nothing.

When is a sea-captain in his heaviest attire? When he wears his ship.

When does a farmer act with great rudeness toward his corn? When he pulls its ears.

Why is a lean dog like a man in meditation? He's a thin cur.

Why is a baby like a sheaf of wheat? Because it is first cradled, and then thrashed, and finally it becomes the flower of the family.

Why is a drunkard like a bad politician? Because he is always poking his nose into measures that spoil the constitutions.

Why is a grocer who gives short measure like an ambuscade? Because he lies in weight.

What is the difference between a fixed star and a meteor? One is a sun, the other a darter.

Why should certain grocers call their scales ambush? Because they lie in weight.

Why is an attractive but uncultured woman very much like brown sugar? Because she is sweet but unrefined.

HE DECLINED. "This is a fine time of night for you to come home, and you just married," said Mrs. Davis indignantly, looking at the clock which had just told the midnight hour. "My dear," replied her husband ponderously, "I decline to be interviewed on the subject of politics."—Rochester Post-Express.

This and That.

☞ A wag, speaking of a friend whom he suspected of living altogether beyond his means, observed, that he believed he would owe several thousand dollars after all his debts were paid.

☞ It's very difficult to make two ends meat, as the tramp said while gnawing both extremes of a bone.

☞ The advantage of a marine exhibition: About every picture has a sale.

☞ Jones says that with Mary Jane, and a dollar umbrella, he can make a capital spread.

☞ "There's money gone to pot!" said Simpkins, when Mrs. Simpkins's ornamental flower pot smashed on the floor.

☞ The worst of all faults is to cheat yourself.

☞ It is not half so much what we do for another as what we enable him to do for himself that is of value to him.

☞ Wound no man's feelings unnecessarily. There are thorns in abundance in the path of human life.

☞ A favor well-bestowed is almost as great an honor to him who confers it as to him who receives it.

☞ He benefits himself who doeth good to others.

☞ A Newark, N. J., oyster dealer is named Lyon, and it is meet that he should dispense roars to his customers.

☞ "How do you like D—— as an orator, Brown?" "Sew, sew." "What do you mean?" "Oh, he unwinds the thread of his discourse with so many ahems!"

☞ It is impossible to make people understand their ignorance, for it requires knowledge to perceive it, and therefore he that can perceive it hath it not.

☞ Hate idleness and curb all passions; be true in all words and actions; unnecessarily deliver not your opinion, but when you do, let it be just, well-considered and plain.

☞ The precept, "Know yourself," was not solely intended to obviate the pride of mankind, but likewise that we might understand our own worth.—Cicero.

☞ An exchange says: "If mosquitos or other bloodsuckers infest our sleeping room at night we uncork a bottle of pennyroyal, and these animals leave in great haste, nor will they return so long as the air in the room is loaded with the fumes of that aromatic herb. If rats enter the cellar a little powdered potash thrown into their holes or mixed with cornmeal and scattered in their run ways never fails to drive them away.

☞ All the starch in potatoes is found very near the surface; the heart contains but little nutriment. Ignorance of this fact may form a plausible excuse for those who cut off thick parings, but none to those who know better. Circulate the injunction, "pare thin the potato skin."

☞ Among the gifts to a newly married pair at a town in New Jersey, was a broom sent to the lady, accompanied with the following sentiment:

"This trifling gift accept from me,
Its use I would commend,
In sunshine use the brushy part,
In storms the other end.

Woman's Column.

The regular executive meeting of the National Woman Suffrage Association of Massachusetts was held recently, in the rooms of the New England Woman's Club. There was a large attendance. The most important items in woman's advance during the last month have been the introduction of the bill to enfranchise unmarried women in Canada, the election in Scotland (for the first time) of two ladies as parochial guardians, and the introduction in the Italian parliament of a bill giving women the right to vote. Massachusetts has not yet decided whether widows shall have a right to be buried in their husbands' cemetery lots, or whether women who are attorneys-at-law shall be justices of the peace—both these bills being still in committee. The census report has shown the great advance of woman in gainful occupations, over 2,500,000 women being thus employed.

Miscellany.

☞ A correspondent of a New York paper relates the following touching anecdote: "I found a cockroach struggling in a bowl of water. I took half a peanut shell for a boat. I put him into it and gave him two wooden toothpicks for oars, and left him. The next morning I visited him, and he had put a piece of white cotton thread on one of the toothpicks, and set the toothpick up on end as a signal of distress. He had a hair on the other toothpick, and there that cockroach sat a fishing, fast asleep from exhaustion. The sight melted me to tears. I took that cockroach out, gave him a spoonful of gruel and left. The animal never forgot that act of kindness, and now my house is chock-full of cockroaches."

☞ They use guano down in Alabama to coax the crops along, and a man who sells the best guano gets the most trade. There is one kind that is awful strong. A farmer put a sample of it in his pocket and started for home. There was a carpet-tack in his pocket when he put the guano in there, and when he got home there was a bar of railroad iron in his pocket, which almost weighed his horse down. He said he thought he felt something heavy in the last half of his journey. If some papers should tell this story no one would believe it.

Commercial Fertilizers.

Fertilizers play a very important part in the agriculture of our country, their use on old, exhausted lands being a necessity. The question is, what commercial fertilizer shall the farmer use? Experience has shown that one fertilizer may give better results than another, although their analyses may be the same. It is a safe rule for farmers to buy the fertilizer that has been used for a long succession of years, and given universal satisfaction on all crops. Such a fertilizer is sure to give satisfaction, while new brands are likely to prove costly experiments. In this connection we publish the following:—

Bridgewater, Mass., Nov. 16, 1882.

My experience with Bradley's Phosphate extends over several years, and I have tried it on a variety of crops, and it has given the best results of any fertilizer I have used. When I use it in the hill for corn, the corn grows rapidly, matures early, and I get a large crop. On potatoes, a little of it in the hill increases the crop, and makes the potatoes larger and smoother. I have been perfectly satisfied with it every year and upon all crops, and, having tried other kinds in competition with it, I pronounce Bradley's Phosphate to be the best in the market. JAMES K. LEACH.

Vegetine.

SUPERIOR TO ANY FAMILY MEDICINE.

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

ITS MEDICINAL PROPERTIES ARE

Alterative, Tonic, Solvent and Diuretic.

VEGETINE is made exclusively from the juices of carefully-selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal Complaints, can only be effectually cured through the blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Scaldhead and Ringworm, VEGETINE has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine diseases and General Debility, VEGETINE acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammations, cures ulcerations and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles, Nervousness, and General Prostration of the Nervous System, no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the VEGETINE. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact, VEGETINE is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases, and is the only reliable BLOOD PURIFIER yet placed before the public.

THE Board of Health issues the following notice:—That on and after MONDAY, July 31st, 1882, the following provisions of Chapter 80 of the Public Statutes will be strictly enforced:—

SEC. 78. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town in which he dwells. If he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $100.

SEC. 79. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with Small Pox or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit for each offence not less than $50, nor more than $100.

The Board considers the above sections to apply to scarlet fever, small pox, diphtheria, measles and whooping cough.

JUNE.

Sparkling, blushing, glorious June,
A brilliant welcome to thy bloom.
Radiant and beautiful, the soft flush
Of summer is wafted in the velvety
Touch of the dewy breeze, and unfolding
Petals of a thousand flowers, that adorn
Our every hillside, and gem our rustic
Bowers. Nature revels in the grand display,
And, with an air of fresh, bright gladness, mantles
The hills and valleys in verdant loveliness.
The birdies carol their sweetest songs, as
If to herald with happy greetings the Soft, sweet, summer days, and in their quaint and Busy way are soon intent upon the Curious building of their homes, which are Sure to be nestled in the very prettiest
Place; for don't you suppose their wise little Heads tell them where to go? Wonderful, indeed,
Is their skill displayed. The sparkling waters
Ripple and dance in joyous freedom, with
A musical chime as they go bounding through
The flowery dells, bringing bright beauty
In their silvery windings and crystal
Fountains; while the lily-crested ponds reflect
The lofty dome as it arches over all
Its canopy of blue in silent majesty
And august splendor. Ah! thou soft blue
Sky of June; artists and poets alike
May try in vain to reach the inexpressible
Beauty of thy immensity; none but the Infinite hand can trace the delicate blendings,
From the sunset's gorgeous glow to the dainty
Flush that ushers in the morning beams of Coming day. Welcome, leafy-crowned June.
Can words express or look make known, the thrill
Of pleasure sweeping o'er our souls at the Sound of thy lightly-tripping feet? Thou art
As an angel visitor; for in the flitting
Sunbeams, the pearly dewdrops, the gentle
Zephyr's touch, there is a voice which elevates
And softens all our harsher thoughts.

There is a voice that nature doth impart,
Which steals with gentle meaning in our heart.
Sublime in truth, her lessons do unfold,
And yields a treasure richer far than gold.

MAY LOVEJOY.

Mountain Home, June, 1883.

Miscellany.

Leonie's Lilac.

About 12 o'clock one bright February day in Paris, Madame Blanchet sat waiting for the arrival of her belated scholar, Miss Cora Bell, a young American whose habit it was to spend a couple of hours three times a week in so-called "elegant conversation" in the French language with that worthy dame. The little apartment where the teacher lived had formerly been a garret over the dependance of a suburban boarding-house, taken under some stress of circumstance by its present occupant, and little by little, through taste and perseverance, it had been made to "blossom like the rose." No wonder merry Miss Cora liked her tri-weekly French lessons. The walls of the large-room, divided into two smaller ones by screens, were hung with fluted chintz, all flowers and leaves of brightest hue. A tiny porcelain stove diffused, when called upon (but that was not too often, for madame, like all French women, believed in economy in wood), a friendly warmth. In both windows, whose panes of glass were polished like the speckless boards of the flooring, were kept plants and birds. A great green box of mignonette in flower sent out a luscious fragrance. Vines were made to start from behind every picture-frame and out of every china jar upon the shelves; and somehow or other they grew like Jack's bean-stalk, strong and green and luxuriant. Best of all, a flood of genial sunshine came in on all sides, for the garret boasted of various windows. Where madame slept one could find out by peeping behind a screen at the white curtained bed with the crucifix above it, but where madame cooked no one ever guessed; yet she had a fashion of producing from unknown corners a series of luncheons that were nectar and ambrosia to her youthful visitors. Days there had been in madame's past experience when the poor lady had known what it was to subsist upon the slenderest of rations, but now the fame of her exquisite embroideries in chenille and silk was noised abroad, while her occasional scholars, like Cora Bell and a few liberal Americans of the same set, made up an income sufficient for the widow's wants.

Madame Blanchet, sitting at the open window overlooking an ivy-covered wall that just here formed the boundary of the Bois de Boulogne, felt quite wistful with regret over the non-appearance of her favorite scholar. "She will not come now," the widow said to herself, as the inevitable mantel clock struck a cheerful, loud-voiced "one." "Truly, she has twined herself into my heart, that chere petite Cora. How she laughs and dances and sings her life away! Just like that other one — so many years ago." A shiver ran over the little woman's frame, and she closed her eyes as if to banish some painful image. "My pretty Cora will never know so sad a fate as hers, thank le bon Dieu." A light step upon the stairway, and Cora, blooming with health and animation, came into the room.

"Don't scold, dear madame. There is time enough yet for a chapter of our book before they send for me."

The lesson began, but Cora's attention wandered; her thoughts flew off at a tangent; her eyes grew dreamy; a deeper rose-color settled in her cheeks. At last a little white protesting hand was laid across madame's page.

"Blanchet, dear, I want to confess to somebody. Won't you be my priest? You know that papa is in America attending to business always, and that mamma is forever going out. I've nobody but that stupid Parker of mine, and talk I must—I must. Oh, Blanchet, if such a thing can be, I am too happy! All, all this dear blessed morning be has been with me, and mamma has given her consent, and we are to be married soon."

And then, the flood-gates loosed, came a stream of joyous confidence. Cora never thought to look up at her listener until she felt a hot tear, then another, drop upon her hands clasped in the widow's lap.

"What is it, dear madame?—what have I said to pain you?" the girl asked, wondering, to be answered by a fit of bitter sobbing. With kind and gentle words Cora soothed her friend's emotion, and at last Madame Blanchet was able to speak once more.

"Forgive me, dearest young lady," she exclaimed. "In truth I never can forgive myself. I owe it to you to explain my weakness. See here: this picture which you have often caught a glimpse of in my desk. Look at it—judge for yourself of her youth, her innocence, her beauty. She was my only child, and I have lost her forever. Years ago she knelt as you do now, and poured out to me the wealth of her love and happiness under circumstances like yours. The rest is too painful for you to hear."

"Tell me more," the girl said, tenderly. "I would be selfish indeed if I refused my sympathy at a time when all seems so bright before me."

Little by little the story was revealed. Ten years before Leonie Blanchet had been sought in marriage by a wealthy Englishman, to whom her mother had given her with some misgiving, watching her go from that modest home into a life of luxury with many anxious fears. The husband Leonie had chosen was handsome, young and winning; he had made good his claim to a rank and station far above Leonie's expectations. Leonie adored him. What, then, was there to apprehend? The widow could not tell, but still! Leonie's first letters came to her so full of buoyant pride, of confident happiness, that for a time the mother could not but reflect it. The young couple were absent upon their wedding journey in the South, and had reached Rome, when a thunder-bolt fell upon the pretty, trustful bride. The man whom Leonie believed to be her husband had left his true wife in England—a gay, fashionable beauty, sufficiently "emancipated," according to the notions of her class, to mock openly and lightly at her husband's latest fancy.

"But this is not for you to hear, my child," the little French teacher said. Cora, who from motives of delicacy had avoided looking at her friend, glanced hastily up, struck by the suppressed passion in her voice. What a transformation was there! In place of the quiet, repressed, demure personage she had been accustomed to see, Madame Blanchet's eyes were a-fire; her cheeks glowed with a dull crimson; her teeth were clinched.

"Do you know what I would have done to him?" she went on. "I am a Corsican, and the blood runs hot in our veins when it is stirred by wrong—va!"

The brief passion was spent. It was succeeded by a calm even more full of meaning. Cora waited until her friend could trust herself to speak.

"They parted then and there," Madame Blanchet went on, in a low tone. "He did not defend himself. He simply laughed at her—my poor, heart-broken, humiliated child. He said she was too innocent for the times she lived in. And so she was bon Dieu, too innocent. She put all of this into one last letter to me, and she fled—fled into the night."

"And now?" the young girl said, after a long silence.

"Now she is at peace," the mother answered quietly. "The Holy Church received her in its bosom. Leonie is one of the sisters of the convent of the Sepolte Vive. For some time past I have been laying up money in order to take the journey to Rome, but until recently it was all I could do to live here, and to go away from my employment meant starvation. Oh, if I could but have seen her. I would have starved—yes, gladly—but that is impossible. All I can do is to visit the outside of the convent upon her 'day.' Once a year each sister has a 'day,' when she is allowed to throw over the convent wall a flower, in token to her watching friends that she is still alive, but that is all. I know what flower my Leonie would choose—a bunch of fresh white lilac!"

"'Sepolte Vive'—buried alive!" the young girl repeated, sadly. A shadow seemed to fall over her life, and her budding happiness.

A few months later saw the Roman spring unfold in all its glory. A party of tourists were visiting that relic of mediæval days, the convent of the Sepolte Vive. Most of them turned back disappointed at the threshold, but a group of three people lingered until the rest of the sightseers, after a colloquy held through a revolving barrel in the wall of the convent, had reluctantly dispersed. Over this barrel was traced an inscription: "Who would live content within these walls, let her leave at the threshold every earthly care." Upon these lines a woman dressed in black, standing apart from her two companions, kept her eyes fixed, while her lips moved in prayer.

The order of nuns who have thus condemned themselves to a living death subsist on charity. It is only when their supplies are totally exhausted that they are allowed, after twenty-four hours' starvation, to ring a certain bell, which the outside world interprets, "We are famishing." Two Lents are observed by them during the year—the one common to all Catholic Christians, and another held between November and Christmas. In the intervals the sisters receive and partake of whatever food may be bestowed on them by visitors.

Two of the three loiterers were young and handsome, radiant with ill-disguised happiness. That they were new-made husband and wife none could doubt, and it was a pleasant sight to see the wife order to be brought from a carriage awaiting them a hamper of abundant dainties, and with the aid of her husband proceed to unpack their store. To gain answer from the convent the young man knocked briskly upon the barrel-head, which, slowly turning, revealed a shelf within.

"What wilt thou, stranger?" came a voice, faint and far as the note of an Æolian harp. So strong was the sense of remoteness and of desolation produced by this sound that involuntarily the young wife clasped her husband's arm in shuddering.

"Oh! it is too sad," she whispered in his ear. "I think I will go back to the carriage and leave Madame Blanchet with you—may I not?"

"Nonsense, darling. Who is it who has contrived and carried out this little expedition, I should like to know? Come, cheer up, and bestow your bounties upon the good sisters within. Depend upon it, they will relish them."

Their presents were given, and in exchange our visitors received a series of cartolini, or tiny slips of printed paper folded like homœopathic powder papers, and intended to be swallowed whole by the believer, who might thereafter hope for a cure of any mortal ailment possessing him. As their colloquy with the unseen sister came to a close, the young man signed to Madame Blanchet to draw near. The mother had kept a veil over her face while standing by in silence, but now she sprang forward, and putting her lips to the opening uttered with feverish anxiety a few sentences of wild pleading unheard by her companions.

Fainter and farther were the pitying accents that smote her ear in return.

"'Sepolte vive,' daughter. The grave gives back no answer."

"Let us wait beneath the garden wall, dear friend," Cora said, as between them her husband and she supported the steps of the trembling mother from the spot. "It should be at about this time that the flower is thrown and oh! how it will comfort you to have it from her hand!"

Underneath the ancient wall of the convent garden the little group waited in silence. It was a moment of feeling too profound for words. As the hour drew near the mother left her friends and went to kneel alone upon the grassy mound where her cheek might graze the wall, as if caressing it. For a time all was silent. Then a bell sounded the hour with slow and solemn strokes. A bird burst into joyous caroling in the tree above where Cora stood. "It is a good omen," she said, glancing up into her husband's face. As the last stroke of the bell died upon the air something white and fragrant fell at the feet of the kneeling figure. "It is Leonie's white lilac!" Cora cried, starting joyously forward.

But the mother did not stir. The token had come too late to awaken joy or sorrow.—Harper's Weekly.

A Summer Visit to Canada.

WAYSIDE NOTES, NO. 8.

I am humming the old song in my heart in a kind of prophetic way,—"Home again, home again, from a foreign shore." I shall soon be singing it as a reality, the prophecy fulfilled. I am in St. Andrew's again for a brief farewell visit only. I have passed these golden summer days here so delightfully in this quiet, royal old town that I confess I hate to say good-by, though I know I leave one fair spot for another quite as fair, with many extra attractions so fine and sweet. But when I do leave the hotel, kept by my genial, humorous friend, a warm-hearted Scotchman with an Irish sound in his name—Mr. Kennedy—and take the coach for the steamer I shall not say farewell, for I remember what the poet sings, and I agree with him:—

"Farewell, farewell is a lonely sound,
And always brings a sigh;
But give to me that good old word
Which comes from the heart—Good-by."

So I shall say good-by to St. Andrew's, which is so much like its patron saint, modest and gentle, but always sincere and cordial, full of hospitality and kindness. Those pleasant sails on the river, where the wind was so obliging, like the folks who live on its banks, so that we had a fair wind both ways, going down and coming up; and then getting caught high and dry on the bar, because we forgot to consult that useful book, the almanac. The old adage was so strikingly illustrated as our boat struck the sand-bank, miles from home, loaded with our gay company, that suddenly became grave enough: "Time and tide wait for no man." And then what a grand fishing excursion we had down the bay, when the breezes were high, and the billows too. The most of us had genuine fisherman's luck. Capt. Gore thought he must have a halibut on the end of his line, it was such a heavy weight, and he was assisted to haul in the treasure, when behold it was a skate of tremendous size, with his mouth wide-open, and such a funny grin on his open countenance, as if he had heard the talk about the rising halibut, and was having a good laugh at our expense, forgetting entirely his own misfortune in the splendid joke he played upon us poor fishermen. I remember these merry parties, with the sand-bar, the smiling skate and the dashing spray, as the spice of life, which is variety, you know.

And now I am off for the United States, and shall set foot on the best one of them first—the grand old state of Maine, with its famous motto, Dirigo, I direct; and so she does direct every sister state in the union how to treat the rum question, along with many other questions. Now, to come down effectually upon the whisky bottle, the prime minister of Satan; dry up the black river at the fountain, and then there will be no stream where the bottle can be filled.

My native shore is so near the foreign shore at this point that they appear both alike; and yet as I was steaming along from St. Andrew's up the river of the holy cross, towards Calais, I somehow got the impression that the sunlight which fell on the fields and woods of Maine looked a little softer and mellower, and had a deeper and richer coloring of topaz and gold than that which illuminated the hills and vales of Canada, which I was leaving so rapidly; but I suppose it was all in my eye. But I thought of the sweet memories I had treasured up in my heart; they were brilliant and beautiful, and are shining still like stars in the evening sky.

"Bright is the beautiful land of our birth,
The home of the homeless all over the earth."

The steamer was crowded with ladies and gentlemen going to a grand convention or reunion of soldiers in the stirring little city of Calais. The hotels were filled to the brim, and every place of shelter was in great demand by the veterans who had flocked there by thousands from various states. The military displays were highly commendable. Several bands discoursed martial music in artistic style. The patriotic speeches made by General Chamberlain and other distinguished gentlemen were eloquent, and applauded to the echo. There were upwards of 5,000 people in Calais on that occasion, and not one person was arrested for being intoxicated during the festivities. There was a good deal of marching, but no reeling and staggering. Would there not have been a good deal of this kind of bad business if the main stay of temperance and sobriety had not been there. I mean the presence and beneficient power of the Maine law.

I noticed that if a thirsty man wanted a lemonade with a stick in it he had to take a journey into a foreign land for it. The stick was the chief thing he was after; the lemon part was only a blind. The well-dressed female asked the waiter for a lemonade. In an undertone he asked, obligingly, "Shall I put a stick in it?" "A stick," said she, in reply, "no, put a barber's pole into it." Now the great, heavy state of Maine sits down on the barbers' poles and the sticks, so to say, the cost makes them rather scarce.

Origin of Philosophy, No. 3.

BY FRANK M. FRISSELLE.

The meaning of mind philosophy is given us when a human being of superior intellect undertakes the conduct of the study of the means of securing human happiness and the highest ends of existence, by his views of the whole subject, according to the laws of being, and of which man at large can take no account. The mind devoted to philosophy and the common mind have entirely different methods of action in working, even upon one common subject, notwithstanding that both minds were framed originally in the same model. Both labor after the same high conduct—human virtue and immaculate virtue; but their styles of procedure are much unlike each other, the chief difference being in the comprehensive knowledge and the special matter-of-fact views.

Philosophy is the science of the essential truths of human comprehensiveness. It is the all-powerful lever for systematical investigation. Cicero calls it "the science of things human and divine. The original demonstrations of man's own nature can be considered as a very philosophical essence. In order to advance an explanation of human nature, the consideration of the numberless mechanical, chemical and vital evolutions of our existence, and the agencies of light, weight and heat, which exercise an unbounded influence upon it, is implied. What greater field can there be than humanity for the discovery of general laws. Man is interesting to man. The consciousness of the ingoings and outcomings of others, the care of his own prolonging, the devotion to the end and successes of his life's duration, are ever present in his mind. The knowledge of man is the greatest knowledge; the duty of man an infinite duty. The argument of demonstration of his obligation is a division of philosophy demanding the most unselfish motives.

In latter years the growth of accurate knowledge known in its subdivision as the science, has brought into disuse the term philosopher. In modern times, an intellectual man, instead of being defined a philosopher, is designated a mathematician, naturalist, chemist, physiologist, or plainly scientist. Plato considered politics as an essential branch of moral philosophy, and in his republican mind aimed at a government partaking of society, based upon universal principles, and embodying the truth, beauty and ratio of the divine nature. His aim was to create men for bliss by creating them virtuous. Can there be advocated a brighter doctrine? And is not the philosophy upheld by him of no earthly mind?

Carneades, a native of Cyrene, a keen philosophical disputant, absolutely denied the existence of truths, arguing that they were so tangled in falsehoods, and so confounded with errors, that it was only an impossibility to distinguish one from the other. The philosophy of æsthetics has been placed both as practical and theoretical. When philosophy confines itself to the action of this mind, theoretical philosophy is the science of conceiving or knowing, and the practical is the philosophy of the laws of action. In this case, æsthetics, being considered only as a science of taste, or of the art of perceiving the beautiful Baumgarten, designates the philosophy of æsthetics as an established, correct principle of criticism in reference to the beautiful.

In conclusion, we say that philosophy is the principle evolved, that man being born for action, his happiness must consist not merely of the agreeability of his passive sensations, but also in the prosperity of his active exertions, and the demonstration of the action in its originality.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 1883.

The Water Question.

The proposition of the Quincy Water Company on which the town is called soon to act, and which was laid before the readers of the PATRIOT in our last issue, is one of the greatest importance, and makes an era in our town life.

We are now brought face to face with one of the vital questions concerning town life. The decision of which, either way, will have marked effect; if we accept this proposition, or a modification of it, we shall have settled in a proper manner one of the problems upon which much of our future town life will depend. We have outgrown our well water supply even for the commonest domestic purpose, supposing that supply to be still in a condition fitted for our necessities. The full use of water not known to our fathers is a necessity to-day and life and health depend upon it.

The continued growth of Quincy must be very largely dependent upon the facility with which water can be obtained. Have you good water? have you water works? can I dig a well cheaply and get plenty of water? are the main questions asked by a person seeking a location for his permanent residence.

From what we have learned of the intentions of the incorporators, we do not doubt that if the water is introduced it will be of excellent quality and cheap. We suppose no one doubts it. The question we are called upon to decide in our municipal capacity is: Will we consent to a slight outlay for possibly a couple of years before we think such an outlay ought to be made for the purpose of assisting our whole population in obtaining what they feel they cannot do without, and which without such associated action of ours at a town meeting they can have no prospect of securing.

Some years ago we published an interesting analysis of the deaths occurring in our town, and the death ratio was seen to be greater than for the rest of the state; and soon thereafter the town appointed a committee to examine and report upon the sanitary condition of the town, and the quality of water used. We have not that report before us now, but if we mistake not, the sanitary condition of the town was a most unfit one, and the water supply, as demonstrated by the analysis furnished by Dr. Sharpless, the State Assayer, bore unmistakable evidences of sewage contamination.

If there are any advantages to offer to the population which must settle the towns bordering upon the metropolis of New England and we can place them at the disposal of that population, it is not only our duty but our profit to do so.

Our Public Schools.

We are sorry that the "Mother" who sent us a communication last week, "did not know what she was talking about," as the Chairman of the School Committee and Superintendent have examined into all the charges made by her, and find them almost all, without the least foundation.

We do not doubt but the writer thought she was telling the truth, but has been woefully misled. It is grave business to make charges from hearsay stories, especially when they are sent to a public journal for wide spread publicity.

But we are pleased to learn that our schools are not so bad as the article published last week would have our readers believe.

SALES. We learn that John E. Drake, our wide-awake boot manufacturer, has purchased of John R. Graham, the Souther farm on the easterly side of Washington street, opposite Mr. Graham's residence. It consists of about twelve acres of as handsome building land as there is in Quincy; and is so elevated as to command a fine view of Boston Harbor. The large square house built by Mr. Souther and occupied by Messrs. Benson and Munroe is included in this sale. It is rumored that Mr. Drake intends building several houses and a large boot manufactory on this land, and if he does things will be more lively in that vicinity.

Mr. John R. Graham has nearly completed a large addition to his house; has erected a wind mill for pumping water, and is talking of erecting a large boot and shoe manufactory. Mr. Graham has also sold to John M. Sullivan a handsome houselot on Washington street, next to John L. Souther, and a cellar is being built, and soon we may expect to see a handsome house for Mr. Sullivan, built by Mr. Warren D. Higgins.

KILLING A DOG. A very interesting case to owners of dogs came before the District Court on Monday last.—Bartholomew Flaherty brought an action against William F. Loud for killing his dog. It appears that as Mr. Loud was driving by Mr. Flaherty's, in West Quincy a dog run across the street and attacked Mr. Loud's dog, a clever Newfoundland, grabbing him by the neck. Mr. Loud got off his team and taking a piece of board struck the strange dog over the head, which broke his skull and he died at once. Mr. Loud said he did not intend to kill the animal but as the dog had no collar on he feels he had perfect right to do so. William G. A. Pattee, Esq., appeared for the plaintiff and J. L. Eldridge for defendent. Judge Humphrey after hearing the evidence, reserved his decision for one week.

BUSINESS ENTERPRISE. Of course none of our readers will fail to notice the advertisement on our next page of our popular druggist, A. G. Durgin, who always keeps abreast of the times in advertising and in his business; and occupies the largest amount of space this week ever used by any person since the first issue of the PATRIOT, which was in the year 1837. The success which Mr. Durgin has met with, goes to show what an enterprising man can do, by investing a part of his profits in printers' ink, and keeping just what he advertises. We have inspected his apparatus the past week and hope the public will appreciate the pains and great expense he has been to to supply the people of this town with pure, wholesome and unadulterated soda and mineral water.

YACHT SALE. Mr. Willoughby, at the Gurnet, has sold his fine schooner yacht, Vision, to Mr. Taylor, of Quincy.—Old Colony Memorial.

Brief Locals.

☞ Who has lost a dog?

☞ Female help is wanted.

☞ A nice yacht is advertised for sale.

☞ Forepaugh's great circus passed through town Friday morning.

☞ Mr. Ramsdell advertises splendid June butter in small tubs and boxes for sale.

☞ The Steamer horses are taken out for exercise every morning about five o'clock.

☞ A gentleman doing business in the city wishes to obtain first-class board for the Summer.

☞ The grounds around the beautiful estate of Col. A. B. Packard are looking very lovely.

☞ Miss Susie Foster left Wednesday morning for Lakeville where she intends stopping through June.

☞ Messrs. Timothy Walker and George S. Paterson have moved from Mr. B. N. Adams' house to Elm place.

☞ Mr. Edwin R. Wheble was quite severely bitten by a dog last week, while serving fish to one of his customers.

☞ George W. Kenison has had his two houses on Washington street beautifully painted by Mr. Elwood M. Litchfield.

☞ A special town meeting is called for Monday, June 19th, to consider the proposition made by the Quincy Water Company.

☞ Mr. H. M. Faxon has decided to name his new yacht, Spray. She is cat-rig and was built last winter at South Boston, by E. Harris.

☞ A little child which had strayed from its home was found on Adams street in the vicinity of Mr. W. W. Greenough's on Friday morning.

☞ Mr. John D. Nutting, who was very severely injured at the granite works of F. J. Fuller, West Quincy, a short time ago, we are pleased to learn is able to be out again.

☞ We learn from the Boston Herald that Col. George A. Ordway, Superintendent of Quincy Home, has been tendered a prominent position in the Tewksbury Almshouse.

☞ Contributions for the Boston Flower and Fruit Mission may be left on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday next, at the house of Mr. John W. Hall, Hancock street.

☞ Miss Whicher, Mrs. Floyd and Mr. P. McDonnell, who were among the Raymond excursionists of April 5th to California, returned to Quincy on Sunday, having been absent a little over eight weeks.

☞ Third annual games of Clan-MacGregor of Quincy will be held at Caledonia Grove, East Milton, on Monday, June 18. The day will be spent in dances, games and races. Music by Grant's Quadrille Band.

☞ Many of our old boys are rejuvenating by a practice of gymnastics performed from a bicycle. Some one wickedly remarks that these gentlemen exhibit in their zeal to emulate the young in this art, "the bravery of a lion with the discretion of a jackass."

☞ Another citizen has been found whom we classed among the young, but who proves to be an octogenarian. Mr. Lelois, whose skill and nicety in gardening are well known, gets up at 4 A. M., does fourteen hours work in a day, is as nimble as a cat, and his eye is as bright as ever. There is no need to grow old.

☞ At the First Church Sunday School Floral Festival to be celebrated to-morrow at 3 P. M., the addresses will be delivered by Rev. H. W. Foote of Kings' Chapel and Rev. W. H. Lyon of Mount Pleasant Church, Boston. The singing will be entirely by the children. Doors will be opened at 3.30 o'clock, and the public are cordially invited.

☞ Among the delegates to the National Medical Convention at Cleveland, is our townsman, Dr. Gordon. Drs. Gilbert and Donovan attend to his practice during his absence. Dr. Gordon left for Washington, intending to stop at Niagara Falls, taking the trip through the Thousand Isles to Montreal on his way home; embracing a a journey lasting until the middle of June. His many friends will be glad to welcome him after this much needed rest.

☞ The marriage of Mr. Frederic Jenkins to the youngest daughter of Mr. Charles Faxon, took place on Sunday afternoon, at the residence of the bride on Chestnut street. Beside the immediate families, there were many of Miss Faxon's school mates present. A pleasant augury of the occasion was the fact that the day was also the birth-day of both bride and bridegroom. May the perfect June day be typical of a peace which may abide with them.

☞ A small wooden building, about ten feet square, in the rear of Mr. George A. Brackett's residence, on Chestnut street, was discovered on fire about three o'clock Wednesday morning. An alarm was given but before the fire department arrived the neighbors had extinguished it by the aid of Johnson's pumps. The fire is supposed to have been accidental as some little boys were enjoying a fire in the building in the afternoon.

☞ The sad affliction of scarlet fever among us, will lead our citizens to think seriously of the question of water which will soon come up at a town meeting to be called. Only by an occasional visitation like those which have brought grief to households in our midst, is the public awakened to the necessity of stringent sanitary regulations and precautions against the diseases. The town is well located for water and for sewerage and our material prosperity will be strengthened by these improvements and necessities.

☞ The grounds of the Sailors' Home never looked better. The well clipped borders, hard roads broken by circular and oval plats edged with a variety of evergreen trees, the lawn dotted with flower beds, all are especially attractive at this season. Many hundreds of little trees in the nursery have grown well, and trees planted in sheltered places behind the barns have more than fulfilled their promise of fine growth. Here as elsewhere the larches and cedars suffered from the protracted cold of winter and it is noticable that the myrtle in most places near the sea-shore, has died during the long cold season.

LOVELL'S GROVE.

Lovell's Grove is one of the loveliest spots one can visit, though being so near home, it is, like so many other things, not so fully appreciated as it should be. It is now in holiday attire and we think never looked better than at present. There is almost every natural attraction to be found here, the greater part of the grove is covered with cool shade trees, which the hot days of the past week cause one to appreciate; a good shelving beach, extending more than half way round the grove, down to the river, where a dip in the cool salt water will make the old feel young, and the young too good to live; and the whole as pretty a situation as could be selected.

For the past year or two few picnics have been held here, but we now understand, that soon a steamer will again begin to run regular trips between Boston and North Weymouth. By this arrangement, the throngs will come again, but if we do not find the grove quite so quiet and peaceful, we shall have the additional pleasure of occasionally whiling away some portion of a hot and sultry day, by a trip to the city, by water and perhaps a call at Long Island, as of old. Altogether we think we shall be the gainer by considerable, and doubtless more profitable pleasure seekers, to those having these matters in charge.

BASE BALL.

On Friday night of last week a base ball Association was hurriedly formed by the Point boys and the nine on Saturday afternoon, at Point Holes played a Boston nine from Ordway, Blodgett & Hidden's dry goods house.

The victory was gained in good shape by the visitors, the score standing at the close of nine innings twenty-five to ten tallies. The Point boys were defeated, but not at all discouraged, and will soon try a second game with the same nine.

The second meeting of the Association will be held this evening at 7.30 o'clock, a full attendance is requested as business of importance will be transacted.

THIS AND THAT.

The watering cart made its first appearance on Washington street this season on Monday, but so far its work has been light on account of numerous heavy showers.

Monday evening the members of the Vulture Engine Company, with ladies held a strawberry festival at the engine house, a very pleasant time was enjoyed.

The heavy thunder shower of Wednesday was severely felt here; the lightning struck in three places, but did little damage.

SHIPPING.

Arrived June 6th, schooner G. B. Furgerson, Capt. Ryan, from Belfast, with granite for Mitchell and others.

Arrived June 7th, schooner Mary D. Dreland, Capt. Jeffries, from Philadelphia, with 324 tons coal for J. F. Sheppard.

Arrived June 7th, schooner W. D. Hilton, Capt. Homer, with 490 tons coal from Va., for J. F. Sheppard.

PERSONAL.

W. Henry Dean has gone South for two or three months, travelling for a Boston firm.

Mrs. Wm. K. Chubbuck is visiting friends in New York.

Mrs. A. A. Harlow was among us once more on Sunday last, for the first time since her accident in April.

Sad Bereavement.

On Wednesday afternoon the funeral took place of Abigail Smith Adams, wife of Joseph W. Robertson, Esq., and daughter of the late Boylston Adams, son of Peter Boylston who was brother of John Adams, being the last member in her generation of that branch of the family. She died on Monday at quarter of twelve o'clock after suffering several months with nervous depression. She was naturally of a happy, genial disposition, and many of the older residents will remember her voice leading the alto at the Unitarian Church with Mrs. Thomas Adams as soprano. Later in life she attended the Universalist Church joining several organizations connected therewith. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. T. Sawyer, and was largely attended by her many friends who hold her memory in great affection and esteem.

☞ The weather on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week has been exceedingly hot and uncomfortable.

☞ Mr. Charles W. Carter of Quincy will address the Sabbath School connected with the first Congregational Church, Braintree, on Sunday next, at 2 o'clock. It will be the 66th anniversary of the school.

EXCURSION. The Massachusettss Press Association left Boston Friday afternoon for a delightful trip to Virginia. The party was quite small but was composed of some of the most talented members of the association. Their visit will be to the most delightful portions of the Old Dominion and will occupy one week.

☞ A bill in equity was presented on behalf of the inhabitants of Quincy for an injunction to restrain the Common Sense Fertilizer Company from carrying on its business at Atlantic, on the ground that the same is a public nuisance and injurious to health. The Judge directed an order of notice to issue, returnable on the third Tuesday of June

LL. D. On Thursday of last week by a vote of 11 to 15, the Overseers of Harvard College refused to extend to the Governor of the Commonwealth the long-established honorary degree on Commencement Day. The Corporation, comprising the President, Treasurer and five "Fellows of the University," unanimously voted the degree. Among those who voted in favor of conferring the degree were Congressman-elect Lyman, Charles Francis Adams, Jr., and Leverett Saltonstall. Judge Hoar of Concord, Col. Henry Lee, R. M. Morse and Rev. James Freeman Clarke of Boston were prominent in opposition.

"The reasons for this action," says Rev. James Freeman Clarke, one of the trustees, "are that Gov. Butler is a bad man; and that it is wrong to give the rising generation of young men the idea that success, no matter how pursued or on what terms accomplished, is all that is necessary to command the highest encomiums and regards of good men."

Dole Fertilizing Works.

There has been so much said of late in public print about the Dole Fertilizing Works at South Boston and Atlantic, we improved an opportunity offered on Tuesday last to visit the Company's works at South Boston.

We were somewhat surprised at our arrival at their place of business, for we had expected from what we had read, that we should smell some rods away from their premises an unpleasant odor, and had accordingly prepared our handkerchief with cologne for the occasion; but we did not perceive any disagreeable smell until we went into the inclosure; and then it was not particularly obnoxious; any more so, we think, than many stables where a large number of animals are kept. We saw a large quantity of the fertilizer covered with pulverized charcoal; immense piles of stable manure, refuse matter, etc., which had been collected and covered over, which is allowed to remain one year and decay. At which time it is spread out in small quantities to dry, and then it is mixed with other ingredients, ground and placed in bags for shipment. The air in the mill was found full of dust which was strongly impregnated with an odor which was very unpleasant to us, still there were a large number of men employed there, who did not appear to mind it. A few rods away it was scarcely noticeable, and we doubt if any person living forty or fifty rods from the Company's works would ever notice anything offensive from them.

We would not like to have the Dole Company place their works close to our residence, any more than we would to have a piggery, a slaughter house, or a large livery stable, and many other nuisances that already exist in most every community.

We think by the appearances at their works that the Company conduct their business, which is a benefit to the agricultural community, with due regard to the public, and try not to give offence to any one.

West Quincy Items.

The new fence at the west end of Copeland street is now finished, and is a much needed improvement.

The Hawthorne Club gave their first public recital at Temperance Hall, on Tuesday evening. A large audience was present and showed their appreciation by frequent applause. The drama "My Brother's Keeper" was presented in the most approved style, and the cast of characters were well suited to their several parts. The concluding farce entitled, Hans von Smash was very laughable; and "Hans" represented by Mr. Al. Snoots, could not have been improved by a professional actor. The Club have been invited to repeat their play in other towns, and will probably do so soon. Mr. Will Barron, of Boston, furnished acceptable music for the occasion on a fine Chickering piano.

A floral concert will be given by the children of the M. E. Church Sunday School, next Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock.

Mr. S. Frost, the popular musician and music teacher, has enlarged his business so as to be obliged to be in Quincy two days in the week. As a teacher he can not be excelled, and is now obliged to refuse many who would gladly be his pupils. He has furnished many fine instruments in this part of the town; among which are an elegant piano for Mr. John Burns; the "Harmonic Organ," at the M. E. Church; a fine Estey Organ to Mr. C. F. Cole, and many others. Any persons looking for first-class instruments will do well to consult him before purchasing.

District Court, Quincy.

The following criminal cases have been before the District Court since our last issue:

Lucy Elizabeth Skinner, for vagrancy, was sent to the House of Correction for three months.

Peter Moody of Braintree, for being drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

David Thayer of Braintree, for selling intoxicating liquors, was discharged.

William Garrity of Quincy, for illegally transporting intoxicating liquors. was continued until Monday next.

James Bill of Quincy, for embezzlement from Hosie's express. After hearing the evidence the case was continued until Monday next for a decision.

Cornelius Ring of Quincy, for an assault on Terrance Keenan. Fined $5 and costs.

J. Clarence Howe of Weymouth, for an assault, fined $5 and costs.

John Welch of Milton, for malicious mischief. Fined $5 and costs.

John Bates, a vagrant, sent to the State Work House at Bridgewater for six months.

Lawrence Donahue of Milton, for an assault on William Welch. Discharged.

THANKS. The compositors in the PATRIOT Office were made happy this week by a box of excellent cigars, presented to them by Mr. G. F. Wilson, who has probably the largest and nicest stock of the "weed" to be found in Quincy or vicinity.

THE NEW STEAMER. The Fall River Line will try their new iron steamer Pilgrim on Tuesday next. Invitations from the Old Colony Railroad and Steamboat Companies have been sent to distinguished citizens and members of the press to be present. The number of guests will be limited.

"The Country Week," 1883.

"The Country Week," a plan inaugurated in 1876, for sending poor and deserving children for a vacation of a week or fortnight to the pleasant homes in the country, will this year enter upon its ninth season. The movement has been attended with success from the outset, the result of each year showing an increase of numbers and interest over the preceding year.

Since the inauguration of the work, 8,464 children and adults have enjoyed for two weeks each, by means of the contributions to the funds of the Country Week, the luxuries of pure air, cleanliness, and wholesome food, in country homes. There are still thousands of children in the tenement houses and the courts and alleys of our city, where the poor are compelled to live, who need this change. To the friends who have so generously aided them in the past the Committee again confidently appeals for a continuance of their support.

The Board of Government of the B. Y. M. C. Union have voted to continue this important work for the present year, and have appointed a special committee, with Miss Ellen H. Bailey as secretary. Letters relating to the Country Week may be addressed to Miss Ellen H. Bailey, secretary, 18 Boylston street, Boston. In order to proceed with this season's work, special contributions of money from ladies, gentlemen, and business firms are now needed. All donations by check or in funds may be sent by mail or otherwise, directed to Wm. H. Baldwin, president, 18 Boylston street, Boston, and marked for the Country Week, for which receipts will be promptly returned.

Atlantic.

Mr. Geo. S. Blaisdell, of Neponset, who had the contract for building the reservoir at junction of Contest avenue and Billings street, has completed the same and deserves a compliment for the thorough manner in which he has done the work. This reservoir is the largest one in town and was built under the supervision of the Board of Engineers, from plans prepared by them, and differs in some respects from the others. The steamer will probable be used for filling it.

During the past week, new side-walks have been made on Billings and Atlantic streets. The Road Commissioners using for that purpose, the surplus material from the reservoir.

Ground has been broken for the cellar of a house to be built on Contest avenue by Mrs. L. E. Larkin of Charlestown. The plans show a very large and handsome Queen Ann cottage.

A Mr. Hill, of Neponset has also commenced work upon a new house on Walker street.

The alarm of fire from Box 26, on Wednesday morning came in all right. The J. Q. Adams Chemical Engine started, but owing to the recall, did not proceed very far.

☞ A gang of workmen in the employ of the Old Colony Railroad Company, worked all day last Sunday in building a new bridge over the culvert which connects the land of Messrs. James Edward and Lewis Bass, near the Granite street crossing. The workmen took up the rails, sawed the old wooden bridge in two and took one half up; then they fixed the foundation, put in new iron trusses, wooden stringers, and the rails were relaid; thus completing one half the job. Next Sunday they intend finishing it in good shape.

☞ The canker worms have commenced their ravages on the apple trees this week in good earnest.

TEMPEST. The first real tempest of the season visited us on Wednesday afternoon, accompanied by some heavy thunder and sharp lightning. The lightning struck several trees in different places in town, also, a smoke stack at the hot house of Mr. William Webb, but without doing any damage, except, demolishing the stack and breaking several squares of glass. A large elm tree standing beside the brook near the residence of Mr. Peter Butler was blown over by the wind which at one time blew fiercely.

GREETING:

In the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, you are hereby required to notify and warn the Inhabitants of the Town of Quincy, qualified to vote in Town Affairs, to meet at the Town Hall, on TUESDAY, June 19th, 1883, at 7.30 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of considering the following subjects, viz.:

ARTICLE 1.—To choose a Moderator.

ARTICLE 2.—To consider the proposition made by the Quincy Water Company, as follows:—The Quincy Water Company will construct a complete water works, and lay not less than 8 miles of pipe, and set thereon not less than eighty hydrants, and at all times maintain a full and sufficient supply of water, at a head of not less than 150 feet above tide, provided the town will contract for a term of twenty-five years to pay the sum of $3,000, annually, for the use of said hydrants for fire purposes, the company will, if desired by the town, extend said main pipes, provided the town will locate one hydrant for each 400 feet of pipe so extended, and pay the additional sum of $35 per annum for each additional hydrant. The Company will furnish water for the Town House, Public Schools, Engine Houses, Police Station and other public buildings of the town, for a sum each year equal to the amount of town tax on the real estate of said Company.

ARTICLE 3.—To see if the town will authorize the Board of Engineers to repair the Steamer House, at an expense not exceeding two hundred dollars.

Hereof fail not, but make return of this warrant, with your doings thereon, unto the Town Clerk, on or before the day appointed for said meeting.

Given under our hands at Quincy, this Seventh day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.

JUNE BUTTER.

To Buyers and Users of Butter:

I AM now constantly receiving large quantities of the much desired JUNE BUTTER, direct from the best of Vermont Dairies.

This Butter is packed in new, clean tubs, from 20 to 40 pounds each, and shipped in refrigerator cars from week to week as it is made. Besides the tubs, I receive some in ten-pound boxes; and I have also contracted with one of the best of the daries to have all they make packed in neat, 5-pound boxes for my summer trade.

I am receiving very liberal amounts, and in order to keep my stock fresh, I will sell at very liberal prices. Also, by way of making a special inducement to secure new families for my butter trade, I will offer during the month of June these choice 5-pound boxes (which usually sell at 34 or 35 cents) at just 30 cents a pound; delivered free.

This Butter is being used by some of the best families in Quincy and Neponset; but as the "proof of the pudding is in the eating," I would invite all to give this a trial and see for themselves.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

To the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy:

THE Directors of the Old Colony Railroad Company respectfully represent that said corporation has finished the construction of and put in operation its main road, and desires to build a branch thereof in the Town of Quincy, upon a route shown by a map thereof, which map, together with a profile and engineers' report, agreeably to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, they herewith submit; that it has received from the Board of Railroad Commissioners a certificate that public convenience and necessity require the construction of such branch; and they ask that you will appoint a time and place for a hearing, of which due notice may be given, and after such hearing will agree with them as to a route of said branch, in said town, and sign and give to them a certificate setting forth said route, agreeably to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided.

The Directors of the Old Colony Railroad Company.

By CHARLES F. CHOATE,
President.

In the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy:

AND now, upon the submission of the foregoing petition and the accompanying map and report to the Selectmen, it is ordered that a hearing be had upon said petition before the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy, at the station of the Old Colony Railroad Company, in said town, on the twenty-second day of June, 1883, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice thereof be given by publishing said petition and this order in the Quincy PATRIOT, a newspaper published in the County of Norfolk, for two successive weeks, the last publication to be at least two days prior to said hearing, and also by posting copies thereof and of this notice in at least two public places in the Town of Quincy, at least two weeks before such hearing.

A FEW GRAVE FACTS FOR THE PUBLIC TO KNOW.

A few grave facts as regards the dispensing of Soda and Mineral waters which all lovers of a pure and wholesome article should know. Never drink Soda Water drawn from a copper fount (the tank which contains the soda), such as you may see almost daily on our express wagons at this season. Why? Because the action of Soda or Mineral waters upon copper makes a corrosion which is a deadly poison. The dispenser may tell you that his copper fount is lined with tin, but it is not; there is only a thin washing of tin, which cannot wear but a short time before the copper is exposed—then comes the danger. He may be as particular as is possible for him to be, and he can not avoid it. It may not always be perceived by the taste at once, but it is there, and can not be otherwise, and if continued for any length of time is sure to occasion sickness, and sometimes quite serious results.

Next come the coolers (the chambers which hold the Soda inside the apparatus, where the ice is kept), which in all fountains, except those having the very latest improvements, are Copper, with the tin washing, same as the founts, which is often carelessly done, and after having been in use one season the corrosion is so great that unless they are rewashed with tin they are extremely dangerous to drink out of. Next, the syrup cans, which are made of tin and are placed in the fountain in such a way that to take them out to clean them necessitates taking the apparatus all apart, which cannot be done oftener than once a year, while some dispensers never take them out at all, but simply turn water in and let it pass through, which only runs off a little of the surface dirt, and the sediments,

Which have grown foul, are left for the public to drink.

Now, after several years' experience in the Soda and Mineral water business, and having paid particular attention and taken great pains to have the best and most approved means of supplying my customers with the purest Soda and Mineral waters, I have this season put in a new and elegant Soda water apparatus, called the "Capitol," which has all the very latest improvements, and no copper enters into its construction in any particular.

1st. Our founts are steel, with a pure block tin lining, not simply a washing of tin, but a solid sheet of pure block tin, and should the lining get broken from any cause, the action of the soda would be upon steel, which is perfectly harmless, and not upon

THAT DANGEROUS METAL, COPPER.

2d. Our coolers are solid block tin pipes, which, we claim, have no equal for cooling; and we challenge any other apparatus to produce soda into 5 degrees as cold as ours, and no possible corrosion of any kind whatever.

3d. Our syrup cans are GLASS, which fit firmly into rubber sockets, and can be taken out by simply lifting them up, and are thoroughly cleaned every time they are filled with syrup, so there can be no sediment or foul matter collect in them at all, but, instead, will be as sweet and wholesome as the most fastidious might desire.

4th. Our Soda water is not made of Cochituate water, which is so obnoxious, but of pure and sparkling spring water, from the well-known and most reliable firm of S. G. Parker & Co., sole agents in Boston for the genuine Saratoga Spring waters, who also supply me with Star and Vichy waters, just as they come from the spring, charged with carbonic acid gas.

Our syrups are made of pure sugar and fruit juices, and think them the finest flavored ever sold.

Egg Lemonade, a very popular drink, is made by dropping one fresh egg into a glass with chopped ice, well shaken, with an elegant syrup and soda, and should be tried to be appreciated.

Our Birch Beer needs no comments, as it

HAS BEEN THOROUGHLY TESTED

for the last five years, and speaks for itself. I should be pleased to explain the advantages of my new apparatus to any and all who are interested. Notwithstanding all these advantages and expenses, which have necessarily been made, I shall keep my price the same as last year,—5 CENTS PER GLASS, until further notice—so that all may avail themselves of having a pure and wholesome beverage. EGG LEMONADE, which we shall make a specialty of, at 10 CENTS A GLASS.

Soldiers for Three Months.

The following is the roll of Captain Franklin Curtis' company, which went from Quincy at the breaking out of the rebellion in 1861. The company was organized and started in one day after receiving a call from the President. It was designated as Company H, of Third Brigade, which was commanded by Colonel Abner B. Packard of Quincy. The call from President Lincoln was received on the 15th of April, and on the following day, April 16, 1861, the company started for Boston, where they left immediately for Fortress Monroe, Virginia.

All the members served faithfully and returned to their homes except two. A private, Henry C. Turner, deserted, and private Francis L. Souther, who was shot at the battle of Big Bethel, June 10. He received mortal wounds and died the same day. He was a native of Quincy, and the first soldier killed in the war.

Our Schools.

QUINCY, June 6th, 1883.

To the Publishers of the Patriot:

To your correspondent, "A mother," who has the moral courage to criticise the management of our public schools, I wish to return my sincere thanks, for she but re-echoes the sentiments and grievances of many mothers, who have only been waiting for some one to open the subject publicly that they might join in the discussion. In one district in particular it has for a long time been an established fact, that scholars or parents had no rights that the teachers were bound to respect, and in cases where the parents have had occasion to appeal to the School Committee in charge of the district from the unjust and arbitrary demands of some young teacher, his answer has invariably been "We must stand by the teachers," and he does it to perfection. The old saying that "woman's presence and contact have a charm subduing influence or magnetic power over the souls of men," was never more beautifully illustrated than in the manner in which some of the teachers seem to handle this member of the School Board. They seem to know that he will stand by them under any and all circumstances, and they seem to take advantage of it much to the discomfort of the children and the disgust of parents.

What is wanted in the Quincy Schools, and what parents and scholars and good teachers, have long felt the need of, is a few common-sense motherly women as members of the Board of School Committee, and now that the ladies have the right to vote on that question, the remedy is in their hands, and I hope and trust they will not let this subject drop until all of the mothers have taken the opportunity to speak publicly, what they have so long talked over in private; and that they have a representation on the School Board, by one who knows and can appreciate the position and feelings that a mother holds towards her little ones, who attend the public schools.

ANOTHER MOTHER.

Who's to Blame?

MESSRS. EDITORS: Who is responsible for letting at large a wild man, in order that he may commit suicide, which is supposed may have been the fate of the young man who on Sunday, May 27, was let out of his secure lodgings instead of being properly cared for. Why cannot Quincy have officers appointed who could attend to such duties, and when a poor maniac is under their care be protected and not allowed to be taken from a place of security thereby costing him his life? A person once lodged in a cell should remain there till the law is looked into and justice done to him. DUDLEY.

Appointment.

To the Editors of the Patriot:

The citizens of this place feel that the Town Fathers have acknowledged a part of our wants, as by an act of the Selectmen on Saturday, May 19, they appointed Mr. John T. Hunt, son of our old and efficient policeman, as special police. Mr. Hunt senior having gone to a new field of duty.

Solomon Willard.

Mr. Solomon Willard who was for many years a resident of West Quincy, and who took great interest in the granite business, and in other matters pretaining to the welfare of this pleasant and thriving village, was born June 26, 1783, and consequently would be if living, one hundred years old on Tuesday, the 26th day of the present month. In order to inform the present generation who have come upon the stage of action since Mr. Willard passed away, of the veneration and esteem in which he was held by the citizens of West Quincy, we copy from Pattee's History of Quincy, the following reference to the decease of this estimable citizen which took place in February, 1861:

"Mr. Willard when about to take his place at the breakfast table was stricken with apoplexy and in about twenty minutes quietly expired. His death caused sudden and sad gloom to come over the village of his residence and his funeral was attended with every degree of respect; the schools were dismissed, the bells tolled, and the school children, with all the citizens of West Quincy in sad and solemn possession, while the band played a dirge, proceeded to the Hall Cemetery, where all that was once mortal of Solomon Willard was deposited; and the rejected shaft of the New York exchange, which some years previous he had unaided placed there, is erected near the last resting place of this public-spirited man, and benefactor of the town."

The school of this village bears his name, and also one of the principal streets, which show the high esteem the people of the village held this good citizen; therefore we think it would be highly becoming the principal citizens of the village to make some arrangement to observe in an appropriate manner the one hundredth anniversary of his birth. H. W. B.

☞ Messrs. R. Hoe & Co. of New York, the famous press manufacturers, have just written a letter to THE BOSTON Globe that their new perfecting press will be completed in September. This will give THE GLOBE a capacity of 50,000 papers an hour and enable the management to print and deliver 200,000 Globes in four hours, the time in which a morning and evening newspaper usually occupies in printing and delivery. The enormous increase in the circulation of THE DAILY and SUNDAY GLOBE forced the management to order additional machinery and confirms the impression in the public mind that THE GLOBE is making rapid strides.

CONSECRATION OF A CHURCH.—The Episcopal Church of St. John, at Hingham, was consecrated on Tuesday, by Right Rev. Bishop Benjamin H. Paddock, assisted by Rev. Edward W. Osborne of Boston, Rev. L. W. Saltonstall of Dorchester, Rev. S. W. Sherman of Jamaica Plain, Rev. H. E. Cotton of Quincy, and others. The new edifice is 27x60 feet, of the colonial style of architecture, the general finish being white oak, and the pews ash. The walls are tastefully frescoed in terra cotta and peacock blue. Two memorial windows have been put in; one by Miss Blanche Shimmins, in memory of her grandparents and the other by ex-Governor John D. Long, in memory of the late Mrs. Long.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, June 4, 1883.

After an absence of ten days in New York City, President Arthur returned to the White House Saturday night. He will next go to Soldiers' Home for a few weeks beyond which time his plans are known only to himself, if known at all. About mid-summer some of the gossips send him to the Pacific Slope for recreation, while others have planned for him a fishing excursion to Cheat River, West Virginia. In the past he has occasionally thwarted the best laid plans of men and women, with an undreamed of programme, and to venture to map out President Arthur's summer campaign before the summer is ended is as reckless as to forecast his appointments to office. His ways will be past finding out until he starts upon his journey.

The establishment of a Casino in this city, which is now an assured fact, is an enterprise in which every festively inclined citizen is interested. The buildings have been magnificently planned, and are to include a handsome theatre, restaurants, reading rooms, a bowling alley, and all the attractions of a first-class Casino. It will occupy a site on Connecticut avenue, one of the popular promenades of the city.

There is no abatement of the real estate fever in Washington. Property is changing hands, and agents are rapidly getting rich. One agent has realized $10,000 profit in the last three months, while many people who have money have just had their appetites for investment whetted by an operation of Gen. Dunn, by which he made $50,000 in less than a month. Ground, in the north-western part of the city that has lately been selling at 50 cents a foot has been marked up to $2 a foot, and good building sites in desirable localities are held as high as five dollars a foot, and are in demand even at that price.

I hear that Congress will be asked next session to extend the northern boundary line of Washington some distance into the country. It is said that the movement has the sanction of the district triumvirate. This, perhaps, explains why outside capitalists are putting so much money into farms north of the city.

I am told that the Russian Legation is looking for a site for a permanent establishment similar to that of the English government. Another interesting item is that one of the richest and most enterprising of Wall street brokers, Mr. D. P. Morgan, was here the other day, and after trying in vain to lease the residence of Mrs. Stewart, on Dupont Circle, decided to build a handsome residence in that locality to be occupied by himself next winter. He had lately returned from Paris, and said that Washington was good enough for him.

There are still plenty of opportunities for making money in real estate, and it is probable that next autumn will show a still more active real estate market than now exists. Enough money has already been made to cause many residents to feel very comfortable. All the investments that were made a year or two ago have turned out profitably. Among others who have realized handsome profits is Mrs. Craig Woodworth, the lady to whom it was rumored the President was to be married. Her profits in a year on the purchase of a single building site were $2,500.

William Walter Phelps, of New Jersey, has found an investment of $90,000 in land on Dupont Circle a highly profitable operation. He contemplates the construction of a handsome mansion on that circle. Hon. R. R. Hitt, of Illinois, who is a gentleman of large wealth, has plans for a residence in the same locality. Mr. Frank Riggs has made plans for a costly residence on Massachusetts avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets.

There is a great advance in property on New Hampshire avenue, and Hon. John B. Alley, who held a large tract of land in that neighborhood, has realized already a splendid sum of money by his transactions there. The best building sites on Massachusetts avenue are now held at five dollars a foot, and they are in demand even at that price. Hon. S. S. Cox's house on Dupont Circle, which he bought for $30,000, was offered only a short time ago by its owner for twenty thousand. Don Cameron bought half a square near by just before sailing for Europe, at sixty cents a foot, for which he expects to get a dollar and a half a foot within a comparatively short period.

ADAMS.

A PLEASANT TRIP. Mrs. William S. Cogswell and her son, Edward E., left their home in Hyde Park on the 17th of May for a trip to Barre, Vt., which is Mrs. Cogswell's native place. They travelled the entire distance in their own carriage. Some of the roughest parts of the journey were encountered in the mountain regions of New Hampshire. At one place, which is called Ragged Mountain, the ascent was so steep that they preferred walking. Mr. Cogswell after enjoying a short time in Barre, returned home, but his mother is still with her friends in Vermont.

For the Patriot.

Decoration Day.

Come with the fairest flowers of May,
And strew them on the soldier's grave;
A tender tribute which we pay,
To him who died our land to save.

To-day the skies are calm and bright,
No clouds are drifting on the air;
But in the blue ethereal height,
There is a beauty rich and rare.

Not thus in those sad years gone by,
When cruel war was raging here,
The smoke of battle veiled the sky,
And loyal hearts were filled with fear.

'Twas then our noblest men and brave,
Engaged in conflict for the right;
And gladly life and fortune gave,
That we might bask in freedom's light.

Though silent in the dust they lie,
We keep their sacred memories green;
Their names and deeds shall never die
While Freedom's face so fair is seen.

Then pile the roses sweet and red,
Where our true patriot heroes sleep:
For crimson was the blood they shed,
That peace and Union we might keep.

Farm and Garden.

Potatoes Under Straw.

Several years ago there was much said about growing potatoes under straw, and we published at the time several reports from those who had tried the method with success. Interest in the subject appears to be renewed to judge from inquiries. The method is very simple; the land is prepared in the usual manner and the rows marked off; the sets are dropped along the rows and very slightly, or not at all, covered with soil. The whole field, or bed, is then covered with 8 or 10 inches thickness of old straw. Nothing more is required until digging time unless some strong weeds should make their way through the straw, and these may be pulled. It is claimed that the yield is larger and the potatoes are much handsomer than those treated in the usual manner.—American Agriculturist.

Stirring the Soil

The frequent stirring of the soil is necessary to secure a good growth of plants that are annuals, not only because it kills the weeds, but also because it lets the air into the soil and hastens the decomposition of fertilizers applied to the land. If the soil is permitted to remain undisturbed from planting until harvesting, the crop will be very small indeed, even though the land be free from weeds and has been well manured, providing the crop be one that permits the sun to shine on a considerable portion of the land during the months of June and July.

With our present improved implements for stirring the soil, and at the same time killing the weeds, there is no excuse for raising weeds or for permitting crops to suffer because the land becomes baked hard. No month in the year is so important for this work as June. As soon as the crop is above ground the work should begin in earnest, and repeated as often as is necessary to keep the soil light and loose. A few days neglect not only injures the crop, but it also gives the weeds a chance to get so firmly rooted that it makes cultivation difficult, and the killing of them almost impossible, unless picked up and carried off the field, which can only be done at great expense. Never stir the soil when it rains, but as soon after as the soil becomes dry enough to pulverize.—Mass. Ploughman.

Value of the Sunflower.

It is the egg-producing food known for poultry, keeping them in a thriving condition and largely increasing the production of eggs. Every poultry raiser who tries it will find that this seed is the best food known for glossing the plumage of fowls, and is almost indispensible to those who want to fit their birds for exhibition to the best advantage. The Russian sunflower is easily raised, requires very little care, can be grown in fence corners or other places difficult to cultivate. Its production of seed is immense, yielding often at the rate of one hundred bushels to the acre. It should be planted in hills four feet apart, any time from the 10th of May to the first of July. Three quarts of seed will plant an acre.—Iowa Homestead.

Anecdotes.

"Are your domestic relations agreeable?" was the question put to an unhappy looking specimen of humanity.

"Oh, my domestic relations are all right," was the reply, "it is my wife's relations that are causing the trouble."

"You're an ass, sir."

"The mystery's explained."

"Well, what?"

"My being taken so often for yourself."

A long time ago a celebrated preacher delivered a discourse on the text, "He giveth his beloveth sleep." Observing that a large number of his hearers were nodding their heads he suddenly stopped and said:

"Brethren, it is hard to realize the unbounded love which the Lord appears to have for a large portion of this congregation."

A fashionable Austin lady, immediately after the death of her husband, married his brother. A visitor at the house, noticing the picture of her late husband, asked "who it was."

"It is—is," she replied hesitatingly, "my deceased brother-in-law."

"Mine too," laconically remarked the new husband."

"I wish to register, sir."

"Your name, please?"

"Almira Jane Simpson."

"Your age?"

"Beg pardon."

"Your age?"

"Do I understand that I must give my age?"

"Yes, miss, the law requires it."

"Worlds, sir, would not tempt me to give it. Not that I care. No, I had as lief wear it on my bonnet, as a hackman does his number, but I'm a twin, and if my sister has a weakness it is that she dislikes any reference made to her age, and I could not give you my own because I do not wish to offend her."

Wee Fannie bit her tongue one day and came in crying bitterly. "What is it?" asked her mother.

"Oh, mamma!" she sobbed, "my tooth stepped on my tongue!"

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

Temperance in England.

CONTINUED.

In August 1846, "The World's Temperance Convention" met in London, on which occasion 302 delegates were present, representing different societies in the United Kingdom, and the United States. Since then, the temperance cause has steadily, if not rapidly progressed. Numerous local societies have been formed, and there is scarcely a town or village in the country but has its fraternity of abstainers.

Lecturers are constantly at work; pamphlets of various kinds are every now and then making their appearance advocating on social, religious, prudential, or physiological grounds, the adoption of the new system, reviews and newspapers have been started for the same purpose; and at present, 1868, it is estimated that there are not fewer than 3,000,000 total abstainers (inclusive of juveniles) in Great Britain and Ireland, and a much greater number in the United States of America.

Of late years, total abstainers have devoted themselves mainly or largely to advocating the necessity or propriety of imperial legislation on the subject of intoxicating liquor.

Fashion Notes.

Lace is extensively used on handsome bonnets.

Ribbons will be used to excess in dress garniture.

Tight-fitting waists are to prevail in summer as in winter costumes.

One of the prettiest designs in the new style of lockets is in the square shape, made of rolled gold.

Detached passementerie ornaments are more fashionable for mantle and dress trimmings than bands, braids, or fringes.

This is a ribbon season, flats, bows and rosettes being worn on all parts of the dress, the bonnet and the wrap or mantle.

Long white embroidered muslin polonaises, trimmed with deep bands and edgings of embroidered muslin, will be worn.

Linen band collars have two buttonholes near the upper edge, through which narrow ribbon is run and tied in a long looped bow.

A very pretty evening dress has the front of white and terra cotta brocade and a long Martha Washington train without any drapery. The pointed basque has a square open neck and is trimmed with duchess lace.

One of the latest imported round hats is a low, round-crowned derby, with wide rolling brim. These are shown in felt, straw and chip; the colors most popular are cardinal, garnet, terra cotta, dark green and black.

Household Receipts.

SPONGE CAKE. Ten eggs, their weight (in their shells) of sugar, half their weight in flour; beat the eggs and sugar well together, add the flour, and flavor to taste.

INDIAN PUDDING. Boil one quart of milk and thicken it with corn meal till it is of the consistency of batter; cool, and add sugar to taste, a little salt, three well-beaten eggs and spice or flavoring to taste. Bake in a slow oven three hours

LEMON PIE. Take yolks of 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, the grated rind and juice of 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons corn starch, 1 cup boiling water; bake; then on the top spread the whites of 3 eggs beaten to a stiff froth with 3 spoonsful of sugar. Put in oven for one minute. This makes two pies.

To prevent the hair from falling out try first wetting the head at night with salt and water. Have the salt dissolved in the water, so that it will not annoy you by particles sticking to your hair. Mild sage tea is also excellent. If these remedies do not effect a speedy cure try this: Get a little bottle of brandy, and put in all the salt that it will absorb; wet the head with this two or three times a day.

To take oil spots out of matting, etc., wet the spots with alcohol, rub it with hard soap, and then wash well with cold water.

This and That.

☞ Never be cast down by trifles. If a spider breaks his web twenty times, twenty times will he mend it. Make up your minds to do a thing, and you will do it. Fear not, if trouble come upon you. Keep up your spirits though the day may be a dark one.

☞ Little drops of printers' ink, a little type displayed, make our merchants bosses and all their big parade. Little bits of stinginess, discarding printers' ink, busts the man of business and sees his credit sink.

☞ Some people have no perspective in their conscience. Their moral convictions are the same on all subjects. They are like a reader who speaks every word with equal emphasis.

☞ "You said, Mr. Jones, that your umbrella had a straight handle?" I thought it did, but since it vanished I am quite certain it ended with a hook."

☞ A strong mind always hopes and has always cause to hope, because it knows the mutability of human affairs, and how slight a circumstance may change the whole course of events.

☞ He who thinks he can find in himself the means of doing without others is much mistaken; but he who thinks that others cannot do without him is still more mistaken.

☞ Man, like steel becomes weak when he looses his temper.

☞ The wrestling season does not end until the fall.

☞ The mosquito as a public singer draws well, but never gives satisfaction.

☞ A blood relation—Telling the story of a tragedy.

VEGETINE is composed of roots, barks and herbs. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it.

READING, Mass., Jan. 1, 1883.

I bought some Bradley's Phosphate last spring and used it for corn, first spreading my barn-yard manure and harrowing it in with a wheel harrow, then using a tablespoonful of the Phosphate in the hill. The corn came up well and grew nicely, even after the dry weather came. Some of my neighbors lost all their crop, while I had nearly 200 baskets of corn. I think that if I had used only manure I should have been obliged to have cut the corn green and fed it to the cows.

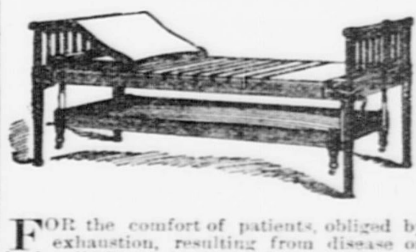
Crosby Invalid Bedstead.



FOR the comfort of patients, obliged by exhaustion, resulting from disease or broken limbs, to be lifted from one bed to another; also to prevent or cure bed-sores.

It affords easy access to the body, permitting the bed to be changed or made up without moving or annoying the patient. It is simple in construction and can be managed by a child. By its use one attendant can perform all the necessary duties to a sick person, however prostrated.

This bedstead was used by the late President Garfield, and it is adopted in the hospitals of the United States government. Call and see it in operation at Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

BY VIRTUE of a power of sale contained in a certain Mortgage Deed given by JAMES GOODALL, of Quincy, to JOSIAH BABCOCK, dated January, 1875, and recorded in the Registry of Deeds for the County of Norfolk, libro 470, folio 68, will be sold at Public Auction, for breach of the conditions in said mortgage, on the premises, on TUESDAY, the NINETEENTH day of JUNE, 1883, at 3.30 o'clock, P. M., all and singular the premises conveyed by said Mortgage Deed, namely:—

A certain lot of land, with all the buildings thereon, situated in the Westerly part of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, in the State of Massachusetts, bounded as follows: Beginning at the South-easterly corner of said premises, and thence running Northwesterly by a stone wall, forming the division line between said land and land of the Town of Quincy to a stake, and bounded South-westerly by said land of the Town of Quincy, to a stake or stone marked in said wall; thence turning and running Northeasterly, and bounded North-westerly by land of Walter Elcock and his brothers, to a stake or stone, at land now or late of Ebenezer Crane; thence turning and running South-easterly, and bounded North-easterly by land of said Crane, to the stone wall at point first mentioned. Containing one-half acre, more or less, with the right to use the road or passage way now open through said land, in common with the abuttors thereon.

$50 will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale.

JOSIAH BABCOCK, Mortgagee.

Office of the Board of Health.

QUINCY, JULY 29, 1882.

THE Board of Health issues the following notice:—That on and after MONDAY, July 31st, 1882, the following provisions of Chapter 80 of the Public Statutes will be strictly enforced:—

SEC. 78. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town in which he dwells. If he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $100.

SEC. 79. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with Small Pox or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall forfeit for each offence not less than $50, nor more than $100.

The Board considers the above sections to apply to scarlet fever, small pox, diphtheria, measles and whooping cough.

Poetry.

For the Patriot.

A Reminiscence.

Those dear old pines, I see them still,
And the little cottage beneath the hill,
The wide-running brook, with its tinted shells,
The grand old harp tree that never tells
Of the wishes we wish on still.

I still see the woodbine creeping o'er
The moss-covered roof above the door;
And I almost hear the busy tread,
And the gentle voice that always said:
"God bless you," o'er and o'er.

And at evening, I often seem to see
That dear old father, on bended knee,
And that trembling voice again I hear,
"Our Heavenly Father hear our prayer,
And lead us all to Thee."

But never more on earth shall I hear
That trembling voice in evening prayer;
For the boatman has come and taken him o'er
To dwell with those on the other shore,
And I hope to meet him there.

And dear little Ellie, with eyes so bright,
I remember him very well to-night.
How he sang of the pussy named "Tabby Gray,"
And waved his hand to the cars each day
Until they were out of sight.

Oh, memories sweet, fade not away,
But in our hearts from day to day
Dwell on. May we live o'er the happy hours
That seem to strew life's path with flowers
That never fade away.

Charming Bettie.

"It was all very long ago," the old maid said. "Can you believe I ever was pretty?"

Priscilla opened her mouth to speak; but Miss Bettie did not wait to hear her.

"Yes, I was pretty once, and I was called 'Charming Bettie.' My hair was always curly, and my eyes used to be very bright. My cheeks were red—so red, they accused me of painting many a time, and my teeth white and even, and my figure round and trim."

She had her snug, brown house, with its pretty, old-fashioned garden, her birds and her flowers, and her white kitten; but she must at times, Priscilla fancied, be very lonely, in spite of it all.

Priscilla could picture her in the long winter evenings, sitting in the little, dim, lamp-lighted parlor, knitting—knitting.

"Miss Bettie," she said, gently, after a little, "who called you that—'Charming Bettie?'"

"Who? Oh, a good many. He called me so first, and then they all got to calling me that. I have been told much," with a little sigh, and the knitting lying idle now in her lap.

"His name was David Allyn," Miss Bettie said, rather tremulously.

"David Allyn—Lawyer Allyn!" Priscilla cried, her dark eyes large with intense surprise.

The spinster nodded.

"I have a picture of him, taken when he was young," she said, and she got up and went to a little shelf and took it down. "He was a handsome boy," she went on, handing the faded Daguerreotype to the girl, "and he was as good as he was handsome."

The beardless, boyish face, with its irregular, unformed features, and rather sunken black eyes, did not strike Priscilla as being at all handsome.

"Did you meet him here in R——?" she asked.

"Yes, at a dance at one of the neighbors'. He was a young lawyer, had just graduated, and hadn't hung out his shingle. But he was uncommonly smart, even then. He is our leading lawyer now, you know," the spinster added, with no little pride.

"It seems so strange to think he was your lover," Priscilla exclaimed.

"Yes, it does seem strange now, after all these years," Miss Bettie said, with another little sigh; "but it seemed very natural then. We met very often after the night of the dance, and we grew to know these country roads near here by heart, for many were the long walks we took together. There is one road—that one that leads by the Hillman cottage—I never care to go now. It was there, on that road, just about dark one October evening that he told me he loved me. There had been a fine sunset, and the sky had been a bright flame-color. As the glow faded and the meadows grew dark, and a little mist began to shut out the hills, we turned to go home. 'Lean on my arm, dear,' he said, and when I did so, trembling a little, he said: 'How would you like a young fellow's strong arm to lean on always?' I didn't say anything right then, he took me so by surprise; and presently he went and told me how pretty he thought I was, and he said, with a laugh, and giving my arm a little pinch: "I am going to name you 'Charming Bettie.' So after that he always called me that and soon nearly every one in R—— began calling me it, too. We were never engaged to each other, although I wear a little ring he gave me, in remembrance of our love, yet," Miss Bettie said, and held out one thin hand, on which shone, in the firelight, a worn band of gold, "There was just this understanding. Some day when he had got a nice start in the law and had a little home of his own to take me to, then I was to be his wife. We were young and we were content to wait; and one day he went away to the city to go into partnership with and old established lawyer, a friend of his father's. It was a grand chance, a fine opening for him, and we both knew it, and rejoiced over it like children, although we dreaded the separation. 'Never mind, Charming Bettie,' he said, when he came to kiss me good by. 'In a few years I will be nicely fixed; perhaps rich, who knows? Anyway, I'll have a good start, and I will come back and carry you away.' And then he was gone, and that was the end, for when David Allyn came home at the end of two years he did not come alone; he brought his wife with him."

"They staid here a little while, and then went back to the city. I met her, once, in church and I overheard her ask David 'who that ugly little thing with the red face was he was staring at so hard?' If that was 'Charming Bettie?' That day I walked for the first time after David's marriage up the Hillman cottage road, and, although I shed many bitter tears, I resolved not to let what had happened spoil my life for me; but somehow it has—," the spinster ended sadly, and she stared at the fire with dim eyes.

Priscilla had been staring at the fire also, and weaving a little romance of her own. "He is a widower, now Miss Bettie."

"Hush, child!" Miss Bettie cried, "How can you? She has not been in her grave a year yet, and David Allyn will never marry again, anyway. His romance, like mine, is ended."

Miss Priscilla kissed the maiden lady's faded cheek, and flung her young arms affectionately around her.

"I shall love you better than ever, now, she said, tenderly," and I hope some day things will yet come right."

Then she went away, and Miss Bettie stood in her open window for some time after, looking at the sunset.

Lawyer Allyn saw her as he came up the street from his office. He had moved to R—— from the city, and walked more slowly as he came to the little brown house among the trees.

They always spoke to one other; it always seemed foolish not to speak. So when he got by the window he said:

"Your flowers are looking very fresh and nice, Miss Bettie."

The spinster gave one of her little nervous starts. She had not seen him coming. Her hand struck against one of the flower-pots and knocked it over. It rolled off the narrow sill, and lay at David Allyn's feet.

"It is broken to pieces," he said, picking it up, with a little smile on his thin, sallow face, "but I am going to keep it—may I not?"

"Yes—if you want to," she made answer, a little breathlessly.

He took the plant—a pale-pink geranium—out of the earthern pot, and shook a little of the dirt off the roots.

"This shall bloom in my window," he said, "and I am going to name it 'Charming Bettie,' in memory of other days."

Miss Bettie's face flushed a deep red. [illegible]

"No, don't go yet," David Allyn said, his hand on the fence railing. Then he seemed to remember himself.

"Very well, good-night," he added and walked slowly away, the little pink geranium in his hand.

A few days later, another stormy afternoon, near dusk, Miss Bettie heard a knock at her front door. There, on the porch, was Lawyer Allyn.

Miss Bettie smoothed her curls quickly and hastened to the door. She led the way to the little parlor.

"Take this chair," she said, drawing a large rocker close to the fire.

The lawyer held out his hands to the blaze.

"You have a snug little home, Miss Bettie," he observed. "I suppose you would never be willing to leave it now."

"I am attached to the house," the spinster said, gravely. "My dear father and mother both died here, and it has many associations."

She, seated in another rocking-chair near by, had taken up her knitting.

David Allyn watched the swift-flying needles.

"Don't you ever get lonely?" he asked, after a few moment's silence. "I do, up in my big house. It is a pretty place; but it is too big for me."

Miss Bettie only knitted faster, and was silent. His coming had disturbed her greatly. Suddenly, he moved forward, and took her work away.

"I don't want you to knit any more to-night," he said; "I want you to look at me."

"Lawyer Allyn!"

"No, not Lawyer Allyn—David. Call me that, as you used to."

Miss Bettie trembled; her cheeks glowed as in youthful days.

David Allyn took one of the spinster's thin hands in his—the one on which the little worn ring was, it happened.

"Bettie," he said, gravely, "I have come to-night to ask your forgiveness and your love again. I feel I made a mistake—a great mistake, once in my life, and I want, if possible, to rectify it. Don't tell me it is too late."

To feel that she was loved again, after all these lonely years, was too much for Miss Bettie; she burst into tears. Her white kitten purred and rubbed its soft little head against her dress. The firelight danced on the wall and made black shadows in the corners.

In the uncertain light David Allyn bent and kissed the faded cheek beside him.

They were speedily married.

Cute Work.

A detective employed by the United States express company to trace the robbery of a package at Comerstown, O., saw the mark of teeth upon the pasteboard box. "The man is a one-armed man," said he. "He held the box in his teeth while he untied the string." He made the acquaintance of Charles Bassett, the one-armed man of the town, employed him as a detective, travelled with him, talked about the difference in people's teeth, got him to make an indentation of his own in wax had a plaster cast made which fitted the marks of the teeth in the package and arrested Bassett. It was a "cute" piece of work.

About Dogs.

Probably few of our readers are aware of the number of licensed dogs in Norfolk County, or the amount of money annually paid by its citizens for the privilege of keeping these household pets. Of course the money obtained from this source is returned principally to the local libraries, and often furnishes the only means of procuring new books for the tables. It also furnishes an excuse with some people, for allowing so many dogs to exist in a community. The number of licensed dogs in the county last year was 4316, for which the owners paid the sum of $9,006 25. The amount of damages paid by the County Treasurer was $760.50. Of this amount $289 was paid for 31 sheep, killed during the year. The town of Brookline, as usual, leads the list in the amount paid for dogs, with Weymouth, Quincy and Dedham occupying second, third and fourth places, respectively. But we will give the towns in alphabetical order, and the amount paid by each to the county treasury:—

Bellingham,	$138 00	Milton,	$622 20
Braintree,	440 60	Needham,	223 80
Brookline,	814 20	Norfolk,	84 60
Canton,	463 20	Norwood,	171 00
Cohasset,	226 80	Quincy,	748 00
Dedham,	727 80	Randolph,	364 20
Dover,	69 00	Stoughton,	465 80
Foxborough,	334 20	Sharon,	219 60
Franklin,	262 80	Walpole,	243 00
Holbrook,	170 40	Wellesley,	290 40
Hyde Park,	391 80	Weymouth,	790 00
Medfield,	149 40	Wrentham,	280 80
Medway,	319 20

In order that owners of dogs through the county may be posted as to their liability for damages, in case of injuries inflicted by their canines, the following judicial opinion on the dog law is annexed:—

So comprehensive is this law that if your dog rushes out into the street, and in mere play, jumped at a horse's head, whereby he is frightened and runs breaking the carriage, and perhaps the limbs of the occupants, you are responsible for double the amount of the entire damage, though it amount to several thousand dollars; for the liability of the owner is not limited to damages from the bite of a dog, but extends to any direct injury however caused.—(Allen, 191.)

Again, if your dog is at large, although he is a good-natured Newfoundland, and being teased and irritated by children at play, turns upon them and bites one of them, you may be liable to heavy damages, although the dog was never known to bite be- [illegible] exempt the owner of a dog, when known, for his former liability of all his dog's mischief, but to provide a fund for the remuneration of the farmer, when the owner was not known, or was not pecuniarily responsible. Accordingly, any man injured in his person or property by a dog, may now have either mode of redress; he may file his claim with the selectmen, and take simply the amount of damages he may have sustained, or he may sue the owner of the dog, and get double damages if he can; but he cannot try both methods. If he is paid his simple damages out of the dog tax, the county may compel the owner of the guilty dog to refund the amount paid out. But no man is obliged to wait the law's delay after the mischief is done.

You may take the law into your hands, and kill any dog, licensed or not, that suddenly assaults you while peaceably walking or riding in the public streets, and so you may if the dog is found out of the enclosure or care or the owner, wounding, worrying, or killing any neat cattle, sheep or lambs.—Dedham Transcript.

Character the Best Capital.

A preacher in Lynn, Mass., before preparing his Fast-day sermon, addressed notes to a hundred of the most successful business men in the city, asking them what was essential to success in business, and if young men could get on without capital. The answers were most satisfactory.

These merchants and manufacturers united in saying that capital was not necessary: most of them had started without it, and had made their own fortunes. Many of them said that capital was a hindrance rather than a help, as it weakened dependence on economy, enterprise and intense application. Character and business force were better than capital, for they were sure to win recognition and could always find capital eager to be put to use.

They agreed in saying that a young man who gave proof of superior business sagacity and force could make his own way and dictate terms to capital waiting for employment. Capital is far more abundant, they said, and more easy to be obtained, than the large brains and the indomitable energy which can use it to the best advantage.

Such information, derived from the experience of men eminent in business gave abundant material to the preacher for a lesson to young men on the worth of honesty, industry and persistent work. What is true in Lynn is also true in all parts of our country.

Let Frogs Be Frogs.

It takes two classes to make the world, those who complain of everything, and those who find nothing to complain of; those who look up and those who look down; those who look forward and those who look back; those who make a success of life, and those who give it up beforehand; those who know how, and those who don't. What shall we do about it? Let the croakers croak. They enjoy it, and it is as with frogs in a swamp, the best exercise of their capacities. And let the rest of us go on our way rejoicing.—Springfield Republican.

The Blue Hills.

MILTON, June 4th, 1883.

To the Editors of the Patriot:

The extract you published from the Apalachia Journal in your issue of the 2d inst., relating to the Blue Hills must have been written by a person whose knowledge differs very much from mine, who perhaps has had as much experience in tramping over them as any one living.

To begin with what he calls the Little Blue. Many years ago I was called upon to survey a part of it but upon getting to the house of the owner it was so cold that he refused to go with me, and I had to defer the job until another more favorable time.

The large Blue Hill, or mountain, as he says it is called by those living near it, but, by the way, I never heard it called mountain before, either by those living near or remote. The Little Blue, he rightly says, is in Canton, near the Canton line, but that the large one is in Milton; however Canton must not lose the credit of owning a large part of it. If he is good for a tramp, let him start from the stone monument on Canton avenue, at the dividing line between Milton and Canton, and walk around the south side of the hill until he comes to the other monument on Hill-side street, and then up the hill on that side and down on the other side to the starting point, as I have done, and I think that he will realize that quite a part of the hill belongs to Canton.

He next comes to Hancock Hill, as he calls it, which, by the way, is the first time I ever heard that name used, although I think it very likely that Hancock once owned it, as on the south side of the farm now owned by Mrs. G. B. Cary, there is the remains of what is called Hancock's orchard, and on the northerly side Hancock's hollow, or valley. I have good reason to remember that hill. Many years ago it was for sale and a person, who thought of buying it, wanted it surveyed. He was in a great hurry to have it done, it was in the winter time and the snow was at least a foot deep in the woods the day we set to go there. Captain Houghton was to show us the bounds and assist us in the survey. The morning came, very cold, thermometer at 6 degrees below zero, with a very high wind; however I went up and found the man and Captain Houghton, and we commenced work on one side of the hill, where the snow was quite deep. We had not gone [illegible] the job alone. He probably thought that a seat by the fireplace would be more congenial to his tastes than tramping through the snow that cold day, and so the captain and I thought before we got through the job, as one of the lines ran directly over the highest part of the hill, and with the high wind, it was anything but pleasant. We, however, had got too much spunk to leave the work before it was finished; after which I repaired to the hospitable mansion of Captain Houghton, where over a good fire and warm meal the hardships of the day were soon forgotten. They were, however, partially renewed on my way home, as the wind was nearly in my face.

He next comes to Bear Hill which would be rightly named if spelled bare as it is the most barren hill of any in the range. This hill I surveyed over and around many years ago.

Then comes what he calls Fenno's Hill. This must have been a very ancient name, if it ever had that name, which I never before heard. With that hill I have been more familiar than any of the others. More than seventy years ago I assisted in cutting and carting wood from the very summit of that hill. It was then covered with a good growth of Pitch Pine, many of which we cut and carted away. The lot was then owned by, and called the Swan lot. Mr. Swan of Dorchester, who was at that time and for many years before and after confined in prison in France. Mr. Baxter of Quincy, for whom I worked at the time, owned a large wood lot adjoining, and also had the care of the Swan lot. In the Baxter lot was what he calls Fenno's Notch, and, although it may now seem almost impossible, I have many times driven an ox team in and out of the place. The name Fenno Hill, if it ever had that name, must have been long before my acquaintance with it, as Mr. Swan must have owned it many years, from him it went to Mr. Newhall, from Mr. Newhall to Captain Macandey, from him to John M. Forbes, and from him to David W. Tucker, and from him to Richards and others, whom I still believe are the present owners.

On the easterly side and adjoining the Baxter lot was another smaller hill and on the easterly slope of that hill is a lot which within a few years back has become somewhat famous in its history. The lot contained about 14 acres, and formerly belonged to Dr. Gardner of Dorchester. The Collector of Quincy, many years ago, called on the doctor for the taxes. The doctor thought in consideration of the situation of the lot being so far from any highway and almost inaccessible (and by the way, an old gentleman in Quincy, who has probably carted more wood from the hill than than any man now living, only a short time ago said, that when a boy he went to the lot with his father after wood and going up the steep hill to get it he asked his father if he expected to get down without having the sled and wood fall over the oxen, as it seemed to him almost impossible), that it was taxed too high. He said he knew many who would be glad to sell their lot for less than half of what the assessors valued them; and some for less than one-quarter, without finding a customer. The collector, to ease over the matter, told the doctor that he should be very glad to buy it at what it was valued at by the assessors, which the doctor gladly accepted, much to the regret of the collector; who, however, after keeping it some twenty-five years by a fortunate circumstance, got nearly or quite as much for the lot as he gave for it in the first place.

The lot then passed to other hands if not out of the family; and as if to make amends for what had been lost, or to lay the foundation for an [illegible] fortune by trickery and deception, or to lay the foundation for a "City to be sat on a Hill," as it surely would be, a plan was drawn and it was laid out into house lots, with streets, and all complete, which plan was duly registered at Dedham, and several lots sold (on paper at least). Coming across that plan in the Registry office, and being very familiar with the premises, the register told me that he had had frequent inquiries about those lots, and I was the first one who could give him any information about them. Thinking that the value of the lot must have been very much increased by the operation, I had the curiosity to look on the assessors books, of Quincy, and found that instead of being increased the lot had been dropped entirely from their books for several years.

Knowing the custom of many people when thinking of buying a piece of land, to first look at the assessors' books to see the valuation, I thought it would be doing the owners a favor to inform the assessors of the prospective value of the would-be city lots. It was accordingly again put on the books and taxed, but as no one could be found to pay the taxes in due time it was advertised for sale. Having too much regard for the town of Quincy to wish to lead him into taxing a piece of land that was not worth the taxes, I told the collector to bid it off for me and I would pay them.

He asked if I knew where to find the land in case I bought it. I replied that would be my own risk, not his. He afterward told me that he had bid it off for me and that he would soon have the papers ready, but I have not yet seen them. I was rather vexed at the time, but since, considering the high rate of taxes in Quincy, the situation of the land and the great danger of fires, I should now refuse it if offered me, and it is very probable that it may again soon pass into oblivion, as many [illegible] to the quarries is more [illegible] although the writer in the Appalachian Journal mentions the fact. It cannot be in the range of the Blue Hills. Even before the Randolph turnpike was built there were several public roads running through the vallies between them; one starting from Adams street a little south of Furnace brook and running through West Quincy to the Purgatory House where it divided, that to the left going to Braintree, the one to the right past the old Harmon place, then through a portion of the woods to meet another road from Braintree near the French house, and also near Braintree Great Pond, and then continuing on westerly to Tower Hill, in Randolph; another, starting from Algerine corner, now East Milton, going in a westerly direction through Scots woods, when it is divided, leaving what he calls Fenno's Hill on the left, and Bear Hill on the right, and running to Randolph, the part going to the right leaves Bear Hill on the left, and Hancock Hill and the Big Blue on the right, and leads to Canton; this road is also intersected at Scots Woods by one from Milton Centre.

There is seldom such a range of hills so favorable for roads running through them. There are several places where roads could be easily made through them, connecting West Quincy, or even Braintree, with Scots woods. The ever-to-be-remembered Soloman Willard of Bunker Hill Monument fame, who for many years resided in West Quincy, ever on the alert for improvement, had traced one out to connect with Scots Woods and had actually built a part of it. Whenever I tramp over these hills and through the deep ravines, I cannot but think what a pity it is that Boston should so long neglect to secure one of the finest parks that nature has ever made, which with a little assistance of the hand of man could be made one of the finest places in the country, perhaps in the world. All the wealth of the city could not make another Blue Hill, and with the Old Colony Railroad now running to West Quincy, a few miles among the hills would connect it with the Providence, either at Canton or West Milton, and the cost of one cigar and a pint of lager would carry a person the whole route and through the finest scenery anywhere to be found and when this is done, if ever, Boston will have a park to be proud of, and which no city can beat.

But few of these hills have any particular name, but Pine Hill, Mount Ararat and Monticello, were quite familiar to me in my younger days. Speaking of rattlesnakes, although several are killed every year, yet, in all my tramping over the hills in the summer season, I never met with but one, and that a very small one, and one copper head, or bastard rattlesnake as they are sometimes called, but without rattles and supposed to be as venomous as the other kind.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JUNE 16, 1883.

The Water Question Again.

Last week there was set forth in the PATRIOT the economical importance and the sanitary necessity of a good supply of aqueduct water for our town. To that we should now like to add further insistance of the sanitary necessity, noting especially how it passes into moral necessity.

We would not create unnecessary alarm, but it is not too much to say that in the thickly settled portion of the town there is hardly a well out of danger of pollution. Those who have studied the facts know that there are many wells in use that are absolutely poisonous; they know that sickness and death have been caused by the water drank. We think we are warranted in saying that the physicians of the town would unanimously bear out these statements. Quincy is one of the oldest towns, and its soil, where longest dwelt upon, has become permeated with filth which every year increases.

By experts, common well water is classified as dangerous, so hard is it to keep it pure. In 1876 some 188 towns responded to the enquiry of the Board of Health of Massachusetts, "Are wells exposed to contamination from sewage?" About 90 answered "yes," Quincy among them; adding further, that typhoid is the result. If called upon, we should be required to make the same report [illegible] Mr. E. S. Philbrick, in his report to the legislature on "House Drainage," wrote:

"When cess-pools are used in thickly-settled places the wells are sure to become sinks in course of time. Neither can people expect any warning, appreciable by the senses. The change is insensible and invisible. The well-water may look as pure as ever, and taste as cool and refreshing, and yet contain the seeds of disease.' 'Nine out of ten cess-pools leak,' is the commenti of science. Wells of dwellings with in a hundred feet of one another are in constant danger of pollution."

Such testimony might be added to indefinitely, showing how next to impossible it is to keep wells clean of poisonous elements.

Consider, now, how hard must be the condition of a tenant who suspects that the water he is using for all domestic purposes is polluted! It is difficult and expensive to get water elsewhere; he cannot remove, for no other house is to be obtained, or if obtainable, the water perhaps is as bad. If at last (a true case), his children fall ill of typhoid how desperate he must feel. This is an instance, and a very common one, of the unintentional oppression which continues in our civilization. Is it not a moral duty to lessen it? If the duty is not seen, certainly the dangers which must result from the neglect of it will be painfully visible. The fever contracted in one home is very likely to be communicated to others. Those who can and do take care of their premises suffer because of the inability or neglect of others. The danger of catching disease is thought to be so great among us that parents will not let their children go to school. The uneasiness is great and increasing.

It is proposed as a remedy that aqueduct water be introduced. This scheme, if carried out, will certainly go a great way toward the prevention of disease. The reports from English and German cities is conclusive that aqueduct water and good sewerage lessen typhoid and other fevers. Of forty-one towns and cities of Massachusetts using aqueduct water, sixteen reported decided change for the better, with such additional phrases as "less typhoid;" "no typhoid among water takers;" "typhoid once common, now rare;" "much less fever;" the other towns reported probable benefit, or water too recently introduced for statistics; one or two wrote that the water introduced was bad. The evidence is overwhelming that when good water is introduced marked improvement in the condition of the people has resulted. With aqueduct water should go a good system of sewerage. No growing town should rest content till both are obtained. With us it has become a question whether we shall wait till more children shall have been swept away by disease, or accept the warning we already have had as sufficient.

Floral Festival.

The Floral Festival of the First Church Sunday School was celebrated last Sunday. Although the day was one of the warmest of the season, there was a large audience present. The singing was wholly by the children and they seemed to take hold of it in a very animated manner.

Five children were baptized: Ernestine Morse Litchfield, Kenneth Munro Wilson, Frank Bertrand Barnes, Carl Gordon Adams and Janet Faxon Carr. The oldest one was two years and the youngest three months.

There have been only three deaths in the school the past year, Edith W. Johnson, Walter Long Stancombe and Jessie Gertrude Thompson. The addresses were by Rev. H. W. Foote of King's Chapel, Boston; Rev. W. H. Lyon of Roxbury and by the Pastor.

The pulpit was very handsomely decorated mostly with wild flowers. Rev. W. H. Lyon's Church sent a beautiful cross and pillow made of daisies. The services lasted over an hour and were listened to with great pleasure.

CRANE MEMORIAL LIBRARY. The public library grounds are looking better now than at any time since the building was built. The lawn is green and beautiful, and the large tulip tree in front has been in full blossom this week.

A large quantity of paving blocks and curbings were procured, and workmen have been employed this week in setting the edgestone in front on a curve. The wide gutter left on the outside is to be paved, and we learn that the walk is to be concreted.

It would be well when the layers of the concrete are present to have some concrete placed at the four corners of the building. At the south corner the loam and concrete have been washed away by the heavy fall of water from the spout, and after each rain the concrete walk is nasty and dirty.

A BIG THING. H. O. Studley, who was once a boy in Scituate, now a resident of Quincy, has lately built a stationary steam engine of diminutive size; cylinders, one and one-sixteenth; stroke, two inches; the engine and boiler weighing twenty pounds.

Mr. Studley is not an engine builder by trade, but has successfully completed this engine, as any mechanic would say, should he call and examine the thorough workmanship displayed.

Brief Locals.

☞ All the principal stores in this town will be closed on Monday next, June 18th.

☞ Charles Francis Adams, Jr., will be the Harvard Phi Beta Kappa orator this year.

☞ Master Eddie Faircloth will start next week for Saratoga on his usual summer trip.

☞ Mr. Jacob H. Hersey left Quincy on Friday, for a trip to Europe, where business will detain him for some weeks.

☞ Proposals are desired for painting the Wollaston school-house, etc. Good work and stock are desired.

☞ Edward L. Nutting has been given his time during his minority to trade and act for himself.

☞ Mrs. J. C. Croly (Jenny June), president of Lorosis Club, New York, is in town, the guest of a lady on Washington street.

☞ The teachers and scholars of the First Church Sunday School are to have a vacation until the second Sunday in September.

☞ Some of the early variety of cherries on the trees in this vicinity are showing a handsome scarlet cheek, and look very tempting.

☞ Mr. Joseph W. Lombard will sell at auction, on Monday next, a lot of household furniture, wagons, and harnesses, at the residence of William O'Conner, South Walnut street.

☞ On account of the removal of the Boston Flower and Fruit Mission to the Warrenton Street Chapel, contributions will not be received until Wednesday, June 27th.

☞ The grand Jury of Plymouth County has found a bill against Samuel T. Allen and John T. Prior, of Quincy, for catching 4400 smelts by means of a seine, at Weir river, last spring.

☞ Mr. William Pray, a former resident of this town, but who for the past few years has lived in Florida, died in Sanford, at the residence of his brother's widow, on Tuesday last.

☞ A special town meeting will be held on Tuesday evening next at the Town Hall, to see what action the town will take in relation to the proposition made by the Quincy Water Company.

☞ Thomas Smith, who was sent to the House of Correction for three months for selling intoxicating liquors, has been pardoned out this week by Gov. Butler. Mr. Smith promises not to sell any more intoxicating liquors as long as the Lord permits him to live.

☞ The case of Bartholomew Flaherty, who sued William F. Loud for killing his dog in the public highway, which came before the District Court last week, has been decided by Judge Humphrey for the defendant. The dog, although licensed, was minus of a collar, and, as the law reads, anybody has a right to kill such animals on the highways when found without a collar.

A PLEASANT TIME. The Young People's Social Union of Chelsea, visited Miss Rose Littlefield, at her residence at Hough's Neck, last Wednesday evening, that young lady being a member of the union. The party came in a large barge, drawn by four swift steeds and were accompanied by Rev. S. L. Gracy and wife. They arrived shortly after nine o'clock, and although it was very stormy and disagreeable, it did not prevent them from having an enjoyable time. Supper was served at eleven, to which every one did ample justice, especially to the ice cream. They started for home at half past twelve, after thanking Miss Littlefield for her hospitality.

REGATTA. The opening championship regatta by the Quincy Yacht Club, was sailed on Tuesday afternoon, off Quincy Great Hill, with a strong westerly wind. The course sailed was the usual one for the classes named below. There were ten competitors for the prizes, which was a cash prize for the second boat in each class.

The Niobe in the second class and the Dandelion in the third class won one leg in the championship, and the Pet and Flora Lee won the prizes.

Only one yacht (Water Lily, owned by Captain Joseph Veader), in the first class put in an appearance, and there was no race in the class, that yacht being used as a judges' boat, and after the race the owner kindly treated the judges to a sail.

The following is the summary:

SECOND CLASS.

Name	Owner.	H. M. S.	H. M. S.
Niobe,	J. F. Brown,	1 26 57	0 58 19
Pet,	J. W. McFarland,	1 32 09	1 04 05
Joker,	George Coffin,	1 34 50	1 07 16
Herald,	W. B. Smith,	1 35 11	1 07 49
Menalic,	H. H. Sheen,	1 44 32	1 16 06
Spray,	H. M. Faxon,	1 45 00	1 16 06

The course sailed was 7 1-2 miles, and was from judges' yacht, off Mears's hotel, passing between Sheep and Grape islands, to red buoy between Bunkin island and Downer Landing, leaving it on the port; thence leaving Bunkin island on the starboard, to red buoy off Hull, leaving it on the port; thence leaving Sheep island on the port, to buoy on Jack-knife ledge, leaving it on the starboard; thence leaving Raccoon island on the port, to judges' yacht, passing between it and a flag boat. The start was made at 3 o'clock.

THIRD CLASS.

Dandelion,	C. F. Adams, 3d,	1 29 05	1 03 32
Flora Lee,	D. H. Lincoln,	1 29 53	1 04 19
Zip,	G. W. Morton,	1 17 07	1 06 57
Nimble Turtle,	Peter B. Turner,	1 37 26	1 11 43

The course sailed by the third class was a 6-mile one as follows: From judges' yacht off Mears's hotel, passing between Sheep and Grape islands, to red buoy between Bunkin island and Downer Landing, leaving it on the port; thence leaving Bunkin island on the starboard, to red buoy off Hull, leaving it on the port; thence leaving Sheep island on the port to judges' yacht, passing between it and a flag boat. The start was made at 3.10.

The next regatta will be sailed for a silk pennant in each class, presented by Ex-commodore Sigourney Butler, and will be sailed at 2.30 P. M., June 27, over the usual course off Quincy Great Hill.

FOURTH OF JULY.

The general committee for the celebration of the Fourth of July met on Wednesday evening, at the residence of Mr. John Federhen, 3d. The sub-committees reported, and a glorious time is expected. The following is a short synopsis of the programme for the day:

Morning services will be held at the Baptist Chapel; Rev. George B. Lawton will officiate as chaplain and Rev. J. L. Harris as orator of the day. The Declaration of Independence will be read by H. M. Federhen, Jr. Music will be furnished by a full chorus, under the direction of Mr. T. Harris Newcomb.

At one o'clock there will be athletic sports at Point Holes.

The Phillips Brothers have kindly consented to give one of their wonderful exhibitions in the art of sub-marine diving, exploding dynamite under the water, throwing a column nearly one hundred feet high.

At three o'clock the married men will play the boys a match game of base ball. It is hoped that they will win the prize this year, and not allow the boys to beat them.

About eight o'clock in the evening, at Thomas' ship yard, there will be an exhibition of fireworks, furnished by our neighbor Hunt. A grand display is promised.

The committee will invite Washington M. French, the worthy Chief of Police, to be present during the day, to grace the occasion and assist in making it a success.

A call will soon be made to collect the necessary funds to defray expenses, and all are expected to contribute liberally. Full particulars regarding the order of exercises will be given later.

BAPTIST CHAPEL.

Rev. Clifton Fletcher, of Brookville, preached at the Baptist Chapel last Sunday, exchanging pulpits with Rev. Geo. B. Lawton.

A unique entertainment will be given by the Baptist Sunday School next Wednesday evening, called a paper and strawberry festival. The scholars have been for some time gathering newspapers and pamphlets, for which prizes will be given to those who bring in the largest number of pounds. The paper will be weighed and the prizes given in the presence of those who attend. The other features of the entertainment will be those pertaining to strawberry festivals.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

On Sunday notice was given from the pulpit of the Washington Street Congregational Church, that Sunday, the 17th inst., will be observed by the church as children's day, and it promises to be one of the pleasant days in the memory of many, but especially so to the children.

The morning service will consist of a sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Harris, delivered respectively to children, youth and parents; and following, a children's baptismal service.

The Sunday School will occupy the middle block of pews, and assist in the singing. On account of the length of these exercises, Sunday School will not commence until 12 o'clock.

At 7.30 P. M., there will be a Sunday School concert.

All the children are requested to bring flowers to the church Saturday evening, where the superintendent will take charge of the same, that a fine floral display may be made. There are so many flowers in bloom at present that the children can aid materially in this work, for it will take but a short time to gather a pretty bouquet of wild flowers, now that so many fields look like gigantic flower beds.

The Sunday School will meet on Saturday evening, at eight o'clock, for a rehearsal.

Rev. Edward Norton exchanged, on Sunday last, with Rev. J. L. Harris, and preached two excellent sermons.

Last Sunday evening the chorister, Mr. T. H. Newcomb, extended a hearty invitation to all the young people, to meet on Friday evening of each week, and rehearse pieces from the "Gospel Hymns," for Sunday evening's service.

BASE BALL.

On Saturday evening, the Quincy Point Base Ball Association held its second meeting, and the following officers were chosen: President, H. M. Federhen; Vice-President, George H. Sidelinger; Secretary, J. L. Whiton; Treasurer, Walton Hall.

A nine was chosen Saturday for the day, which played a match game at Wollaston. At the end of seven innings the victory was declared for our boys, the score showing a record of 20 to 7.

THIS AND THAT.

Mr. Edward Hayward's singing school closed on the 5th inst., after twelve interesting and instructive lessons. It is his intention to give another quarter's lessons early in the fall, which will, without doubt, be well attended.

Frank Pray has opened an ice cream saloon over Mr. Chas. Hall's grocery store, and will be in readiness to do all in his power to make the 17th, or rather the 18th inst., pass pleasantly for all who give him a call.

On Sunday a four-oared scull was capsized in Town River, and the occupants received a sudden ducking. One man, with the aid of an oar swam to shore; the others clung to the boat until another scull came to their rescue, and were then towed one by one to the shore.

We understand that Point Holes is not only being used as a Sunday ball ground, but more than that, beer drinking is carried on to considerable extent. This is not at all in accordance with our town's temperance principles, and should be looked into at once.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians, Division No. 5, have elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President, John J. Byron.
Vice-President, Cornelius Sullivan.
Recording Secretary, Patrick A. O'Neill.
Financial Secretary, Richard Roche.
Treasurer, John Deady.

This Division, although having been organized but a short time, has upwards of fifty members and is in a flourishing condition. They meet on the second Wednesday evening of each month, at Cahill's hall.

For the Patriot.

The Other Side Again.

In last Saturday's PATRIOT an article appeared headed, "Public Schools," which read thus: —

> "We are sorry that the 'Mother' who sent us a communication last week "did not know what she was talking about," as the chairman of the school committee and superintendent have examined into all the charges made by her, and find them almost all, without the least foundation.
> "We do not doubt but that the writer thought she was telling the truth, but has been woefully mislead. It is grave business to make charges from hearsay stories, especially when they are sent to a public journal for wide spread publicity."

Now, to begin with, the investigation so far as I was concerned consisted of my being interviewed by Mr. Marsh and Superintendent Aldrich, they constituting themselves judge and jury, refusing all evidence except the teachers' as false, or unworthy of notice, and then using "the wide spread publicity of a public journal" to assert that almost all the charges were found to be without the least foundation.

Now I will put the plain facts before the fathers and mothers of Quincy, and they may judge for themselves whether I "rushed into print" for the sake of casting discredit on our public schools and making enemies for myself, or, whether I had good reason to believe them true and was justified in showing it up.

In the first case, of the five year old little girl who got her ear boxed so soundly, she came home at noon with her ear red and swollen, because she failed to fold her hands promptly, when told to, after two days' attendance only, at school. I had the mother's story for it. Hearsay, to be sure, but from first hands. But I myself do not believe a child of that age would dare tell she was boxed by the teacher if she was not, and the ear showed for itself.

Then about the little child who broke from the ranks and was slapped in the face by the teacher because she "wanted her mamma" and started to run home, while the principal of the schools called out laughingly: "Give it to her," etc. I heard that story from more than one child, and they all told the same story. All hearsay again, but I believed them, and do yet, notwithstanding the denial in the last issue of the PATRIOT. The Superintendent and Chairman of the Committee would not accept children's testimony because it would tend to hurt the discipline of the schools, etc.; but it must be plain to everyone that all knowledge of school matters must of necessity come from the children to begin with, since the parents cannot be there in person, save occasionally. And any person of discretion must judge for themselves whether the children who tell these things are reliable or not.

But in the case of the little boy who was so severely whipped, the marks showed for themselves. He had been outrageously whipped by some one, within a very short time of the time I saw him. Perhaps the teacher didn't do it, as our Superintendent and Chairman suggest, but their way of getting out of it looks to me a great deal like applying whitewash with a liberal hand. Mr. Marsh asked me, "Did you know the boy got four whippings that day? The boy said his father whipped him and his mother also; he whipped himself and the teacher whipped him." Now he evidently didn't stripe himself, and by the way, it's a new idea putting children to whip themselves. It may be very funny to look at, but I can't see for the life of me, in what way it helps the discipline of the schools. Now the father and mother of the boy say they had not whipped the boy; so, good people of Quincy, you can decide for yourselves whether I knew what I was talking about or not.

In the case of the three rattans the investigating committee asked a child, when she told the story, "Was it three rattans tied together or three pieces?" But the child said, "She borrowed one of Miss ——, got the new one of Miss ——, and tied them together, with her old one." But the teachers deny it, so of course it isn't so; although I still cannot see how the matter is helped by allowing it to be pieces. If the rattan was so slivered into pieces as to need tying together some poor child must have suffered from it. My husband has occasion, in his business, to use a rattan for beating purposes, and he says one will stand hard usage for years and not sliver or break.

And about allowing children to leave the room when necessary. I know my own child has not been allowed to go when she ought, and to say the least of the management of affairs in that respect, it ought to have been altered long ago, and the teachers obliged to do the right thing by the children. Better a number go unnecessarily than one kept in when it should go; but then it makes so much noise, "running in and out so much."

And I would like to ask if there has never been a child put down cellar? Granted that that particular cellar is well lighted, etc., I think there are some larger children that wouldn't like being put in a large, desolate place like that alone, even if they were not unnerved by a previous fit of crying, and if one child even has been placed there, even for a moment, that was too long, and she was one too many. And if she was rattaned beforehand, so much the worse. Such severity from a new teacher to a child just beginning school could do no good sure, and might do much harm.

I am not alone in thinking our Quincy system has slopped over. Our children are not machines, to turn just so much work out of whether or no. They are immortal souls to be trained patiently and thoughtfully. Whipping certainly will not elevate them, and discipline can be secured in other ways, I believe. I think as does "Another Mother," that what we do not approve can be remedied, and it seems to me that even a woman who does not believe in "voting" would be strongly tempted to exercise her right to do so, hoping thereby to show these teachers that they must keep rheir place. They were hired to teach our children, and their power is not absolute.

The committee tell me they do not believe I represent public opinion in the matter, so I hope some others who feel as I do will follow "Another Mother's" suggestions of last week, and speak out at once. This thing will bear airing; for if it is right it will prevail, and if it is wrong it should be righted. I thank "Another Mother" heartily for her support, and possibly before this thing is hushed up it may be recognized as a fact by the "powers that be" that we have a right to speak for our little ones and are not afraid to do so.

A MOTHER.

CHARTER SURRENDERED. St. Paul Lodge No. 37, Knights of Pythias, which was organized in Quincy in 1870, surrendered its charter on Monday evening last. This lodge was at one time the largest and most attractive of any in town, but has of late years, since so many benefit associations have been started, dwindled, and its few remaining members have thought best to surrender the charter.

To the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy:

THE Directors of the Old Colony Railroad Company respectfully represent that said corporation has finished the construction of and put in operation its main road, and desires to build a branch thereof in the Town of Quincy, upon a route shown by a map thereof, which map, together with a profile and engineers' report, agreeably to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, they herewith submit; that it has received from the Board of Railroad Commissioners a certificate that public convenience and necessity require the construction of such branch; and they ask that you will appoint a time and place for a hearing, of which due notice may be given, and after such hearing will agree with them as to a route of said branch, in said town, and sign and give to them a certificate setting forth said route, agreeably to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided.

The Directors of the Old Colony Railroad Company.
By CHARLES F. CHOATE,
President.

In the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy:

AND now, upon the submission of the foregoing petition and the accompanying map and report to the Selectmen, it is ordered that a hearing be had upon said petition before the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Quincy, at the station of the Old Colony Railroad Company, in said town, on the twenty-second day of June, 1883, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice thereof be given by publishing said petition and this order in the Quincy PATRIOT, a newspaper published in the County of Norfolk, for two successive weeks, the last publication to be at least two days prior to said hearing, and also by posting copies thereof and of this notice in at least two public places in the Town of Quincy, at least two weeks before such hearing.

GREETING:

In the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, you are hereby required to notify and warn the Inhabitants of the Town of Quincy, qualified to vote in Town Affairs, to meet at the Town Hall, on TUESDAY, June 19th, 1883, at 7.30 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of considering the following subjects, viz.:

ARTICLE 1.—To choose a Moderator.

ARTICLE 2.—To consider the proposition made by the Quincy Water Company, as follows:—The Quincy Water Company will construct a complete water works, and lay not less than 8 miles of pipe, and set thereon not less than eighty hydrants, and at all times maintain a full and sufficient supply of water, at a head of not less than 150 feet above tide, provided the town will contract for a term of twenty-five years to pay the sum of $3,000, annually, for the use of said hydrants for fire purposes, the company will, if desired by the town, extend said main pipes, provided the town will locate one hydrant for each 400 feet of pipe so extended, and pay the additional sum of $35 per annum for each additional hydrant. The Company will furnish water for the Town House, Public Schools, Engine Houses, Police Station and other public buildings of the town, for a sum each year equal to the amount of town tax on the real estate of said Company.

ARTICLE 3.—To see if the town will authorize the Board of Engineers to repair the Steamer House, at an expense not exceeding two hundred dollars.

Hereof fail not, but make return of this warrant, with your doings thereon, unto the Town Clerk, on or before the day appointed for said meeting.

JUNE BUTTER.

To Buyers and Users of Butter:

I AM now constantly receiving large quantities of the much desired JUNE BUTTER, direct from the best of Vermont Dairies.

This Butter is packed in new, clean tubs, from 20 to 40 pounds each, and shipped in refrigerator cars from week to week as it is made. Besides the tubs, I receive some in ten-pound boxes; and I have also contracted with one of the best of the daries to have all they make packed in neat, 5-pound boxes for my summer trade.

I am receiving very liberal amounts, and in order to keep my stock fresh, I will sell at very liberal prices. Also, by way of making a special inducement to secure new families for my butter trade, I will offer during the month of June these choice 5 pound boxes, (which usually sell at 34 or 35 cents) at just 30 cents a pound; delivered free.

This Butter is being used by some of the best families in Quincy and Neponset; but as the "proof of the pudding is in the eating," I would invite all to give this a trial and see for themselves.

A Superb Steamboat.

On Tuesday last we, with many other editors and invited guests, had the pleasure of enjoying a fine sail on the new and splendid steamboat, the "PILGRIM." This is a new iron monarch just completed for the Long Island Sound travel by the Fall River Line.

The day was lovely, the party jolly, the ride excellent, and the dinner superb. The excursionists arrived in Fall River about 10.30 A. M., and soon were sailing over the Narragansett bay in a splendid, and it is said to be the largest inland steamboat in the world. Her length on deck is 390 feet; tonnage about 3,500 registered tons. She has twelve boilers, developing 5,500 horse power; and her paddle-wheels are 41 feet in diameter.

The hull is built on the longitudinal bracket system throughout; that is, she is a ship within a ship, and has 103 water-tight compartments. It would be impossible to sink her by staving in her bottom. Twenty-five feet from her stem is the water-tight collision bulkhead, fifty feet abaft the stem is another bulkhead, and thirty feet forward of her stern is another bulkhead, all of iron. The PILGRIM is the only steamboat in the world built upon this principle. Her engines and boilers are enclosed in iron bulkheads, rendering it impossible for fire from boilers or kitchen to reach any other part of the boat. The introduction of electricity has reduced the chances of fire to the most infinitesimal point, there being no fire in any part of the vessel except in the boiler-room and kitchen. The fire appliances are however very perfect. There are hundreds of feet of mains running fore and aft the boat on each of her four decks. The big steam fire-pump throws several thousands of gallons a minute, and there are two powerful hand-worked fire-pumps, one forward and one aft, each capable of throwing a large stream of water. There are no less than 20 fire-plugs scattered around the boat, while over 2,000 feet of hose are always ready to be stretched out in event of fire.

The illumination of the PILGRIM is grand. The "plant" is Edison's, and consists of 912 lamps with the capacity of 11,382 candle-power. The passenger has simply to turn a key and his room is illuminated; matches are unnecessary, and thus a great factor of danger is blotted out of the ship's stores.

The grand saloon is the largest and finest on any steamboat in the world. It is 320 feet long; its sides are 9.3 feet high and the gallery 6.7 feet high. This grand apartment will hold, with its gallery-balcony, her allowance of 1,400 passengers, without crowding, a gathering which would require over 23 ordinary railway cars to seat. The general style of finish is elegant. The pilasters are decorated with ornamental stucco work, gilded and copper-bronzed, and tinted in the most chaste colors. From this saloon, looking down the main staircase, can be seen some of the finest marqueterie work ever placed on a steamer; it is at the head of the staircase. The ceiling overhead and under the gallery-deck is frescoed in particolors, giving a most charming effect. In this grand saloon are 103 staterooms, many of them having the upper berth to fold up, seven bridal rooms, and two family bridals, with a connecting room. The bridal rooms each have folding bedsteads, so that the room is in fact a drawing-room until the time of retiring, when it is instantly changed into a sleeping apartment. These rooms have ceilings frescoed with Cupids, sea nymphs and urchins, and allegorical pictures, with paneled walls, and the most luxuriant and costly furniture and upholstery, glassware and china. A princess could find no fault with any one of these "bridals." There are no two of them decorated alike, either in carpetings, upholstery or frescoing. The ordinary staterooms are models of comfort, with spring beds, the best of hair mattresses, feather pillows and spotless bed linen, lace and damask curtains, etc. Speaking of bed linen reminds us to say that the PILGRIM has 4,500 sheets, 3,000 pillow slips, 4,000 blankets, 1,500 counterpanes, 3,500 towels and 2,500 napkins, requiring a room equal to a good-sized bedroom in a house to hold them.

The carpeting for the PILGRIM is both rich and costly. It was from that well known carpet company of Boston, John H. Pray, Sons & Co.; two members of the firm being residents of Quincy. The Wilton carpets on the ladies' parlor, which is seventy feet long cost $10 a yard. It took 6,000 yards of carpeting to outfit the PILGRIM. To give our readers an idea of the magnitude of this article alone, we may say that it would reach from Quincy to Neponset if stretched out in one continuous length, or, in other words, the carpeting is three miles and two furlongs in length.

To stock the PILGRIM it took 3,200 pieces of silverware; 10,000 pieces of china and crockery, and 1,800 pieces of glassware; and in the culinary department there are of kitchen utensils 537 of tin, 350 of iron, 83 of copper, and several dozens of pieces of woodenware, with scores of brooms, brushes, dusters etc.; and it will be a matter of great curiosity to most housewives to know how these thousands of articles are stowed away every day, and not only cared for, but accounted for every day the steamboat is in commission.

☞ The Boston & Albany and Fitchburg railroads have united in giving public notice that after July 1st no single piece of baggage weighing over 25 pounds will be received for transportation in their baggage cars. This is a blow at the big trunks.

If you feel "all run down" and overcome with the heat, try a bottle of Morse's Yellow Dock. It is the best summer tonic and blood purifier ever offered to the public. June 9 1m

Our Public Schools.

QUINCY, June 12th, 1883.

To the Publishers of the Patriot:

You tell us in last week's edition that "the chairman of the school committee and the superintendent have examined into all the charges made by A MOTHER, and find them almost all without the least foundation." I am sure it would be quite interesting to many of your readers to know just how much of it is true; but, perhaps, the story would sound better as it goes, and such second-hand denials will not alter public opinion generally.

I suppose they made a thorough examination, so thorough in fact, that should the mothers of the children undertake to tell their side of the story to the chairman of the committee, they might possibly be told, as was the writer of this article, that "he had already received information concerning the affair," and that "the offence was nothing and that the punishment was nothing. It was simply a case of insubordination." A word, by the way, I think did not apply to the case in question, which was a few hastily spoken words and a laugh, which the teacher saw fit to call "disrespectful," but who, when asked if she thought any disrespect was intended, said she did not. So, I think, had he received correct information, or paid the least attention to what I had to say, he would not have used the term "insubordination," a word better suited to acts of wilful disobedience than a few impolite and thoughtlessly spoken words; and he might end by telling them, as he did me, "that he should stand by the teachers, unless he saw fit to do otherwise," or words to that effect.

It is a very fair illustration of the way our chairman uses his authoritative power generally, if we can believe the least part of that which we hear. I learned this from the affair, that although "the offence was nothing, and punishment nothing," it was yet considered of sufficient importance to inform the committee, even before the parents had concluded to take any particular notice of it.

AN INDIGNANT MOTHER.

Who's to Blame?

Messrs. Editors:

In the last issue of the PATRIOT your correspondent "Dudley" propounds the above conundrum, and makes some strictures on the police of Quincy, because they did not see fit to act in excess of their constitutional powers and hold in illegal duress a man who while temporarily deranged was yet under the care of relatives and friends, who gave the officers the assurance that he was not liable to commit any act of violence. The officers of Quincy were no more responsible for his subsequent suicide than were the people whom Guiteau had importuned for the murder of President Garfield. The man had committed no crime; no breach of the peace, and was simply detained because he was not regarded as fit to be left alone. Clearly the officers were fully justified in not going beyond their constitutional authority; nay, would have been open to censure had they done other than they did; and they are no more responsible for the subsequent event than your correspondent "Dudley" himself.

The officers of Quincy, as a class, were never better organized or more vigilant in the discharge of their duty than at the present time.

Founder's Day, Thayer Academy.

The friends of Thayer Academy celebrated Founder's day, June 8th, with appropriate exercises by the Senior and Middle classes. After an invocation by Rev. Mr. Labaree of Randolph, and singing by members of the classes. The class president, Morton D. Mitchell, of Wollaston, gave a cordial address of welcome in an original and humorous manner, reciting the recent origin of the institution, some facts concerning the generous man whose name it bears, and naively trusting no founder's day would be more illustrious than the present.

The essay by Miss Follett of Quincy, on "The Schoolmate as an Educator," was admirable both in construction and statement.

Ciceronian declamation "In Verrem Actio" was given by Daniel W. Rodgers of Holbrook, with intelligence and force; and the piano duet by Misses Cushman of Wollaston and Wales of Randolph, was rendered with discrimination and taste, lacking only in the tempo of accelerated passages and in want of greater vigor in playing the upper part. Miss Pinkham of Wollaston gave a somewhat tart essay on "Conventionality," but marred her original and excellent remarks by too frequent and extended quotations,—an act in itself a conventionality, and not in harmony with her design in the treatment of her subject. Mr. W. Farnam Smith of Quincy Point, gave the declamation "Joan of Arc and the Bishop of Beauvais" in the serious and pathetic style that the selection demands. The planting of class vines concluded the exercises. The prospect of this institution is one of great usefulness.

District Court, Quincy.

The following cases have been tried before Judge Humphrey this week:

Timothy O'Neill of Randolph, for a second drunk. Fined $5 and costs. He was also tried for assault and sentenced to the House of Correction for one month; from which sentence he appealed.

Michael Whalen of Randolph, for being drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

James Sullivan of Quincy, for keeping a liquor nuisance was discharged.

Michael Scanlon of Weymouth, for being drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

James Bill of Quincy, for embezzlement from Hosie's Express. He was ordered to appear before the Grand Jury.

Edward O'Brien of Weymouth, for keeping a liquor nuisance. Fined $50 and costs. Appealed.

John Rowan, Jr., of Weymouth, for trespass. Fined $1 and costs.

SAD OCCURRENCE. One of the smartest and most promising young men of Quincy, who has left home, friends and school-mates during the past twenty years, to go out into the world of care and turmoil, was found dead in his bed, at the Pacific House, Council Bluffs, Iowa, on Thursday last. We refer to Henry F. Crane, son of Mr. John Crane of this town.

We have known this young man for many years with the utmost pleasure and satisfaction. Often he would call and see us, and speak a pleasant word of encouragement. He liked to help home industry; he took the town paper and not only spoke a kind word for it, but paid his subscription promptly in advance,—sometimes for two years, thinking perhaps he might not be at home when the year would be up; he subscribed for the town history, town directory, etc., and paid the cash. Such acts are very creditable to any young man. He belonged to the Rural Lodge of Masons, of Quincy, and we learn that the officers have sent one of their brothers to see that his remains are brought safely to this place for burial.

STEAM YACHT. Mr. J. Frank Kemp, of Quincy, tried on Thursday a new steam yacht which he had just completed, and found to give good satisfaction. It is a nice keel boat, about eighteen feet in length, built in the best manner by Mr. Ambrose B. Leloise. The boiler is of the improved steam fire engine patent, and the engine is of his own make.

BOX 48. A new fire alarm box was placed at the corner of Willard and Robertson streets, West Quincy, by Engineers Hall and Duggan, on Monday last. The alarm heard on that evening, came from this new box, 48, and was sounded by the engineers for the purpose of testing the box. The fact that the alarm was properly sounded is evidence that they did their work well. The fire department was not called out, as the engineers had notified the companies of their intention of testing it.

☞ The Quincy Band, under the leadership of Mr. H. C. Brown, with thirty men, will play in Charlestown on Monday, the 18th of June, in the forenoon; and for G. A. R. Post 68, in the afternoon and evening, at Dorchester.

The band make a splendid appearance this season in their new uniform, and are playing very finely. V.

For the Patriot.

West Quincy Items.

On Tuesday morning at 6.55, an alarm from Box 46 was rung in for a fire on the roof of the building occupied by Messrs. Michael Dolan and P. F. Lacy. The Granite boys responded quickly to the alarm, and it was extinguished with slight damage.

Mr. William T. Shea has been appointed deputy of the St. Mary C. T. A. Society to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John J. White.

A new fire alarm box, No. 48, has been placed at the corner of Robertson and Willard streets.

Messrs. Elcock & Sons are erecting a new polishing shop at their works off Willard street.

Mr. Charles E. Watts is enjoying a short visit with relatives at his former home in New York.

Mr. William Fuller of Turner, Maine has a fine lot of horses at the stables of E. H. Doble & Co., which are offered for sale at very reasonable rates.

Sunday evening a Floral Concert was given at the M. E. Church. The decorations of flowers, ferns, and leaves were artistically displayed and the exercises of the evening were of a very enjoyable nature.

Active movements are on foot, to celebrate in an appropriate manner the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Solomon Willard, which occurs on Tuesday, June 26th. The generous cooperation which the citizens have shown in this enterprise seem to already assure it of success. It is also proposed to have a proper inscription to his memory placed on the granite shaft, erected in Hall Cemetery by Mr. Willard. The life, character and works, of this noble-hearted, generous man, are too well known to the citizens of Quincy to need words of comment. Full particulars of the day will be given in next week's PATRIOT.

The freight business at the West Quincy depot, is increasing rapidly, and no doubt in a short time the receipts from the above station will compare favorably with any station on the O. C. R. R.

It is rumored that the Union Band will soon entertain the citizens of West Quincy and vicinity with a series of band concerts. A.

Wollaston.

June 12, 1883.

MR. EDITOR: Last Sunday, at Wollaston, was Children's Day with the Methodists, or Floral Sunday as some call it. Our church was handsomely decorated, and the beautiful exercise sent by Dr. Kidder, secretary of the Board of Education, was recited. Declamations were spoken by Miss Anna Caldwell and Miss Emma Bickman. A handsome collection was taken for the support of needy students preparing for the ministry.

The children were requested after the meeting, to inform the pastor how they earned their money for the offering; which brought to light some matters of interest as to methods and means adopted by children for making money.

In the afternoon the children carried bouquets and presented them to some aged and sick people, as compliments of Children's Day.

Arrived at Wollaston, June 13 schooner Albus, from Hoboken, with coal for Geo. W. B. Taylor. Y.

To Owners or Keepers of Dogs.

Please give immediate attention to licensing and collaring the dog owned or kept by you.

The Constables have no obligation to collect the license money, for their duty under the warrant, is to cause all unlicensed and uncollared dogs to be killed.

A recent decision of the Supreme Court of this State, in reference to the dog law, is as follows:—

"The true meaning of the statute is, that any person may kill an unlicensed or an uncollared dog, whenever or wherever found, at any time of the year, provided he can do so without a trespass; that every police officer or constables shall kill or cause to be killed, all such dogs, whenever or wherever found; and that, within ten days from the first of July, a warrant shall be issued to one or more police officers or constables, directing them to proceed forthwith to kill or cause to be killed all such dogs, and to enter complaint against the owners or keepers thereof; that is to say, it is made the special duty of officers to whom the warrant is issued to look for and find and destroy all such dogs and also to enter complaints. It is only necessary therefore to observe the requirements of the law as to a license and collar, and a dog will have the same legal protection as a horse or an ox."

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JUNE 16, 1883.

Epitaphs.

The following epitaphs were taken from the small stones at the heads of the graves of our soldiers who are buried in the national cemetery at Arlington Heights, Washington, by a sister of Mrs. Edward H. Spaulding, during a recent visit to Washington:—

The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo,
No more in life's parade shall meet
That brave and fallen few.

No vision of the morrow's strife
The warrior's dream alarms,
No braying horn, no morning pipe
At dawn shall call to arms.

The neighing troops, the flashing blades,
The bugle's stirring blast,
The charge, the dreadful cannonade,
The din and shout has passed.

No rumor of the foe's advance
Now sweeps upon the wind,
No troubled thoughts at midnight haunts,
Of loved ones left behind.

On fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with solemn rounds
The bivouac of the dead

Rest on, embalmed and sacred dead,
Dear as the blood ye gave,
No impious footsteps here shall tread
The herbage of your grave.

Farm and Garden.

Dangers in the Silos.

We are impressed with the importance of warning people who have put their corn-fodder in tanks, especially in deep ones, of the dangerous carbonic acid gas—the "choke damp" of mines and wells. A farmer near Sing Sing used an old ice house for pitting his corn fodder; on Saturday night, when they knocked off work, there were seven or eight feet of fodder cut in half-inch bits, and well trodden down in the pit. On Monday morning it had settled considerably and one of the hands jumped in and was treading about on it to see if it had settled evenly, when he felt dizzy and faint; the thought of "choke damp" flashed through his mind, and he called out to have a ladder lowered to him. This was done just in time, and he half crawled and was half hauled out. His head was four or six feet above the worst of the "damp," for it is very heavy. Had he fallen he would have been drowned in the gas, as effectively as in water, without a struggle or a murmur. When going into a pit never fail to lower a lantern first, for half a minute, and if it burns brightly the air of the pit is fit to breathe.—American Agriculturist.

Cutting Grass Early.

Before the close of the month most of the Massachusetts farmers will have commenced mowing. There is yet some difference of opinion as to the best time to cut grass. While some contend that it should be cut early, before it is in full bloom, others assert that it should not be cut until the seed begins to form. When it is expected to get two crops, if left until the seed is formed, it very much lessens the second crop even in a wet season, while in a dry season it nearly destroys it. But if cut as soon as the blossom appears the second crop starts before the sun has had time to burn the roots, and thus a fair second crop is obtained even in a dry season. Another advantage is claimed for early cutting, namely the quality of hay; it is declared that cows will eat it better; while on the other hand, it is claimed by some that if left until the seed is partially ripe there is more nutriment in it. As a rule for milch cows farmers prefer hay that has been cut early, claiming that it makes better milk. With the present numerous improved implements for harvesting the hay crop, the labor is very much lightened, besides enabling the farmer to get his hay in half the time it formerly required.—Ploughman.

Asparagus.

The Massachusetts Ploughman says: "To secure a good crop of asparagus, the land should be manured in the autumn with eight or ten cords of good stable manure to the acre; in the spring this should be well mixed with the top of the soil with a cultivator, horse hoe or a spring tooth harrow. Unless the crown of the roots have been set well down, the plough must be used with care or the roots will be injured. The bed should not be cut until it has been set two years, and then it should not be cut much after the first of June; but when the bed is fully established it may be cut until the 20th of June, though never later than that time. Many beds are very much injured by late cutting. To cut until the first of July injures it by weakening the roots. As long as the cutting continues it should be thorough, cutting all of the stalks both large and small.

Anecdotes.

Lillie asks her mother, "What do you like best, good dreams or bad ones?"

"Good ones. And you?"

"Oh, I like bad dreams best."

"Why?"

"Because when I have good dreams I find when I wake up that they are not true, and that annoys me, whilst when I have had bad ones I am happy when I wake, because they are not true."

A little boy astonished his companions the other day by telling them that he had "a spanking team at his house." An excited crowd of boys had walked nearly home with him when one of them asked:

"What d'ye call 'em?"

"Pa and ma," was the reply.

"Say, Pat, what ever made you go to work for old Uncle Dan? He's the meanest man in the country."

"Mane is it?" said Pat; "why, shure and he's the foinest, aisyest-goin' master iver I had, bedad; he gives a man fifteen hours to do a day's work in."

An Irishman stopped at a hotel where pretty high bills were charged. In the morning the landlord made out the amount of damages and presented it to Pat. After he had glanced it over, the latter looked the landlord in the face and exclaimed:

"You put me in mind of a snipe."

"Why?" asked the landlord.

"Because ye're pretty nigh all bill."

"You say your brother is younger than you, yet he looks much older?"

"Yes, he has seen a great deal of trouble, but I never married."

Household Receipts.

ORANGE CAKE. Mix two cups of sugar with the yolks of two eggs, then add the whites, beaten to a stiff froth; next, add a large tablespoonful of butter, then one cup of milk and flour to make stiff as cup-cake; flavor to taste; bake in jelly pans. Filling: One lemon, two oranges, grate the rinds, add the juice, one cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of corn starch, one cup of water; boil until smooth; cool before putting between cakes.

ICING. To the white of one egg use one teacupful of icing sugar. Beat the eggs to a stiff froth, then add the sugar and apply to the cake as quick as possible. The white of one egg will ice one common sized cake. You will find this to be excellent.

ANOTHER. Beat the white of eggs to a full froth, and flavor with lemon or rose; then add, gradually, as much finely powdered sugar as will make it thick enough, beating it well all the time. Dust the cake over with flour, then gently rub it off; lay on the icing with a flat knife; stick on the ornaments while it is wet, and place it in the oven a few minutes to harden, but not long enough to discolor it.

POTATO PUFFS. Two cups of cold mashed potatoes; stir into this two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, beaten to a cream; two well-beaten eggs, one cup of cream or milk. Pour this into a deep dish and bake in a quick oven.

Simple garden perfumes are charming in linen when put away in trunks or drawers. To handkerchiefs the perfume is more delicate and much more desirable than the stronger odors so freely used. Always preserve the trimmings of rose geraniums in envelopes for such purposes, and lay in plenty of sweet clover when in blossom.

It is a good plan to cover a bird cage at night with a woolen or other cloth having a rough surface, as the vermin which infest most birds will be attracted by the greater warmth, leave the bird for the covering, and in the morning the latter may be scalded and they will thus be destroyed.

The sufferer from neuralgia may try with confidence the following: Equal parts of chloral and gum camphor, mixed by any reliable druggist. Apply externally only. This mixture must not be used inside the mouth for toothache as a little of it swallowed might result in stupor or something more serious.

Fashion Notes.

Lace upon day dresses is very popular this season.

Braiding appears on costumes, jackets and wraps.

White lawn bustle skirts are preferred to stiff crinolets.

Tucks and panels are the features in dress-making this year

Gold braid is much used, even for trimming morning dresses.

Copper in various shades is the rival of tobacco or cigar color.

Gray holland frocks made with extreme plainness, silver ornaments, gray straw hats lined with pink, gray jersey gloves and a gray parasol with pink lining will be among the most fashionable dresses worn by women of good taste this Summer.

Leather trimmings and heavy twine laces are used on costumes of India silk by women who have no sense of the fitness of things. The oddity of effect which they secure by doing this has nothing artistic about it. Oriental embroidery, or delicate needlework, is the only proper trimming for an Indian stuff, unless it be of silk or some deep, dusky shade.

Closely woven colored silk mitts are newer than those of the more open lace patterns known as the Marguerite gloves. They are embroidered at each end with a light vine that passes around the hand and the arm. They may be had of various lengths, and are shown in shrimp pink salmon, rose, pale blue, dark blue, yellow, brown, strawberry, black and white.

Moss straw bonnets, interlaced with ribbon and trimmed with a cockade, are worn in Paris. This is one of the fashions created by somebody who wished to be distinguished, and imitated by many somebodies who desired to be economical.

There is a fancy at present for perching a big bow of satin ribbon on the hem of the apron overskirt, where it looks as if it were pinned for safe keeping, rather than for any other purpose, for, of course, it is absolutely useless.

This and That.

The Congregationalist explains what it means by "lightning-bug" piety—bright while it lasts, but cold and soon out.

A man has no more right to say an uncivil thing than to act one; no more right to say a rude thing to another than to knock him down.

As the twig is bent the tree inclines.—If you give your children an improper education, their future misfortunes will lie at your door.

"No, young man, it doesn't hurt you a particle to sow your wild oats. Go ahead and sow all you wish. But it's the gathering in of the crop that will make you howl. And you have to gather it, too. If you don't it gathers you in, and one is a great deal worse than the other."—Baptist Weekly.

A York state man who has kept an account of the weather, claims that it invariably repeats itself, and gives the following as the result of his observations: All years ending in 9, 0 or 1 are extremely dry. Those ending in 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6 are extremely wet. Those ending in 7 or 8 are ordinarily well balanced. Those ending in 6 have extremely cold winters. Those ending in 2 have an early spring. Those ending in 1 have a late spring. Those ending in 3 or 4 are subject to great floods.

The London Cosmopolitan proposes the following marriage vow for its lady readers, when occasion requires: "I will continue to love my husband so long as he is lovable, honor him so long as is honorable, and obey him so long as his commands are just and reasonable."

"All right! The clothes are done up in tiptop style. Couldn't you call in Saturday night for your pay?"

"Not if I leabs the clothes, boss."

"Not if you leave the clothes! Why not?"

"'Case you ain't nebber at home when you has a clean shirt to your back, an' hit wouldn't do me no good to call Saturday."

Miscellany.

Simplicity in Dress.

Few seem to be aware of the effect of simplicity in the midst of elaborate and expensive artifice. Let a young woman with no hair but her own, and that simply dressed, enter a room filled with those whose heads are elaborately built up with a profusion of purchased locks, and see who will be most admired. It is a great advantage for a woman, in these days of artifice, to remain herself, and thus be unlike every one else. A simple dress, white or black, will produce the greatest effect when surrounded by the most gorgeous costumes. These serve, as it were, as frames for the former, and women are often forced to confess that they have draped themselves magnificently, at an expense, for no other purpose than to heighten by contrast the beauty of a rival. In fact, they have been wearing a dress which is very becoming to others.—Harper's Bazar.

Never Had Teeth.

A man who never in his life had a tooth in his jaws, was at one time a resident of Montana. This fact was brought to the recollection of an old resident of this city by seeing a statement in an eastern paper that one of the most wonderful natural curiosities of the age is a ten year old Georgia boy who never had any teeth and shows no signs that he ever will have any. The man referred to above was sixty years old and never had any teeth. His name was Joseph Bearclaw. He was a resident of Alder Gulch in '64 and '65. Although nature failed to supply Mr. Bearclaw with teeth she tried to make amends by furnishing him with long, strong finger-nails and toe-nails, which were almost as hard as bone and fully one-eighth of an inch thick. It is not known whether he got the name Bearclaw from this circumstance or if that was properly his name. He was from Illinois, to which State he returned in '65 or '66.

"Bite Bigger, Billy."

One day a gentleman saw two boys going along the street in New York. They were barefooted. Their clothes were ragged and dirty, and tied together by pieces of string. One of the boys was perfectly happy over a half-withered bunch of flowers, which he had just picked up in the street.

"I say, Billy," said he to his companion, "wasn't somebody real good to drop these 'ere posies just where I could find them? And they're so pooty and nice! Look sharp, Billy; mebbe you'll find something bimeby."

Presently the gentleman heard his merry voice again saying:—

"Oh! jolly Billy! if there ain't most half a peach! 'cause you ain't found nothing, you may bite first."

Billy was just going to take a very little taste of it, when his companion said:—

"Bite bigger, Billy; mebbe we'll find another 'fore long."

That shows how a hungry boy was glad to get hold of half of a cast-a-way peach; but, better still, there is a lesson of generosity in it.

Johnny Takes a Scalp.

This is the way it happened. I was playing Indian in the yard. I had a wooden tomahawk and a wooden scalping knife, and a bow-'narrow. I was dressed in father's old coat turned inside out, and six chicken feathers in my hair. I was playing I was Green Thunder, the Delaware chief, and was hunting for pale-faces in the yard. It was just after supper, and I was having a real nice time. Mr. Travers came, and he said, "Jimmy, what are you up to now?" So I told him I was Green Thunder, and was on the war-path. Said he "Jimmy, I think I saw Mr. Martin on his way here. Do you think you would mind scalping him?" I said I wouldn't scalp him for nothing, for that would be cruelty; but if Mr. Travers was sure that Mr. Martin was the enemy of the red man, then Green Thunder's heart would ache for revenge, and I would scalp him with pleasure. Mr. Travers said that Mr. Martin was a notorious enemy and oppressor of the Indians, and he gave me ten cents, and said that as soon as Mr. Martin should come, and be sitting comfortably on the piazza, I was to give the war-whoop and scalp him.

Well, in a few minutes Mr. Martin came, and he and Mr. Travers and Susan sat on the piazza, and talked as if they were all so pleased to see each other, which was the highest poctacy in the world. After a while Mr. Martin saw me and said, "How silly boys are! that boy makes believe he is an Indian, and he knows he is only a little nuisance." Now, this made me mad, and I thought I would give him a good scare; just to teach him not to call names. So I began to steal softly up the piazza steps, and to get around behind him. When I got about six feet from him I gave a war-whoop and jumped at him. I caught hold of his scalp-lock with one hand, and drew my wooden scalping-knife around his head with the other.

I never got such a scare in my whole life. The knife was that dull that it wouldn't have cut butter; but, as true as I sit here, Mr. Martin's whole scalp came off in my hand. I thought I had killed, and I dropped his scalp, and said: "For mercy sakes! I didn't go to do that, and I'm awful sorry!" But he just caught up his scalp, stuffed it in his pocket, jammed his hat on his head, and walked off, saying to Susan, "I didn't come here to be insulted by a little wretch that deserves the gallows."

Mr. Travers and Susan never said a word until he had gone, and then they laughed 'till the noise brought father out to see what was the matter. When he heard what had happened, instead of laughing, he looked very angry, and said that Mr. Martin was a worthy man. "My son, you may come up-stairs with me."

If you've ever been a boy, you know what happened up-stairs, and I needn't say any more on a very painful subject. I didn't mind it so much, for I thought Mr. Martin would die, and then I would be hung and put in jail; but before she went to bed Susan came in and whispered through the door that it was all right; that Mr. Martin was made that way, so he could be taken apart easy, and that I hadn't hurt him. I shall have to stay in my room all day to-day and eat bread and water, and what I say is, that if men are made with scalps that may come off any minute if a boy just touches them, it isn't fair to blame the boy.

An angry man opens his mouth and shuts his eyes.

Vegetine.

SUPERIOR TO ANY FAMILY MEDICINE.

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

ITS MEDICINAL PROPERTIES ARE

Alterative, Tonic, Solvent and Diuretic.

VEGETINE is made exclusively from the juices of carefully-selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal Complaints, can only be effectually cured through the blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Scaldhead and Ringworm, VEGETINE has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine diseases and General Debility, VEGETINE acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammations, cures ulcerations and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles, Nervousness, and General Prostration of the Nervous System, no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the VEGETINE. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact, VEGETINE is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases, and is the only reliable BLOOD PURIFIER yet placed before the public.

For the Patriot.

Does Married Life Pay?

"He who weddeth keeps God's letter;
He who weds not doeth better."

If that adage is true and all people should say:
Never marry at all, you'll sure rue the day.

You had better be single, and take comfort in life
Than venture to marry, and become a man's wife.

For if he's a broker with a million in store,
He'll only be worried, and wish it was more.

And if you have diamonds that's costly and rare,
Rich velvets and laces, which girls like to wear,

He'll fret you to death with his grumbling whine,
All is vanity with women, and then scold you like time.

Yet there are doctors and lawyers and pastors you say,
With honest old farmers, who plod on their way;

And of all the professions in this wide, busy whirl,
Can't a girl get a husband the best in the world?

O! no, never marry, don't venture, girls, pray,
You'll sure get entangled in a thousand bad ways.

A man may be nobby when a lover, you know,
But when he gets married it changes him so.

Is that your opinion? if so, 'tisn't mine,
And I'll give you my reasons in a very short time.

If a man is worth having, as lover or friend,
With principles pure, he'll wear to the end;

And if nice as a lover, so attentive and true,
He's a thousand times nicer as a husband for you.

For a big, generous heart, and a bright, cheery smile
Is something worth winning to treasure the while.

And with God for our leader, "His banner is love,"
Married life will be happy, for it's sanctioned above.

I know, for I've tried it, and never feel blue,
If a cloud comes along, just sing and dance through.

For, don't you remember, the bible speaks true,
"A merry heart doeth good, like a medicine for you."

If a man should look surly, don't be frightened a bit,
Just cook a nice dinner, and spice it with wit.

And I'll wager ten dollars, and my best meetin' hat,
Your life will glide smoothly with never a spat.

So I truly believe that married life pays,
And a couple can live to happy old age.

MAY LOVEJOY.

Jennie's Graduation Dress.

"Now go on with your study, Jennie. It's useless to discuss the matter."

"But mother I don't see—"

"Of course you don't see, dear, but when your father has decided, he has decided, you know. Don't think any more about it. Come, I can't spare you but fifteen minutes more. You must help me on Tommy's jacket, just the buttonholes, my eyes are so poor."

"Why don't you get Miss Stitchson to make the buttonholes?"

"Don't ask me. What did your father say yesterday noon, and again just now at supper time? If you will make them I can get the jacket finished to-night. He needs it enough."

"Now Mother Mayberry it's too bad! Tom's suit is shabby, but I don't believe he cares. One day more won't make much difference, anyway; and I will help on the buttonholes to-morrow afternoon if Prudy don't come for me to practice that duet for her."

"No, my dear." "Never put off till to-morrow what can be done to-day, —Grandpa's motto, you know. I wish you would bear it in mind more than you do. There—now you mustn't say another word — keep your thoughts on your lesson; I shan't speak for fifteen minutes."

At this Jennie resumed studying, for she was as desirous as her mother was for her, to be correct in recitations. She had been dreading this last review in history, which was to determine her rank in scholarship. And her father was so anxious that she should stand high at graduation—only three weeks hence—he had even taken pains to go over with her all the battles of the rebellion and the events of the Franco-German war, dates were such trouble to her; and taught her an old method of his own for memorizing such things accurately.

She went on patiently with the words of the book. But I am sorry to say her thoughts wandered to Prudence Winn's new dress, and to a small package in her pocket which she had not yet had the courage — opportunity she would have said, to show her mother; yet which she must see this very evening if her long cherished hopes were to be fulfilled.

A pencil was needed to mark the battle of the Wilderness from her memorizing method; and in taking it from her pocket out came the package. Her pink cheeks took on a deeper hue as she hastily snatched it before it fell to the floor, and there was a confused drop of the quivering eyelids before her mother's questioning glance. Not a word was said, but Mrs. Mayberry extended her hand, and Jennie dare not ignore the unspoken request.

"What does this mean, daughter? Jordan & Marsh's shop bill—black silk —samples!" said Mrs. Mayberry, slowly, as she unfolded the little package.

"I wanted to know what it would cost," came the reluctant words, as the girl's nervous fingers turned and returned the pages of her history. "Other girls, lots of them, do."

"Do what?"

"Send for samples."

"Without consulting their parents? I hope not, Jennie. How could you?"

There was no answer, and the question was repeated. But before she had time to reply, Mr. Mayberry and Tommy—who had been busy over an hour in the barn looking after the comfort of the little heifer and Nan, the mother, and seeing that Jenks, the old roan, and Daisy the pony, were all right, and everything about the premises snug and orderly—came hurriedly in.

Mr. Mayberry quick to read faces, saw that something unpleasant was under consideration. Presuming it was the same — graduation and expenses — which had been talked over at tea time, he said: "I can't bear to have you feel unhappy and dissatisfied, and instead of spending money for hiring music that day and evening, I'll let the class have the use of our piano—you and Prudie Winn can play well enough for anybody who will be there. How do you like that? I'll take it to the school-house and back, too."

Jennie did not answer. She had not recovered from her confusion, and only a sickly smile showed that she had understood his suggestion.

"A good idea—don't you think so, mother?" he added, with a little chirruppy laugh, which Mrs. Mayberry answered with another — but her's was forced and hollow.

Tommy saw the samples of silks, still in his mother's hand. "Something for my new jacket trimmings, is it!" he asked.

"Oh no, Jenny, you might as well tell your father about it," was the response, in low, sad tones.

Jennie began to cry.

"Hi! hi!" said her father, cheerfully; "this won't do for a seventeen-year-old young lady. "What's up? I don't see anything to cry about. You're getting nervous, sis. Too much study, I'm afraid. I shall be glad when you get through this terrible last term. But you're coming out well—that's not the trouble. I hope? Let's run over the battles again, so as to be sure of them. And he took up the book which she had pushed aside.

Mrs. Mayberry laid the strips of silk upon the book. "What do you think of those?" she asked, gently.

"Those?" he asked, "Why, what are they? How came you by them?"

"Is it best for Jennie to have a graduation dress like either of them?"

"Our Jennie? Good grandmother of Methuselah! Our Jennie rigged out like a fifty year old? You're joking, wife?"

Jennie had ceased crying and now looked up anxiously.

"Never was I more in earnest, John."

"Well, I don't pretend to know about these things. But you really don't want it, do you, child? Such a gloomy thing. Why you ought to have something bright and cheerful then, it seems to me."

"It would very serviceable," said Jennie, meekly.

"Serviceable — how?" queried her father. "Your mother's dresses are always serviceable—and they are not silk. And then look at the cost of it. Whew! Ten—fifteen dollars. I suppose."

"More than double that," returned Mrs. Mayberry.

"That settles the question. No, it will not be serviceable for my daughter —not at that price."

"But if I get the school at Stapleton?" asked Jennie.

"Ah! If! Time enough to talk about silk dresses when you've money that you don't know what to do with. If you do teach, you shan't begin for over a year."

"More than half the girls in our class will have silks for graduation. Prudy says, and—"

"I suppose she will; she looks like that kind of a girl. And, as usual her father is going to borrow my mowing machine next summer, and the new plough I must buy in April. No, my daughter—no black silk for you yet. However—let me see. I have it now! One of my happy thoughts. Just in the nick of time, I declare!"

He drew out his pocket-book, and from its folds took several bank bills. "Mr. Simonds paid me for his hay this afternoon. I'm right glad to get the money just now. I was intending it for a certain purpose, a plan that your mother and I made a while ago. But I've changed my mind within an hour, and, Jennie, if you will wear the same dress you have on now — the neat gray flannel with the pretty pink necktie— at the graduation, you shall have every cent he paid me — to spend as you choose."

Jennie looked troubled.

"I'll be there to see," he added. "Moreover and likewise," he continued merrily, "Tommy and I will get as many spruce trees and as much evergreen to trim the school-room as you will accept. And mother'll lend all her plants, every flower-pot, I've no doubt.

"Certainly, with pleasure," responded Mrs. Mayberry.

"The graduation or commencement, rather — for then you will really begin your life as a woman," said Mr. Mayberry, "ought to be a joyful occasion. And yet a serious and thoughtful one, as you then lay aside all childish things and take the first step toward the sober realities of life. And I want you to know, Jennie, that the first step will have much to do in determining your future course. Don't begin with show and extravagence, then — if you — that is I—can afford it; it would not be right or becoming."

"Mike Brady hasn't any overcoat, father, because Mary has got to have a new gown to graduate in," said Tommy.

"And Mrs. Drayton told me a fortnight ago that Hannah had left the High School on account of the expense of graduation," said his mother.

"Well, I suppose there are others 'in the same box' as Uncle Russell expressed it. He said to me the other day that he should not be able to take up his note as soon as he expected, next month; his two boys' school expenses are so great this last term."

"All the girls are telling what they shall wear, and I thought — I expected —" began Jennie, in a trembling tone.

Her father interrupted her, placing the bank bills in her hand.

"Think it over to-night, dear. You have had good teachers and you are fond of them, I know, and you are attached to your mates; have had many happy hours in the old school-room; will wish to look back on the last days spent in there with pleasant memories. Spend the money—it is yours now—in a way that will give you the most delightful recollection."

"Now, please, let us drop the subject," said her mother, laying the samples on her work-stand, and taking up Tommy's jacket. Am I to have your help on the buttonholes dear?" she added, quietly.

Jennie gave her a bright smile, gathered up the bits of silk, went directly to the stove and threw them in the fire.

"Buttonholes, buttons — anything you say," was her answer, as she seated herself on a stool at her mother's side, that both might sew at the same time.

How about your battles? Dates all right, daughter?" asked her father. "Let me hear them."

She recited them slowly and correctly, ending with a gay laugh, and — "I was determined to have them right."

"And you have succeeded. Add another—a victory for General Good-Sense at Mayberry Point. What's the date?"

"Never mind. Graduation day, we'll call it, perhaps," and having clasped her purse with a vigorous snap, there was a twinkle of its steel rings as she slipped it into her pocket, and then her skilful fingers ran rapidly through the mazes of button-hole stitches. So Tommy's jacket was completed and he was glad enough to wear it the next day.

Graduation day was remarkably fair for March. The school-room was crowded with the parents and friends of the pupils. Everybody admired the decorations of evergreen and flowering plants, which Mr. Mayberry not only provided but assisted in arranging.

Not one of the pupils passed more creditably through the exercises than Jennie Mayberry, and certainly not one looked prettier than she in her modest gray dress, with a pink bow at her throat. More than one among the gentlemen visitors inquired who that handsome girl in gray was—"And such easy, charming manners," added some. "And such a fine scholar," said others.

The music — only Jennie Mayberry's piano and singing by the pupils — was liked so well that a persistent encore of the last song brought its repetition, during which Mr. Mayberry, bearing a large package, passed slowly up one of the aisles, to the teacher's platform. When the singing ceased, all eyes turned in expectation toward him as he carefully unfolded a large picture from its wrappings.

It was a fine engraving, a portrait of Abraham Lincoln, in a beautiful frame. "My daughter's gift to the school in memory of the pleasant hours here passed," said Mr. Mayberry to the principal.

A complete surprise was this, and everybody seemed astonished at the generous gift. In a few words Mr. Mayberry told the story of its purchase. Then it was hung on the wall back of the teacher's desk.

And that is the way that the change in the graduation exercises of the High School at Mayberry Point was brought about, and why the pupils wear their every-day dresses, and furnish their own music, and make the decorations themselves for that occasion. The reason, too, that there is always such a large class to graduate, and that there is less love of dress and finery among the young people of the place, and such good books in its school library, and so many pictures on the school-room walls, and those two Roger groups in corners. —New England Farmer.

Letter from New York.

New York, June 20, 1883.

The weather here has been intensely hot for the past week, and there has been, in consequence, a general rush to the Summer resorts down the harbor, and elsewhere in the vicinity of the city. The managers of the Cooper Union and Annex Hall Evangelistic meetings propose to hold cream festivals monthly, free of charge.

Bedloe's Island is being rapidly prepared for the erection of the pedestal of the Bartholdi Statue, by the demolition of the buildings of old Fort Wood. Pneumismatists are hoping that some old coins may be discovered in the cistern on the Island, which has not been cleaned since the erection of the Fort, in 1814.

An excellent amendment to the Code of Criminal Procedure, which has very recently been passed, is that limiting a magistrate's power to detain any person as witness only when he is satisfied, either by proof or oath, that there is reason to believe that any such witness is an accomplice in the commission of the crime charged. This will further the ends of justice in many cases where witnesses of lawlessness of any kind will many times be glad to come forward and testify, if there is no danger of their being locked up to force them to do so.

Recently the pupils of the Sunday-schools established for the Chinese gave to their teachers and friends an excursion and picnic to Iona Island which proved to be very enjoyable. A feature of the occasion was the music furnished by the Celestials, consisting of nine pieces of their native instruments. The time on the Island was spent by the Chinese in the flying of kites, playing foot-ball, and sending off fire crackers.

Education.

No more truthful sentence was ever penned by man than the following written by Chancellor Kent:

"The parent who sends his son into the world uneducated, defrauds the community of a lawful citizen, and bequeaths to it a nuisance."

These words should be written in letters of gold over the entrance to every school house in the land.

A Summer Visit to Canada.

WAYSIDE NOTES, NO. 9.

During my short stay in Calais, this sprightly down-east city, I was the guest of Alderman H——, an intelligent and agreeable gentleman. He is very popular among his wide circle of friends, and justly so. He gave me some valuable information with respect to the lumbering business of this section of the state. The tall, sturdy pine and hemlock trees came from the mills in all shapes and sizes of timber products, for building purposes, and are sent all over the country. How much we owe to the hardy sons of Maine, who swing the axe and tend the saw mill and load the schooners, for our shelter from summer's heat and winter's cold, thousands of miles away from the forests, where the wood-work of our houses and ships grew in its original style, and waved its blossoming foliage like flags and banners in the air.

I am off the line of railways and steamboats, just as I laid out to be, for I want to return by a very different route from that by which I came, as far, at least, as Portland, for I admire the Forest City so much that I must call there again on my way home. Now I am going to travel some distance by stage, and I confess I rather like this old-fashioned way of making a journey, that is, if the road is not too long and too hard, and the stage is not too small and too crowded, and the horses are not too lazy and too slow (there is no danger of them being too fast and too smart), and the passengers are not too still or too noisy, but just about right, then, on these conditions, a stage ride of a hundred miles or so, which I took, is one of the pleasantest things in the world. As "the groves were God's first temple," so stages were men's first Pullman palace cars, and we must think of them with respect and kindness, and be grateful that we find them where the cars don't run, and the steamers don't steam along the flowing rivers. It was growing dark when I took the little stage or mail coach at Calais for Dennysville.

All things were just right for comfort, and we had a charming ride by the light of the moon and golden stars. The aurora borealis was shooting its rays of crimson and splendor that night far up in the northern sky. Mr. Kilby, the postmaster at Dennysville, was one of the passengers on that occasion,—a well informed young gentleman, and very genial in his manners. He was so intelligent and interesting in his conversation that our long journey by night seemed short indeed. As we entered the quiet village after midnight Mr. Kilby pointed out several houses more than a century old, which were still in good condition, and occupied by families of distinguished ancestors. A house, venerable with age, is always an object of interest; it speaks of the faithfulness of the builder, and it teaches us that what we do in the spirit of honesty and integrity shall endure, and the ancient dwelling, with its patches of moss on roof and wall, is a standing and striking illustration of the usefulness of these lofty and winning virtues.

In the little river which flows through the village are caught the largest and finest salmon in the country; so it is that we usually find the best persons and things in quiet and obscure places. We have never had yet a President of the United States who was born in a city or large town. The country is the best place to be born in, but the country folks should not all stay there, as some should leave, with their noble hearts and level heads, to keep the city people straight and in good order. I know some fine men, like Peter Cooper, have been brought up in the city, but I suppose they would have been a little finer if they had put in their first appearance out of town, where we smell the fragrance of apple blossoms and new mown hay.

At breakfast the next morning the landlord told me that a gentleman and his wife of my own name had arrived at his hotel the evening before to spend the night. I felt sure, from the name, that they would prove welcome company; and when the gentleman and lady who spell their name exactly as I spell mine came into the parlor, whom should I see before me but Allen and Susan. We had not met for many years, yet we recognized each other instantly. We were more than friends, closer than first cousins even.

Now, I think it will go through your heads without saying just what kind of a band we three made up, as we stood there talking and smiling aloud, till I had to tear myself away from those I had so gladly but unexpectedly met, and jump into the stage, which was waiting at the door to take me over the hills to Machias.

RALEIGH.

New York, June, 1883.

Why He Could Sell Cheap.

"Boss, does yer wanter buy a ham?" asked a negro of a white man.

"What is it worth?"

"Wall, as it's yerse'f, you may take it for fifty cents."

"That won't do. You can afford to sell it for less, for I believe you stole it any how."

"Boss, doan' cuse me so rash. Have a little mussy about your person. But, I tell you, boss, if yer won't say nothing 'bout it I'll let you have it fur forty cents."

The white man agreed, and paid over the amount. The negro just as he crossed the street, was accosted by an acquaintance, who said:

"What did yer let dat man hab dat ham so cheap fur?"

"Oh, I could 'ford it, 'cause I stole it outen his own smoke-house."

The Song of Birds.

It is very still. The dew lies heavy on all things. In the east the light is coming fast, and twilight every moment gains new radiance. Not a sound gives warning of any coming song. Far off one hears the hoarse hawk of a goose or the bark of a dog disturbed by some early traveler. Then one hears a single call-note, as if the chorister were calling attention and giving out the pitch. It is answered in an inquiring way by another bird, as much as to say, "We are all ready, shall we begin?" Then one launches out, but has not uttered two syllables before a score of birds strike in, and then, from the fields, from forest edges, from orchards and gardens, from the ground, the fences and the air there comes such a Babel of sweet sounds, running into each other, clasping, overlaying and surging together, that one cannot distinguish any single songster's note, but only a wild mingling of hundreds of birds, all singing at the very top of their power; as if fired by an ecstacy of gladness. This great rush of song lasts from twenty minutes to half an hour and then ceases as simultaneously as it began. The birds seem then to occupy themselves with their toilet and breakfast. After which, but in far less general way, they sing off and on for an hour or two. Then they scatter and persue the regular business of the day, singing, but little until toward evening unless the day be clouded. — Beecher.

The Bear and the Ram.

Little Johnny tells the following story about a bear and a belligerent old ram: "One day the bear he went among a flock of sheep and picked out a nice little lamb, and cot it, and the lamb it said ba-ba-ba, 'cause it knew it was going for to be et every little tiny bit up. But the bear took it up in his fore poz, like it was a baby, and set it up full length and rocked it and sed: 'There, there, never mind my precious darlin', where does it hurt ye? But the lamb kept hollerin louder and louder, cos while the bear was a smilin' and singin' a hush-a-boy he was a skaweezin' ti-ter and titer all the time. Bime by the old ramb he seen wot was up, and he dropt his hed, the old ramb did, and came like he was shot out of a gun and let him have it in the stumack of his beily, and doubled him up like he was a razor, and sent him rollin' over and over without his 'precious darlin'.' And when the bear had pulled misself together again he said: 'I have obserfed that lambs' tails was quickern lightnin', but I didn't knew they wos powerfuller too.' Just then he saw how it was, for there stood the old ramb a holdin' down his hed ready for to let him have it agin, and shirkin' like he sed: "That little shaver wudent make more than a moufle for a feller like you. I guess you better serve up the old man.' But the bear he woched off, sayin': 'I don't banker after a dinner which goes against my stumack like that.'"

Embarrasing Mistake.

The Raleigh, N. C., News is responsible for the following:

"Years ago there lived in Warren County a good and pious minister of the Methodist church, the Rev. Mr. Burge. His youngest, eight-year old hopeful, Watty, was mischievously addicted to the habit of purloining from his mother's closet, sugar from the dish. Remonstrance, both by the father and mother, proved of no avail, and though Watty protested his innocence, the old lady said she would watch for him and chastise him. The Rev. Dr. Close, then Presiding Elder of the conference district, in passing through the section, halted at Mr. Burge's to spend the night. He was assigned to a room adjoining the closet, the scene of young Watty's depredations. At the first dawn of day the following morning the reverend gentleman arose from his couch and repaired to the closet, a door of which opened into his room, to attend to his morning devotions, and unfortunately for him, knelt near the usual position of the sugar dish. At this moment Mrs. Burge had occasion to visit the closet, and quietly opening the door discovered Watty in the very act, as she thought. Highly incensed, she administered several severe raps upon the head of the Presiding Elder before she discovered her mistake, adding at the same time, 'I have caught you stealing the sugar at last, have I?' It is unnecessary to add that Watty was the only person on the premises who enjoyed the scene that ensued."

A Wonderful Clock.

A clock has been erected at Brussels, which is intended to run forever — or rather until the machinery wears out. No principle of self-creating power is involved in its construction. It is run by ordinary weights but one of nature's forces is kept at work winding them up. By means of a fan set in a chimney and operated by the draught of air the clock is wound, and when the weights are at their full height an automatic brake is put in operation which checks the action of the fan. The clock in Brussels has been running since September, 1881, and has kept good time.

Modesty and Presumption.

The modest deportment of those who are truly wise, when contrasted with the assuming air of the young and ignorant, may be compared to the different appearances of wheat, which, while its ear is empty, holds up its head proudly but soon as it is filled with grain, bends modestly down, and withdraws from observation.

SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1883.

Special Town Meeting.

There was a good attendance at the special town meeting held at the Town Hall on Tuesday evening last, and considerable interest was felt in the subject of supplying the town with water. The meeting was called to order at 7.35 by the Clerk, who read the warrant.

Mr. George Hobart then moved that a moderator be chosen at large, which was accepted; and then moved that W. G. A. Pattee, Esq., be moderator, which was voted down.

Mr. Herbert M. Federhen then made a motion that Edwin W. Marsh, Esq., be moderator of the meeting, which was carried.

Mr. Marsh on taking the chair read the second article of the warrant, which is as follows:—

ARTICLE 2.—To consider the proposition made by the Quincy Water Company, as follows:—The Quincy Water Company will construct a complete water works, and lay not less than 8 miles of pipe, and set thereon not less than eighty hydrants, and at all times maintain a full and sufficient supply of water, at a head of not less than 150 feet above tide, provided the town will contract for a term of twenty-five years to pay the sum of $3,000, annually, for the use of said hydrants for fire purposes, the company will, if desired by the town, extend said main pipes, provided the town will locate one hydrant for each 400 feet of pipe so extended, and pay the additional sum of $35 per annum for each additional hydrant. The Company will furnish water for the Town House, Public Schools, Engine Houses, Police Station and other public buildings of the town, for a sum each year equal to the amount of town tax on the real estate of said Company.

Dr. W. Lyman Faxon then addressed the meeting in behalf of the Quincy Water Company. He said the company intended to supply the town from a large well sunk at South Quincy, near the present ice house, where the purest of water could be had. It was the intention to pump the water into a large reservoir on Mount Pleasant. To complete the water-works and lay the eight miles of pipe, which are to be sixteen inches in diameter, together with eighty hydrants, would cost from $100,000 to $125,000. If the town would be a large consumer of water and would vote to pay a fair rate for hydrants, the same as corporations receive in other cities and towns in the state, the Quincy Company would go forward and complete their works before winter sets in. He then read several letters received from water companies in different parts of the state, showing the cost of construction, and the prices paid for hydrants in other towns.

[From Winslow Warren.]

"The Dedham water-works have been built one and one-half years and cost about $100,000. They have two large pumping-engines and house, and have laid ten miles of wrought-iron cement-lined pipe. The town has agreed to pay $50 per hydrant for one hundred hydrants and water for school-houses and public buildings."

[From E. H. Ripley.]

"The Hingham Water Company have laid thirteen miles of water-pipe, besides extensions they are making to Hull and Jerusalem Road. They furnish the town with water for hydrants and whatever public buildings they see fit to put service-pipe into for $1,500,—up to eighty hydrants. The town put in the hydrants at their own expense. They have no pumping-engine; their water flows by gravitation. I think $35 none too much to charge in Quincy."

[From John L. Dodge.]

"The Great Barrington water-works were built by a corporation at a cost of $20,000. They have extended their pipes considerably since they started, but have not increased their capital. The fire department paid for the hydrants, twenty-two in number, but pay nothing for water."

[From William Birnie.]

"The West Springfield aqueduct was built in 1876; the town having contracted to pay $1,000 per year for water for fire purposes. The town to furnish as many hydrants as they saw fit, and to keep them in order. There are thirteen hydrants now, and the town intends to erect ten or twelve more this season. The cost of the works to this time is about $60,000; and the income this year will amount to about $4,000. Have laid about two and one-half miles of pipe. Almost every house has come to use the water; although at first the inhabitants said they had good water. Now a house without water cannot get a tenant, and the income of the company is increasing."

[From S. L. Wiley.]

"The town of Athol agreed to pay our company for fifty hydrants $50 each, when the water-works were first built. The town of Gardner agreed for sixty hydrants at $60 each. We pump into a reservoir, and only pump once in ten days. At Athol we have gravitation."

[From C. W. Morse.]

"Our water-works at Haverhill have cost up to the present time about $400,000. We have twenty-five miles of pipe laid. Two Worthington pumps of 2,000 gallons each. The city pay nothing for water for fire purposes. There are about one hundred hydrants, which the city set and keep in repair."

Charles Endicott, Esq., Deputy Tax-Commissioner of the Commonwealth, furnished Mr. W. L. Faxon with the names of the following corporations that furnish towns with water, and the amount of taxes for 1882 set against their names:—

At the conclusion of Dr. Faxon's remarks Mr. George Hobart moved that the article be indefinitely postponed.

Henry H. Faxon, Esq., hoped the motion of Mr. Hobart would not prevail. Although he was not much in favor of water-works at the present time, he hoped the company would have a fair hearing. There was a large gathering of voters, and plenty of time, as there was no other important business before the meeting; therefore, he hoped all persons who had anything to offer for or against the proposition of the company would have an opportunity to speak.

William G. A. Pattee, Esq., said he would like to hear more upon the subject. He would be pleased to hear from any one who could tell what benefit the town would derive from the proposition. He did not see as the town needed the hydrants. It had an excellent fire department; purchased last year a new steamer, and has a powerful stationary engine at the brook; with iron pipe laid in the principal street. It does not appear, at the present time, to need this extra outlay.

Mr. Theophilus King, Jr., thought the town was not prepared to act on the question at the present time. It would not be a business-like way of doing anything. He moved that a committee of fifteen be appointed to look into all the details, and examine into all the ins and outs connected with the question.

Henry H. Faxon wanted more discussion upon the subject. He believed there were gentlemen present who could give them more facts that would be both useful and interesting. The time would come when the town must have water, but he had doubts whether that time had arrived.

Dr. Faxon said the company proposed to lay pipes from the reservoir to the junction of Hancock and Adams streets; through Washington street to the Point; and to the junction of Copeland and Willard streets, West Quincy.

Mr. George Cahill thought it was not business-like to take any action at the present time; but wait till the capital stock was raised and a company organized; then canvass the town and see what amount of water would be taken, before asking the town to pledge $3,000 a year for fire purposes.

Dr. Faxon said that they were a regular incorporated company, with full power to act, and were responsible for anything they should undertake.

Samuel A. Merrill, of Wollaston, said a few encouraging words in favor of a water company. He said he had lived in two towns north of Boston where water was introduced. That there was considerable opposition against introducing water into those places; but after great energy and perseverance those in favor were successful, and the towns would not now do without it at any price. He said at Danvers the company only charged $7.50 per year, and he did not believe a family could be found who would not rather give $50 a year than have it taken out of the house.

Henry H. Faxon said if we have water, we must have sewage. There was no use of thinking of having one without the other. He then read the following extract from an article which appeared in the QUINCY PATRIOT of December 25, 1880:—

"The late analysis of the wells in Quincy showed their water to be, on the whole, satisfactory—certainly much more so than that supplied to Boston or Cambridge by their aqueducts. Of ten samples of well-water subjected to analysis, nine were pronounced good—that is, safe for drinking. Considering the gross carelessness in matters of sanitary regulation which the researches of the committee revealed, it is somewhat surprising that this was the case."

Mr. Faxon said he had reason to believe that nine out of every ten wells in Quincy had purer water than the aqueduct water furnished to the citizens of Boston and Chelsea. He had a large number of tenants in both cities, and complaints about the water were numerous. Many of his tenants were obliged to buy their drinking water by the gallon.

Dr. Gordon, one of the committee appointed by the town in 1879 to examine into the sanitary condition of Quincy, said they found the water very bad. Of 798 houses examined, there were 1128 cess-pools and privies; and of these 4 were within 5 feet of the well.

67 " " 5 to 10 ft. "
113 " " 10 " 15 " "
177 " " 15 " 20 " "
270 " " 20 " 30 " "
185 " " 30 " 40 " "
117 " " 40 " 50 " "
115 were over 50 feet distant, and 371 discharged the water from the kitchen sink on the surface of the ground and in stable cellars, at distances varying from 5 to 100 feet away.

The doctor said that much of the water on Water street and vicinity, and in West Quincy was unfit to drink. The wells were only six or eight feet deep, and the water was mostly surface water, mixed with liquids from the privies, sinks and stables. The actual condition of the wells in Quincy is not a promising one. A large number in the oldest portion of the town contain water unfit for drinking purposes. The amount of filth found on a great number of premises — and these not belonging to the poorest of our citizens — passes belief. In 1872, small pox raged in Quincy; immediately following that was fevers, then measles, followed by diptheria and other epidemics He thought it was the duty of the town to look to some source for a supply of pure water.

John Q. A. Field, Esq., spoke in favor of a good supply of pure water. He said there were some excellent springs of nice water near where the company proposed locating their pumping-engine, that he thought would supply the town. He would willingly pay $50 a year to be supplied with water from them. Then he considered it would be a good thing for the town to have water-works put in. It would make life; it would make business; he always liked to see something going on. Mr. Field spoke of the excellent water furnished by the company at Dedham, which they pumped from a well under Charles river. He often tested it when he was at the Court House and the House of Correction (laughter), and he would not wish for any better. He did not see as it would affect our taxes if the company built its works. They would have to furnish the money, not the town.

Henry H. Faxon, in reply, said the town would finally have to shoulder the burden. Water would not be of any great benefit without good sewerage; and before we had an abundance of water and good sewerage in all parts of the town it would cost $200,000.

Mr. Herbert M. Federhen said the discussion had taken a wide range. The main question was whether the town needed the water for fire purposes. If so, was the price asked by the company per hydrant too high; and the term of years too long? He thought it was.

Mr. George Cahill said some thought it would induce manufacturers to come into town, if they could find a good supply of water; but he believed they were mistaken. If the town had anything to do with it, it would run in debt from $100,000 to $200,000; and men of capital would keep clear of Quincy, as taxes would be high. He wished Mr. J. Q. A. Field to understand that it would have a good deal to do with the rate of taxes in town. Agreeing to pay $3,000 per year for twenty-five years was no small account.

Mr. Charles A. Foster, alluding to taxes, said the state would tax the capital stock, whatever it might be, $100,000 or more, but if it was owned by citizens of Quincy, it would come back to the town. The town would simply agree to pay the company the amount of their taxes on land and building, for the Town House, schools, engine houses and other public buildings. The main question with him was whether the price asked the town for the hydrants was a fair one. He wanted more light upon the subject. He would favor the choosing of a committee to examine into the matter.

The motion was then put by the Moderator, and carried by a large majority,—to choose a committee of fifteen to examine into the proposition made to the town. The following gentlemen were appointed by the Moderator, and accepted and adopted by the meeting:

George H. Field, Elias A. Perkins, Christopher A. Spear, John W. Hall, Theophilus King, Jr., William G. A. Pattee, Jonas Shackley, George F. Pinkham, Herbert M. Federhen, Geo. Cahill, Joseph H. Vogel, John A. Duggan, Charles R. Sherman, John R. Graham, and William A. Hodges.

Mr. George Cahill moved that when the meeting adjourned, that it be for three weeks, and that the Committee be requested to report at that time.

Henry H. Faxon hoped that the Committee would be given six weeks to look into the whole details of this matter.

J. E. Tirrell, Esq. said that the question we are asked to consider must eventually involve the expenditure of a greater amount of money than this town has at any time heretofore been called upon to contribute to any public purpose. The company recently incorporated is but the figure head of the contractor and capitalist behind it, and before the work is begun the capitalist must have a mortgage or some other security upon this franchise, and also a power to control it. The question is, shall the town volunteer to pay three thousand dollars a year, nominally for water supply, but really for the interest on fifty thousand dollars which doubtless is what this company purpose to invest in this enterprise. Undoubtedly this question of water supply must soon be met, and it is proper for us to see what concessions the town can afford to make in furtherance of this project. The promoters of this scheme are doubtless sincere and if the town is not called upon, at some future time, to pay one hundred thousand dollars more or less to purchase this franchise, I fail to see how the incorporators can make anything by their zeal, but we can see that if the town should eventually vote to buy at an excess of fifty thousand dollars, the balance would enrich them to that extent. One thing is certain, which is that the town will be asked to pay the interest on all moneys expended, and as this is a question of great importance I think that any committee should have a few months to report upon the project under discussion.

W. G. A. Pattee said it was warm weather and probably some would be away on summer vacations. He hoped the meeting would adjourned to the first day of September.

Charles H. Edwards thought it did not require much time. The only duty this committee had under this warrant was to see if it was advisable for the town to pay $3000 a year for 25 years, for 80 hydrants, with a full supply of water.

The motion of Mr. Cahill was carried by the meeting.

The third article was then read by the Moderator and on motion Mr. John H. Dee, the town voted to authorize the Engineers to expend $200 in repairing the Steamer House, and the Treasurer was authorize to borrow the same.

Adjourned to Tuesday, July 10th.

Base Ball.

Last Saturday the Academy nine went to Southboro for their return match with St. Marks' school, and returned delighted with their trip, which, as usual, was satisfactory in every respect. The game proved the most interesting one of the season, both sides making few errors, and batting fairly, although directly against a strong wind. At the end of the seventh innings the score was but four to two, in Quincy's favor.

As before, the strength of Southboro was in their catcher, Young; though Wright at second-base and Perkins in the field left nothing to be desired.

For Quincy: Nicholson pitched effectively, striking out nine men. He was supported capitally by Robinson, who not only held the balls when he was behind the bat, but threw out three men trying to steal second. In the field Loud and Pocock deserved the most credit; also Westland's two fly catches, and a beautiful throw from right field to the home plate should not be forgotton.

The score was as follows:—

Brief Locals.

☞ Dog days have come early.

☞ Native strawberries are now plenty.

☞ Showers or sprinkles have been numerous of late.

☞ It has not been a very good week for haying.

☞ The farmers in this vicinity have commenced haying.

☞ It is said that every pound of ice contains a pint of water.

☞ There is a six-toed cat at the Wollaston farm which is highly prized.

☞ Mr. Jos. W. Lombard will sell on Wednesday next, a lot of English grass belonging to Henry H. Faxon, Esq.

☞ The floral festival of the Universalist Sunday-school will be celebrated to-morrow.

☞ The State tax this year has been fixed at $2,000,000. Quincy's proportion is $9,000.

☞ The Pickwick Club went on a very pleasant excursion to Cohasset on Monday last.

☞ Mr. J. Edward Spear was presented with a beautiful silver service this week, by some of his friends.

☞ Among the patents issued last week at Washington was one to George A. Badger of Quincy, for a cash carrier.

☞ Mr. Edward A. Greeley, a former principal of the Coddington school, visited that school this week.

☞ Officer Furnald and wife have been visiting in New York City this week.

☞ Mr. Max Reinhart is prepared to execute crayon portraits at his room on Granite street, near the post office.

☞ Poor tabbies. Several cats were found dead on Spear street on Sunday morning. Some evil hand had probably given them poison.

☞ Mrs. Edward Souther and daughter left Thursday for Brattleboro, Vt., where they contemplate spending the summer.

☞ Mr. J. Edward Spear has accepted a handsome offer to go to Cincinnati, Ohio, as a salesman in a large shoe store.

☞ We would call the attention of our readers to the sale of nice furniture next week, at the residence of Mr. J. Edward Spear, near the Quincy station.

☞ The exercises of the graduating class and the distribution of prizes at Adams Academy will take place on Tuesday next, at 10.45 A. M.

☞ Somebody has had the goodness to carry away from the Quincy Lockup the Public Statutes, which are much needed, and it is hoped they will soon be returned.

☞ To-morrow will be Children's day at the Congregational church. Sermon appropriate to the day in the morning; floral concert of the Sabbath-school in the evening.

☞ The widow of the late Thomas G. Price was paid the benefit due her from the Legion of Honor, on Friday last, forty-two days from the date of her husband's death.

☞ Miss Lizzie Flynn of Quincy, together with friends from Boston, sailed for Europe on Saturday last, on the steamer Cephalonia, where she intends spending a few months.

☞ The Assessors are busily engaged in making up their books, preparatory to the annual collector's raid on stuffed pocket-books. Empty ones, too, will be called upon to contribute.

☞ Contributions for the Boston Flower and Fruit Mission may be left on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday next, at the house of Mr. A. M. Swallow, on Hancock street.

☞ A number of young gentlemen and ladies had a very pleasant time on the water the 18th, and quite a number of sun-burnt faces were to be seen the next day.

☞ It was very quiet here the 18th; most of the stores closed at ten o'clock A. M.; and as there were a great many attractions offered in other places, many went out of town.

☞ Mr. Scammell, whose wheelwright shop was burned a few weeks since, has moved to the shop formerly occupied by Mr. William Giesler, on Quincy avenue.

☞ The store at the junction of School and Franklin streets, owned by Daniel Baxter, Esq., is being fitted up and will be opened next week by Messrs. Rogers Bros., of Boston, as a grocery.

☞ In the Superior Criminal Court, at Plymouth, on Wednesday, Samuel T. Allen and John Prior, of Quincy, plead guilty to seining smelts in Hingham, and were fined each $100 and costs.

☞ Thirteen persons from Quincy were arrested, the first three days this week, at Neponset, for being drunk. We learn that some of the young men felt ashamed of the affair, and hoped their names would not appear in the PATRIOT.

☞ The Universalists devote next Sunday to the children. Mr. Sawyer will administer baptism in the morning, and preach a sermon to the little folks; and at seven o'clock in the evening the Sunday-school will give a concert. All are invited.

☞ Workmen are engaged in concreting the sidewalk in front of the public library this week. It is a mistake if they do not pull out the granite steps near the sidewalk, and make the walks from the library on a slope, so that the water will not stand in large ponds in the paths, as it did last winter.

☞ A hearing will be had on Tuesday morning next, before the Superior Judicial Court, in relation to a preliminary injunction on the Dole's Fertilizing Company, whose works have been recently located at Atlantic, and is considered by the inhabitants of that village as a nuisance.

☞ There will be a centennial celebration at West Quincy on Tuesday afternoon next, in memory of the late Solomon Willard. A large procession, headed by the Union band, will march to the Hall cemetery, where appropriate exercises will be observed. James H, Elcock has been chosen marshal of the day.

☞ There has been numerous inquiries this week as to what was to be done with all the lumber recently carted into the rear of the Robertson House. Mr. Steward kindly informed many earnest inquirers, but they could not see how so much stock could be used in so small a building. The facts are Mr. William Parker is framing a large block for Mr. G. F. Wilson.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Sunday was Children's Day at the Washington Street Congregational Church. The morning service consisted of an excellent sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Harris, delivered to children and youth, but more especially to parents, urging upon them the importance of having their children attend church as well as the Sunday School, which far too often forms the entire religious instructions of the young.

The Sunday School was present, and assisted in the singing. A beautiful pyramid of flowers added much to the interest and enjoyment of the whole.

The Sunday School concert in the evening was largely attended, and was in every way a creditable affair to all who took part.

The floral display was beautiful, and thanks are due to our Superintendent, Mr. Clarence Sampson, for the exceeding good taste displayed. The platform was the centre of attraction. In the fore-ground was a gate, with the cross upon it, and over it the inscription: "strive to enter in," and from each side of this to the wall on the back, falling in a half circle, was a wall of flowers, the whole enclosing a scene of the Celestial City, brightly illuminated. A dialogue in connection with this brought out the 14th verse of the 7th chapter of Matthew: "Straight is the gate," etc.

The exercises were closed by some interesting remarks by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Harris. The day will long be remembered by the children, and eagerly looked forward to each year.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The ordinance of baptism will be administered by Rev. Geo. B. Lawton, next Sunday afternoon, at two o'clock, near the sail loft, in Thomas' ship yard.

A paper and strawberry festival was given in the Baptist vestry on Wednesday evening. About two months ago the Superintendent of the Sunday School gave notice that such a festival would be held, and prizes given to those scholars who should bring in at this date the largest number of pounds of folded newspapers and pamphlets. A large number of scholars competed for the prizes, which were awarded as follows: first prize, Master Melbourne Marks, 128 pounds; second prize, Master William F. Sidelinger, 119 pounds; third prize, Miss May Cole, 94 pounds; fourth prize, Miss Louise Thomas, 77 3-4 pounds; fifth prize, Miss Cora Newcomb, 77 pounds. All those scholars who carried in more than 10 lbs. of paper received tickets for strawberries and ice cream.

The paper collected will be sold and the money placed in the Sunday-school treasury.

Attention was then called to the strawberries, cake and ice cream for sale and the tables were soon filled and a thoroughly good time enjoyed.

Monday, the celebration of the 17th inst., passed off very quietly. In the afternoon a match game of base-ball was played at Point Holes, between two picked nines. At the end of seven innings the game was unceremoniously brought to a close by a shower, the score standing 18 to 2.

The Quincy Points, of the Quincy Point Base-Ball Association, will play a match game this afternoon at Point Holes, with Torrey's nine from North Weymouth.

Notice is hereby given that the above-named association has secured the sole right and control of Point Holes as a base-ball field; others wishing to use the grounds must apply to the association.

The large watering-cart has made its appearance on the street, and we shall now, probably, have all the water we desire.

It is rumored that the ladies connected with the Washington Street Congregational Church will give a lawn party the coming week.

SHIPPING.

Arrived, June 19th, schooner Emma C. Cotter, Capt. Ayres, from Philadelphia, with 560 tons of coal for J. F. Sheppard.

PERSONAL.

Deacon Jonathan Spear died on Monday, at noon. He had been sick and confined to the house with asthma and consumption for the past twelve years.

Walter Shaw returned home Wednesday, after an absence of six years; during which time he has resided in Springville, Wisconsin. He is being warmly welcomed by his many friends.

Mrs. James McLellen has returned home, having spent the past two weeks very pleasantly at Barnstable, Mass.

Mr. John Shaw has been quite sick for the past week. F.

District Court, Quincy.

The following criminal cases have been before the District this week:—

Theodore Olsen of Quincy, for an assault on Mrs. Jensen. Found guilty and fined $5 and costs.

Stephen Maloney of Quincy, for an assault on Alexander McPhee. Fined $5 and costs.

H. Herbert Burrell of Weymouth, for being drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

John McAuliff of Randolph, for an assault on Elbridge Jones, was fined $3 and costs. He appealed and was committed in default of bail.

Charles C. Smith of Cohasset, for an illegal sale of liquor. Discharged.

Daniel B. Frances of Cohasset, for keeping a liquor nuisance. Fine $50 and costs.

ST. NICHOLAS CLUB. The graduates of '82, Quincy High school, held their annual business meeting at the house of their class-mate, Miss Mabel E. Adams, Friday evening, June 15. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: James R. Lovett, president; William J. Dell, vice-president; Mabel E. Adams, secretary, and James S. Whiting, treasurer.

The subject of an excursion was discussed, and left to the decision of the executive committee.

For the Patriot.

"Centennial Celebration."

A meeting of the citizens of West Quincy was held in Music Hall Wednesday evening June 20th, to make arrangements for the proposed "Centennial Celebration" of the birthday of Solomon Willard which occurs on Tuesday next; and also to place a fitting inscription to his memory on the massive granite column erected by him in Hall Cemetery, near the tomb, where now rests the remains of all that was once mortal of a truly great man. The meeting was called to order by Mr. C. L. Badger, and by vote of meeting Mr. Badger was chosen President, Mr. C. T. Cole, Secretary, and Mr. John Nutting, Treasurer.

The following are those who have received invitations to join in the line of march. The Willard School; Board of Selectmen; Board of Engineers; Granite Engine Company; Catholic order of Foresters; St Mary C. T. A. Society; Bunker Hill Monument Association; relatives of Solomon Willard and all citizens present are cordially invited to form in line of march, which will be preceded by "Quincy Union Band" of 28 pieces, Mr. H. C. Brown, Director. The procession to be under the direction of the Marshal of the day, Mr. James H. Elcock, and a sufficient number of aids. The line of procession will be formed in front of the Willard School on Copeland street at 2 o'clock P. M., and will proceed as follows:—Copeland to Cross street, Cross to Williard, Willard to Furnace avenue, Furnace avenue to Copeland, Copeland to Belknap square and Willard street, Willard to Cemetery street, and from thence to the foot of the granite column in Hall Cemetery, where the orator of the day, and other speakers will be introduced, after which the procession will be dismissed at the starting point in front of Willard School. A.

☞ The Boston Herald says: "Samuel K. Elliott, agent for the Creedmoor Electric Belt and Cap Company, has filed a petition in insolvency at Dedham. His liabilities amount to $1,720. Assets nothing."

☞ On Saturday last Gov. Butler drew the warrants for all the money appropriated for the Tewksbury almshouse, and a special messenger carried $31,000 to the institution in the afternoon.

A FRIENDLY FEELING. The Unitarian society of Dedham, extended a general invitation to the Orthodox and Episcopal societies in that town to partake of a social supper on Wednesday evening last. About a year ago a similar invitation was given by the Orthodox society.

☞ Some of the apple trees in North Weymouth look as though a fire had passed through that place.

☞ Forty years ago, on the 17th of June, the capstone of the Bunker Hill monument was placed in position, with appropriate exercises.

☞ The canker-worms have badly injured many of the apple trees in Braintree this season.

JUNE BUTTER.
To Buyers and Users of Butter:

I AM now constantly receiving large quantities of the much desired JUNE BUTTER, direct from the best of Vermont Dairies.

This Butter is packed in new, clean tubs, from 20 to 40 pounds each, and shipped in refrigerator cars from week to week as it is made. Besides the tubs, I receive some in ten-pound boxes; and I have also contracted with one of the best of the daries to have all they make packed in neat, 5-pound boxes for my summer trade.

I am receiving very liberal amounts, and in order to keep my stock fresh, I will sell at very liberal prices. Also, by way of making a special inducement to secure new families for my butter trade, I will offer during the month of June these choice 5-pound boxes (which usually sell at 31 or 35 cents) at just 30 cents a pound; delivered free.

This Butter is being used by some of the best families in Quincy and Neponset; but as the "proof of the pudding is in the eating," I would invite all to give this a trial and see for themselves.

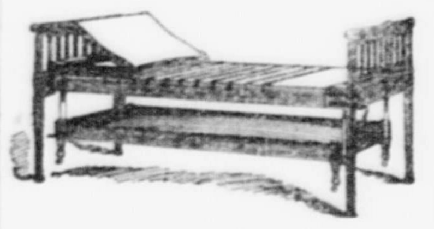
Crosby Invalid Bedstead.



FOR the comfort of patients, obliged by exhaustion, resulting from disease or broken limbs, to be lifted from one bed to another; also to prevent or cure bed-sores.

It affords easy access to the body, permitting the bed to be changed or made up without moving or annoying the patient. It is simple in construction and can be managed by a child. By its use one attendant can perform all the necessary duties to a sick person, however prostrated.

This bedstead was used by the late President Garfield, and it is adopted in the hospitals of the United States government. Call and see it in operation at Mails at Quincy Post Office.

Owing to the new summer arrangements on the Old Colony railroad, there are some changes in the time of opening and closing the mails at the Quincy post office. As no appropriation is made by Uncle Sam for advertising the hours the mails arrive and depart, Postmaster Bass would be obliged to pay $6 per year for the same out of his salary if it was done; therefore, we gratuitously publish it this week for the benefit of our readers. Those who have not good memories we would advise to preserve it for future reference, as probably there will be no other changes until next fall.

The County Tax.

The County Commissioners have forwarded their warrants to the several towns in the County, for their respective portions of the County tax, to be assessed and collected according to law, and paid into the County Treasury on or before the last day of November next. We subjoin the list for 1882, when the County tax was for $62,000, so that the reader may note the difference in the proportion to be paid this year, when the tax is $65,000. It will be noticed that Quincy, Milton, Cohasset and Wellesley paid considerably more than last year. Milton's increased tax is $2,500. While Brookline, Hyde Park, Dedham and some other towns are asked to pay much less. Hyde Park tax is over $1000 less than last year. Brookline nearly $900 less. It appears as though the assessment is not laid equally this year, or that it was not proportioned rightly last year. Here are the figures:—

HARPER'S MAGAZINE. The Frontispiece for the July Number of HARPER'S MAGAZINE is an exquisitely beautiful engraving from Mr. F. S. CHURCH's picture, "A Witch's Daughter." The Number is very rich in illustrations, and its table of contents presents very strong literary attractions.

The opening article of the Number is an interesting description of Hampstead Heath, the most picturesque of the suburbs of London, by WILLIAM H. RIDEING, with thirteen striking illustrations from drawings by ROBERT W. MACBETH and E. F. BREWTNALL.

For sale in Quincy at Souther's periodical store.

☞ A pleasure road over Kimball's Beach at Cohasset, it is estimated will cost $25,000. The matter is under consideration, and a favorable decision depends largely upon a single individual owning a bridge which will have to come into use. As he is absent in California the enterprise is awaiting his return.

LUCKY FAMILY. A recent cablegram announced that the great English estate of Gov. Bradford of Mayflower fame is finally to be divided. Parties have labored for many years to bring about this decision in the court of chancery in England, and have finally obtained the long desired result. The estate is said now to be valued at the enormous amount of $100,000,000 or more, and has been the subject of a legal quibble for more than 100 years in the court of chancery. The history of this estate is as follows, according to the records of that period: Bradford received his great fortune from his second wife, Alice Carpenter, who came into the possession of her fortune by the death of her first husband, an English nobleman. The courtship between Bradford and Miss Carpenter began in England when both were young. A short time before the nuptial day there was a separation. Bradford went to America with the Plymouth colony and Miss Carpenter married the English nobleman. Bradford married in America. After many years Miss Carpenter came to America a widow and found Gov. Bradford a widower and Governor. The old flame of love was rekindled, and they married. The wealth of the lady aggregated many millions. Bradford died without a will, and litigation commenced and has continued for a long time in chancery. Ex-Alderman R. B. Bradford of Boston is in correspondence with United States Consul-General Merritt in London, England, in order to get at the facts of this reported decision.

GUITEAU'S CURSE. The following is said to be the fulfilment of Guiteau's curse:

Michael Sheahan, one of the jurors on the Guiteau trial, was locked up at the Seventh Precinct station, Washington, June 11th, for insanity. Ever since the Guiteau trial his friends have noticed strangeness in his manner, and it seemed as if Guiteau's prophecy of evil to befall all those connected with his conviction had produced a deep effect upon his mind, and he would lie awake for hours after going to bed. Finally he became so nervous that he was unable to sleep at all. About 12 o'clock Sunday night he became a raving maniac.

The death of District-Attorney Corkhill's wife was the first event which could be called a fulfilment of Guiteau's prophecy.

Juror Hobbs's wife died.

Surgeon-General Barnes, an important witness, died.

Judge Porter's health is said to be wretched.

Marshal Henry, Bailiff Stahl, Detective McElfresh, Jail-wagon-Guard Perry Carson, and the driver, James Leonard, were dismissed from the service.

Dr. Noble Young, an important expert witness, died.

Rev. Dr. Hicks has been libelled.

Dr. Gray, another expert, was shot in Utica Asylum.

Dr. McDonald has been or is the subject of an investigation in connection with his administration of Ward's Island, N. Y.

Officer Pat Kearney's removal from the Baltimore & Potomac railroad depot was only a temporary misfortune, though at one time included among the fulfilments of Guiteau's curse.

THEY READ BUT DON'T PAY. It not infrequently occurs when persons are asked if they will subscribe for a local newspaper, or if they already take it, that they reply: 'No, but neighbor B takes it, and I have the reading of it every week.' They are benefitted every week by the toils, perplexities, and expenditures of those who receive nothing from them in return.'—Exchange.

☞ It is very noticeable that cattle are not being slaughtered on the plains now, except for beef. There is a great demand for cattle for stocking ranches, and New England is shipping cows and calves for breeding purposes.

Picnic at Wollaston.

WOLLASTON, June 19th, 1883.

The streets of our usually quiet village, wore an aspect of extreme vivacity on Monday morning, occasioned by the pilgrimage of Woodbine Lodge Knights and Ladies of Honor to the neighboring beach, to indulge in their annual picnic and clambake. Vehicles of every description were impressed into the service of transporting the company, (which included a number of invited guests and children, as well as the Lodge) to the scene of the prospective festivities. Those of our citizens who were not so fortunate as to be numbered in the party, lined the principal thoroughfare leading to the beach and gazed at the happy throng with that longing expression, so suggestive of a dying haddock. Conspicuous among them was our young and popular druggist, who, in the excitement of the occasion apparently forgot the dignified bearing he has assumed since the "Boys" began calling him "Doctor," and appeared in front of his store, with one hand grasping a bottle of water labelled "Lime Juice, price $1.25, and the other waving aloft a patent medicine almanac, he bade us "Godspeed."

Arrived at the beach, the party found ample arrangements had been made, by the efficient committee, for their comfort, and were not slow to avail themselves of the means of enjoyment at hand. At one o'clock the gong sounded for dinner, and for three-quarters of an hour an injudicious mixing of clams, lemon pie, chocolate cake, pickles, etc., took place. Speeches followed this pleasurable occupation, after which a duet was very melodiously rendered by Messrs. Geo. A. Lord, and W. C. Pierce.

The afternoon was devoted to athletic sports which consisted of a running race, which was won by Mr. C. T. Baker, with Mr. H. O. Fairbanks second. A race for boys not over fifteen years of age, resulted in a victory for Walter Blossom. An impromptu jumping match by the ladies, instituted by the introduction of an eel into their midst by Carl Whittemore, was as gracefully performed as it was natural. A game of base ball, in which Mr. C. R. Sherman's nine were victorious, concluded this portion of the exercises.

Shortly after four o'clock the shower which had been threatening all day, demanded, and obtained supremacy, and we were driven beneath the tent to await the arrival of carriages, which were to take us home. Although our enjoyment was cut short two hours, the general verdict was, that the affair was a decided success, no accident of any kind to mar the pleasure of the day, and each and all doing everything in their power to make everybody else happy, and they succeeded. Outward Bound.

Outward bound! the blue sea ripples
  In the summer sunshine bright;
All on board turn back to watch
  Their native shores recede from sight.

Good-byes, kisses, farewells given,
  Echo still upon the air
Like well-remembered music,
  Like the murmur of a prayer.

Then the ship in stately beauty,
  All her sails flung to the breeze,
Bears her freight, calmly, proudly,
  O'er the murmuring, whispering seas.

Outward bound, the blue sea ripples
  In the summer sunshine bright;
All on board turn back to watch
  Their native shores recede from sight.

Farm and Garden.

Mildew.

In wet seasons many kinds of vegetation suffer from mildew, which, while it is the destruction of the substance upon which it feeds, is of itself a low state of vegetable life, the living spores of which are believed to be always floating in the air; when the atmosphere is cold or dry these spores do not settle down and germinate so readily as in a warm, wet atmosphere.

During the warm season, if the sun does not shine for several days and the air is moist, there are many classes of vegetation that are injured by mildew; some seasons it will single out a particular class, which another season it will not touch.

Mildew is one of the difficulties which farmers encounter that seem to be beyond his control; it is so wide spread, and covers so many classes of trees and plants, that if any remedy is ever found it will be one which will mingle with the air and kill the spores of the fungus. Sulphur is by some believed to have the power to destroy not only minute insect life, but also the spores of fungus, and is used in graperies for this purpose.

Man has more power to protect vegetation from injury by dry weather than from wet. The moisture can be retained in the soil by mulching, or by pulverizing and keeping the surface very loose, and small gardens and choice plants can be kept vigorous by watering. In many localities large tracts of land can be prevented from being injured by the drouth by irrigation; but when the sun rufuses to shine, and the air is filled with moisture for weeks together, the farmer's only resource seems to be a rubber suit of clothing to keep himself dry while he watches the progress of the mildew in the fields and garden; for this protection he should be thankful; his ancestors were denied even this improvement.—Ploughman.

BEST RESULTS. The rapid, steady and gentle milker of the cow is sure to obtain the best results in the dairy. Where quickness of motion is accompanied by careless roughness and irregularity, the effect is exactly the opposite. Slow milkers always gradually dry up a cow, and for the reason that if the milk be not drawn about as fast as it is given down it will subsequently be withheld, and that witheld is, as a matter of course, what is known as the strippings.

HAY CAPS. During this season, caps for hay and grain have been extensively used at the Michigan Agricultural College. Dr. Miles says that they have much more than paid for themselves and all the trouble of putting on. They are made of heavy cotton cloth, with a string to each corner, to fasten to a stake or a small weight. On many farms they can be put on by girls and boys.

GILT-EDGED BUTTER. Some of the Greenfield, Mass., farmers are said to market their butter in Boston, put up in one pound tin boxes. These are packed in ice, and arrive at the Hub as fresh and nice as they leave the dairy. It is the gilt-edged butter that receives this treatment, and it brings seventy-five cents or more per pound.

☞ A merchant tells us that he set a hen on an old tomato can, recently, and she had hatched five bottles of catsup, with lithographed labels, and a dozen fine tomato plants. The gentleman is an alderman, and cannot tell a lie, and would not if he could.

Anecdotes.

At a fashionable wedding recently, quite a number of people congregated to view the bridal party on their exit from the church. A passer-by recognizing one of the hackmen, said:

"Waiting for a job?"

"No," was the laconic reply, "I'm waiting for the tied."

A lecturer, discoursing on the subject of "Health," inquired:

"What use can a man make of his time while waiting for a doctor?"

Before he could begin an answer to his own inquiry, some one in the audience cried out:

"He can make his will."

One day last week Judge Greer of Oglethorpe, Ga., heard a loud call from the street.

"What do you wish," asked the Judge of a young man who sat in a buggy, a pretty girl being by his side.

"Please marry us," said the youth.

"Shall I?" inquired the official, looking at the girl.

"Yes," she said, and the lovers were married as they sat in the buggy.

After the couple had ridden away the girl's father drove hurriedly up, to swear at empty air.

Mr. Hammond, the revivalist, spoke to a man standing in a crowd in Quincy, Ill., a short time ago, inquiring how he felt.

"Do you see anything green?" said the man, pointing to his eye, as much as to say he was not a fit subject for conversion.

"No, my friend," Mr. H. replied, "but I see something red—your nose—and it cost five hundred dollars to paint it, if you paid for all the drinks."

A visitor in the country seeing a very old peasant woman dozing at her cottage door, asks a little boy of six or seven, who happens to be playing near by, how old she is.

"I can't say sir," replies the child, politely, "but she must be very old. She has been here ever since I can remember.

Temperance.

[Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.]

Temperance in England.

CONTINUED.

The physiological argument in favor of total abstinence necessarily takes various shapes; for it is concerned with physiological questions which are yet, to a great extent, matter of opinion, of speculation and conjecture, not of science. (Let it be borne in mind that science now confirms the total abstinence theory, which, at the date of 1866, was to some minds not so clear as at the present time).

A question arises upon three distinct points: 1st, the effects of alcoholic liquors in quantities sufficient to produce intoxication; 2d, their effects, when habitually used in moderate quantities; 3d, the effect of abstaining from them altogether.

This and That.

☞ True men make more opportunities than they find.

☞ A life spent worthily should be measured by a nobler line—by deeds, not years.

☞ Printer's ink is an excellent moth preventive; so wrap up articles in newspapers when to be laid away.

☞ A Michigan census taker came across an intelligent man who had been married five years, but had never inquired his wife's Christian name.

☞ If we do not flatter ourselves the flattery of others will not hurt us.

☞ The brave man carves out his own fortune.

☞ Nothing can constitute good breeding that has not good nature for its foundation.

☞ He is most to blame who breaks the law—no matter under what provocation he act.

☞ There are words which are worth as much as the best action, for they contain the germ of all.

☞ In India the natives scour and cleanse their brass cooking utensils with earth. Thus also are Christian graces kept bright by the friction of earthly care and trial.

☞ "Love" in the Indian language is "Schimlendamowitchewagin." It must be quite an undertaking to tell a squaw you love her.

☞ Human nature is so constituted that all see and judge better in the affairs of others than in their own.

☞ Kisses are the right kind of smacks to sail down the stream of life with, although taking a 'bus is not bad.

Household Receipts.

CORN DODGERS. One quart of corn meal, a tablespoonful of lard, two eggs, a tablespoonful of salt; scald the meal, with the lard in it, with boiling water, cool with a little milk, add the eggs, beaten light, beat very hard for ten minutes, make them thin enough with cold milk to drop off the spoon and retain their shape in boiling lard; serve hot. Have the lard boiling hot when you drop them in.

ICED CHOCOLATE. Set four ounces of grated chocolate over a slow fire with two tablespoonfuls of water. When dissolved remove from the fire, add cupful of warm water; mix with cold syrup, freeze and serve.

GRAHAM BREAD. One pint milk, one cup sugar, one teaspoonful soda; two teaspoonfuls cream tartar, enough flour to make it as stiff as cake. Have the tin hot and bake immediately.

Perspiration of the feet may generally be relieved by washing the feet night and morning in salt and water, and afterward applying a little olive oil.

Chalk or magnesia, rubbed on silk or ribbon that has been greased, and held near the fire, will absorb the grease so that it may be brushed off.

The tomato is a powerful aperient, and is a wonderfully effective curative agent for liver and kidney affections. It is also a thorough remedy for dyspepsia.

Camping and fishing parties can obtain a good light by soaking a common brick in kerosene oil for ten minutes. The brick absorbs the oil, and on being suspended with wire and ignited, a brilliant light, lasting for half an hour, is obtained. This is said by those who have experimented with it, to be greatly superior to the torch in general use.

Fashion Notes.

Pleated blouse waists and long apron overskirts bid fair to remain in high favor.

The newest Spanish lace is the Escurial, with its figures outlined with heavy cord or braid.

The stalks of flowers must be as visible in all flower garnitures as the flowers and leaves.

Light-mourning muslins have dots of white on black grounds or black dots on white grounds.

Bows and bouquets are more frequently worn on one side of the throat than directly in front.

The Mother Hubbard slip, without sleeves, and low in the neck, worn over an under waist, or guimpe, remains the popular dress for little girls.

Some of the collars with piastron waistcoat attachments are made of lace and velvet ribbon, the ribbon outlining the Moliere front of lace.

High linen collars are made with a very narrow rolled over piece at the top, on which is a fine vine of embroidery, and the plain space below this is covered by a neck ribbon of becoming color. This is either ottoman or satin ribbon an inch wide, and is passed around the neck and tied in a long bow in front. A yard of ribbon is sufficient.

The sheer mull squares that are so pleasant to wear in summer as neckerchiefs, now have a printed vine of natural colors just above the hem, or large flowers strewn all over the square. Morning-glory vines are very prettily represented, and there are roses and pansies of large size printed at intervals on others.

If you feel "all run down" and over come with the heat, try a bottle of Morse's Yellow Dock. It is the best summer tonic and blood purifier ever offered to the public. June 9 1m VEGETINE is acknowledged by all classes of people to be the best and most reliable blood purifier in the world.

Miscellany.

"Work at Home."

The American Agriculturist cautions its readers against persons who are advertising great inducements to young ladies and men to work. Read what it says:—

"Numerous inquiries come to us concerning parties in New England cities, who offer to ladies and young men desirable 'work at home,' in coloring photographs. The pictures are called by some high-sounding name, such as 'Pearlographs,' 'Artographs,' 'Electrographs,' etc. The work is 'so simple that a child (age not stated) can do it after a week's trial.' Two sample pictures for trial are sent by one concern for $1.00 and two stamps (size not stated); another offers a 'Pamphlet of Directions,' with two 'nice pictures,' for trial, for $1.00 and no stamps.

"The circulars offer work which, according to description, is easily learned. We are told that 'Any lady, when she has learned to make these beautiful pictures, would have no difficulty in earning from $10.00 to $20.00 a week. There is much more in these articles that is very tempting—so tempting that we do not wonder that cautious ladies inquire about the matter. That the interest is wide-spread is shown by the last two letters concerning the scheme, which are from Iowa and Dakota. In such cases we can only judge by what appears on the surface, and by taking a common-sense view.

"We find that each of the two concerns warns the public against the other. No names are called, but the red circular designates the concern which sends out the white document in a most unmistakable manner, and the same is done in the other direction. 'Red' cautions against 'white;' 'white' cautions against 'red.' It is not for us to say that both are not right. We are always suspicious when persons go a roundabout way to accomplish a very simple object. Why send photographs from New England to Idaho, Dakota, or even to New Jersey to be colored? If the mere object is to get pictures colored, an advertisement in a Boston, Fall River, Lowell or Providence paper, making similar offers to those in these circulars, would bring applicants by the thousands. The work could be done as well near home, without the risk and expense of sending the pictures to and from a far distant point.

"There must be something unexplained. There are photographs and photographs. What kind of photographs are those that must be sent away to be colored? 'Distance is no objection,' we are told. It is also said that the work can be done 'in the privacy of your own room." We shall be glad to hear from any lady who is making $20.00, or even a less sum, a week, as to what is the 'true inwardness' of all this fuss about coloring photographs. Does it all mean 'send us a dollar?'"

Bad for Country Trade.

For the last few weeks the leading Boston dailies have contained in every issue, but more particularly on Sundays, mammoth advertisements of two of the leading dry goods houses in that city, and of others in the same and different lines of trade nearly as huge in dimensions. Every day in the week these great houses pay out thousands of dollars for newspaper space in which to enumerate their goods and display the prices of them, and the papers are reaping a rich harvest therefrom. And so are the advertisers.

But while all this is fun for the great Boston dealers it is death to country trade. Just now and for sometime past all business thoroughfares lead to Boston. The great city is growing, thriving, getting rich at the expense of all the rest of New England. The system of selling goods by sample which Boston merchants have reduced to the finest kind of a point, and from which they reap rich rewards, was hard enough on country traders, but this has been supplemented by chartering railroad lines, or arranging with them for fares, which lands almost the whole trade of the country into the lap of the metropolis. Boston is gobbling up everything valuable in the retail trade of New England, but she is paying for it in some measure, and will hereafter still more dearly, in the loss of her wholesale business.

Country buyers do not look at this business quite in its true light even for their own individual interests. They are toled from their homes to the city by the great, flaming advertisements, the offers of half-fare on the railroads, steamboats, etc., and other flattering promises, spend their money freely in the great dry goods palaces, at how much net gain? Quite as often at a loss as gain. They will buy some things cheaper in the city than at home, but when the balance is struck it will be found in most cases that they would have been just as well off to have bought of their village traders, and perhaps considerably better off. Leaving out of sight the duty which every one owes his own home in building it up, contributing to its prosperity by patronizing its trades and industries, it is a mistaken idea that money can be saved in the long run by going to the great city for your goods, wares and merchandise. Boston merchants are not giving their goods away; they are selling at profit; and while the country merchant is growing poor every day they are getting rich.—Woburn Journal.

Too Little Sleep.

Women sleep by far too little. Sleeplessness is one of the most fruitful causes of the paleness and nervousness so characteristic of American mothers. You will excuse us, sir, but permit us to ask whether your wife is not still busy with the care of your family six hours after your day's work is done? And then, when your children cry at night, don't you turn your lazy two hundred pounds for another good sleep, and let that little, thin, pale wife get up and worry by the hour with the little ones? And now, forsooth, you wish to know whether it is not bad for her to lie till eight o'clock in the morning.—Christian Register.

Furnished His Breakfast.

The Editor of a journal published in Antwerp sent a reporter to Brussels for the King's speech, and with him a couple of carrier pigeons to take back the document speedily. At Brussels he gave the pigeons in charge to a waiter, and called for breakfast. He was kept waiting some time, but a very delicate fricassee atoned for the delay. After breakfast he paid his bill, and called for his carrier pigeons. "Pigeons!" exclaimed the waiter; why you have eaten them."

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the Next-of-Kin, and all persons interested in the estate of

ROBERT NIGHTINGALE,

of Quincy, in said County,

GREETING:

Whereas, Jeremiah Nightingale, the guardian of said ward, has presented for allowance the final account of his guardianship and has also resigned his said trust of guardian.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, on the second Wednesday of July next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed, and said guardian discharged.

And said accountant is ordered to serve this Citation by publishing the same once a week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy PATRIOT, a newspaper printed at Quincy, the last publication to be two days at least before said Court.

Scarlet Fever, Small Pox, Diphtheria, Measles, &c.

Office of the Board of Health.

QUINCY, JULY 29, 1882.

THE Board of Health issues the following notice:—That on and after MONDAY, July 31st, 1882, the following provisions of Chapter 80 of the Public Statutes will be strictly enforced:—

SEC. 78. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Selectmen or board of health of the town in which he dwells. Vegetine.

SUPERIOR TO ANY FAMILY MEDICINE.

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System.

ITS MEDICINAL PROPERTIES ARE

Alterative, Tonic, Solvent and Diuretic.

VEGETINE is made exclusively from the juices of carefully-selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal Complaints, can only be effectually cured through the blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Scaldhead and Ringworm, VEGETINE has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine diseases and General Debility, VEGETINE acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammations, cures ulcerations and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles, Nervousness, and General Prostration of the Nervous System, no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the VEGETINE. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact, VEGETINE is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases, and is the only reliable BLOOD PURIFIER yet placed before the public.

Poetry.

Ode for Independence, July 4, 1883.

Lift up the bright banner of freedom again!
The day of rejoicing has come,
And over America's noble domain
Re-echoes the heart-stirring drum.

A nation of freemen, united and strong,
Are keeping their great jubilee;
Defenders of right and defeaters of wrong,
Wherever their children may be.

Abroad on the ocean, the rivers and lakes,
A welcome we every where find;
Tho' none the loved flag of our country forsakes,
Our brethren are all human kind.

The voice of our cannon is heard from afar,
And tells what our fathers have done;
Their names, like a halo, encircle each star,
Reminders of battles they won.

The sons of the heroes, whose motto was fight
Whoever would freedom oppose,
Have like their brave sires, contending for right,
Combatted and crippled their foes.

Then lift up the banner of freedom again,
Wherever it floats on the gale,
The symbol of honor, it bears not a stain,
All hail to our banner, all hail!

Weymouth, Mass. F. M. ADLINGTON.

Miscellany.

A Friend in Need.

Three gilded balls outside told of a pawnbroker's shop. Within, a young girl stood by the counter, holding a large bundle for the dealer's inspection. Her eyes followed his motions wistfully as he took it and removed the paper wrappings, displaying the lustrous folds of a silk dress, made in a quaint, old-fashioned style.

"How much do you vant?" he questioned at last.

"My mother thought five dollars would be little enough for it. The silk is very good. It was her wedding dress."

The man raised his hands in astonishment. "Five dollars! The leetle miss is not in earnest. I'll geef but two."

The child's lips quivered, but she did not speak.

"Vell, I vill say three, but it is too much. The—vat you say? The shtyle is old—too old." And with a depreciating shrug of his shoulders he placed the money in little Adelaide's outstretched palm. As she received the dingy-looking bills and the accompanying as dingy looking pawn ticket, she turned with a disappointed sigh toward the door. What followed was the work of a moment. A rough looking hanger-on about the place saw the bills in her hand as she came out in the street, caught them from her with a jeering laugh, and then ran swiftly away with his booty.

For a moment she stood bewildered, hardly realizing what had happened. Then with a cry of "Oh, my poor mother!" she sank down upon the steps and began to sob bitterly.

But help was near. A passing stranger had witnessed the theft, and had given indignant pursuit and forced the young miscreant to disgorge his plunder. Then hastening back to the side of the sobbing girl, he said: "Here's your money, little one. Don't ever be careless again, especially in a neighborhood like this."

By this time a group had gathered around the two, and watched them with sinister looks, evidently in full sympathy with the young ruffian who had been so summarily disposed of by Gerald Carman's strong arm.

He took in the surroundings with one swift glance, and determined not to leave the helpless girl until she was in a safe place.

"If you are willing I will walk a little way with you," he said in an undertone. "I like not the company hereabouts. They look as though they might work you more trouble."

"Thank you," said the girl gratefully. "I was never here before, but mother was so sick she had to send me."

She was a wee bit of a thing, and looked even smaller walking beside her protector. Her face was an interesting one, though wan and pale; and her eyes were that deep gray color, which, in the shadow of the long, dark lashes, looked like black. They shone out from beneath a tangle of curly hair, which glistened in the sun like molten gold.

Her father, she said, had been a sea captain. He had sailed away on a three years' voyage, hoping to come home rich enough to stay for the rest of his life with his family. But the news of his death had reached them and they had heard nothing since.

"Mamma had lived in the country, and when our money was nearly gone she thought it would be easier to find work here, so we moved. She has not felt able to sew lately, and has had to pawn one thing after another until all was gone but her wedding dress. She was too sick to take it this morning, so she had to trust me. She was afraid I would get lost in the big, wicked city, but I told her that God watched over the little birds and he would surely do the same for me. And so He did. It was God who sent you." And she turned and looked up into his face with admiring, reverential eyes.

Gerald flushed a little, but her simple child-faith was too refreshing to disturb by any common-place disclaimer, so he said, to turn the subject from himself, "Was your mamma not very sorry to part with the dress?"

"Indeed, she was. I never saw her cry so but once before, and that was when we heard that papa was dead."

It was easy for the sympathetic listener to form an idea of the destitution which threatened the little family. A paltry three dollars between them and want.

They had by this time reached the dwelling-house which sheltered the widow and her child.

"May I come in?" he asked. "I would like to speak to your mother of a friend of mine—a young doctor. He is very skilful, and might help her."

"Oh, sir," said Adelaide, brightly; then her face clouded; "but we have no money to pay him."

"That will be all right," said Gerald.

The girl bounded up stairs with a light heart at these words, and disappeared for a moment. Then she came out and beckoned to him.

"Please come in, mamma will see you."

Lifting his hat, he entered the room softly. All within was cheerful and pleasant. A few flowers, brought from the country home, were blossoming on the windowsill, and a sweet-voiced canary trilled its tiny-throated music above them. But his attention was at once concentrated upon the hectic-painted face resting upon the snowy pillow.

She smiled faintly as she met his eyes, with their expression of kindly interest.

"You are very good," she said. "My little girl has told me of your offer, I shall be glad to accept it for her sake; but I fear I am past help."

"While there is life there is hope," said Gerald, cherrily, "and my friend, Dr. Gilbert, though young, is very skilful. I will see him to-day and interest him in your case."

Then he wrote down her name in his note-book—"Mrs. Adelaide Harney, wife of Captain Harney, of the ship Adelaide, No. 3 ——— street."

"May I come in and see how you get along under his treatment?" he asked, as he rose to go.

Mrs. Harney looked at him for a moment with eyes rendered almost preternaturally bright by her illness. Gerald felt as though his very soul was laid bare under that searching gaze, but he did not blanch. He had been reared by a tender, Christian mother, and though one of the gay world in position, he had reached manhood singularly unspotted by its vices. So he could bear the scrutiny of those clear eyes without uneasiness, for there was no leprous spot in his life to be brought to light.

"Come when you like," she said at last. "And if my days are numbered, oh, kind sir, watch over my child, my poor little Adelaide! She must earn an honest living. Will you see that she is put in the way of it? You have a good face, and I feel that I can trust you. If you never have an earthly reward the God of the widow and the fatherless will bless you."

She closed her eyes wearily, exhausted by her emotions, and Gerald, deeply moved, went in quest of Dr. Gilbert.

Gerald Carman was junior partner in a large shipping house. One of their finest ships had arrived in port but a few days since, and its captain—a bluff hearty sailor—had a peculiar charm to the young man. He spent several evenings with him, and had an engagement to join him at lunch. While eating their oysters together a matter of business was mentioned, and a slight difference in date coming up, Gerald drew out his note-book.

"That will tell the story," he said, quietly.

A humorous twinkle came into the sun-browned sailor's eyes as he read aloud—"Mrs. Adelaide Harney, wife of George Harney—"

"I've given you the wrong page, I see," said Gerald, smiling at Captain Breese's quizzical expression. "That is a person whom I met to-day for the first time. The poor lady is in destitute circumstances. By the by, her husband was a seafaring man like yourself."

The captain suddenly caught him by the shoulder.

"Harney—what was that name? By my good ship, man, the hand of Providence is in it! I've been in the country this very day to find out the wife and child of poor George Harney. Destitute, did you say? Why, I've a pile of gold sovereigns for them—all honest money, fairly earned. Take me to them at once; I am burning to discharge my mission."

At the end of an hour they reached their destination. They met Dr. Gilbert at the door. He gave them a cheering account of Mrs. Harney, saying the most she needed was nourishing food and plenty of fresh air.

"Send your coachman around with the carriage every fine morning, Gerald," he said, in conclusion. "It will kill two birds with one stone—maybe save a life and give that idle fellow something to do."

"We'll see to that, young sir," chimed in Capt. Breese's hearty voice. Then Gerald introduced the two, and they shook hands cordially.

It transpired that Mrs. Harney had never received the letter sent by Captain Breese. It had undoubtedly gone to the dead-letter office. She had all the particulars of her husband's illness and death to hear. She shed bitter tears as she listened to the loving messages to his absent wife; but it was a relief to learn that one of his countrymen had ministered to his wants and closed his eyes, at the last, with a tender, sympathetic touch.

Her heart turned to the home where she received her husband's parting embrace. So Capt. Breese took a day from his sailing preparations, and saw that all was made comfortable to receive them; and one bright summer morning, Gerald bade Adelaide and her mother good-by. In parting, he said to her: "Write me how you like your new home, little girl; I shall be interested to hear." And thus they dropped, after a fashion, out of his world.

From time to time the letters came as he had requested. At first in a round, school-girl's hand; then the more elegant chirography told of culture and aptness for improvement.

Years have passed. One of the dainty missives came one morning, just as he had received orders from his physician to stop mental exertion and go to some quiet place in the country where he could have complete rest.

Adelaide's letter decided him. He would write and engage board near them, and renew the acquaintance with his little friend and her mother.

Would they know him? Time had worked changes upon his face, deepening the thoughtful lines between his brows, and clothing lips and cheek with a luxuriant growth of hair. He was no longer a smooth-faced, happy-hearted boy.

Once in the village, it was easy to find the cottage, and he was soon sauntering leisurely up the neat walks. Evidences of refined taste were visible on every hand. As he was ascending the steps, he found himself face to face with a young girl, who had opened the door and come out upon the veranda, humming a glad little song.

Thoughts of a pale, earnest face, looking with its deep, gray eyes, out from a tangle of golden curls, had been haunting him all through his journey. It had not occurred to him that the child had grown into womanhood. So it almost startled him from his self-possession, when after a surprised, lingering glance into his face, this beautiful, stately maiden held out her hand, and, with a glad thrill in her musical young voice said:—

"This is, indeed, a pleasure! Come in, Mr. Gerald; mamma will be so glad to see you once more."

He followed the graceful figure like one in a dream; and when a fair, matronly lady, with a widow's cap resting upon her glossy hair, came forward to meet him, at Adelaide's impulsive—"Oh, mamma! It is our friend, Mr. Gerald!" he still seemed in wonderland. Could that be the emaciated hectic-painted face he remembered so vividly?

The evening passed on flying wings. Adelaide said but little. It filled her with a strange content to listen to the deep, musical voice of this friend, whose kindness dated so far back in the past, and yet whose acquaintance could be numbered almost by hours. Now and then she would glance up into his handsome face, to assure herself that Mr. Gerald, as she still called him, after the old, childish fashion, was a real person, and not a dream-myth.

His stay in the quiet village was prolonged much beyond his original intentions. He was once more a well man, physically, but mentally he was troubled with a strange unrest. He had grown to love Adelaide with the whole force of his ardent nature, and like all noble-minded men, he was free from conceit about his own powers of pleasing. He hesitated to break the spell of silence, lest in asking her to become more than a friend, he might lose all.

One morning he called to leave a book she had expressed a wish to read. He found her in the garden, tying up a vine whose heavy clusters of opening rosebuds had weighted it almost too heavily. For a moment he stood watching her, then she turned and saw him. The light of sudden joy that irradiated her face, carried an intuition of the truth to his previously doubting heart, and he said, softly, hesitating no longer:—

"Has my little friend a rose for me?"

With a bright face, Adelaide plucked one of the most perfect of the creamy, half-opened buds and held it towards him. As he took it he said:

"I only want it with its full meaning; without that it is valueless as a gift from you. Do you know why?"

One swift, upturned glance into his eager face, then Adelaide's head drooped low, and the hue of her cheek grew like the "red, red rose;" but she did not recover her flower.

He gathered her in his arms.

"Oh, my darling, my darling," he whispered passionately; "I will try to prove worthy of such a precious gift!"

The Boy Fiend.

Jesse Pomeroy has reached man's stature now. Under the conditions of his sentence he is kept in solitary confinement. He has no intercourse whatever with the other prisoners, and the visitor is not permitted to speak to him. Solitary confinement in his case does not mean the utterly cheerless existence that one would imagine. Pomeroy, it is said, has developed into a young man of more than ordinary intellect, thoughtfulness and reasoning powers. He is allowed to have all the books he wants, and with these companions his mental life is not wholly devoid of comfort. Since he has been in prison he has acquired enough knowledge of several languages to read them well. His cell is spacious and well lighted and ventilated. Young Pomeroy remains to-day what his crimes showed him to be in his boyhood—an abnormal character. While more intelligent and intellectual than the average, he is destitute of a moral nature, and hasn't the slightest conception of the enormity of the acts by which he took the lives of several little children.

Kerosene for Ivy Poisoning.

A writer in the Florida Agriculturist says that kerosene will relieve the irritation occasioned by poison from ivy in forty minutes, and eradicate the poison entirely in as many hours. With the point of the finger, or a soft brush, rub a small portion of the oil over the places where the eruption appears, repeating the application three or four times a day. Relief from the itching will be almost immediate, and the cure certain and speedy. Other cutaneous diseases, he adds, such as ring-worm, itch and the lighter type of tetter, can be cured by the same treatment, and the minutest drop of kerosene will kill bedbugs quicker than lightning.

Letter from Barre, Vt.

June 6, 1883.

To the Publishers of the Patriot:

Knowing the interest felt by your townspeople in the granite business I think it might be interesting to your many readers to know how the business is progressing in a little country town, like Barre, Vermont, with about 2,000 inhabitants. Among this number there are some twenty trades, including produce buyers, who carry stock aggregating $125,000, and the annual trade reaches $450,000. The largest month's freight business ever done at this station, was in May, last. The receipts were over 831 tons, and included 13,392 bushels of grain and 651 barrels of flour. The shipment reached 1,050 tons, including 963 tons of granite.

At the present time there are sixteen quarries opened in town, four of which supply the larger part of granite sent to market. Twenty-five different dealers are engaged in the granite business. The largest establishment employs eighty men constantly; another forty-five, and others from twenty-five down. Total number employed in the town, 335, exclusive of teamsters. The annual sales of granite are a little more than $200,000.

The farmers here having become convinced that the creamery system in dairying is correct, have organized the Eastern Star Creamery Association, with W. C. Nye as president; Leonard F. Aldrich, treasurer; C. Wallace, secretary.

I must remember the schools of this place, for they rank among the first in the state. There is one academy and one Universalist seminary. At the close of the school year, 1882, there were two graduates in the Ladies' Collegiate course, and seven graduates in the College course. Whole number of students for the year, 225; they come from nearly all the states of the Union.

Perhaps you may be a little surprised if I tell you that many fine residences are here; costing as high as $18,000 down to $2,500; and even many of the farmers have buildings costing $4,000 and more.

Showers have been plentiful for the past week, coming very suddenly. An embargo was laid on those who wished to return home from service Sunday morning, by a powerful rain. The heaviest, however, came Tuesday evening, the rain falling in torrents for half an hour. A cool night followed some oppressively hot weather on Monday and Tuesday. The streams were swollen and muddy Wednesday morning, and meadow-lands were covered with water in many places. I have seen herdsgrass and clover fit to mow; yet a few are not through seeding yet.

I have been delighted with my trip coming, as I did, in my own carriage from Massachusetts. Some of the scenery through which we passed in New Hampshire and Vermont will rival, I believe, the finest views of the old world. Mr. Cogswell arrived last Saturday evening. He will remain until the 23d, when we return to our home in the beautiful town of Hyde Park.

Respectfully, LUELLA COGSWELL.

Starting a Young Man.

It is related of a wealthy Philadelphian, who has been dead these many years, that a young man came to him one day, and asked for help to start in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Occasionally."

"Stop it! Stop it for one year, and then come and see me."

The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year he again presented himself.

"Do you smoke?" asked the great man.

"Yes, now and then."

"Stop it! Stop it for one year, and then come and see me."

The young man went away, and cut loose from the habit, and after worrying through another twelve months once more faced the great philanthropist.

"Do you chew?"

"Yes."

"Stop it! Stop it for a year and then come and see me."

But the young man never called again. When some one asked why he didn't make one more effort, he replied:

"Didn't I know what he was driving at? He would have told me that as I had stopped chewing, drinking and smoking, I must have saved money enough to start myself, and he'd been about right."

The Isles of Shoals.

Inside the long, low Isle of Shoals a British frigate lay, and guarded with a zealous care the coast which fringed the bay. The men who lived in Hampton then took up their firelocks rusty, and formed a band to guard the coast, composed of yoemen lusty. The leader's name was Andrew Brown, at his house they quartered, there they drank New England rum and British seamen slaughtered. One night they'd taken just enough to get them into trouble, their eyes revealed a host of things—in fact they all saw double. The captain led his valiant band down to the dark-blue ocean, when suddenly they all could see a barge with oars in motion. Behind a rock they quickly hide. "Now, when the barge comes nigher," the captain said, with husky tone, "I'll give word to fire." And when the boat came near the shore the captain, like a lion, cried: "Fire!" the balls all bounded off like hail on striking iron. They had been firing at a rock, 'round which the waters dashing had seemed to them to be the sound of many boat-oars splashing. Then quickly to the house they went, to pay the rum attention, and when fair peace came back once more, each got a soldier's pension.

Forms of Lightning.

A flash of lightning is a very large spark of electricity, just the same thing that one sees given by an electric machine in a lecture on natural philosophy, the only difference being that the best machine will not give a spark more than a yard long, while some flashes of lightning have been estimated to be several miles in length. According to their appearance various names have been given these sparks in the sky, though in reality all the several kinds are one and the same thing. On a warm summer evening one often sees the clouds on the horizon lit up with brilliant glows of lightning, unaccompanied by any sound of thunder. To this appearance the name of "heat lightning" has been given, and the warm weather is often assigned as its cause. In point of fact, the heat lightning is only that of a thunder shower so far off that, while the observer can see the flash, no sound of thunder reaches him, and the intervening clouds veil and reflect the flash until it becomes a glow, instead of the sharp streak usually seen. Where the flash, starting from one point, branches out and divides into several parts it has received the name of "forked lightning." This is usually seen when the discharge is seen near the observer. Single flashes bearing a zigzag or crinkled aspect are denominated "chain lightning," probably from their resemblance to a chain thrown loosely on the ground. Again, when several discharges occur from about the same place at the same time, and are screened by rain or clouds so as to light up the heavens with a broad, bright glow, the title of "sheet lightning" is applied. These four comprise all the common forms. There is, however, one manifestation called "ball lightning." In this phenomenon a small globe or ball of apparent fire rolls slowly along the ground, and after a time suddenly explodes, scattering destruction around. There are few instances of this on record, and no very satisfactory explanation has ever accounted for the curious appearance.

A True Sentiment.

Dr. Holmes says: "I never saw a garment too fine for a man or a maid; there never was a chair too good for a cobbler or a cooper or a king to sit in; never a house too fine to shelter the human head. These elements about us—the glorious sun, the imperial sun—are not too good for the human race. Elegance fits man. But do we not value these tools a little more than they are worth, and sometimes mortgage a house for the mahogany we bring into it? I had rather eat my dinner off the head of a barrel, or dress after the fashion of John the Baptist in the wilderness, or sit on a block all my life, than consume all on myself before I got a home, and take so much pains with the outside when the inside was as hollow as an empty nut. Beauty is a great thing, but beauty of garment, house and furniture are tawdry ornaments compared with domestic love. All the elegance in the world will not make a home, and I would give more for a spoonful of real heart-love than for whole ship-loads of furniture, and all the gorgeousness all the upholsterers in the world can gather."

The Evils of Celibacy.

It is as sad as it is natural that in the cities there is less and less inclination on the part of men to marry. At New York fifteen years ago there was not an apartment house; now they are numerous, many of them being devoted solely to bachelors. The same main fact is true of New England. Families are smaller than of yore. Farms upon which four or eight children were brought up in comfort are now deserted; not altogether because the soil is "run down," but because the children aforesaid are in the cities or villages, firmly determined not to have a numerous progeny. If it be said it is of no use to preach against the logic of events, the answer is that by preaching the rapidity of the march of events may possibly be somewhat lessened. To-day the whole drift of public education, of example in the worship of wealth, of making haste to be rich, runs in the direction of the aggregation of the people in the cities, of celibacy and of small families. The results are equally distant and certain; they claim attention only when it is too late to remedy the evil, yet it is worth one's while to ask whether, in his own way and sphere, he is or is not encouraging the tendency which in its final issue every Christian and patriot must deplore.—Providence Journal.

Closed his Mouth.

On a Lake Shore train coming into Detroit the other day, was a newly married couple, the bride appearing to be about twenty-five years old, and the groom a dapper little chap about a year or two younger. A lady who came aboard at Wyandotte took a seat just ahead and after a few minutes she heard the pair criticising her bonnet her cloak and general style. Without showing the least resentment in her countenance, she turned around in her seat and said: "Madam, will you have your son close the window behind you?" The "son" closed his mouth instead, and the "madam" didn't giggle again for sixteen miles.—Detroit Free Press.

☞ California still leads in the production of gold, its product last year being $16,800,000; while Colorado leads in the production of silver, its product last year being $16,500,000. In both metals, Colorado produced more than California.

SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1883.

The Willard Centennial.

The celebration at West Quincy on Tuesday, of the one-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Solomon Willard, was very nicely arranged and finely carried out. The sky was overcast and there was a good breeze, which made it very pleasant for the large gathering who had assembled to witness the interesting exercises on this occasion.

Flags were flying, and many of the public and private buildings were handsomely decorated. Over the driveway leading to the residence of John Hussey, on Willard street, was a handsome arch of flowers bearing the following words:—

"THE OLD HOME OF WILLARD;"

the Willard School House was tastefully trimmed under the direction of Mr. William P. Beeching, principal; the Granite engine house by the company; the Willard shaft by Mrs. Richard W. Dexter and Mr. Thomas Clare, and bore, near the top, the following words:—

"THE GOOD DIE NOT,"

which was attached to the south side of the monument. Directly under this motto was the inscription,

"SOLOMON WILLARD,
JUNE 26, 1783.
FEBRUARY 27, 1861."

The tomb in which Mr. Willard's remains were laid is situated near the south corner of the cemetery and is within a few feet of the street. It contains, also, the remains of Mr. James Hall, the donor of the land for the cemetery. Both were bachelors and fast friends, and they agreed that their bodies should find a last resting place side by side in the same tomb. Above the door had been arranged a beautiful display of flowers, with the following inscription in violets upon a white ground:—

1783.
SOLOMON WILLARD.
1883.

The procession was formed in front of the Willard School House in the following order:—

Chief Marshal, James H. Elcock.
Aids,
George W. Miller, Tobias Burke, P. F. Lacy, Harry Luce, James White, Samuel Ames, William Gragg, Leone C. Badger, Bernard Hart, John D. Natting, Michael O'Brien.
Francis Walsh, Thomas J. Lamb, R. W. Dexter.
Police.
W. M. French, Chief.
Quincy Brass Band,
H. C. Brown, Leader.
Engineers of the Fire Department.
Granite Engine Company,
John G. Weddick, Foreman.
Selectmen of Quincy.
Members of Bunker Hill Monument Association.
Pupils of Willard School,
St. Francis Court No. 25 M. C. O. F.

The procession moved over the following route: Copeland, Cross and Willard streets, Furnace avenue, Copeland street, Belknap square and Cemetery street to Hall Cemetery, where, around a massive granite shaft, erected by Mr. Willard, the addresses were made, and the cool, refreshing lemonade was enjoyed.

When the procession reached the cemetery the school children decorated the tomb and the granite shaft with flowers. After the playing of a dirge by the band, the Chief Marshal, Mr. James H. Elcock, stepped upon the platform and introduced the President of the Day, Seth Dewing, Esq.

Mr. Dewing, in his easy manner, made a short and telling address. He said he was pleased to see the interest taken in this event, by the townspeople and others from abroad. He said, we are commemorating the 100th birthday of a man whose memory will last as long as that granite column shall stand, and be held in a remembrance as sweet as the flowers which the children have to-day strewn upon his grave and at the base of the column which he, almost unaided, here raised. We come here to-day to celebrate the birthday of a man, who, though born in humble station, in an obscure village, died at the ripe age of nearly fourscore, leaving a name known throughout the extent of the country, and a character upon which no stain has ever been seen. I knew him well during the last ten years of his life, and I bear witness here to-day that a more honorable man, a more unselfish individual, never trod the streets of Quincy. You old men knew his worth; you young men and young women—aye, and children, too—can bear witness to the memory which he has left behind him. Before I conclude, I will mention that one of our artisans, Mr. Thomas Clare, has offered, though personally unknown to Mr. Willard, that if the citizens will place a bust of Mr. Willard upon the top of this column, he will give one-half the labor of cutting the work. I hope that this generous offer will be accepted.

After the opening address by the President, Rev. Samuel Kelley offered prayer, which was followed by a selection by the band. Mr. Dewing then read a lengthy letter from the Bunker Hill Monument Association, eulogizing Mr. Willard for his valuable labor as architect and superintendent of the Bunker Hill Monument. It was largely through his energy and zeal that the obelisk was constructed; and thousands of dollars saved to the Association. In remembrance of Mr. Willard, the Association now offer to defray the expense of placing a permanent inscription or epitaph on the granite shaft he erected in the Hall Cemetery.

The President then introduced Mr. William W. Wheildon of Concord, Mass., who was Mr. Willard's biographer. He alluded in terms of the highest eulogy to Mr. Willard. From facts he had gathered in preparing his memoirs, he had conceived the highest possible respect and admiration for the man. He considered Mr. Willard as saving the Monument Association nearer $100,000 than any lesser figure. Edward Everett once said that "the characteristic of Solomon Willard was that he wanted to do everything for everybody, for nothing."

Short and eloquent addresses were then made by Hon. Charles W. Slack, a member of the Monument Association; Mr. William P. Beeching, principal of the Willard School; Dr. W. Lyman Faxon, and Mr. Charles F. Adams, Jr. Mr. Adams suggested in some future time, when West Quincy should be large enough to be a town of itself, that the name of Willard be given it.

The President then introduced the orator of the day, Charles A. Foster, Esq., who delivered, in a clear and attractive manner, a very able address, which we believe all our readers would be pleased to read, and, therefore, have decided to publish it in full. It will make some four or five columns, and will be found on the first page of next week's paper. We had intended to have printed it to-day, but after getting it partly in type we found its length would prevent us from so doing.

Brief Locals.

☞ Mr. G. F. Wilson's new store on Hancock street will probably be raised next week.

☞ Miss Annie L. Prescott returned home on Thursday, from the Northfield Seminary.

☞ At Christ Church to-morrow morning there is to be infant baptismal services.

☞ Mr. Emery L. Crane has been appointed administrator of the estate of Henry F. Crane of Quincy.

☞ The Town Hall has been crowded twice this week to listen to graduating exercises.

☞ Officer Faxon has seized this week a quantity of intoxicating liquors from Albert Shautee of Quincy.

☞ There are a large number of cases of scarlet fever in town at the present time. Most of them are in a light form.

☞ The fine rain we have received this week was much needed, although it has interrupted the labors of the haymakers.

☞ Miss Mabel G. French arrived in town on Thursday, after having spent the winter with her sister in Brattleboro', Vt.

☞ The pupils in elocution, of Prof. S. R. Kelley of this town, graduated at Tremont Temple, Boston, on Thursday afternoon last.

☞ Mr. Charles T. Cole, the village druggist at West Quincy, has been confined to his house this week, by an attack of typhoid fever.

☞ The children belonging to the Christ Church Sunday-School will hold their picnic in Mr. Amory's grove, Braintree, on Friday next.

☞ The excellent letter from Barre, Vt., on our first page, was received last week, but unfortunately we were obliged to lay it over one week.

☞ The public library grounds are now looking well. The new arched sidewalk, nicely concreted, with hitching posts in front, is a decided improvement.

☞ Mr. Samuel Crane, on High School avenue, who has been confined to his house for several weeks by sickness, is improving, and has been able to ride out this week.

☞ Contributions for the Boston Flower and Fruit Mission may be left on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday next, at the house of Mr. C. A. Foster, Granite street.

☞ The last meeting for the season of the associated charities will be held next Tuesday, July 3, at 3 P. M., in the selectmen's rooms. A full attendance is desired.

☞ Mr. J. Edward Spear left Quincy on Thursday for Cincinnati, where he intends making his future home. His wife and daughter will join him in September.

☞ The boys who placed a sign in a door-way, for fun, last Wednesday evening, are cautioned against such acts in future, as such tricks might result in serious injury.

☞ Mr. John O. Holden has a fine photographic view of the new library building for sale. It is a very handsome picture, and does credit to the artist.

☞ Among those receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy from Harvard College, on Wednesday last, was Mr. Jeffrey R. Brackett of this town.

☞ Our townsman, John Q. Adams, Esq., was elected one of the Vice-Presidents of the Harvard College Alumni Association, at its annual meeting on Thursday.

☞ Next Wednesday is the Fourth of July; the day we all celebrate. We have several old ink barrels, which will do for bonfires, which we will give to any of the boys that will call for them.

☞ Mrs. Anna Thomas and child, from Memphis, Tenn., arrived at her mother's residence, Mrs. Francis Wilson, on Saturday last. She intends spending the summer among her friends.

☞ Rev. Ellis Drake, a former pastor of the Congregationalist Church at Quincy Point, is to be married on Tuesday next, at Northfield, Mass., to Miss Emmer F. Angell, principal of the Northfield Seminary.

☞ Mr. John Hall is attending the undertakers' convention at Cincinnati, Ohio, this week. He has left his business in good hands, and the wants of our citizens will be carefully looked after, if he should not be back for another week.

☞ It will be noticed by our advertising columns that our townsman, Capt. Whiting, is prepared to furnish oils for illuminating and lubricating purposes at the lowest prices. As prices are very low now it is a good time to lay in a stock.

☞ We hear considerable grumbling, particularly from our mechanics, at the late hour the Quincy post office is opened mornings. Many of our citizens, who are obliged to be at their work at 7 o'clock, wish to visit the office a few minutes before that hour, and it seems to be a request that Friend Bass would be wise to heed.

FIRE. On Tuesday afternoon, about 2.30 o'clock, a fire was discovered near James Edwards' wind mill, caused by the burning of some hay belonging to Daniel Baxter, which would have proved quite a loss had it not been for the prompt actions of Officer Furnald and Charles Foster, who saw and extinguished the flames. It is supposed that a spark from a passing engine had set the hay on fire.

FLORAL SUNDAY. The two parishes of Rev. Mr. Sawyer observed Floral Sunday last Sabbath. At Quincy, the son of Mr. W. H. North and the six months' child of Mr. John Gordon received baptism. The pastor gave the children a talk about flowers and childhood. The concert in the evening drew a full house, which listened also to an interesting address by Mr. C. E. Wiggin of Boston. At North Weymouth, Mr. Sawyer preceded his sermon with the baptism of eight children.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY. The Boston Journal says that "Hon. Everett C. Bumpus, District Attorney of the Southeastern District, denies very emphatically the report which is going about that he has expressed a determination not to be a candidate for re-election next fall."

Quincy Point Items.

FOURTH OF JULY.

The general committee for the celebration of the Fourth of the July has prepared the following order of exercises for the day, and a glorious time is expected:

Morning services will be held in the Baptist Chapel at 10:30 o'clock; Rev. George B. Lawton will officiate as chaplain and Rev. J. L. Harris as orator of the day. The Declaration of Independence will be read by H. M. Federhen, Jr. Music will be furnished by a full chorus under the direction of Mr. T. Harris Newcomb.

At one o'clock, in the Town river, will occur a plank race, swimming match, and explosion of dynamite by Phillips Bros. Immediately after, the following athletic sports will take place at Point Holes: Sack race, three-legged race, 100 yard dash, potato race, and a match game of baseball.

At eight o'clock in the evening, at Thomas' ship-yard, there will be an exhibition of fireworks. A grand display is promised.

The programme is fully up to the standard of former years, and will, no doubt, be carried out with the same success.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The ordinance of baptism was administered on Sunday last, by the pastor of the Baptist Church, Rev. George B. Lawton, to four persons, viz: Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Wait, Mr. Joseph Linnell and James Richardson, at Thomas' ship-yard. A large congregation gathered to witness the ceremony, which was very impressive.

Mr. Lawton preached a short sermon by the water side, explaining many points which are often misunderstood, regarding baptism and the prominence given it by this denomination.

The rite of baptism will again be administered by Rev. George B. Lawton, at nine o'clock Sunday morning, at the same place.

At the afternoon service will occur the reception of members.

SCHOOLS.

Graduations this year have followed one another in quick succession. The closing exercises of Adams Academy occurred on Tuesday, and though there were no Point students among the graduates, the following received especial notice:

James F. Harlow received two prizes, the first, a copy of Scott's Poems, for excellency in classics in the second class, and the other, the Brackett prize of fifteen dollars in gold, for the best English Composition, subject: "Julius Cæsar in History and Shakespeare."

Herbert M. Federhen, Jr. received honorable mention in classics, as a member of the second class.

James H. Slade, Jr. received the prize for excellency in classics in the third class.

The graduating exercises of the Grammar schools took place on Wednesday afternoon in the Town Hall and eleven pupils from the Washington School received diplomas. Of these, the following had a part in the exercises and acquitted themselves with credit: Alfred C. Sampson, Hattie L. Fobes, Mabelle Shaw and Helen M. Slade, who was valedictorian.

The class, with the teachers, went directly from the Town Hall to the residence of Mrs. E. D. Leland, where all partook of tea and completely surprised their principal, Mr. F. M. King, by the gift of an elegantly bound copy of Webster's unabridged dictionary. Mr. King had previously been made the recipient of a fine ebony cane from Mr. John Shaw, Jr., in appreciation of the conscious labor in behalf of his daughter, Mabelle Shaw.

SHIPPING.

Arrived, June 25th, schooner Emma C. Rommel, Capt. Lore, with 500 tons of coal for Joel F. Sheppard.

Cleared, June 26th, schooner E. M. Baxter, Capt. Floyd, with granite, from Barker and others, for Philadelphia.

Cleared, June 28th, schooner Helena Russell, Capt. Mehaffery, with granite, from Paterson and others, for New York.

THIS AND THAT.

At a meeting of the Quincy Base-Ball Association held Thursday evening, it was voted to purchase uniforms for the first nine.

There will probably be a meeting of the Vulture Engine Company Monday evening, at 7.30 o'clock.

PERSONAL.

Miss Lillian T. Harlow has been very sick with a fever during the past three weeks, but is now more comfortable.

The Misses Pettingill and Miss Gowing left yesterday for their homes in Petersboro and Dublin, New Hampshire.

Children's Sunday.

Children's Sunday was observed by the Congregational Church last Sabbath, the pastor preaching an appropriate sermon in the morning and the annual floral festival taking place in the evening, when brief addresses were made by Mr. Wason, the pastor, and the superintendent. The usual exercises were given by the children, including excellent singing under the lead of Mrs. M. E. Robinson, Miss Fannie Southworth presiding at the piano.

The floral decorations, in variety of design, were arranged in good taste, and the pulpit presented the appearance of a solid bank of flowers. We observed, in great abundance, the beautiful mountain laurel, which, we believe, does not grow in this vicinity. Memorial wreaths were set apart for the graves of members who have deceased the past year, and the sick were tenderly remembered in the general distribution.

The interesting exercises continued a little less than one hour.

ASSAULTED. Mr. George Shaw and wife, aged 65 and 63, who live on Quincy avenue near the Braintree line were assaulted at their residence on Sunday morning last, about 1.30 o'clock, by three young chaps who, it is said, had been indulging too freely with intoxicating liquors. They demanded admittance, which was refused; when they commenced breaking the windows. Mr. Shaw opened the door in the hopes to drive them away, but no sooner was it opened than they rushed in and commenced abusing the aged couple, and breaking the furniture. Mr. Shaw ran for assistance to the neighbors and while he was away they all feloniously assaulted Mrs. Shaw and badly bruised her. One of the young men, Orlando Hanson was recognized by Mr. and Mrs. Shaw, and has since been arrested by Officer Furnald, who had him before the District court yesterday morning. Judge Pratt, after consultation, postponed the case until Saturday, July 7.

Adams Academy.

The graduating exercises of the Adams Academy were held in the school room last Tuesday morning. The platform was occupied by Professor Everett, Rev. Edward Norton, Charles H. Porter, Esq., and Mr. Jeffrey R. Brackett. The school room was very tastefully decorated with potted plants and baskets of flowers.

The exercises were opened with a prayer by Rev. Edward Norton, followed by the salutatory, in Latin, by James W. Hall, of Washington Territory. The class oration was read by Charles F. Ayer, of Lowell; class poem, by Charles Carroll, of Maryland. The essay of Charles E. Loud, of Weymouth, on President Adams, the founder of the school, was very appropriate to the occasion.

Short addresses of good will and advice were delivered by Rev. Edward Norton and Mr. Jeffrey R. Brackett; Mr. Brackett also gave one of the prizes—fifteen dollars in gold—which was awarded to Master James Harlow, son of Dr. Harlow, of Quincy Point. Professor Everett presented the prizes, and the following were the recipients of the weekly approbation cards: first class,—A. N. Hunt, Weymouth; C. E. Loud, Weymouth; second class,—Perry Lawton, Quincy; fourth class,—G. T. Westland, Quincy.

Classical prizes: first class,—James W. Hall, Port Blakely, W. T.; second class,—J. E. Harlow, Quincy; third class,—J. H. Slade, Quincy; fourth class,—Gregory McPherson, Seabright, N. J.

Mathematical prizes: first class,—W. S. Robinson, Quincy; second class,—H. Edwards, Quincy; third class,—J. H. Burton, Newburg, N. J.; fourth class,—G. T. Westland, Quincy.

Prize for an English essay, J. F. Harlow, Quincy.

Rev. H. Evan Cotton gave the benediction, and the exercises were closed with a great many good wishes and congratulations.

The following is the list of graduates: W. F. Atwoods, South Abington; C. F. Ayer, Lowell; D. B. Bowles, Springfield; Charles Carroll, Ellicott City, Md.; J. W. Hall, Port Blakeley, W. T.; F. E. Hughes, East Somerville; A. N. Hunt, Weymouth; L. A. Johnson, Braintree; H. G. Keays, Lincoln, Ill.; C. E. Loud, Weymouth; J. P. Loud, Weymouth; H. F. McIntire, Wollaston; E. C. Palmer, Wareham; F. B. Penrose, Philadelphia, Pa.; F. B. Rice, Quincy; W. S. Robinson, Quincy; W. B. Scofield, Worcester; A. L. Tyler, Anniston, Ala.; J. F. Whistler, Baltimore, Md.

High School.

The Quincy High School class of '83 held its graduating exercises at the Town Hall on Thursday evening. At an early hour the hall was crowded, there being hardly standing room. The hall was decorated with wreaths, garlands, potted plants and flags, and presented a handsome appearance.

The motto of the class—"Deeds, Not Words," was made of flowers, and placed over the platform. The exercises, although somewhat lengthy, were listened to with much pleasure. The salutatory address was given by Charles A. Price and the valedictory by George A. Devlin. It was the largest class that ever graduated from the Quincy High School, there being thirty graduates.

The diplomas were presented by Edwin W. Marsh, Esq., who also made a short address to the mothers about the Primary Schools, asking them to have patience with their little ones and the teachers. The singing by the school was excellent. The following is the list of graduates:

Alice Adams, Maggie Brown, Mary Loretta Bryant, Louise Belle Carter, Mary Louise Conway, Joseph Francis Costello, George Andrew Devlin, Sarah Elizabeth Dunphy, Butler Toppan Emery, Emma Marian Farnum, Maude Davis Field, Emma Cornelia Flint, Clara Parsons French, Clara Mercedes Gilraine, Walter Beal Holden, Grace Emily Ingram, Anna Beatrice Kelly, Mary Lucinda Linton, Edward Breck Marsh, Carrie Frances Parker, Mary Catherine Parker, Minnie Johnson Pratt, Charles Atkinson Price, Henry Norman Weymouth Rideout, Addie Frances Scott, Emma Jane Shackley, William Warren Sheen, Edward Joseph Webb, Arthur Carroll White, Emily Rebecca White.

TIMELY RESCUE. Last Thursday afternoon, a small, flat-bottom skiff, containing a gentleman and lady from Brockton, was upset off the Willow House, and but for the timely rescue by a Mr. Knox, one of Mr. Hosea Ellis' workmen, one or both of the parties would have been drowned. The lady, a Mrs. Connor, who is occupying Vine Cottage, near the Linden House, went to visit some friends who were camping near Quincy Woods, and the gentleman, a Mr. Charles Tabor, invited her to take a sail, saying he would carry her home. They had proceeded but a short distance when they were struck by a flaw, and both were precipitated into the water. Mrs. Connor, who was unable to swim, succeeded in getting hold of the boat, to which she clung for about half an hour, and was greatly exhausted when rescued. Mr. Tabor could swim, but as he could not persuade Mrs. Connor to accompany him to the shore, he stuck by the lady.

NEW PAPERS. Two new papers have been started in this county lately. One at Dedham, by Mr. John D. Emmons, called the Norfolk County Herald, and the other at Hyde Park, and christened the Hyde Park Times, by E. S. Hathaway, Esq. These newspapers make good appearances, and will strive hard for the public patronage; but with the excellent papers now in Dedham and Hyde Park, we believe it will be up-hill work.

☞ The Ashland correspondent of the Milford Journal gives the following item: "Moses Averill, a native of New Hampshire, and for many years a resident of this town, was struck by the 8.30 A. M. express from Boston on Saturday morning and instantly killed. Mr. Averill was 76 years and 3 months old. He leaves one daughter to mourn his loss. The remains were taken to Quincy on Monday morning for interment."

MILTON. Mrs. A. F. Pope, postmistress of Milton, died Thursday morning, from a complication of diseases from which she had been suffering for several months. She had been postmistress at Milton for the past three years and was highly esteemed by all who knew her.

DAMONIA, the new remedy advertised in our columns, is a magnetic mineral earth lately discovered in Texas, which a careful analysis of our most prominent chemists declares to contain the most potent medical ingredients. A trial is recommended.

Hough's Neck.

Some fourteen or more of the cottagers are now occupying their hamlets by the sea, at this pleasant resort.

The Linden House is fast filling up with boarders. As Mrs. Taber endeavors to keep in advance of everything, she says the Linden House is three laps ahead on six-toed kittens.

Mr. Mears entertained a large party of ladies last week; they came there for a good time and enjoyed the day in a pleasant and social manner; as ladies always do when on a goose scrape.

Mr. Lewis H. Cain is repairing his cottage, and intends adorning it with a new coat of paint.

Mr. N. B. Furnald's cottage has been neatly painted and put in thorough repair.

Mr. Chapin Thayer has had his house neatly painted, improving its looks greatly.

Mr. E. S. Fellows' cottage is greatly beautified with some very handsome flowers.

The house of Messrs. Hawes & Packard was handsomely illuminated last Saturday evening.

A large scow was anchored Wednesday evening near the Red Lion; Thursday morning it was being loaded with gravel.

It is reported that a new road is to be laid out by the beach, commencing near the Willow House. If this should be done it would not only make a delightful drive by the water, but would also open a large number of beautiful sea-shore lots.

Quincy Yacht Club Regatta.

The third regatta of the Quincy Yacht Club was sailed off Quincy Great Hill on Wednesday afternoon last. At the time of the race a heavy east wind was blowing, and a thick fog hung over the bay. A large number of boats were on hand, and after a while they decided to sail; so at 3:15 the signal was given. The Joker in the second and the Dandelion in the third class, were the winners of the silk pennants, given by Ex-Commodore Sigourney Butler. The following is the result of the race:

Northfield Seminary.

The closing exercises of the above seminary took place on Wednesday, and were largely attended by the friends of the scholars and the school.

Quincy was represented by Miss Annie L. Prescott, as a pupil, and Mr. Frank F. Prescott, as invited guest.

Prof. J. H. Hewitt of Williams College delivered a very able address on "Puritan Character;" and several of the young ladies took part in the exercises. The singing by the chorus of nearly one hundred and fifty voices was excellent, and the solos, duetts, quartettes and sextette on the piano deserve much praise.

This excellent seminary was founded but three years ago by Rev. D. L. Moody, a gentleman well known all over the United States, and is making excellent progress..

Squantum Chips.

We must say that Squantum is looking more charming and attractive every year. During the past few years there has been new cottages erected, and in fact everything is beginning to look better.

A few Sabbaths ago some of our good people got together and organized a Sabbath school, with Mr. Arthur Woodward as superintendent.

We also have preaching as often as every other Sunday, which makes it quite pleasant for those that desire to attend.

Mr. C. A. Richards has been making some very pretty improvements in and around his beautiful summer residence, which tend to beautify it greatly.

Mr. Richards and family arrived for the summer last Thursday.

Mr. G. F. Burkhardt and family have located here in his cottage, for the season.

Mr. H. K. Pope's cottage is unoccupied as yet this season. We understand he has offered it for sale.

Mr. F. W. Webster, of Dorchester, is building a cottage here; it will probably be finished in about two weeks.

The Sea Side Cottage, formerly known as "Our Boarding House," is open. It has been re-furnished, and has at present something like twenty boarders, and will accommodate fifteen or twenty more.

Mr. J. A. King's cottage is occupied by himself and others occasionally, as the hot weather drives them from the city.

Mr. H. Guild and family are occupying their cottage this summer.

Mr. William McBean has bought a new cat-rigged yacht and is here two or three times a week, to enjoy a sail in our bay.

Our temperance people assembled at the Sea Side Cottage and organized a Lodge of I. O. of G. T., and June 13th some of the Grand Lodge officers came down and instituted the lodge and installed the officers for the first quarter, which are as follows:

W. C. T., Brother F. B. Morse.
W. V. T., Sister Mary E. Butler.
W. Sec., Brother E. C. Harrington.
W. Treas., Brother C. Drew.
W. F. S., Brother E. P. Dewey.
W. M., Brother Arthur Woodward.
W. C., Brother William C. Turner,
W. I. G., Sister Ida Varley.
W. O. G., Brother John Varley.
W. R. H. S., Sister M. Gertrude Butler.
W. L. H. S., Sister Annie M. Varley.
P. W. C. O., Brother W. Knowles.

The lodge has fifteen members now, and is to be known as Squantum Lodge No. 153, I. O. of G. T. The lodge will do a good work, and we hope the Squantum and Atlantic people will assist them all they can.

The stone work on the new sewer is reaching completion very fast and we understand that the excavating of the same is about completed.

Messrs. Boynton & Co. are pushing their contract as fast as could be expected.

Letter from New York.

New York, June 27, 1883.

The pleasant weather of the past week or two has afforded considerable scope for out-door sports. Last Thursday the annual regatta of the New York Yacht Club took place. There were nineteen entries. The wind was fair, the day beautiful and the white-winged vessels held their own. A fine game of base ball was played on the Polo Grounds, on Saturday, between the Princetons and Yales, being the last champion game of the season. The result was in favor of Princeton, the score being three to two. There were fully two thousand people present, including many ladies, who wore the respective colors of the contestants. The game was well played and fairly won.

The former trustees of the East River Bridge having been re-elected, met on Thursday for reorganization. The receipts for the past four weeks were shown to have been $22,937.49; reaching the first week after the opening, an amount nearly three times as large as during any subsequent week. The question as to whether water pipes should be placed across the bridge for protection against fire was discussed and referred to a special committee.

The seventieth birthday of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was celebrated at the Brooklyn Academy, on Monday evening last. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Armitage, of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church of this city; Rev. Robert Collyer, D. D.; Mayor Low, and others; Mr. Beecher concluding the exercises with an appropriate speech. Ex-Judge Joseph Neilson, of the City Court, presided. The celebration was continued at Mr. Beecher's country home, near Peekskill, last evening, by a reception from his friends, and a serenade by the village band.

Several hundred immigrant paupers were landed at Castle Garden on Sunday and Monday last, by two Anchor Line steamers. Very many of these immigrants have been taken directly from the Irish almshouses, by the English authorities, and sent to this country with but a pound or two in their pockets. An animated discussion is going on among the Commissioners of Emigration as to whether the steamship company which brought them over can be made to take them back, and if not, what is to be done with them. Secretary Folger has telegraphed instructions to the Collector of Customs, in this city, to the effect that immigrant paupers and criminals should not be allowed to land, and if already landed, every effort must be made to have them shipped back to the places from which they were sent. This is an imposition which Americans should not tolerate.

JUNE BUTTER.

To Buyers and Users of Butter:

I AM now constantly receiving large quantities of the much desired JUNE BUTTER, direct from the best of Vermont Dairies.

This Butter is packed in new, clean tubs, from 20 to 40 pounds each, and shipped in refrigerator cars from week to week as it is made. Besides the tubs, I receive some in ten-pound boxes; and I have also contracted with one of the best of the daries to have all they make packed in neat, 5-pound boxes for my summer trade.

I am receiving very liberal amounts, and in order to keep my stock fresh, I will sell at very liberal prices. Also, by way of making a special inducement to secure new families for my butter trade, I will offer during the month of June these choice 5-pound boxes, (which usually sell at 31 or 35 cents) at just 30 cents a pound; delivered free.

This Butter is being used by some of the best families in Quincy and Neponset; but as the "proof of the pudding is in the eating," I would invite all to give this a trial and see for themselves.

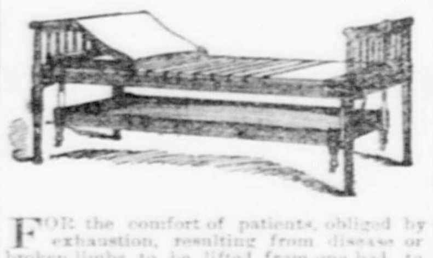
Crosby Invalid Bedstead.



FOR the comfort of patients obliged by exhaustion, resulting from disease or broken limbs, to be lifted from one bed to another; also to prevent or cure bed-sores.

It affords easy access to the body, permitting the bed to be changed or made up without moving or annoying the patient. It is simple in construction and can be managed by a child. By its use one attendant can perform all the necessary duties to a sick person, however prostrated.

This bedstead was used by the late President Garfield, and it is adopted in the hospitals of the United States government. Call and see it in operation at Quincy Grammar Schools.

The graduating exercises of the Quincy Grammar Schools took place in the Town Hall last Wednesday afternoon. There was a very large audience present, consisting of the parents and friends of the pupils. The exercises were excellent and consisted of singing, declamations, essays and readings. The gymnastics by the Coddington and Washington Schools were the feature of the afternoon.

Edwin W. Marsh Esq., the chairman of the school committee, presented the diplomas to the graduates, after which was sang the graduation song "Though we part." The following is the list of graduates: —

THE INDIAN QUESTION. An opportunity is to be given the people of Quincy to hear the Indians' side of the Indian question. The princess of the Piute tribe, Sarah Winnemucca Hopkins, the descendant of a long line of chiefs, will speak of the condition of her people and of their needs, in First church, next Sunday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. She writes:

"My mission here in your eastern cities is to ask, in the name of justice, mercy and humanity, for a resting place for my worn and weary people,—Will you give my people a home? not a place for this year, but a home forever? You can do it. Will you? 'Tis for you to say, you, the people. I have not come here either to collect money or to make a request for any position for myself. I come because my father wished me to tell the true story of my people to the world — the story of their friendliness and fidelity to the white men from the time when my grandfather first saw them in his country, and made that promise."

She has told her story to the people of Dorchester and Cambridge and Salem and Concord and many other places; moving all who heard her to indignation, and enlisting their sympathies. At Concord she was entertained at the house of Mrs. Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Judge Hoar introduced her at the public meeting. She has letters of recommendation from Gen. Howard, Gen. Armstrong, and many others. She should have a good hearing.

District Court, Quincy.

The following criminal cases have been before the Court this week:

Daniel Horgan of Braintree, for being drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

Daniel Horgan and James T. Moran of Braintree, for disturbing the peace. They were found guilty and fined each $5 and one-half the costs.

William Mills was brought in for an assault on James Sweeney. The case was continued until Monday next.

George T. Reed and John Connor of Quincy, for breaking and disturbing the peace. Found guilty and were fined each $5 and one-half of the costs.

Olando Hanson, of Quincy, for an assault on Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw. Case continued to July 7th, and Hanson was ordered to give bonds in $500 for his appearance.

☞ The export trade in fresh beef is reaching unusual proportions this season. Up to May 31, this year, 63,878,970 pounds, valued at $6,539,669, had been exported, while during the corresponding period of 1882 but 36,253,495 pounds, valued at $3,454,146, were exported.

Thayer Academy.

The annual graduation exercises at Thayer Academy took place on Tuesday forenoon, in the large, beautiful hall in the building.

The weather was delightful, and there was a very large gathering, including members from neighboring towns and from a distance. The walls and front of the stage were very tastefully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers; while overhead, and facing the audience, was suspended in rustic characters the class motto, "All life's needs for life, is possible to will."

Prof. J. B. Sewall, head master of the academy, conducted the exercises, which commenced by the offering of prayer by Rev. Dr. Russell of Holbrook. Thereafter the Academy Choir, led by Prof. H. Wilde of Randolph, sang Martin Luther's "Sweet is the work." The following programme of exercises was then very satisfactorily and flatteringly carried out: —

Salutatory by Mr. Otis Briggs Oakman; Essay "Desdemona a typical woman" by Miss Abigail Curtis Chamberlin; French Recitation, "Les adieux de Marie Stuart" by Miss Josephine Bertha Colbert; Essay "Conversation as seen from one point of view" by Miss Annie Kimball Dyer; Singing by the choir, Handel's "See the conquering hero comes;" Greek dialogue, from Lucian, by Messrs. Howard Littlefield, Everett Starr Litchfield, and Harry Clifford Wood; Essay "Oliver Cromwell" by Miss Isabel Lois Hardwick; Essay "English Clubs and Coffee houses" by Miss Sarah Griffin Holmes; German recitation, Schiller's "Die worte des glaubau" by Miss Maria Willett Howard; Essay "Some sonnetteers and their sonnets" by Miss Mary Lizzie Howard; Singing by the choir, Schumann's "Greeting to Spring;" Declamation, Seward's "Defense of Freemen" by Mr. James Hawkins Leatherbee; Essay "Social life in Shakespear's time" by Miss Ella Williams Sheppard; Essay "The attention and education" by Miss Alice Dean Spear; Essay "The Electric Telephone" by Mr. Harry Clifford Wood; Valedictory by Miss Ada Elizebeth Thayer; Singing by the choir, Mendelssohn's "The hunter's farewell."

The conferring of diplomas by Prof. Sewall followed, who performed this part of the programme in his usual thoughtful and efficient manner. The highly interesting proceedings were brought to a close by Dr. Russell's pronouncing the benediction. The following are the names of the graduates: —

Leander Cavanaugh, Abigail Curtis Chamberlin, Josephine Bertha Colbert, Annie Kendall Dyer, Isabel Lois Hardwick, Sarah Griffin Holmes, Maria Willett Howard, Mary Lizzie Howard, Harry Clifford Wood, Charlotte Gove Lane, James Hawkins Leatherbee, Everett Star Litchfield, Howard Littlefield, Otis Briggs Oakman, Ella Williams Sheppard, Alice Dean Spear, Alice Elizabeth Thayer.

The afternoon was devoted by the young folks to dancing and friendly intercourse.

LUSCIOUS. We are indebted to Mr. Bryant N. Adams for a treat of delicious strawberries, which for size, beauty and sweetness we think would be hard to beat. If our citizens are desirous of procuring cucumbers fresh from the vines, Mr. Adams can supply them at short notice, and as we have sampled them we can recommend them. Vegetables of all kinds in their seasons of superior quality.

"THE BULLET AND SHELL." This is the title of a new work just issued from the pen of George F. Williams, a well-known New York journalist. This book has the quick, keen intelligence, the brightness and graphic force which the writer exhibited as a war-correspondent. It shows a minute familiarity with the details of march, camp, battle, hospital and prison; at the same time one gets from it an outline-history of the war, and general view of its approach, continuance and ending. It is just the book all the Grand Army Boys will read with pleasure. The scenes in the camp and battle-field are painted with realistic power. The agent for this work is in Quincy, and will call on our citizens next week.

"WONDERFUL COUSIN SARAH." This is quite an entertaining and instructive little book. It treats on home subjects of great importance, the principal being the art of economy in the cookery department, whereby a good palatable meal can be gotten up in first-class shape from the odd bits that are left from the dining-table. This is just the book for the home circle, and it should find a place in every house. Howard Gannett, Esq., of Wollaston, is publisher, and the price of the book is 30 cents.

Surprise Party.

On Saturday night last a party to the number of twenty-six, laden with baskets, &c., were seen wending their way to the residence of Mrs. Ann M. Everson, to surprise her on the anniversary of her 64th birthday. A short time after the party, consisting of brothers, sisters, nieces, nephews and a few intimate friends, had become settled and quiet, Mrs. E. was led to the parlor by two of her elder sisters, and was then presented in behalf of all present with an elegant easy chair, and also numerous other articles. As the recipient was so overcome and surprised, her speech to the donors was brief.

A short time was then spent with music, both vocal and instrumental, and then all were invited to partake of a collation. At the first table fourteen sat down, the total of whose ages amounted to 898 years, the average being sixty-four. It is seldom that you find at one gathering so many whose ages average as above.

As the small hours of morning approached, we took leave, hoping that the sister would live to celebrate many more birthdays, and hoping all would meet again.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

THE BIGAMIST. The rascalities of Albert E. Gore, a former resident of Quincy are again brought prominently before the public by the recent action of Detective Furnald, who has recently returned from a trip to New York, where he has been making arrangements to bring before the grand jury of that city, facts concerning the thefts of Gore, for the purpose of procuring an indictment for grand larceny, the specific charge being the theft of a diamond pin, valued at $2,000 from James Castle of East Thirty-fourth street, New York, which pin was stolen by Gore while visiting the Castle family, in company with one of his wives. Gore is at present serving out a sentence of five years for bigamy, having married two girls of respectable families, one a resident of New York and the other belonging in Jersey City. He was first immured in Sing Sing, but on account of bad behavior was transferred to Auburn, where he remains at present. Among his other crimes was the stealing of a valuable gold watch and chain, the property of the father of one of his wives who has recently obtained a divorce from him. Gore also committed a forgery in Boston, for which he served a term of imprisonment in this state, previous to his indictment for bigamy, which occurred last February. Complaint has also been made that he purloined valuable jewelry from a Plymouth, Mass., lady. He commenced his career eleven years ago by being sent to the reform school for misdemeanors, and bids fair to spend the larger portion of his time in confinement.

☞ The descendants of Rebecca Nourse, who was executed in Salem, Mass., in 1692, in consequence of the witchcraft delusion, propose holding a basket picnic in July at the old homestead in Tapleyville, Mass.

About $7,000,000 worth of neckties are worn in this country every year.

In Ashland, June 23d, Mr. Moses Averill, formerly of Quincy, aged 76 years and 3 months.

Special Notices.

CARD OF THANKS. At a meeting held on Wednesday evening last, by the committee having in charge the celebration of the anniversary of the hundreth birthday of the late Solomon Willard which was held on Tuesday, it was unanimously voted to return their heartfelt thanks to all persons who in any way assisted them in so successfully carrying out a celebration, which will keep green, in the memory of all who attended, the name of a man whose sincerity, fidelity and generosity toward all were the uppermost thoughts of his mind. Again we thank all who aided us, as we firmly believe that through their assistance and untiring exertions the affair was made a day of rejoicing for all.

SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1883.

For the Patriot.

A Summer Dream.

One night when the sun was setting
We launched our boat away,
And light and happy-hearted,
We drifted out on the bay.

Brightly across the water
Shone the sun's expiring beam,
Tinging, with golden lustre,
Mountain, wood and stream.

The scene in its wild beauty
Touched the maiden's heart and mine,
And in low, grave tones she murmured:
"A glimpse of that throne divine.

"A gleam from those heavenly mansions
Of which the prophets have told,
A glimpse of those walls of jasper,
A sign of the streets of gold."

Those summer days have faded,
The maiden young and fair
Now dwelleth with the spirits,
In the realms of upper air.

And so, when the sun is setting,
Its last faint beams I love,
For they seem like unto a message
To me from this maid above.

ALDEN H. DAY.

Farm and Garden.

Care of Young Trees.

Trees that are not on cultivated land should receive especial care until they have been set more than two years. Trees that do well the first year often die the second because, supposing them to be out of danger, they receive no especial care. It is very well understood that a tree must be looked after the first year, but not understood as well as it should be, that they need particular attention the second year. In our climate the sun is very hot and we often have long-continued dry weather, sometimes so long as to dry the earth below the roots of trees that have been set but a few years. As a tree full of leaves exhales a very large quantity of water every day, the roots, to keep the tree full, exhaust the moisture from the soil so rapidly that when capilliary action is checked by a hard baked crust on top there is not enough moisture drawn from below to supply water in sufficient quantities to keep life in the tree.

To keep the soil in a condition to rapidly draw the moisture from below, the top should be either well cultivated or well shaded,—the latter may be best done by mulching, if done before the dry weather commences. It is wonderful what a difference it makes in the moisture of the soil, whether it be well mulched or left exposed to bake in the sun.

Trees that stand where they are exposed to the hot sun and have no lateral branches to protect the trunks for several feet above the ground need something more than cultivation or mulching; they need to have something to prevent the hot sun from shining on the trunks. This can easily be done by winding around the trunks coarse matting, leaving it loose enough for the air to circulate freely.

During the first year after a tree be set, if the land is not to be cultivated, water should be applied during dry weather twice a week, and when applied it should be in quantities to moisten the earth several feet from each tree.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

LARGE GRAPES. If you want large grapes, break off all the suckers at once which are shooting out from the lower part of the vine. They will not be found much on old vines, but will be seen on young stock. If allowed to remain, they will exhaust the energy necessary to the growth of the grape. Break off all the new canes that do not bear grapes, and pinch off the end of the bearing canes, say within two leaves of the last bunch of grapes or blossoms, there usually being three bunches of grapes on a bearing cane, and the last or top branch is about one foot or more from the main branch. Keep all your growth back to the above limits, and your berries will be larger and the bunches increase in size.—Lysander S. Richards.

ROSE BUGS ON GRAPE VINES. Rose bugs are plenty upon the grape vines. They like the blossoms and do a large amount of mischief. They remain but two or three weeks and therefore should be carefully looked after now. They should be hunted twice a day, and the best way to get rid of them is to pinch them between the thumb and finger.

Anecdotes.

"How many horse power has this engine?" asked a stranger of a colored man who was inspecting the new engine that runs the Siftings press.

The colored man to whom the question was addressed scratched his head under his hat, and replied: "I dunno, boss, how many hoss-power its got, but I heard it tuck six mules and a truck to fotch hit from the depot."—Texas Siftings.

"Why do you have a lighted lamp on the hall floor," asked a neighbor of a thoughtful mother.

"For my boy when he comes in at night."

"I understand," said the neighbor, "it's the lamp of a-lad-in."

"I thought," remarked the victim, after the dentist had dragged him around the room several times, "I thought you advertised to extract teeth without pain."

"So I do, sir," replied the operator, blandly; "it doesn't hurt me at all to yank 'em."

"What're you going to do with that cigar, you litte rascal?" exclaimed a father addressing his son.

"Ma said that if I hit that cat again she'd make me smoke, an' I hit her agin an' am smoking."

"There is one thing connected with your table," said a drummer to a Western landlord, "that is not surpassed even by the best hotels in Chicago."

"Yes," replied the pleased landlord; "and what is that?"

"The salt."

He: "Good-bye, Miss Smith, I'm sorry I have to leave you so soon."

She: "I'm very sorry, too; but, 'parting is such sweet sorrow.'"—Harvard Lampoon.

At a recent marriage ceremony at one of the churches the contracting parties were thirty minutes behind time, and the organ pealed out, "Oh, dear! what can the matter be?"

☞ Two farmers fight about a cow while the lawyers milk her.

Fashion Notes.

Black silks are still very much trimmed with passementerie

Large, coarse straw hats will be worn at the seaside and mountain resorts.

Colored jerseys will be worn over all kinds of skirts, silk, satin, muslin, lawn, etc.

Watered silks and satins are employed for combining with other materials, such as camel's hair and brocades, but are not used for the entire dress.

Kate Greenaway handkerchiefs of white silk, with gayly colored figures of old-fashioned children on the hem, are knotted as cravats for little boys to wear with their kilt suits.

The dark-blue flannel yachting suits of this Summer have red satin waistcoats set within the V-shaped opening of the neck; sleeves shirred at the wrist, and skirts which fall in one large puff over flat plaitings. Plain flannel is combined with that in which an anchor is dimly outlined in old gold.

The plaitings of muslin or crinoline, which are fastened on the inside of dress skirts, should never be set high, unless the wearer wishes to indicate that she is unsophisticated by fashion.

Lace scarfs and neckerchiefs are no longer worn in the street. A frill of lace or a linen collar quite satisfies the demands of fashion as to the amount of white about the throat. Exception is made in favor of costumes trimmed with white embroidery or white lace, but for no others.

Cockade bows in correct form must be of several colors of ribbon, many loops, and a few ends cut into cocks' combs.

The handsomest white-muslin house dresses, elaborately trimmed with fine embroideries and laces, cost as much as $150 in New York; from this they can be bought at prices running downward to $15.

Irish point collars appear in the standing military form.

Large black laces are worn in place of mantles with summer dresses.

Drooping brims have taken the place of sailor hats for children's wear.

Household Receipts.

SPONGE JELLY CAKE. Five eggs, one cupful of flour, two even teaspoonsful of yeast powder, and grated rind of lemon. Beat the yolks, sugar and lemon together to a cream; add whites of eggs beaten to a stiff froth, then the flour and yeast powder perfectly mixed. Bake in a dripping-pan, and when done spread jelly (not sweet), over the bottom of the cake, roll it from the side, and sprinkle sugar over the top; or bake it in two or three jelly-cake pans, and spread jelly between. The cake may be iced on the bottom. The rolled jelly cake may be cut in slices, and served with a sweet sauce for dessert.

If a fish bone or a portion of food sticks in the throat and threatens to produce suffocation, first give a smart blow between the shoulders. This will most likely dislodge the substance. If the patient can make any attempt to swallow, put a large lump of butter in his mouth. This will help the offending substance to pass down the throat more easily. If he cannot swallow, put the finger as far down the throat as possible, and endeavor to pull the bone or meat out, or tickle the throat to produce immediate vomiting. Unless there is prompt action, life may be lost.

GINGER-BREAD. One cupful of molasses, one cupful of boiling water, butter size of an egg, one teaspoonful each of ground cloves, cinnamon, ginger and soda, half a pound of flour (light weight). First, put butter (partly melted) into the molasses, then spices. Dissolve the soda in the boiling water, stir it into the molasses, etc., then the flour. Cream of tartar should not be used with molasses.

SARATOGA FRUIT CAKE. One pound of flour, one pound of sugar, one and one-eighth pounds of butter, one-half pound of candied citron, four pounds of currants, four pounds of raisins (stoned and chopped), nine eggs, one table-spoonful each of ground cloves, of cinnamon, and of nutmeg, and three gills of brandy. This cake will keep for years.

GOLD CAKE. One cup of sugar, half a cup of butter, two cups of flour, yolks of six eggs, grated rind and juice of a lemon or orange, half a teaspoonful of soda, mixed with the flour, and sifted twice. Cream the butter, add the sugar, then the beaten yolks and the flour, beating hard for several minutes. Last, add the lemon or orange juice, and bake.

This and That.

G. H. ROTH,

OPTICIAN, 47 West St., Boston.

ATTENDS personally to the fitting of SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES on strictly scientific principles. See what a leading Boston paper says: "Mr. Roth, who is a successful optician at 47 West Street, demonstrated his thorough knowledge of his business by a lecture before the Boston Young Men's Christian Association. The lecture is spoken of as one of the best ever delivered before the association. Nov. 18—ly
